NEW PLAN TO STARVE GERMANS

TROOPS CLASH WITH MEXICANS AT FT. HANCOCK

El Paso Deputies Sent to Quell Rioting; Mixup on Guarantees Is Seen.

BIG BANDIT HUNT ON.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 15.—Rioting between United States soldiers and Mexicans at Fort Hancock, Tex., tonight caused an appeal from citizens there to the sheriff at El Paso for police protection.

Civilians and soldiers were "cleaning out" the Mexicans, telephone messages from Fort Hancock stated.

A half dozen deputies with sawed off shotguns were sent by automobile from El Paso under instructions to quell the disorders.

Fort Hancock is a border town with a large proportion of Mexicans. Part of the Eighth United States infantry is stationed there.

Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding the American troops here, said he had heard nothing official, but had heard they had engaged in several fights with Mexicans.

U. S. CONSUL DELAYS TRIP.

Marion Letcher, American consul at Chihuahua City, did not leave for his post today. He received a message from Washington countermanding previous instructions to proceed and ordering him to remain on the border. The message was received as he was about to leave here on a southbound train this afternoon.

Mr. Letcher said there was no significance to the message from Washington instructing him to remain in El Paso.

"I was instructed simply to remain here for further orders," he said.

Potter Palmer of Chicago, principal owner of the Cusi Mining company, arrived tonight from Florida. Mr. Palmer plans to inquire into the situation in Mexico affecting the company.

TO FIX FOOD PRICES.

A committee to regulate the cost of living in Mexico by the fixing of prices and profits was appointed today by Gen. Gabriel Gavira, Carranza commandant at Juarez, who also announced the bodies of Gen. Rodrigues and Gen. Rivas, Villa chiefs, shot after the force of Rodrigues had been defeated at Pearson, would reach the border in a day or two so Americans may verify the report of their execution.

According to Gavira, Mormon colonists in western Chihuahua have been instructed to concentrate at Guzman, Pearson, Casas Grandes, and Madera until Chihuahua state is finally cleared of bandits.

To aid in the bandit roundup order by Carranza a regiment of troops from Sonora is proceeding westward under command of Col. José Queveda.

"The American people should be patient," said Gen. Gavira. "We shall soon have entire control of the situation. [illegible], the bandit in southern Sonora, has only 1,800 men. We have many thousands."

The cost of living committee has been

WISE MEN VISIT BABY'S CRIB

Doctors, Lawyers, Priests, Mothers, Spinsters, and the Jobless, Too, Make Pilgrimage to Vivian's Shrine.

THE gurgle smile continues its march of victory. Just the picture of a baby's parted lips and big round eyes and funny nose, and a TRIBUNE head writer's caption, "Who wants me?" have been the means of opening over two thousand homes and twice as many human hearts to 11 month old Vivian Burke.

In her clothes basket castle behind the stove in the small third floor flat of Mrs. Charles J. Brogan at 2023 Cleveland avenue, the possessor of the winning gurgle smile received homage all day yesterday.

Men and women from various parts of Chicago and nearby places made their way to the drab three story brick tenement, climbed the winding two flights of stairs, and kneeled down with outstretched arms toward the chubby, kicking occupant of the basket behind the stove.

Postmen and messenger boys climbed the stairs and delivered numbers of unconditional surrenders to the gurgle smile. The offers to adopt Baby Vivian came by the dozen. Frances Burke, the mother of the child—who is unable to support her—read letters from women whose hearts had been tugged by the gurgle smile.

"I never saw nothing like it," said Mrs. Brogan. "This is the second day of it now, and still they come. The first thing this morning a middle aged woman comes puffing up the stairs and walks in without knocking. 'Has any one taken her yet?' she says, right off.

"'I want that baby, and no other,' she says. 'That baby has cured me of the grip. I was sick in bed all day yesterday and had the doctor. I missed Friday's TRIBUNE and didn't see it until today. I was in bed when I looked at the first page and saw that little darling smiling up at me and almost saying 'Goo,' right out of the paper.

"'I jumped right out of bed,' she said. 'I've forgotten every pain I had. I dressed and ran out, missed the first car, but I hailed an automobile delivery wagon and the driver brought me here for a dollar. I've simply got to take that darling home with me.'"

The mail brought offers from dozens of small towns in Illinois, Iowa, and Indiana. Most of the letters came from married couples who are without children. Many stated the social and financial positions of the writers, giving references.

Lonely spinsters keeping house for grown-up brothers begged the privilege of taking the owner of the gurgle smile and bringing her up as their own child.

A Chicagoan who said he was an artist, but earned only $22 a week, not only wanted to take the baby, but offered to marry the mother, "so that," he wrote, "the baby will then have two to love her and take care of her all the time."

Another man wrote along another line. "For heaven's sake, woman, don't give that pretty child to strangers. Be a real mother and keep her yourself. I would like to adopt the baby, but I think she ought to stay with her mother. In view of that I am herewith offering to send you $3.50 a week for the baby's support and will make ample provision for her in case I die." The letter was addressed to the child's mother.

There were only two visitors who didn't offer to adopt the baby. They were both men and neither of them wore overcoats. One came in the morning and one in the afternoon. One of them blew his nose a number of times as he sat on a chair in front of the basket, and the other departed with eyes unmistakably red. Both told Mrs. Brogan that they had neither homes nor families nor work now, but that once they had known "a little duffer like that one in the basket."

Doctors and lawyers, several ministers, and a priest were among those who came, and they were not unlike the wise men of ages past who traveled far to see a child in a manger. They came, some of them, as representatives of influential persons who wished to acquire it at long range.

But to all Mrs. Brogan replied that the mother was the one who could decide upon the winner of the baby smile.

And all of this has happened in the last two days because a baby smiled a gurgle smile into a TRIBUNE camera and THE TRIBUNE circulation multiplied the smile "over 350,000" times.

LANDIS PRAISES LOYALTY OF GERMAN-AMERICANS.

Judge Landis defended the German-Americans against charges of disloyalty in his address at a banquet of the Old Time Printers' association last night, the 210th anniversary of Benjamin Franklin's birth.

"I have examined 25,000 witnesses in naturalization cases in the last eleven years," he said, "and I find the Germans who come to this country are just as loyal to America, just as willing to fight for the United States, as any other citizens. I am not defending one side or another in the war; I am simply defending the mass of German people in this country, in humble walks of life, from a great injustice which has been done them."

Judge Landis said he was unable to agree with Franklin's early opposition to woman in politics.

"Since I was 9 years old I have been convinced that there are not brains enough among all the men of this country to make laws for women without their participation," he said.

ZERO BLAST ON THE WAY.

Sharp Drop in Temperature for Two Days Is Due This Morning.

Zero today, or at least 10 degrees above!

A cold wave that will last for two days is on the way and will strike Chicago and vicinity this morning, according to the weather bureau. The weather in all of the central district will be fair and colder.

Zero temperatures were reported yesterday in the plains states and throughout the northwest.

PHILOSOPHISES ON DEATH; THEN THE GREAT ADVENTURE

Note Written by W. R. Church, Suicide, Mixes Thoughts of Shakspeare and Frohman.

To his philter of philosophy W. R. Church added a pinch of Shakspeare and another of Charles Frohman. At 67 he was found dead in a gas filled room of his home at 843 West Sixty-third street last night by another member of the household.

A note addressed to "My Dear Sisters" calmly speculated upon the end. It made provision for the payment of some bills from a $200 funeral benefit expected, and continued:

"It has been said that death is life's most beautiful adventure, and I will prove or disprove this assertion. To be or not to be that is the question, whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, or to take arms against a sea of trouble and by opposing end them; to die, to sleep no more and by a sleep to say we end the heartaches and the thousand natural shocks that flesh is heir to—'tis a consummation devoutly to be wished."

This was signed W. R. Church.

UNITED BY PROXY MARRIAGE ALTHOUGH AN OCEAN APART.

Laporte, Ind., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Johannes H. M. van den Elshout, an accountant in the office of the United States Slicing Machinery company, was married here today by proxy to Miss Wilhelmina Elizabeth van Baggum of Rotterdam, Holland.

The young man appeared before Emil Bueltzingsloowen, a notary, and signed the necessary documents of proxy, which will be sent to the Dutch consul at Cleveland, O., who will forward them to Rotterdam. Upon their arrival there a ceremony will be performed in the church, the bride's brother taking the bridegroom's place.

This will be the final ceremony, after which the bride will start alone for Laporte to join her husband here.

RAIL EMPLOYES TO VOTE ON DAY OF EIGHT HOURS.

Ballots on New England Lines Reach Men on Tuesday—All Systems May Be Involved.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 15.—New England representatives of the "Big Four" brotherhoods announced tonight that preparations were well under way for taking a general vote next Tuesday of railroad men on the proposition to submit a demand for an eight hour day.

The proposed action of the "Big Four" organizations involves virtually all the railroads of this country, Mexico and Canada.

BRITISH SEEK TO BLOCKADE BALTIC PORTS

London's Dispute with America on Sea Policy Nearing an End.

FEWER SHIPS SEIZED.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—Great Britain plans to put in effect within the next week or so blockade policies which will cut Germany off from all intercourse by sea with the remainder of the world—shutting off the importation of all supplies.

The starvation policy, according to information received here, will provide for a physical blockade by Britain's fleet and submarines of all German ports, not only on the North sea but in the Baltic.

This action has been demanded by British press and public for months. Evidence that the British government already has set in motion the machinery by which this result is to be accomplished has been unofficially communicated to Washington.

Meets American Protest.

The information further indicates that the dispute between the United States and Britain over the latter's sea policy may be decided soon without loss of prestige or honor on either side. This settlement will be based on two points.

One is the policy mentioned above. If the British admiralty can provide convincing proof of the actual physical blockade of all German North sea and Baltic ports it would do away with the American contention that the present long distance blockade is not a real but a paper one, and hence need not be submitted to by neutral shipping.

The other point is that the results of the British investigation into the seizure and detention of American ships and cargoes is practically really for promulgation, with the decrees of adjustment, in the way of reparation, indemnity, and payment for confiscaed cargoes decided upon by the prize courts in each specific instance.

Two of Leading Issues.

These, in a general way, are the two principal issues over which the American and British governments have not been able to agree.

As a preliminary to its intentions, facts in the possession of the state department show a radical modification of the sea policy of the British admiralty. Since last August, according to reports forwarded from London, only eight American ships and cargoes have been illegally seized and detained by the British government.

The fact is doubly significant because the eight cases provided more legitimate excuses for the application of the laws of war than was true of any of the 126 detentions made prior to August.

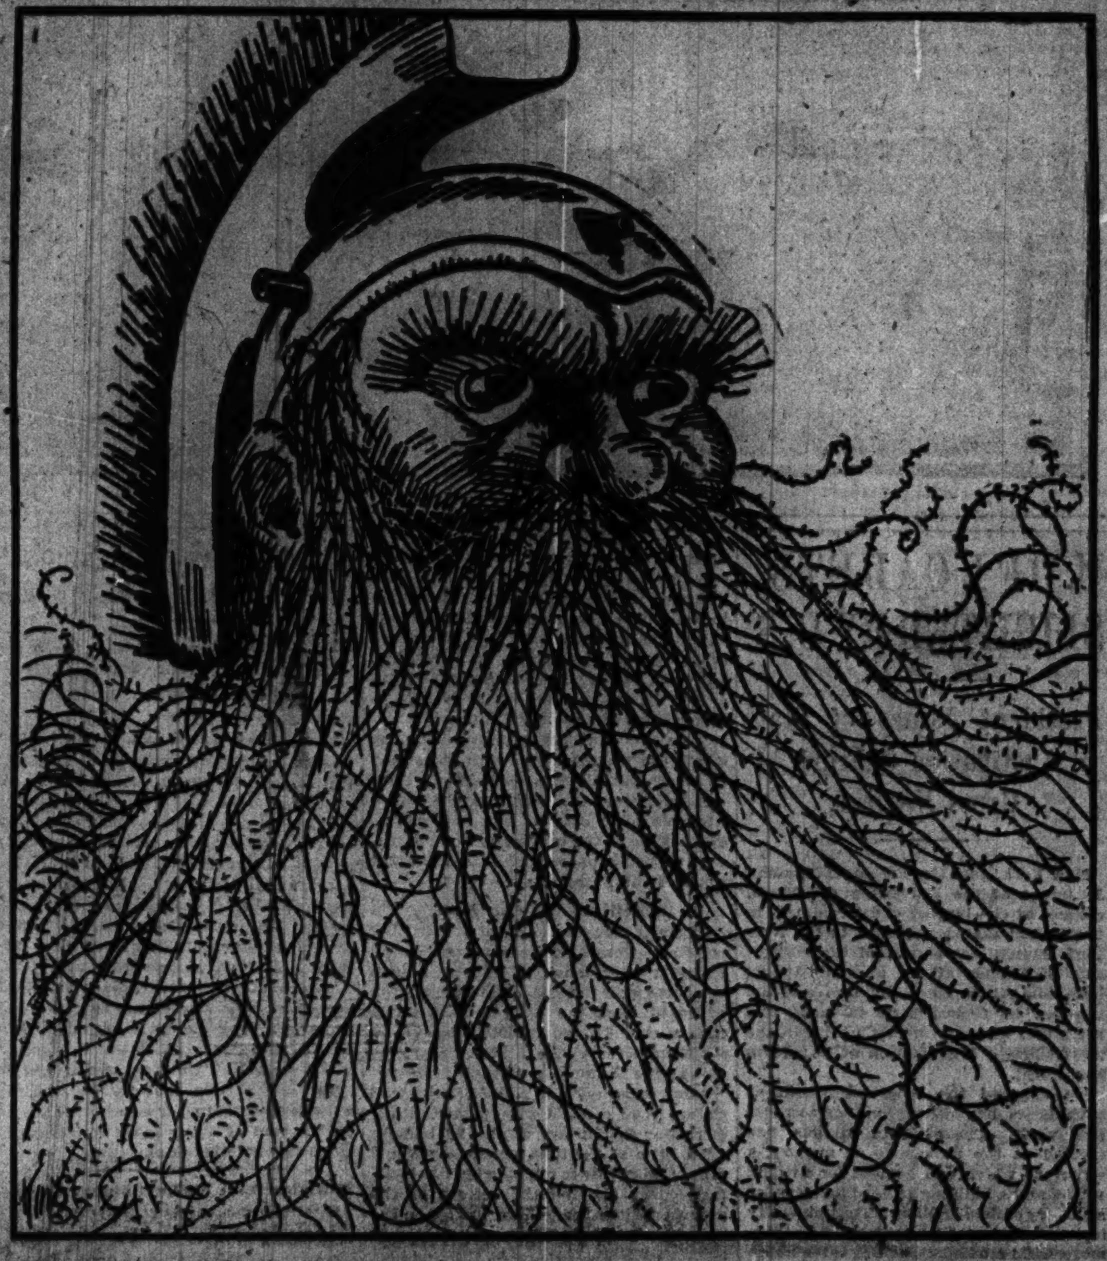
DEMANDS STRONGER ACTION.

LONDON, Jan. 16, 2 a. m.—Much space is devoted in the Sunday Times to the question of the blockade. A member of parliament, Carlyon Bellairs, in a two column article, accuses the foreign office of being responsible for the failure of the blockade by showing too much consideration for neutrals. The Sunday Times, in editorial comment, says:

"The blockade of Germany can only become an effective weapon when we exert the power we already possess and decline to allow neutral nations to receive more than a rational allowance, based on their actual national requirements of previous years."

"The future international law is going to be largely a product of Armageddon and the part played in that struggle by the British navy. We, who control the actions of that power, have at stake the life of the empire and the freedom of our allies, and, for our existence, must use our sea dominion to its utmost extent."

LATEST PORTRAIT OF THE GOD OF WAR.



BADEN-POWELL SHOT AS SPY, PITTSBURGH PAPER ASSERTS

Famous Boer War Hero Executed in England, Britisher Is Quoted as Declaring.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—A Pittsburgh paper in its issue tomorrow will print a sensational story to the effect that Maj.-Gen. Baden-Powell, the hero of Mafeking in the South African war, has been executed by the British as a German spy.

The statement is made by a man who says he is a Britisher and that the execution was witnessed by his brother.

No such information has come from any other source and little credence is placed in the story.

R. V. Malterbury is the man who vouches for the yarn.

"My story is a true one," he declared tonight. "I can tell you nothing else. My brother saw the execution with his own eyes. My brother explained Baden-Powell marched to his place of execution without a quiver and as the cover was being placed over his eyes said only these words: 'May God have mercy.'"

According to Malterbury the news of Baden-Powells' execution was suppressed by the English authorities.

GERMAN CHILDREN KILLED PLAYING WITH AN AIR BOMB.

Ten Youngsters Find Missile in Pit Near Cologne Aviation Field—Explosion Slays All.

COLOGNE, Jan. 15.—Ten children who were playing in a gravel pit near the local aviation grounds were killed today by an air bomb. The children found the unexploded bomb and were playing with it when it exploded.

The district in the vicinity of the aviation field had been repeatedly searched after bombs had been dropped by the aviators.

It is probable that the bomb found by the children had been driven into the ground and only became exposed by the heavy rains of the last few days.

YOUNG SPRECKELS SPENDING TWO DAYS IN A COAST JAIL.

Scion of Wealthy California Family Violates Auto Law—Money Can't Extricate Him.

Redwood City, Cal., Jan. 15.—Though he had to sleep tonight on an iron cot suspended from creaking chains in the smelly local jail, John D. Spreckels Jr., heir to millions, vowed prison life was not so bad after all. He was on the last lap of a two day "bit" for failing to dim his auto lights as he whizzed through here.

Sprekels' family and friends were all solicitous. Several made heroic efforts to wrest him from the grip of the law, but in vain. They sent him roast chicken and such from a restaurant when he balked at the prison fare. He divided with his companions in jail.

ADMIRER DEAD; MYSTERY HINTED

Note Starts Inquiry Into Demise of Benjamin Jolley, Rich Wooer of Girl.

Benjamin Jolley, reputed a wealthy public accountant and auditor for the Riverview Park company, with offices in the First National Bank building, died Friday morning under circumstances which have resulted in an inquiry.

It was said at his residence and by neighbors that the old man, reported engaged to a girl of 24 living nearby, carried a large sum of money on the day before his death. He also is said to have made a will. When he was found dead in his bed at 8 o'clock Friday morning in his residence, 4457 Magnolia avenue, by his housekeeper, his clothing contained $1.13. An exhaustive search for the will has been made without result.

Found by Housekeeper.

His death was discovered by Mrs. Annie Smith, his housekeeper. She notified Dr. N. S. Davis, 9 Huron street, and Dr. S. Wicks, who resides near the Jolley home.

Yesterday THE TRIBUNE received a note containing a clipping of the formal death notice for publication with this anonymous communication:

> This death will bear investigation. No report has been made to the coroner, in spite of the law that requires that all sudden deaths of persons who have not been attended by physicians within twenty-four hours preceding the death be reported. He was to have been married to a girl of 24. Where is the jewelry he bought? His money is missing. A copy of this is being mailed to Coroner Hoffman.

It was found that Jolley had called on Friday evening at the residence of Miss Rose Theobald, 4423 Magnolia avenue. She is about 24 and charming.

Loveliest Man She Knew.

"He was very attentive to me," said Miss Theobald. "I met him six years ago, and he was just the loveliest man I ever knew. He always took the nicest care of me and always called a taxicab when we went places. He also bought a season ticket for the opera. He had asked me to marry him a number of times, but my parents objected because of his age.

"He came to see me early Thursday night, and then changed his mind about going to the opera, as he had intended. We gave the tickets to my mother and my aunt and they went, leaving us alone. We listened to the phonograph until about 10:30, when he went home.

Miss Theobald, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Theobald, said she called up his office on Friday by appointment, but he was not there. When she called his house she was told he was dead.

Mrs. Smith said he came home around 10:30 and went to his room. In the morning, when he did not arise for breakfast at 8 o'clock, as had been his custom, she looked into his room and saw him sleeping, apparently.

At 9 o'clock she looked again and he had not moved. She suspected something wrong and telephoned the physicians.

Statement by Physicians.

Dr. Wicks, who was nearest to the Jolley residence, arrived first, and a short time afterwards Dr. Davis arrived. Mr. Jolley was dead. Dr. Davis made out a death certificate in which he set out heart disease as the cause.

"My reason for not notifying the coroner," said Dr. Wicks, "is because I had not regularly attended Mr. Jolley in his lifetime. I thought Dr. Davis, his regular physician, would do so."

"I did not notify the coroner," said Dr. Davis, "because I was not first to arrive, and I left that for Dr. Wicks."

BLAST WRECKS U. S. SUBMARINE WHILE IN DOCK

Official Hints That Explosion May Have Been Result of Plot.

FOUR MEN ARE KILLED.

New York, Jan. 15.—Four men were killed and ten others injured, five of them dangerously, by an explosion today on the submarine E-2 while the craft was undergoing repairs in dry dock at the New York navy yard.

One of the men killed was an enlisted electrician and the other three civilian workers. At least three of the ten now in hospitals are not expected to live. The names of the dead follow:

R. R. Seaber, electrician, second class.

James H. Peck, civilian, general helper, Brooklyn.

J. P. Schultz, civilian, machinist, Brooklyn.

Joseph Logan, civilian, general helper, Brooklyn.

Hints of Outside Cause.

The cause of the explosion has not been decided. The first theory reported, that it resulted from the ignition of gases, is discredited by Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, commandant of the navy yard.

While unwilling to say so definitely, it was inferred from the commandant's remarks that some outside hand may have been responsible. At the same time, however, Rear Admiral Usher explained that no one could have been aboard or near the submarine except members of the crew and navy yard workmen, who are civil service employés.

The admiral does not entertain the theory of a gas explosion for the reason that the E-2 was equipped with Edison batteries, which are supposed to be proof against generating gases. Rear Admiral Usher has appointed a committee of investigation.

Report Made by Commandant.

The commandant gave out the following official statement:

"The men were at work in the battery compartment of the E-2, discharging the new Edison batteries through a rheostat to measure the voltage, and the explosion occurred in that compartment while they were working there. The battery will generate no kind of gas and there was no gasoline on board. The engine was of the oil burning Diesel type."

Official reports on the trials of the E-2's engines showed there was not enough gas created to be dangerous.

There were three other submarines in the drydock, but they were about fifty feet from the E-2. There were no torpedoes or gasoline aboard any of them.

Ship's Shell Holds Tight.

Although the detonation was terrible, the submarine, from the outside, shows no effects of the explosion, the second fatal accident of its kind in the history of the United States navy.

Practically the entire crew of the E-2 as well as a number of civilians were at work on the repairs when the disaster came. Some of them were not inside the craft, however. Those inside had no chance to escaped death or injury.

The force of the first explosion is shown by the fact that a man working on top of the submarine was blown twenty feet. He fell onto the floor of the drydock, but suffered only slight injuries. A ladder was blown up through the conning tower and fell 150 feet away.

The explosion was followed by a muffled roar within the boat. Immediately scores of navy yard employés, officers, and sailors rushed to the drydock to take up the rescue work.

Fumes Delay Rescue Efforts.

Gas and other fumes made the work of rescue almost impossible until a gas helmet and diving suit had been obtained. Equipped with these, two men were lowered into the craft and brought out several of the injured.

Previously ropes were tied around several men and they were lowered through the manholes. Those above soon discovered, however, that something was wrong and faint cries from inside caused them to drag up the rescuers. They were suffering severely from gas fumes and some of them required medical attention.

Three of the bodies could be seen far down in the craft, but they could not be taken out until the gas and fumes [illegible] be driven out by the use of compressed air tubes.

The bodies were terribly burned. One was found with a leg blown off, while the others were crushed. The injured are suffering principally from burns.

Outside Surgeons Not Needed.

Scores of surgeons and hospital attachés were on the scene soon after the accident. Ambulances were drawn up at the edge of the dock, but only a few of them were needed. All the dead were taken to the morgue at the naval hospital, where identification was made.

In the midst of the rescue work Admiral Usher arrived, having gone to the yard hurriedly when he was told of the accident. He ordered all outsiders excluded.

Lieut. Charles M. Cooke Jr., commander of the craft, was on board at the time of the explosion, but escaped with slight injuries.

Equipped with New Batteries.

The submarine E-2 was built in 1910 and displaced 350 tons on the surface and 430 submerged. It was capable of traveling fourteen knots on the surface and eleven knots when submerged. The E-2 was the only vessel in the world equipped with the Edison nickeled batteries, and it made its first trip successfully with them on Dec. 7 last.

The E-2 in September, 1914, had a narrow escape from an accident similar to that which befell the F-4 outside Honolulu harbor. While the submersible was engaged in maneuvers off Brenton reef lightship Ensign Gillam detected chlorine gas when the vessel was submerged fifty feet. He ran to the surface, but every one of the nineteen members of the crew, it is said, was more or less affected by the gas, some bleeding from the nose and mouth.

DOUBT IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—What caused the explosion on the submarine E-2 probably will not be known definitely until the special board of naval officers appointed tonight to investigate has completed its inquiry. From first reports saying that the new Edison storage batteries in the E-2 were being recharged at the time of the accident it was concluded by navy department officials that hydrogen gas had ignited, but later official information that the batteries were being discharged instead upset that theory. A comparatively small quantity of hydrogen gas is generated by a storage battery in process of discharge.

The navy department's experts on submarine construction said they knew of only two possible causes of the explosion, aside from the possible ignition of hydrogen gas. While highly improbable, they said, it was possible that there had been an explosion of the oil used to drive the surface engines. There never has been an accident of that character, even with boats operated by gasoline, a far more explosive liquid than the heavy oil used to run the E-2's engines.

Might Be Air Flasks.

The second possibility, they said, was that an air flask had exploded. Flasks which furnish the motive power of a torpedo carry a pressure of 200 pounds to the square inch, while the flasks used to store air for the boat while submerged carry much less pressure. The fact that the victims of the explosion were badly burned appeared to dismiss that possibility. It also was pointed out that the explosion of an air flask probably would drive pieces of metal through the top or sides of the boat, which was not the case with the E-2. There has never been such an accident in the navy.

"It is too early," said Acting Secretary Roosevelt, elaborating on the department's statement, "to state definitely the cause of the explosion, although, of course, the fact that it occurred under the battery desk, which means in the compartment in which the batteries were stored, would seem to indicate an explosion of hydrogen gas.

"Some experiments made by the bureau of steam engineering with the Edison batteries led the department to take unusual steps to ascertain whether or not hydrogen gas in any considerable quantities was given off by the Edison battery while it was being discharged, which, of course is their condition, when used to run the boat during submergence, and Mr. A. E. Davidson, an expert analyst of air, made elaborate tests during a six hours' submerged run of this boat. He reported that the hydrogen gas given off while the batteries were being discharged was infinitesimal. In view of this, it is difficult to see how a gas explosion could have been the cause and we must await further investigation."

MERCHANT SUBMARINE PLAN FEASIBLE, SAYS VON MACHE.

Proposal Follows France's Refusal to Guarantee Safety to War Relief Milk Cargoes.

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—On learning of the French government's refusal of the request that milk and milk powder be sent German, Austrian, Hungarian and Polish babies, to be distributed by the American Red Cross, be granted unhampered transit, Edmund von Mache, the executive secretary of the Citizens' committee, said:

"One cheerful result of the French refusal has been that it has already brought several suggestions to the committee from influential people. The most surprising, but upon investigation perfectly feasible, offer is that of a submarine to be used solely for commercial purposes. The submarine would carry no war equipment of any kind. It would merely submerge to avoid capture and detention.

"As condensed milk is not contraband, no loss would result, even if the boat were captured."

U. OF I. CADETS SLIGHTED BY U. S.

President James of State Institution Charges Gross Neglect.

New York, Jan. 15.—President Edmund J. James of the University of Illinois, colonel of the largest cadet regiment in the United States, appealed to the New York Alumni association of the University of Illinois at the annual banquet here tonight to stand by him and the trustees in their efforts to make this regiment, which is in fact a brigade, the most efficient organization of its kind in the world.

He charged the federal government with gross neglect of its duty towards this work. The state of Illinois has erected at the university an armory, a structure which can be used for a riding school and a building as headquarters for a battery of field artillery. The university in turn requires all freshman and sophomore male students to spend three hours per week in military drill, but although there are now 2,250 men in the cadet brigade, the federal government has refused to send more than one army officer to train these men.

Eleven Hundred Every Year.

"The University of Illinois turns out every year over 1,100 men who have received two full years of such military training as may be obtained by drilling twice a week," said President James, "and upwards of a hundred who have received four years of such training, and yet the federal government declines to do its part in making this work still more efficient. Why not utilize first of all the men now enlisted instead of making these extraordinary endeavors in trying to get others to enlist before these are trained?

"In this and similar institutions where military service is required the federal government will find its most immediate, most economical, and most efficient means of recruiting the large body of officers which a real national guard or a real continental army may require. By furnishing a competent corps of from one to five trained officers, according to the size of the cadet regiment, the government could make out of these schools military training centers of high value second only to West Point, and far cheaper to maintain.

Suggests Military Degree.

"It would be possible to arrange combined courses of military science in electrical or mechanical engineering which, distributed over six years, might lead to two degrees—bachelor of science in engineering and bachelor of science in military art and science—qualifying the students for positions as second lieutenants in the army.

"If the federal government were to offer military scholarships of the annual value of $250 to those students who would complete these combined courses the University of Illinois would turn out 250 officers per year at a cost to the government of $1,500 per lieutenant instead of $20,000. A year in the regular army as lieutenant would complete the military training of such a cadet and he might then be put into the reserve corps subject to call.

"By a scheme like this we should establish the true American system of cooperation between the state and the nation in this common function of national defense. The west believes thoroughly in a sensible, that is, a scientific, scheme of national preparedness for national defense against aggression, but it will not, I believe, be frightened or dragooned into a half baked scheme which is sure to break down of its own weight.

"We are considering now a plan by which the women of the university may be incorporated into the brigade. We are contemplating the organization of a woman's relief corps to give to the women students in the university an opportunity to participate directly in the great work of the national defense.

Benefit to College Man.

"College men owe a special duty to their country. They have received much, and should render much in return. In any great struggle for national defense the educated men, the well to do, the fortunate, should show patriotism by getting out themselves at the first call and thus setting the example to all their fellows.

"Our experience at Illinois shows that college men can get a good elementary education in military affairs by lopping off a little of the time which they would otherwise devote to tripping the light fantastic toe, shoving the balls over the green cushions, or yelling lustily on the bleachers at their fellows who are performing athletic feats. The training is of very great value for other purposes than military, and it does not beget to any appreciable extent the so-called military spirit."

CLABAUGH INVESTIGATES BRITISH RECRUITING IN U. S.

Efforts of the British government to obtain recruits for the war from the United States are under investigation by the federal bureau of investigation, according to Hinton G. Clabaugh, chief of the local bureau. When his attention was called to a number of appeals for men to report at Sarnia, Ont., near Port Huron, he said he had detailed a man to investigate.

The Canadian government has distributed pamphlets, some of them through the mails, it is believed, urging American citizens to join the American Legion, which is made up of American born citizens, many of whom, the pamphlet says, are graduates of West Point and Annapolis. Advertisements have been inserted in the Port Huron Times-Herald asking for 300 men to join this contingent.

The American Legion is more accurately the Ninety-seventh Overseas battalion, C. E. F. It is commanded by Lieut. Col. A. B. Clark, formerly of the New York National guard.

According to reports from Port Huron several hundred Americans have responded in the last few weeks to the call. They are now billeted in Canadian homes. Citizens of the United States who enlist will receive pensions in case of injury while at the front, and will have their families provided for during service.

MAXIM FEARS AGGRESSION UNLESS U. S. IS PREPARED.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 15.—Danger of foreign aggression will confront the United States after the European war is over, no matter which side wins, Hudson Maxim, member of the naval advisory board, declared in an address before the chamber of commerce here tonight. He made an appeal for a larger army and navy, declaring that any of the great foreign nations now at war would "have available several million war tried veterans for a trial at arms with us."

"Adequate preparation made in time of peace not only insures the safety of the country if war should come but also it equally insures against the coming of war," he said. "History has taught no surer lesson than that wealth and defenselessness form an enticement pasted on the wall of every home for an avaricious enemy to break and enter."

KAISER ATTENDS LUNCHEON; CHEERED IN BERLIN STREET

Several High Officials Present at the Reichskanzler Palace as Emperor Dines.

BERLIN (via wireless), Jan. 15.—Kaiser Wilhelm today attended a luncheon at the Reichskanzler. He was joyfully cheered as he drove through the streets to the palace.

The kaiser was seen at several places in Berlin. It was the general opinion that he looked well, considering his illness.

At the Reichskanzler palace luncheon today Gov. Gen. von Bissing of Belgium, Gen. von Beseler, Dr. Delbruck, secretary of the interior; Secretary of Foreign Affairs von Jagow, Count Arnim Boitzenburg president of the Prussian house of lords and several others were present.

"The emperor is now completely restored from his slight indisposition produced by a carbuncle," a semi-official statement said. "In the meantime silly rumors spread broadcast over the whole world from various sources is the best proof of how utterly unreliable are a vast majority of the stories emanating from Germany's enemies."

SECURITY LEAGUE CALLS MEETING; URGES DEFENSE

Society to Meet in Washington Jan. 20, 21, 22; Will Discuss U.S. Preparedness.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—The National Security league will hold a three day session on Jan. 20, 21, 22, in Washington, D. C.

Recognizing that there can be no national security except through the development of the individual's sense of obligation to the state, the National Security league proposes to hold the congress for the presentation and discussion of the vital issue of preparedness. Its purpose is to demonstrate the need of preparedness, to increase public knowledge of the problems involved, and to encourage the enactment of laws providing for adequate defense.

Subjects to Be Discussed.

The following subjects will be discussed:

World politics and our country's relation thereto.

Organization methods adopted by competitive nations.

Obligation of the individual to the nation.

Mobilization of transportation and industrial resources.

Elimination of waste and inefficiency.

Laws relating to espionage.

Council of national defense.

Equipment and personnel of the United States navy.

Governmental and private facilities.

Mercantile marine.

Naval and military aeronautics.

Regular and militia forces.

Coast defenses.

Facilities.

Auxiliary forces of professional men.

Universal training and democracy.

The officers of the National Security league are:

Joseph H. Choate, honorary president; Alton B. Parker, honorary vice president; S. Stanwood Menken, president; Herbert Barry, secretary; and E. H. Clark, treasurer.

Among the Leaders.

LONDON, Jan. 16, 1 a. m.—Payments by Capt. von Papen, the recalled military attaché of the German embassy at Washington, to two persons charged with playing important parts in the activities of Germans agents in the United States are disclosed by a further examination of the documents in the British government's possession.

A bank book shows that checks were given to Paul Koenig, head of the police service of the Hamburg-American line, who is under arrest in New York, and Hans Adam von Wedell, who has been indicted at New York for conspiracy. Koenig is credited with having received several checks for large sums.

The books show the receipt by Capt. von Papen of large sums from "Bernstorff." The payments began in August, 1914, a few days after the commencement of the war, and continued until the middle of October last. Some of the payments are credited to "Bernstorff" and others to "embassy."

AWAIT REPORT IN CAPITAL.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—Disclosures of alleged activities of German agents in the United States contained in the papers seized by the British from Capt. von Papen, the former German military attaché here, while they have commanded intense interest, have brought no indication of official notice. The general view is that the United States government practically closed the incident when it called for the withdrawal of Capt. von Papen and his colleague, Capt. Boy-Ed, the naval attaché.

Much of the correspondence cabled to this country is looked upon by most officials as being little more than interesting. That which purports to be between Von Papen and Werner Horn is eagerly awaited, however, as possibly being a link in the chain of evidence government agents collected regarding the attempted destruction of the railway bridge at St. Croix, Me.

Secret Service Has Evidence.

In the files of the state department are all the data collected by the agents of the department of justice, secret service operatives, and others, touching almost every alleged war plot in this country in the last eighteen months. On the surface officials express surprise at suggestions that Von Papen or Boy-Ed were under surveillance in this country after the outbreak of the war, because such action would hardly be in keeping with diplomatic usage.

The department records, however, are said to reveal that the activities of both were known to the government in detail. Apparently, about the only case of consequence in which federal detective agencies have not made definite discoveries is that of Robert Fay and the others recently indicted with him in New York for conspiracy to interfere with American trade in munitions of war by attaching bombs to ships.

The attitude of American officials has been that while all the information they had was interesting, it was not sufficient, even if it could be presented to a court—which was out of the question in the case of diplomatic officers—to bring convictions.

Bernstorff Is Skeptical.

Ambassador Bernstorff today reiterated skepticism and disbelief in reports that any evidence was found showing Von Papen furnished funds for pro-German criminal conspiracies in this country.

The German embassy's attitude today was that, admitting it had given Von Papen frequent and large amounts of money, it had no knowledge of any wrongful use of such funds and believed they were used for legitimate expenses.

In addition to Ambassador Bernstorff, Dr. Heinrich F. Albert, the embassy commercial attaché, also promised to come in for renewed scrutiny because of his letter to Von Papen mentioning payment of moneys for the military attaché's account.

Denies Payment of Money.

New York, Jan. 15.—Formal denial that Capt. Franz von Papen made payments of any kind through G. Amsinck & Co., New York bankers, was made by that firm today.

Amsinck & Co. said Von Papen has not and never has had an account with it, nor any connection whatever, except that a few personal checks were cashed and the currency given him in person to accommodate Adolph Pavenstedt, Von Papen's personal acquaintance and a member of the Amsinck firm.

Consul Repudiates Letter.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 15.—Ernest von Meysenburg, former German consul at New Orleans, today declared he did not write the letter which London dispatches last night asserted had been found in the baggage effects taken from Capt. von Papen, recalled German military attaché, at Falmouth, and said to have been from "R. von Meysenburg, former German consul at New Orleans."

"The only letter I ever wrote to Capt. von Papen," said Mr. von Meysenburg, "was several months ago, when I merely made inquiries as to the location of my son, who is a major in the German army. I did not write the letter carried in the London dispatches."

POWDER PLANT IS DAMAGED BY THIRD FIRE IN 2 WEEKS.

Aetna Explosive Company, Huntington, Pa., Loses $15,000 in Unfinished Products and Machinery.

Huntington, Pa., Jan. 15.—The third fire in two weeks today damaged the Aetna Explosive company's plant, ten miles east of here, causing a loss of $15,000. A large quantity of unfinished powder and machinery were destroyed. It is not believed that the fires were of incendiary origin, but were due to the carelessness of inexpert workmen.

Cotton Storehouse Burns.

[illegible], Pa., Jan. 15.—Fire tonight destroyed a storehouse filled with cotton and two loaded cars of cotton on a railroad siding of the Atlas Powder company, south of this city. The damage is estimated to be about $25,000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

WINNING BACK THEIR LOVE.

Charles W. Gillett Visits His Children, Elizabeth and Charles W. Jr., Meaning to Regain Their Affection.

When Charles W. Gillett stepped from a Northwestern train at Lake Forest shortly before noon yesterday it seemed to him that nearly all Chicago had journeyed out to the north shore suburb to watch him spend his first afternoon alone with his children.

A whole battalion of newspaper men and women, reinforced by an ample camera battery, marched alongside of him or fell in behind as he walked with a friend to the Deerpath inn. There, it had been reported, he was to meet Charles W. Jr., aged 10, and his 12 year old daughter, Elizabeth. Under Judge Smith's ruling he is to have custody of the children every Saturday from 12 to 6, and this was to be his first skirmish in his campaign to win back their affections.

A Nervous Time for Father.

"What will you say?" "What are your plans for the afternoon?" and "How will they receive you?" were some of the questions fired at him as he walked toward the inn, and Mr. Gillett became decidedly nervous at the size of his escort.

"I don't know how they will receive me with all this crowd," he said. "I don't know what they'll think. We shall do whatever the children want to do. I have made no plans."

"Will you pose with the children for pictures?" was the salute from the camera battery.

"That is up to the children. If they wish to it will be all right."

Alliance with Ex-Wife Balks Public

Mr. Gillett disappeared into the inn and the battery dug themselves in to lay siege. The battalion held itself in readiness for a charge. After quite a wait a taxi purred up to the door. Consternation among the scouts. The children were not at the inn at all. Mrs. Harold J. Bryant, their mother, evidently had formed a temporary alliance with her divorced husband to defeat old General Public. The battalion fell back on the depot.

Mr. Gillett came out without the children and was whizzed away in the machine. A TRIBUNE photographer gave pursuit in another car. Around Lake Forest they whirled, and finally Mr. Gillett's car brought up in front of the home of Allen T. Bell, principal of the Alcott school. His machine puffed away. The photographer waited.

After a while Mr. Gillett came out with the children. Charles Jr. cocked his head roguishly on one side and winked his eye. Elizabeth demurely drew him aside and counseled caution when once or twice he stooped as if to pack a snow ball.

"Brother will you pose for a picture?" asked the photographer.

Charles Jr. laughed and again made as if to pack a snow ball, but Elizabeth again poured wisdom in his ear and he straightened up to four feet of dignity.

"This is the parting shot, Mr. Gillett," laughed the photographer. "Next Saturday we won't bother you. We just want this one more picture and——"

Then the Photograph.

The three were photographed.

They then boarded an electric train and went to Highland Park. There Mr. Gillett engaged a cab to take them from the depot over to the Moraine hotel, where they had luncheon. Charles Jr. insisted on having the cab window lowered, and all during the ride his round face was bobbing in and out of the aperture. The trip back to the Bryant home was made in a sleigh.

Elizabeth's manner at first was haughty and Charles Jr. was roguishly indifferent, and it wasn't the warmest welcome in the world for a father. But on the return in the sleigh they were smiling. Gillett gently shook hands in good-by and jumped happily back into the sleigh. And there are other Saturdays coming.

TEMPLE OF MOUND BUILDERS UNEARTHED IN NEW MEXICO.

Most Striking Prehistoric Ruin Yet Found in America Discovered by Government Archaeologists.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—The most striking prehistoric ruin yet unearthed by archaeologists in America has been found by Dr. J. Walter Fewkes of the Smithsonian institution, who made his report to the interior department today. The mound, the largest of any thus far located, was in Mesa Verde National park in New Mexico, and apparently was built for religious rites and ceremonials. The mound probably was built about 1300 A. D.

WAR MAY BE HELL, BUT— NEUTRALITY'S NOT HEAVEN.

"Preparedness Thus Becomes a Religion Ex-Necessitate," Opines H. D. Estabrook at Gotham Banquet.

New York, Jan. 15.—Over 500 Ohioans attended the thirtieth annual banquet of the Ohio society held at the Waldorf tonight. Thomas A. Edison, the inventor was the guest of honor.

Henry D. Estabrook addressed the society on "Preparedness for Defense."

"If war is hell, neutrality as we know it isn't exactly heaven, and preparedness becomes a religion ex-necessitate," he declared.

"To say that we are too big or too proud to fight in self-defense is absurd and puerile. To say that a mob of a million or so untrained citizenry would leap to arms and put to flight the bullet tested soldiery of Europe, is worse than puerile—it is murderous stupidity. The machinations against this government at the moment are more subterranean than submarines. Our duty is to defend against both. We must forthwith spend money for defense, and lots of it."

SPANISH VESSEL SUNK BY A MINE

COLLISION IN CHANNEL.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Spanish steamer Bayo struck a mine and sank Thursday in the bay of Biscay, off the French seaport of La Rochelle. Twenty-five of its crew were drowned. Only one man was saved. The Bayo displaced 2,776 tons. It was owned by La Maritima Esperanza of Bilbao and registered at that port.

The British steamer Toquet has been sunk by a submarine, it was announced today. Shipping lists show no steamer Toquet.

The British steamers Argus and Larchwood collided in the British channel today and several persons were drowned. The Argus has landed some of the Larchwood's survivors.

BRYAN CRITICIZES WILSON ON PREPAREDNESS PROGRAM

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 15.—Criticism of President Wilson for his attitude toward Democratic congressmen on the preparedness issue is voiced by former Secretary of State Bryan in a signed editorial in today's issue of the Commoner.

"Is it expecting too much of the president to expect him to trust the Democrats in congress to share with him the responsibility of deciding for what amount of preparedness the party shall stand?" Mr. Bryan writes. "This having been declared by the president to be the paramount issue, is it fair to ignore the Democratic majority in both houses and ask Republicans to help him force his views on his own party? What reason has he to question the patriotism of Democratic senators and representatives?

"Now a new question has arisen, and on the ground that the war compels it, he asks for the adoption of a military and naval policy which the leading Republicans favored before the war but which the Democratic party has opposed. Why does he, elected before the war began, discredit the judgment of the Democrats of the house, all of whom were elected after the war commenced?"

Cardinal Mercier in Rome.

ROME, Jan. 15.—Cardinal Mercier, accompanied by other Belgian prelates, arrived here today for an audience with Pope Benedict. From his audience it is believed the pontiff will learn Belgian views regarding peace for transmission to Germany.

NOT FIGHT FOR U. S.? ROOSEVELT HAS A PENALTY

Says Send 'Em to Front to Do Unpleasant Tasks of War; Also Disenfranchise.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—"Pacifists and poltroons" who would refuse to serve their country in time of need, if Theodore Roosevelt had his way, would be disfranchised and then sent to the front to dig kitchen sinks, bury dead horses, and perform other such unpleasant tasks.

These sentiments were contained in a letter from the colonel received by Mrs. Russell Malcolm MacLennan, president of the Society for the Protection of the Dignity and Honor of the Uniform of the United States.

Flails Anti-Enlistment Pledge.

The colonel's ire was aroused over a printed pledge issued by the Anti-Enlistment league of Brooklyn, N. Y., which reads:

"I, being over 18 years of age, pledge myself against enlistment as a volunteer for any military or naval service in international war, offensive or defensive, and against giving my approval to such enlistment on the part of others."

Mrs. MacLennan made public the letter by reading it today at the organization meeting of the Washington branch of the woman's section of the Navy league.

"Pacifists and Poltroons."

"Any man who signs a pledge that he will not enlist or volunteer in the army or navy in the event of war," Col. Roosevelt wrote, "should be promptly disfranchised; and then should be sent to the front to dig kitchen sinks, bury dead horses, and do other jobs which would relieve brave men of the unpleasant but necessary hard work of a campaign. Pacifists and poltroons would thus be made of some small use to their country. At the present they are of none.

"All men and women who encourage any one to take such a pledge are engaged in an infamous business and should be treated accordingly."

Drill Law Held Invalid.

Corporation Counsel Ettelson yesterday held the city cannot enforce the ordinance designed to compel employers to hold fire drills in their places of business. The opinion was asked for by J. C. McDonnell, chief of the bureau of fire prevention.

PIANOS and PLAYER-PIANOS SALE

WE HAVE DECIDED TO CLOSE OUT the entire BANKRUPT STOCK, which consists of a large number of Pianos and Player-Pianos, that came into our possession from two large Piano dealers. We will not carry these pianos or player-pianos into our new inventory. We fully realize that nothing but exceptionally low prices will move this stock—AT ONCE.

The majority of these pianos and player-pianos are brand new, consisting of different makes.

A SAVING of from $150 to $250 is offered on a Piano or Player-Piano. On account of the extremely low prices at which this bankrupt stock is being sold, we should receive all cash, but should it not be convenient for some of the buyers to pay all cash, we will be glad to extend reasonable terms.

If Piano buyers would realize what great reductions and high quality these Pianos and Player-Pianos in this stock represent, there would not be a Piano left in our bargain department inside of five days.

You will find this handsome eastern made upright piano among the many bargains advertised in this sale.

From $150 to $250 Savings on Player-Pianos in This Stock. This $500 New York Player-Piano,

RUSSIANS HURL MASSES AGAINST AUSTRIAN LINES

Slavs Renew Effort to Pierce Teuton Front; Losses Appalling, Vienna Says.

The Russians have renewed their attempts to pierce the Austrian front in Galicia and Bukowina. Vienna reports the repulse of terrific massed attacks with heavy losses to the Slavs. Petrograd simply states the situation remains unchanged.

AUSTRIAN OFFICIAL REPORT.

VIENNA, Jan. 15.—The Russians have renewed their heavy offensive in East Galicia and on the Bessarabian frontier with the bloodiest fighting of many months. In massed columns the Slavs are hurling themselves forward in vain efforts to break the Austrian lines.

The battle is being accompanied by the greatest artillery bombardment the Bessarabian front has ever known. Tonight's official statement described a furious hand-to-hand struggle with bayonets going on a few miles north of Czernowitz.

Reports Russians Repulsed.

The official statement follows:

The battle in eastern Galicia and on the Bessarabian frontier is proceeding. Fighting in the Toporoutz district and east of Rarencale is more bitter than ever. Russian columns twelve to fourteen lines deep, attacked our positions at some places four times and at others six times, but the desperate contests always resulted in their repulse, frequently with the bayonet in hand-to-hand fighting.

Russian losses have been appalling. More than 1,000 dead Russians were counted before the positions of one Austro-Hungarian brigade. Two officers and 240 men were taken prisoner. The Austro-Hungarians have maintained all their positions and the Russians have not gained one inch of territory. Vienna territorials have repulsed superior Russian forces on the Karmin.

Russia Reports No Change.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 15.—The following official statement was issued by the Russian war office tonight:

There has been no change on the western (Russian) front.

Says Austrians Lost 100,000.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Austrians lost 100,000, including 10,000 men made prisoners, during the recent Russian offensive, the Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Chronicle reported today.

To keep his troops from retreating across the Stripa river in Galicia the Austrian Gen. Bothmer destroyed the bridges in their rear, the correspondent reported. The Austrians, clinging to the east bank, were then exposed to attack by Russian artillery.

"The Russian offensive covered a period when the British and French were strengthening their positions in the near east," the dispatch said. "It held off the Germans while they were fortifying and landing troops at Saloniki and evacuating the Gallipoli peninsula. So far it has served their purpose."

SEIZE GERMAN RISK CASH.

Manitoba Government Confiscates $10,000 Deposited by Mannheim Insurance Company.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 15.—The Manitoba government today officially confiscated $10,605, a guarantee deposit of the Mannheim Insurance company of Mannheim, Germany, placed in Manitoba's provincial treasury before the war. The concern's application to the provincial superintendent for insurance for a removal of the license was denied previously.

PRINCE CALLED TO BERLIN.

BERLIN SPURNS YANKEES AS BARALONG CASE JURORS.

British Minister Grey's Proposal for American Inquiry Rejected—Reprisals Promised.

BERLIN, via wireless to Sayville, L. I., Jan. 15.—The German government today rejected the suggestion made by Sir Edward Grey, British foreign minister, that the Baralong case, in which officers of a British steamer were accused of the murder of a German submarine crew, be submitted to investigation by a court of American naval officers.

The text of the German note, transmitted to Great Britain through the American embassy, was made public here today. It denies British charges that German soldiers and sailors have been guilty of inhuman practices and informs Great Britain that Germany will adopt methods of reprisal for the alleged cold blooded slaying of the German submarine crew.

Great Britain offered to submit the Baralong case to an American tribunal if Germany consented at the same time to submit three cases of alleged German brutality to the same neutral court.

Discussion of the Baralong case was taken up in the reichstag today and there was unanimous condemnation of the British answer, and a demand for reprisals for the deed, which Count von Westarp characterized as "a monument of disgrace for England," according to the Overseas News agency's report of the proceedings.

PUNISH KAISER'S INSULTER.

Swiss Authorities Take Action Against Editor of Il Ragno, Who Published Poem.

PARIS, Jan. 14, 5 p. m.—A dispatch to the Temps from Lugano says the Swiss government has prosecuted the editor of newspaper Il Ragno for publishing a scurrilous poem on Emperor William. The federal court found the editor, Elvizio Crivelli, guilty of insulting the emperor and fined him 300 francs and costs.

Complain Britain Holds American.

Calumet, Mich., Jan. 15.—The aid of the state department was asked tonight to effect the release of John M. Doikie, born and reared in Calumet, who is said to be held against his wishes on the British ship Stuart Prince, now docked at Manchester, England.

TURKISH CAVALRY FORCES REPULSE RUSS HORSEMEN.

Make Effective Raids in Persian Territory, According to Overseas News Agency Dispatch.

BERLIN, Jan. 15.—[By Wireless to Sayville.]—Turkish cavalry forces are making effective raids in Persian territory and have defeated Russian cavalry forces opposing them at two points, according to reports from Constantinople given out today by the Overseas News agency.

A report from the Persian frontier, says the agency, states that Turkish cavalry advancing against Miandoah defeated Russian cavalry attempting to stop its advance. The Russians fled in the direction of Melik-Guendi.

Another cavalry detachment, the report states, while advancing toward Seldos defeated the Russians, who retreated towards Vrumiah.

ACCUSE ITALIAN TROOPS OF KILLING PRISONERS.

Austrians Also Allege That Noncombatants Are Executed Without Being Given Any Trial.

BERLIN, Jan. 15.—[By wireless to Sayville.]—The Overseas News agency today gave out the following: "Italian atrocities in the Austrian territory occupied by the forces of Italy are reported from the Austro-Hungarian press headquarters. Seven inhabitants of one village were shot without trial on suspicion of having murdered an Italian sentry. Afterward the innocence of all seven persons was established.

"Further, it is known that an Austro-Hungarian patrol of ten soldiers on duty between Monfalcone and Sagrado was assassinated. The members of the patrol party were taken prisoner by a superior Italian force after a short fight. They were disarmed and killed."

SHELL AUSTRIAN FORTRESS.

VIENNA, via Berlin, wireless, Jan. 15.—Italian artillery has been shelling the fortress of Malborget for more than forty-eight hours, it was officially announced. Austrian troops have captured a strongly fortified Italian position near Oslavia.

AUSTRIAN ARMY SWEEPS AHEAD IN MONTENEGRO

BULLETIN.

ROME, Jan. 15.—The Montenegrin authorities officially deny that Montenegro ever adhered to or intends to adhere to any separate proposal of peace or to any armistice with Austria. It is declared that King Nicholas and his army and people will continue to fight until the last man.

[A recent dispatch from London said after the capture of Mount Lovcen by the Austrians advices had been received that Austria and Montenegro had arranged an armistice.]

VIENNA, via Berlin wireless Jan. 15.—Montenegrin troops, after abandoning Cettinje, retreated on the whole south and west front toward the Albanian border, it was officially announced today. The statement follows:

Austro-Hungarian troops, pursuing the enemy, have passed the line of Budua-Cettinje-Grahovo. They have entered Montenegrin territory east of Bileca and near Avtovac. The Austro-Hungarians near Grahovo captured three cannons, with their gunners, 500 rifles, one machine gun, and plenty of ammunition.

In Cettinje 154 cannon, 10,000 rifles, ten machine guns, and quantities of ammunition were captured. The number of cannon taken on Mount Lovcen has reached 45. Three hundred Montenegrins have been taken prisoner.

Beaten and Surrounded.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The remnants of the little Montenegrin army that withstood the Austrian invaders for many weeks is more than four-fifths surrounded, according to advices received here tonight.

One Austrian detachment is moving eastward from the Cettinje region. Another is pressing westward through the country south of Berani to close the forty mile gap.

If King Nicholas' army decides upon flight rather than surrender, it will escape capture as did the Serbians by retreating through the foodless Albanian mountains. Those crossing the border are being harrassed by Albanian guerillas. Sanguinary fighting is going on northeast of Scutari.

The whereabouts of King Nicholas and the Montenegrin force that withdrew from Cettinje is a mystery. It is believed, however, the king is making his way southward to Scutari, from which place he will conduct negotiations with the Austrians, who are said to have proposed a separate peace.

It is believed here the utter hopelessness of the situation prompted King Nicholas to accept the Austrian proposal for an armistice, although official confirmation is still lacking.

Activities of Allies.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY IN THE EUROPEAN WAR

Berlin claimed that French casualties north and east of Soissons were 10,000 killed and captured.

French declared that only three brigades were engaged at Soissons and therefore that Berlin's figures were wrong.

Germans reoccupied portion of trenches lost on Jan. 14, French official report admitted, but claimed slight gains at Arras.

British took Swakopmund, German West Africa, from the Teutons.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—[Delayed.]—In addition to blowing up the railroad bridges at Demir Hissar and Kilindir, in northern Greece, the entente forces also destroyed three small bridges between Kilindir and Doriran, according to a Havas dispatch from Athens today.

"The destruction of the Demir Hissar bridge was considered in military circles as indispensable to the security of the allied troops," adds the dispatch, "an attack by German and Bulgarian forces by way of Demir Hissar being regarded as highly probable.

"Greek troops in eastern Macedonia will be supplied henceforth by way of Kavala, their communication with Saloniki or other parts of Macedonia being now cut."

Another Havas dispatch from Athens says that on Wednesday a squadron of German aeroplanes, from the direction of Uskub, made another raid over the camp of the allies at Saloniki. Bombs were dropped on the French positions, but did no damage, according to the dispatch, which adds that French aeroplanes rose and drove the raiders off.

Tries to Kill Bulgar Premier.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 15.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to assassinate Dr. Radoslavoff, the Bulgarian premier, according to an unconfirmed report received here today. The premier's assailant was said to have been a Bulgarian.

FOE OF PREPAREDNESS FINDS CHICAGO HARD NUT.

Mrs. Crystal Eastman of Washington Wants Twelve Who Would Give Time and Money.

Another outlet for Chicago pacifists' enthusiasm came into being yesterday with the arrival of Mrs. Crystal Eastman of Washington, D. C. It is the anti-preparedness committee of which she is the secretary and the organizer.

Mrs. Eastman hopes to find twelve or fifteen representative citizens of Chicago who are willing to give their money and their support to the anti-preparedness propaganda besides Miss Jane Addams, who is one of the sixteen charter members of the organization. Mrs. Eastman will be here about ten days to arrange for a massmeeting and perfect the Chicago organization.

"My first impression of Chicago is a discouraging one," said Mrs. Eastman last night at the Stratford hotel. "In the east they told us that the middle west would be sensible and rational. But I believe that New York is a little more rational than Chicago. The attitude of some of the newspapers in Chicago toward preparedness does not seem possible in a democratic country. I believe they would rather have efficiency than democracy."

SCOTCH ASSAIL DRAFT BILL.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Central News correspondent at Glasgow said that representatives of Scottish labor, meeting in conference there today, demanded the withdrawal of the conscription bill by an overwhelming majority.

DEATH AND RUIN IN HOLLAND AS FLOOD SPREADS

Bursting of Dikes Isolates Districts; Queen Opens Palace to Refugees.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 15.—Sixteen were drowned on the island of Marken, ten miles northeast of here, in the floods which followed the breaking of the dikes according to the Telegraaf.

Messages received here indicate the situation is extremely serious. Telephonic communication with the stricken district has been broken.

Whole districts were isolated today by the flood of water that swept through the break in the Zuider Zee dike. Communications were interrupted and the authorities were unable to say whether other districts might be imperiled.

Railway Is Washed Out.

The town of Polders is completely inundated and the railway from Rotterdam to Dordrecht partly destroyed. Soldiers at Fort Burgardam spent the night in the cupola and were rescued yesterday by ships.

Several smaller sections of the dike are reported to have collapsed.

The queen has placed her palace here at the disposal of the burgomaster, to be used for housing flood refugees. The burgomaster was instructed to direct all persons driven from their homes to the palace, where they are to be lodged and furnished food and necessary clothing.

Town in Ireland Flooded.

ATHLONE, Ireland, Jan. 15.—The Grand canal burst its banks today at Edenberry, in Kings county, and houses, crops, and cattle were swept away by the torrent which ensued. All waterway traffic has been suspended and the inhabitants of the outlying districts are cut off from the towns.

No lives were lost. The damage is estimated at $3,000,000.

THREE AMERICANS KILLED FIGHTING IN FRENCH ARMY.

Official Announcement Made of Deaths of Kenneth Weeks, Author, and Two Others.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Official news reached the Lyons depot today that Kenneth Weeks of Boston, a member of the American corps in the Foreign legion, was killed on June 17 last near Givenchy. Mr. Weeks was 26 years of age, and was the author of five volumes of short stories and plays. He was considered a promising writer.

Official announcement also is made that John Earle Fike of Wooster, O., was killed the same day. The death of Henry Farnsworth, another American in the Foreign legion, reported on Oct. 16, last, is officially confirmed.

CANADIANS IN BIG FIGHT IN FRANCE; LOSSES SEVERE.

One of Regiments in Action Contained Many U. S. Citizens—Meager Reports Reach Ottawa.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 15.—Reports reaching Ottawa today indicate that Canadian troops have been in an important engagement, presumably on the west front, and have suffered severely. The losses are officially stated to have been 585 killed and wounded. The regiments which have suffered are the Third Canadian mounted rifles of Medicine Hat, Alberta, and the Thirty-first infantry of Calgary. The Third was a picked regiment. The men were drawn from all corners of the world. Many were Americans.

Turko-German Railway Open.

BERLIN, Jan. 15, by Wireless to Sayville.—Direct passenger service between Berlin and Constantinople was inaugurated today. The first Balkan train left Berlin at 7:20 o'clock this morning.

This $16,000 Business Yours for Only $9,000 Will Take Real Estate

I own 80% of the stock of a new Chicago corporation. When I acquired it about a year ago, I thought I could manage this new company by giving it part of my time. I find now that I cannot do this unless I abandon my own successful, established business, and I won't do that. The new enterprise is now at a stage of growth where it requires a man who will devote to it a considerable amount of his time. Although I have put $16,000 into it I am willing to sell my 80% interest at a loss. But I don't want any man to buy it merely because he has the money. Because of my friendship for the holder of the remaining 20%. I want to make sure that whoever takes it over is the right sort of man. The concern manufactures a household necessity used in every home. Has no equal in quality and no serious price rival. Name and label are trademarked and container is patented. About 8,000 retail grocers and practically every jobber in the principal large cities of Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, and Pennsylvania carry this product. Largest mail order concern in the world catalogs it exclusively. We have ample raw material on hand for about double the sales made to date. Business will be sold free of indebtedness. $9,000 will buy my $16,000 controlling interest. Real estate, if improved, will be considered.

CONOVER PIANOS

Striking Proof of Conover Supremacy

Conover Pianos have been enthusiastically endorsed by Schumann-Heink, Max Heinrich, Herbert Witherspoon, Nicola Zerola, Father Finn, Campanari, Arthur Middleton and the late Lillian Nordica.

Durability. Conservatories of music judge a piano not only by its tone but by the way in which it retains that tone.

Price. Schools and public institutions demand not only tone and durability, but unusual values.
Conover Pianos are in use in the University of Chicago, the State Universities of Wisconsin and Minnesota and scores of other prominent colleges.

That the Conover Piano was selected as the official piano of the State of Illinois at the Panama-Pacific Exposition is positive evidence of its superlative qualities. And you need no longer be without one. For you may have three years to pay for the one you select this week.

A PLAYER-PIANO of remarkable musical value is the Conover Carola Inner-Player, which is the beautiful Conover Piano equipped with the celebrated Solo Carola Inner-Player action. A demonstration of only five minutes' duration will convince you beyond question of the superiority of this—the "Miracle Player."

REBUILT PIANOS taken in exchange on Conover Uprights, Conover Grands and Conover Carola Inner-Players.

RUSSIANS HURL MASSES AGAINST AUSTRIAN LINES

Slavs Renew Effort to Pierce Teuton Front; Losses Appalling, Vienna Says.

The Russians have renewed their attempts to pierce the Austrian front in Galicia and Bukowina. Vienna reports the repulse of terrific massed attacks with heavy losses to the Slavs. Petrograd simply states the situation remains unchanged.

AUSTRIAN OFFICIAL REPORT.

VIENNA, Jan. 15.—The Russians have renewed their heavy offensive in East Galicia and on the Bessarabian frontier with the bloodiest fighting of many months. In massed columns the Slavs are hurling themselves forward in vain efforts to break the Austrian lines.

The battle is being accompanied by the greatest artillery bombardment the Bessarabian front has ever known. Tonight's official statement described a furious hand-to-hand struggle with bayonets going on a few miles north of Czernowitz.

Reports Russians Repulsed.

The official statement follows:

The battle in eastern Galicia and on the Bessarabian frontier is proceeding. Fighting in the Toporoutz district and east of Rarenczie is more bitter than ever. Russian columns twelve to fourteen lines deep, attacked our positions at some places four times and at others six times, but the desperate contests always resulted in their repulse, frequently with the bayonet in hand-to-hand fighting.

Russian losses have been appalling. More than 1,000 dead Russians were counted before the positions of one Austro-Hungarian brigade. Two officers and 260 men were taken prisoner. The Austro-Hungarians have maintained all their positions and the Russians have not gained one inch of territory. Vienna territorials have repulsed superior Russian forces on the Strypa.

Russia Reports No Change.

There has been no change on the western (Russian) front.

Says Austrians Lost 100,000.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Austrians lost 100,000, including 10,000 men made prisoners, during the recent Russian offensive, the Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Chronicle reported today.

To stop his troops from retreating across the Stripa river in Galicia the Austrian Gen. Bothmer destroyed the bridges in his rear, the correspondent reported. The Austrians, clinging to the east bank, were then exposed to attack by Russian artillery.

"The Russian offensive covered a period when the British and French were strengthening their positions in the near east," the dispatch said. "It held off the Germans while they were fortifying and landing troops at Saloniki and evacuating the Gallipoli peninsula. So far it has served their purpose."

BERLIN SPURNS YANKEES AS BARALONG CASE JURORS.

British Minister Grey's Proposal for American Inquiry Rejected—Reprisals Promised.

BERLIN, via wireless to Sayville, L. I., Jan. 15.—The German government today rejected the suggestion made by Sir Edward Grey, British foreign minister, that the Baralong case, in which officers of a British steamer were accused of the murder of a German submarine crew, be submitted to investigation by a court of American naval officers.

The text of the German note, transmitted to Great Britain through the American embassy, was made public here today. It denies British charges that German soldiers and sailors have been guilty of inhuman practices and informs Great Britain that Germany will adopt methods of reprisal for the alleged cold blooded slaying of the German submarine crew.

Great Britain offered to submit the Baralong case to an American tribunal if Germany consented at the same time to submit three cases of alleged German brutality to the same neutral court.

Discussion of the Baralong case was taken up in the reichstag today and there was unanimous condemnation of the British answer, and a demand for reprisals for the deed, which Count von Westarp characterized as "a monument of disgrace for England," according to the Overseas News agency's report of the proceedings.

TURKISH CAVALRY FORCES REPULSE RUSS HORSEMEN.

Make Effective Raids in Persian Territory, According to Overseas News Agency Dispatch.

BERLIN, Jan. 15.—[By Wireless to Sayville.]—Turkish cavalry forces are making effective raids in Persian territory and have defeated Russian cavalry forces opposing them at two points, according to reports from Constantinople given out today by the Overseas News agency.

A report from the Persian frontier, says the agency, states that Turkish cavalry advancing against Miandoah defeated Russian cavalry attempting to stop its advance. The Russians fled in the direction of Melik-Guendi.

Another cavalry detachment, the report states, while advancing toward Seldos defeated the Russians, who retreated towards Vrumiah.

Austrians Also Allege That Noncombatants Are Executed Without Being Given Any Trial.

BERLIN, Jan. 15.—[By wireless to Sayville.]—The Overseas News agency today gave out the following: "Italian atrocities in the Austrian territory occupied by the forces of Italy are reported from the Austro-Hungarian press headquarters. Seven inhabitants of one village were shot without trial on suspicion of having murdered an Italian sentry. Afterward the innocence of all seven persons was established.

"Further, it is known that an Austro-Hungarian patrol of ten soldiers on duty between Monfalcone and Sagrado was assassinated. The members of the patrol party were taken prisoner by a superior Italian force after a short fight. They were disarmed and killed."

AUSTRIAN ARMY SWEEPS AHEAD IN MONTENEGRO

BULLETIN.

ROME, Jan. 15.—The Montenegrin authorities officially deny that Montenegro ever adhered to or intends to adhere to any separate proposal of peace or to any armistice with Austria. It is declared that King Nicholas and his army and people will continue to fight until the last man.

[A recent dispatch from London said after the capture of Mount Lovcen by the Austrians advices had been received that Austria and Montenegro had arranged an armistice.]

VIENNA, via Berlin wireless Jan. 15.—Montenegrin troops, after abandoning Cettinje, retreated on the whole south and west front toward the Albanian border, it was officially announced today. The statement follows:

Austro-Hungarian troops, pursuing the enemy, have passed the line of Budua-Cettinje-Grahovo. They have entered Montenegrin territory east of Bileca and near Avtovac. The Austro-Hungarians near Grahovo captured three cannons, with their gunners, 500 rifles, one machine gun, and plenty of ammunition.

In Cettinje 154 cannon, 10,000 rifles, ten machine guns, and quantities of ammunition were captured. The number of cannon taken on Mount Lovcen has reached 45. Three hundred Montenegrins have been taken prisoner.

Beaten and Surrounded.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The remnants of the little Montenegrin army that withstood the Austrian invaders for many weeks is more than four-fifths surrounded, according to advices received here tonight.

One Austrian detachment is moving eastward from the Cettinje region. Another is pressing westward through the country south of Berani to close the forty mile gap.

If King Nicholas' army decides upon flight rather than surrender, it will escape capture as did the Serbians by retreating through the foodless Albanian mountains. Those crossing the border are being harrassed by Albanian guerillas. Sanguinary fighting is going on northeast of Scutari.

The whereabouts of King Nicholas and the Montenegrin force that withdrew from Cettinje is a mystery. It is believed, however, the king is making his way southward to Scutari, from which place he will conduct negotiations with the Austrians, who are said to have proposed a separate peace.

It is believed here the utter hopelessness of the situation prompted King Nicholas to accept the Austrian proposal for an armistice, although official confirmation is still lacking.

Activities of Allies.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—[Delayed.]—In addition to blowing up the railroad bridges at Demir Hissar and Kilindir, in northern Greece, the entente forces also destroyed three small bridges between Kilindir and Doriran, according to a Havas dispatch from Athens today.

"The destruction of the Demir Hissar bridge was considered in military circles as indispensable to the security of the allied troops," adds the dispatch, "an attack by German and Bulgarian forces by way of Demir Hissar being regarded as highly probable.

"Greek troops in eastern Macedonia will be supplied henceforth by way of Kavala, their communication with Saloniki or other parts of Macedonia being now cut."

Another Havas dispatch from Athens says that on Wednesday a squadron of German aeroplanes, from the direction of Uskub, made another raid over the camp of the allies at Saloniki. Bombs were dropped on the French positions, but did no damage, according to the dispatch, which adds that French aeroplanes rose and drove the raiders off.

FOE OF PREPAREDNESS FINDS CHICAGO HARD NUT.

Mrs. Crystal Eastman of Washington Wants Twelve Who Would Give Time and Money.

Another outlet for Chicago pacifists' enthusiasm came into being yesterday with the arrival of Mrs. Crystal Eastman of Washington, D. C. It is the anti-preparedness committee of which she is the secretary and the organizer.

Mrs. Eastman hopes to find twelve or fifteen representative citizens of Chicago who are willing to give their money and their support to the anti-preparedness propaganda besides Miss Jane Addams, who is one of the sixteen charter members of the organization. Mrs. Eastman will be here about ten days to arrange for a massmeeting and perfect the Chicago organization.

"My first impression of Chicago is a discouraging one," said Mrs. Eastman last night at the Stratford hotel. "In the east they told us that the middle west would be sensible and rational. But I believe that New York is a little more rational than Chicago. The attitude of some of the newspapers in Chicago toward preparedness does not seem possible in a democratic country. I believe they would rather have efficiency than democracy."

CONOVER
PIANOS

Striking Proof of Conover Supremacy

Conover Pianos have been enthusiastically endorsed by Schumann-Heink, Max Heinrich, Herbert Witherspoon, Nicola Zerola, Father Finn, Campanari, Arthur Middleton and the late Lillian Nordica.

Durability. Conservatories of music judge a piano not only by its tone but by the way in which it retains that tone.

Price. Schools and public institutions demand not only tone and durability, but unusual values.
Conover Pianos are in use in the University of Chicago, the State Universities of Wisconsin and Minnesota and scores of other prominent colleges.

That the Conover Piano was selected as the official piano of the State of Illinois at the Panama-Pacific Exposition is positive evidence of its superlative qualities. And you need no longer be without one. For you may have three years to pay for the one you select this week.

A PLAYER-PIANO

DEATH AND RUIN IN HOLLAND AS FLOOD SPREADS

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 15.—Sixteen were drowned on the island of Marken, ten miles northeast of here, in the floods which followed the breaking of the dikes according to the Telegraaf.

Messages received here indicate the situation is extremely serious. Telephonic communication with the stricken district has been broken.

Whole districts were isolated today by the flood of water that swept through the break in the Zuider Zee dike. Communications were interrupted and the authorities were unable to say whether other districts might be imperiled.

Railway Is Washed Out.

The town of Polders is completely inundated and the railway from Rotterdam to Dordrecht partly destroyed. Soldiers at Fort Burgardam spent the night in the cupola and were rescued yesterday by ships.

Several smaller sections of the dike are reported to have collapsed.

The queen has placed her palace here at the disposal of the burgomaster, to be used for housing flood refugees. The burgomaster was instructed to direct all persons driven from their homes to the palace, where they are to be lodged and furnished food and necessary clothing.

Town in Ireland Flooded.

ATHLONE, Ireland, Jan. 15.—The Grand canal burst its banks today at Edenberry, in Kings county, and houses, crops, and cattle were swept away by the torrent which ensued. All waterway traffic has been suspended and the inhabitants of the outlying districts are cut off from the towns.

No lives were lost. The damage is estimated at $2,000,000.

THREE AMERICANS KILLED FIGHTING IN FRENCH ARMY.

Official Announcement Made of Deaths of Kenneth Weeks, Author, and Two Others.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Official news reached the Lyons depot today that Kenneth Weeks of Boston, a member of the American corps in the Foreign legion, was killed on June 17 last near Givenchy. Mr. Weeks was 26 years of age, and was the author of five volumes of short stories and plays. He was considered a promising writer.

Official announcement also is made that John Earle Fike of Wooster, O., was killed the same day. The death of Henry Farnsworth, another American in the Foreign legion, reported on Oct. 16, last, is officially confirmed.

CANADIANS IN BIG FIGHT IN FRANCE; LOSSES SEVERE.

One of Regiments in Action Contained Many U. S. Citizens—Meager Reports Reach Ottawa.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 15.—Reports reaching Ottawa today indicate that Canadian troops have been in an important engagement, presumably on the west front, and have suffered severely. The losses are officially stated to have been 535 killed and wounded. The regiments which have suffered are the Third Canadian mounted rifles of Medicine Hat, Alberta, and the Thirty-first infantry of Calgary. The Third was a picked regiment. The men were drawn from all corners of the world. Many were Americans.

This $16,000 Business Yours for Only
$9,000
Will Take Real Estate

I own 80% of the stock of a new Chicago corporation. When I acquired it about a year ago, I thought I could manage this new company by giving it part of my time. I find now that I cannot do this—unless I abandon my own successful, established business, and I won't do that. The new enterprise is now at a stage of growth where it requires a man who can devote to it a considerable amount of his time. Although I have put $16,000 into it, I am willing to sell my 80% interest at a loss. But I don't want any man to buy it merely because he has the money. Because of my friendship for the holder of the remaining 20%, I want to make sure that whoever takes it over is the right sort of man. The concern manufactures a household necessity used in every home. Has no equal in quality and no serious price rival. Name and label are trademarked and container is patented. About 3,000 retail grocers and practically every jobber in the principal large cities of Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, and Pennsylvania carry this product. Largest mail order concern in the world catalogs it exclusively. We have ample raw material on hand for about double the sales made to date. Business will be sold free of indebtedness. $9,000 will buy my $16,000 controlling interest. Real estate, if improved, will be considered.

LINCOLN EXHIBIT READY TO OPEN BY WEDNESDAY

Arranging of Vast Collection of Relics Bigger Task than Was Expected.

Despite the best efforts of Mrs. Jessie Palmer Weber, librarian of the State Historical society, her assistant, Miss Osborne, and Senator E. Noah Franklin, who are personally installing the Lincoln exhibit at the public library, the collection will not be ready for public inspection tomorrow.

"We are nearing the end of our labors," said Mrs. Weber last night, "and unless some unforeseen contingency arises which we cannot anticipate now we will surely have everything ready for Wednesday morning.

"The public cannot understand how much care has to be exercised in handling these priceless and historic relics and manuscripts. So many offers have been made by Lincoln collectors to collaborate with us and so many relics have been sent in addition to the main collection that we find it impossible to get everything ready for Monday, as we had hoped."

Volk Bust Offered.

Mrs. Weber was greatly pleased yesterday to receive an offer of the loan of the famous Leonard W. Volk bust of Lincoln. This is considered one of the best likenesses ever made of the martyred president. It is now the property of J. D. Roper of Springfield. Mr. Roper, who knew Lincoln intimately, yesterday told how he came into possession of it after it had been presented by L. W. Volk of Chicago to Mr. Baker, one of the proprietors of the old Illinois State Journal, in 1857.

"About 1879 the ownership of the Journal changed hands," said Mr. Roper, "and my connection with the office ceased. I was authorized by the old company to settle up its affairs, and, in collecting my personal and other effects, I took possession of this bust of Lincoln, carrying it to my home, where it has been up to this date, a little over thirty-six years."

Offers from All Over U. S.

Many such offers have come from all parts of the United States. The collection, in addition to giving an intimate view of the real Lincoln, will show him as he really was as no other exhibit ever attempted. The pictures, portraits, busts, and drawings are not as the artists thought Lincoln looked but most of them are taken from life.

While Lincoln's birthday next month will be celebrated in many places in Chicago, together with a big celebration that may grow out of the Lincoln exhibit, under the auspices of THE TRIBUNE an elaborate program is being arranged under the direction of the associated Cook county lodges of the Loyal Order of Moose and Woman's Loyal circle.

This celebration will be at the Auditorium hotel and will include a reception and banquet in the evening, at which prominent leaders in the orders will participate. All of the supreme officers will be in attendance, and one of the guests of honor will be Gov. Hiram Johnson of California.

Kousnezoff Scores a Triumph in Mary Garden's 'Thais' Role

BY ERIC DE LAMARTER.

"Thais," one of the two stand-bys of other seasons of opera, was sung, for the first time this year, at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon, with Maria Kousnezoff in Mary Garden's old rôle.

Naturally the whole interest centered in what the Russian soprano would accomplish with a part which "our Mary" had appropriated to herself. Close comparison, which might be odious to both parties, would result in no particular enlightenment, excepting for the fact that the rôle has never been so well sung in our theaters as it was on this occasion.

Miss Garden's characterization of the Alexandrian courtesan was of the imperious type; Mme. Kousnezoff's is of the seductive type—petite, artful, in cameo, and oriental. Here the comparison ends.

Mme. Kousnezoff accentuates the frailties of the nature, flaunts the shallowness and the excitement of the voluptuary's life, as she did in the singing of the first scenes of the temptation of the bewildered priest; the scene beginning with the words "Je suis seule, enfin," her tone touched with the accents of self-pity and of fear, but not of desperation. The contrast of timbres between these phrases and the singing of the "oasis scene" was significant—the change of a warm, vibrant timbre for one almost cold and remarkably pure.

As a rounded interpretation, Mme. Kousnezoff's is altogether interesting and effective. The audience called her before the curtain many times by genuine applause. It demanded the repetition of the "Meditation," of course.

Mr. Dufranne's Athanael reveals the unusual gifts of this sturdy baritone in their best light. His interpretation has always seemed a strong, individual delineation, overshadowed by no Thaïs, irrespective of personality or artistry, and again it makes deep impression.

Mr. Dalmores sang the rôle of Nicias in delightful fashion, taking his cue for the interpretation from the enervating influences of such sybarite environment and keeping faithfully within those bounds vocally and histrionically.

Mmes. Sharlow and Pawloska promise good results with the rôles of Crobyle and Myrtale, and Mr. Nicolay, the indispensable, sings Palemon commendably. Mr. Campanini conducted with all his former fervor for the popular work.

CHICAGO COMPOSER'S DEBUT.

"A Lover's Knot," a one act opera by the resident pianist, Simon Buchhalter, was sung for the first time last evening at the Auditorium. The cast included Myrna Sharlow, Augusta Lenska, George Hamlin, and Graham Marr. The virtues of the novelty are excellent promise; its faults are the faults of inexperience. The audience was very cordial, and composer and cast bowed their acknowledgments profusely.

The virtues of Mr. Buchhalter's score are melodic gift, real facility with the orchestra, and a sense of theatrical music. Its faults are too heavy orchestration, awkward voice writing at times, and everlasting interludes and preludes. It is an opera of interludes.

This last fault is due to two things—a vague, undramatic plot, bulging with talk about doing something and not doing it, after the Wagnerian method, and too close patterning upon the grandiosely grand opera manner rather than the "comique," of which genre works like "A Lover's Knot" should be.

The plot? One of the men gets "all het up" for renunciation of his girl; the other man wants her; the two girls try to settle things as they should be settled. One of them masquerades as an amorous gentleman (fooling no one but the composer), and the resultant jealousy put all to rights.

The Intermezzo was encored and the melodic bits heartily applauded. Obviously, Mr. Buchhalter will write an opera if he finds a libretto.

Miss Sharlow sang beautifully and proved again the gift of a real comedy instinct. Mme. Lenska bettered the impression left by her recital, and her range, if not her tone, seemed more suited to the stage than to the concert hall. Mr. Hamlin's interpretation, like that of Cavaradossi in the "Tosca" performance which followed, was a marked demonstration of his singer's skill, and of growing ease and effectiveness in characterization. Mr. Marr, dowered with a naturally beautiful tone, gave the performance great strength through his experience. Mr. Charlier's conducting was a sincere, skilled contribution, for which Mr. Buchhalter may well give thanks.

Miss Harriet Winchell Also Gets Tribute at Harmony Session of Club.

John D. Shoop, superintendent of schools, was the honor guest last night of the Chicago Principals' club at the Auditorium hotel. There are 300 principals, and few were absent. The husbands and wives of married principals were present by invitation, and members of the board of education were the special guests of the principals.

It was a harmony meeting, in which cooperation on the part of the board of education, the superintendent, and the principals was freely prophesied.

Tribute to Miss Winchell.

Miss Harriet N. Winchell, vice president of the club, who retired from the principalship of the Tilden school after fifty-one years of continuous service, shared honors with Supt. Shoop. When she arose to speak the entire company stood and applauded. After she had related incidents in her long experience Toastmaster Ernest E. Cole read a poem in which admiration for her service was expressed.

Greetings to Mr. Shoop from Boston were conveyed by A. E. Winship of that city.

Dr. John Dill Robertson, health commissioner, declared the decision of the street railways to expend $250,000 in installing ventilating appliances in the cars was a triumph of the health department for the teachings concerning fresh air.

Loeb a Philanthropist.

Jacob M. Loeb, president of the board of education, was introduced as a philanthropist because of his purpose to devote his time to the board of education. Other trustees, he declared, were doing as much as he.

Others who spoke were Morgan G. Hogge, the retiring president of the Principals' club; John H. Stube, the new president; Mr. Shoop, and James P. Fleming.

Hurt by Hurtling Bar.

An iron bar whirled off a speeding passenger train struck William Engecht of 10808 Buffalo avenue on the head, making him unconscious, last night near the New Central railroad and East One Hundredth street.

Drops Dead Buying Shoes.

Mrs. Anna Pyles, 6332 Addison street, dropped dead yesterday as she was trying on a pair of shoes in the store of B. A. Bluhm, 6448 Irving Park boulevard. Heart failure was declared the cause.

Physical Training Teachers Seek Advance for Military Training.

GYM DEVICES RUSTY?

Teachers of physical education in the public schools visited Dr. Peter C. Clemensen's adjustment committee yesterday in an effort to secure an increase in salary from $1,500 to $1,800. The plea was based on the necessity for learning military tactics to teach to high school boys in case the resolution introduced by Edward J. Piggott is approved by the board of education.

Henry A. Ruyter, spokesman for the physical training teachers, and Trustee Ralph C. Otis clashed on a number of questions relating to instruction in physical education.

"How often do you use the gymnasium apparatus at the Hyde Park High school?" asked Mr. Otis.

"I try to use it every fourth lesson," replied Mr. Ruyter.

Finds Apparatus Rusty.

"I was out there a short time ago," Mr. Otis stated, "and found it all rusty and dusty. It hadn't been used all year. If you used all that apparatus out there you'd fit a boy to join a circus. Do you use those gymnasium horses to teach bareback riding?"

"That is not the purpose of them," replied Mr. Ruyter.

"Don't you think an investment of $5,000 for gymnasium apparatus for one school is a big investment for the amount of good they do?"

Mr. Ruyter said he thought it was.

"I don't believe much in this physical training anyway," said Mr. Otis. "I never had it and I grew up fairly healthy."

Need for Uniforms Urged.

Dr. Clemensen criticised the teachers for permitting the children to exercise in the same clothes that they wore on the street. The teachers replied that they would prefer a special uniform, but that many children could not afford to buy one. The matter was taken under advisement by the committee, as was also a request for an increase by the teachers of the prevocational classes in the high schools.

A movement was initiated to pay the carfare of teachers who correct defective speech. They go from school to school, and have paid their own carfare in the past. They asked for a raise of $200 a year. Teachers in the open air rooms asked for an adjustment of their salary schedule. The school engineers asked for a number of changes which would increase their compensation.

WORK OR GO TO BRIDEWELL, ULTIMATUM TO JOBLESS.

Employment Committee Has Places for Lodging House Men and Urges Police to Co-operate.

By tomorrow night every able bodied man who has slept this week at the municipal lodging house will have a job, it was announced yesterday. Every boy, too, will be provided with work. The announcement came from the committee on employment of the department of welfare through B. J. Rosenthal, its chairman.

Most of the men will be sent out on Monday to the neighboring lakes to cut ice. Arrangements were made for the purchase of shoes and caps for the men so that they would be able to stand the extreme cold.

As a companion measure the committee dispatched to Chief Healey a letter urging him to have the police department arrest every street beggar. In case such mendicants actually are out of work jobs can be obtained for them, the letter said. The committee recommends that any men who refuse jobs be placed in the bridewell.

PUBLIC WORKS HELD UP BY POLITICS, SAYS FAHERTY.

Declares Council Factions Are Opposing Improvements as Embarrassment to Mayor Thompson.

A defense of the city administration and a plea for support from the city council and the public of the plans of the board of local improvements were made yesterday by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board, before the Irish Fellowship club at its weekly luncheon in the Hotel La Salle.

Mr. Faherty asserted numerous projects that would prove of great benefit to the public are being hindered largely for the sake of politics by council factions.

"Mayor Thompson's cabinet, of which I am a member," he said, "is composed of personal friends of his who are all cooperating. But we are severely handicapped by politicians who do not wish this administration to receive any credit for the work."

What Men Know About The Cadillac Is What Makes Men Buy The Cadillac

No luck, no magic could have put the Cadillac where it is today. Even yearly reductions in price could not have done it—had they been tried.

Maker after maker has reduced his price—and his quality—in the search for bigger volume. And still they keep on cutting.

But above $1000 there is no one car of which men buy as many today as they buy of Cadillacs at $2080. No one disputes it. The facts are clear. Even at half the Cadillac price no car has such a market.

But why are things as they are? Because of what men know about the Cadillac. Only that could make the Cadillac so overwhelmingly preferred today.

Men know that Cadillac means quality—of the utmost refinement and precision mechanically. From the engineering standpoint men know no car excels the Cadillac. Today the effort is to approach it, as near as possible.

Men know the Cadillac performance. By friend and chance acquaintance they are told of its silent, velvety action—its easy handling—its seemingly inexhaustible power. They test it for themselves and find it true.

Such concrete evidence exists as to the success of this car—with its 25,000 owners of the eight-cylinder type—that not to know its success is impossible. To question it is simply hopeless.

Back of this car men know the integrity and high ideals of the Cadillac organization. Its 14 years' successful experience is a fact, an advantage no man can ignore.

And knowing these things—the dominating volume of the Cadillac business and the utter perfection of Cadillac manufacturing—the informed man knows the human impossibility of any car being the equal of the Cadillac at anywhere near the Cadillac price.

Truly, what men know about the Cadillac is enough to make any man buy the Cadillac. No car can be worth more, and to buy a somewhat cheaper car is to get so much less that wise men mostly stop at $1000 or get the best—a Cadillac.

U. S. ORDERS OUT MRS. PANKHURST; SHE GETS PAROLE

English Suffrage Leader Detained at Ellis Island on Arrival in Port.

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the British militant suffragets, today was declared to be "an undesirable alien" and ordered excluded by a special board at Ellis Island.

Later she was released on parole by Louis F. Post, assistant secretary of labor, and a message from Commissioner General Caminetti of the immigration department gave permission for her to enter this country pending hearing of the appeal granted.

Mrs. Pankhurst was brought from Ellis Island to the Battery by Immigration Commissioner Howe in his private launch. Mr. Post accompanied them on the trip.

Protests While on Liner.

Mrs. Pankhurst arrived from England on the liner St. Paul today. She and her secretary, Miss Joan Wickham, were walking down the St. Paul's gangplank when an immigration officer informed the suffrage leader that she would have to go to Ellis Island. She protested vigorously, but the official explained that she was subject to the federal statutes barring aliens convicted of "crimes involving moral turpitude."

Mrs. Pankhurst then declared that she had not come here in connection with suffrage; that she would not under any circumstances discuss politics or suffrage while here and that she would not even attend a suffrage meeting. She added that she came here expressly at the request of Cheddomil Miyatovich, former Serbian minister of state and foreign affairs, who is now head of the Serbian relief commission.

Plea Made by Suffragist.

"I am not here to talk militancy or even votes for women," said Mrs. Pankhurst. "I am here in an effort to aid the poor Serbians and I am sure that I see no reason why I should not be welcome."

"I feel that the action of the immigration officials was a trifle ridiculous," Mrs. Pankhurst added. "Still the officials generally were very kind to me and I have the impression that with matters as they now stand the case against me very probably will be dropped and nothing more heard of it. The English government has [illegible] this."

Before Mrs. Pankhurst departed for Ellis Island M. Miyatovich sent a telegram to the Serbian minister at Washington asking him to use his influence in securing admission to this country for Mrs. Pankhurst. M. Miyatovich also offered to guarantee that Mrs. Pankhurst would not participate in any political or suffrage discussions here.

Miss Wickham appealed by wire to Secretary Redfield and Mr. Caminetti and then accompanied Mrs. Pankhurst to Ellis Island.

Similar Ruling Before.

The ruling today was the second of the same kind which has been applied to Mrs. Pankhurst. When she arrived here in October, 1913, she was sent to Ellis island, taken before the immigration board, and, after a hearing, ordered deported on the ground that she had been convicted of and had served prison sentences for "crimes involving moral turpitude."

Attorneys furnished by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont appealed to Commissioner Caminetti. Appeals also were made to President Wilson and Secretary of Labor Wilson, under whose jurisdiction the case fell. After a number of special hearings and a conference between President Wilson and the secretary of labor the deportation order was reversed and Mrs. Pankhurst was admitted on her own recognizance with the understanding she would depart when she had concluded her engagements.

VEILED TOURS WITH RIVAL CHARGED BY MRS. SCOTT.

Former Power Company Official, Sued by Wife, Threatens to Name "Long Bill" in Cross Bill.

Veiled travels with an unnamed woman are only a part of the charges made against A. S. Scott, former secretary and treasurer of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, in a bill for separate maintenance brought yesterday by Mrs. Scott, who is prominent in Oak Park.

On the other hand, Mr. Scott promises he will name a certain "Long Bill," who is known along the north shore, in a cross bill.

Mrs. Scott charges that after her marriage to Scott in 1912 Scott evidenced his infatuation for another woman. He is accused of plotting to get Mrs. Scott to pay a long visit to her family in Kent, England, so that he could have time to junket over the world with the "other woman."

This Scott denies and says the trip was planned by Mrs. Scott, who took three-fourths of his worldly wealth with her.

CLARENCE WHITEHILL.
MATZENE Photo

Notice of a suit for $10,000, alleged to be due his first wife, Frau Dorathea Boeckler Whitehill of Berlin, in back alimony, was served yesterday on Clarence Whitehill, the opera singer who will close his Chicago engagement this afternoon in "Die Walküre" at the Auditorium. Whitehill, who was once an express wagon driver in Chicago, was divorced by his first wife in Cologne, Germany, five years ago. The mother was awarded custody of a 13 year old daughter, Emma Alice. According to Mrs. Whitehill's attorney, the American singer promised to pay 6,000 marks a year alimony but has not kept up the payments. Mrs. Whitehill No. 1 is also an opera singer, but this art has not flourished in the fatherland since the outbreak of the war.

FOUND GUILTY OF SLAYING WOODMAN OF WORLD CLERK.

Jury in District Court at Omaha Convicts Arthur Hauser as Murderer of W. H. Smith.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 15.—A jury in District court tonight returned a verdict of guilty in the case of Arthur Hauser, charged with the murder of W. H. Smith, cashier of the Woodmen of the World, on the night of Oct. 16, 1915.

Hauser was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Attorneys for the defense gave notice of appeal.

JURY CONVICTS FRED T. PRICE AS CLIFF MURDERER

Verdict Carries Life Sentence in Minnesota Prison; Prisoner Near Collapse.

After eighteen hours and forty minutes' seclusion behind the guarded doors of their room on the second floor of the courthouse, twelve of the prisoner's peers returned their verdict at 12:30 p. m. today. The verdict carries with it a sentence of life imprisonment in the Stillwater penitentiary.

Price tried bravely to maintain the stubborn calm that has characterized him since his arrest when he heard the word "guilty," but he failed when the test came.

Unable to Hide Emotion.

When the word that meant so much to the murderer fell from the lips of Clerk A. E. Frost Price trembled and his head sagged forward. The convicted man's hands were on the table and they shook like castanets against the table top as he tried to hide the emotion that was surging within him.

Tears welled to his eyes and he swallowed hard. A deathly pallor spread over his countenance and words would not come as he attempted to answer the words of comfort spoken to him by his attorney, Michael C. Brady.

He looked lonesomely out the window as Brady rose and moved for a stay of sentence until Wednesday at 1 p. m., when he will ask for a new trial. Judge Daniel Fish granted the request.

Price looked like a man in a stupor when deputy sheriffs appeared to take him back to his cell in the county jail.

With bent head the broken spirited prisoner shuffled back to the elevator that carried him to the jail.

Was a Brutal Murder.

The murder for which Price was convicted was one of the most brutal in the history of Minnesota. Charles D. Etchison, a traveling salesman of Washington, D. C., hired as an accomplice by Price, confessed the crime and accused Price of murdering his wife for her fortune.

Etchison admitted his part in the murder and said he accompanied Price on the murder trip, for which he was paid $2,600 in cash.

On Nov. 27, 1914, Mrs. Price's father gave her $10,000 in cash, $10,000 in government bonds, and $40,000 in Minneapolis bonds. The next day she was hurled from a cliff.

Description of Slaying.

Here's the way Etchison described the murder:

"We stopped the auto near a high embankment along the Mississippi. Price said he had auto trouble and we both got out. He asked Mrs. Price if she didn't want to give her pet dog some exercise. She said yes.

"Price stood on one side of the auto door and I stood on the other side, and as Mrs. Price stepped out backwards Price put one arm in front of her and I put one arm in front of her, and we gave a God Almighty swing.

Crushed In Her Skull.

"She went down through the air and everything was kind of noisy and quiet at the same time. Price picked up the dog and threw it after his wife.

"Then we walked around a block to pick our way down to the bottom of the fifty foot bank where she lay. She was yet alive, so Price picked up a rock and beat in her head, and she lay bloody and still."

Price, according to evidence produced, was a bigamist and was under indictment on that charge when he was accused of murder.

SUE MARY DEERE HEIRESS FOR TAX ON INHERITANCE.

Proceedings in Rock Island County Court Calls for Levy on $2,000,000 Worth of Property.

Rock Island, Ill., Jan. 15.—Proceedings were instituted in the County court today to collect an inheritance tax on $2,000,000 worth of property that came into possession of Mrs. William Butterworth of Moline from the estate of her mother, Mrs. Mary L. Deere.

William McIniry, representing the attorney general's office, filed a petition in the name of the people of the state and Attorney General P. J. Lucey that the court require Nelson H. Greene, appraiser of the estate, to appraise the value of a one-third interest in the estate of Mary L. Deere.

Cleared of Boys' Deaths.

Philip Kasper, a driver for the American Sand and Gravel company, was exonerated by a coroner's jury yesterday which held a double inquest over the bodies of Edward A. Ficht, 10 years old, and John Mussel, of the same age, who were killed by Kasper's wagon [illegible] Dec. 30.

YOUNG CHICAGOAN CLEARED OF MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE.

Case Against Thorne Donnelley, in Whose Auto Companion Was Killed, Dismissed in East.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 15.—The manslaughter charge against Thorne Donnelley of Chicago, made last September after John F. Crowe had been thrown from the former's new machine during a speed test, was dismissed by the court today. Donnelley had invited Crowe, who was an expert driver, and others to ride while a watch was held to time the speed. The coroner found that Donnelley was driving at a high speed.

A defective tire was held to be a contributory cause in the accident. Donnelley at the time was here to take entrance examinations for Yale. He is the son of Reuben H. Donnelley, a publisher of Chicago.

Spanish Veterans to Meet.

GIRL OF 13 WRITES GREEK PLAY FOR SCHOOL FUNCTION

Miss Ruth Russell of Lewis-Champlin Class Inspired by "Antigone."

Ruth Russell is Chicago's latest acquisition to its circle of students of Greek drama. Miss Russell, who is 13 years old and a member of the eighth grade class of the Lewis-Champlin school, has written her own Greek play—words and music—and her class will present it in the school adultorium on Jan. 21 and Jan. 26.

The inspiration of the work was Sophocles "Antigone," which has been more or less world famous for 2,000 years. The drama of Sophocles was given by the eighth grade last year, when the present young author was in the seventh grade. The choral odes of Mendelssohn's "Antigone" were sung.

Take Her to Country.

Shortly after the play was given in June Miss Russell's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Russell of 5850 Normal boulevard, took her to the country for a vacation. They left all books and music at home. They wanted to get her away from study.

But the girl set herself, without the aid of any treatise on the Greek drama, to emulate the activities of Sophocles and Mendelssohn. The product was "Menedes," a play which was considered so good that Miss Anna T. Robinson and Miss L. Reva Watts, two of the teachers in the school, saw fit to replace "Antigone" with "Menedes."

Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, heard Miss Russell play her themes and improvise the accompaniments and was so pleased that he suggested that Otto Wolf of the orchestra harmonize the accompaniment.

Laid in Arne.

The play is divided into three acts. The scene is laid in Arne, an imaginary city of ancient Greece.

The proceeds will be used in the decoration of the new Lewis-Champlin school which the board of education is now building.

Kewanee Soldier Ends Life.

Brownsville, Tex., Jan. 15.—Private E. H. Walton, 28, of company D, Fourth infantry, shot himself twice through the head with his army rifle this morning. Soldiers found his body in the brush near his tent. He had been despondent. His home was in Kewanee, Ill.

SALOON WORM TURNS

Buffet Proprietor Protests Against Legal Ruling Which Permits "Special Privileges" to Hotels and Cafes.

One of the many Chicago saloonkeepers who are compelled to obey to the minute both the Sunday closing statute and the 1 o'clock closing ordinance yesterday wrote "The Tribune" a letter with the caption "Treat Us All Alike," protesting against special privileges allowed to hotels and restaurants.

His protest follows:

Seven thousand two hundred saloons obey the law, close at 1 o'clock, and twenty-four hours on Sundays.

The Morrison, Sherman, Bismarck, and Bismarck Garden, and a few others, have been doing what they please through a so-called "club" scheme, which is an evasion of the law and an injustice to the rest of us who pay $1,000 a year license to the city. These saloonkeepers in the loop with hotel attachments get bar permits week after week in violation of the ordinance, which says "each person or organization can have only five bar permits in one year, and other charitable and fraternal organizations cannot have them at all."

Is the so-called club at the Bismarck Garden a club that ought to be given a bar permit every week?

Is there some divinity about Harry Moir which permits him to run fox trot clubs and other all night saloon schemes without police interference?

What of the foolish young girls that are attracted to such places and the danger that confronts them?

If the cafés are allowed to sell liquor before the closing hour in "reasonable quantities," to be consumed afterwards, why not allow the same privilege to the humble saloon?

CITY HAS 429 SALOONS OPERATED BY MANAGERS.

Tally Shows Name Over Door and on License Are Not Identical in Many Cases.

At least 429 saloons in Chicago are operated by managers, many of them perhaps illegally, City Clerk Siman said yesterday after he had seen the reports of license officers who were assigned to his office by Chief of Police Healey. A check showed discrepancies between the names of the men who are actually conducting saloons, the names on the licenses, and the records of the city clerk's office.

"If the men who operate the places are really managers I don't see how they can be touched under the law, but if their names are over the door and if they actually buy the liquor and then retail it they are in most cases, I think, the real owners and the bonds in other names filed in the city clerk's office does not protect the city," Mr. Siman said.

FOX TROT CLUBS BLAMED BY GIRL FOR HER WOES

Cloak Model Asserts She Could Not Resist Dances and Gin Rickeys.

The lure of Chicago's "fox trot" clubs are blamed by the county jail's "mystery girl" for her downfall. She was arrested on the charge of jumping bills in three loop hotels.

Although she refused to disclose her identity THE TRIBUNE learned she was Miss Lillian Burke, a cloak model of 2524 Washington avenue, St. Louis, and that her home is believed to be Joplin, Mo. She would not admit her identity. She came to Chicago, she said, with a man who told her of the "good times" she could have here. That was seven weeks ago.

To a TRIBUNE reporter she told the following story, but refused to give her name or that of the man:

"I studied music at an academy at Kirksville, Mo., and intended to earn my living by playing. One day I met a man who seemed real nice. He took me to several dances. He was a diamond broker. He told me of the good times we could have in Chicago, where they never quit dancing and where nobody ever had to go home.

Comes to Town with Man.

"That seemed such a pleasant place to live in that I consented to come here with him.

"We lived at the hotel for a while as 'Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Russell.' He bought me some music and I played on the hotel piano in the parlor sometimes. At night we would visit the various fox trot clubs and would dance all night. We went to the Morrison, the Hotel Sherman, the Movie Inn, and a lot of other places.

"I was having the best time of my life and I didn't care. I got so I just couldn't stay away from those places. He got tired of it. One day he left. I had no money, but that didn't keep me away from the fox trot clubs.

"I Just Love the Dances."

"I had some nice clothes and I just loved the dances and what else was there for me to do? I couldn't pay my rent and I had to live in the best hotels or the young men would not want to take me to the fox trot clubs. The only way I could keep on fox trotting was to live at a good hotel until the manager asked for his money. Then I would slip out and go to another place."

HERE'S A CHANCE TO "SKIN" ROADS

Only Two Years in Prison, However, Awaits Persons of Saving Nature.

NEW RATES EFFECTIVE.

You are the kind of person who likes to cut the corners and be on the "inside" of the tip—so here:

Hereafter when you buy a railway ticket from one point to another in a 2 cent state the fare will be figured at the rate of 2 cents a mile, just as it always has been. But when you buy a ticket from one point in one state to a point in another state the charge will be at the rate of 2.4 or 2.6 cents a mile as a result of certain increases just gone into effect.

Here's How to Do It.

Now the way to reduce the higher cost of traveling is explained by a bulletin issued by the western railroads yesterday:

"Buy a 'split' ticket at the rate of 2 cents a mile from state lines to state lines instead of a through ticket to your destination. In this way you can still travel at 2 cents. You can save $1.45 on a Chicago-St. Paul trip or $1.94 on an Omaha trip and about $1 on a St. Louis fare."

And you only run one chance. If some agent of the railroad or some representative of the government or the interstate commerce commission should get on to you you might have to pay a $5,000 fine and spend two years in prison, along with the man who sells it to you and the employés who connive at the sharp practice.

Rate Increase Ineffective.

The increases in western rates that went into effect were the occasion of an exhaustive warning being circulated among railroad employés and the traveling public against any shrewd work. It contains these "don'ts":

Do not sell split tickets, or through Pullman or parlor car tickets on split transportation.

Do not sell sleeping or parlor car tickets beyond destination of railroad ticket.

Passengers who extend their trip beyond the destination of the first sleeping or parlor car ticket, must not be given the benefit of through parlor or sleeping car rate from starting point to the farther destination.

Regular train fare must be collected from passenger not provided with proper transportation who continues trip beyond the point to which the first transportation is sold.

The same rules govern the movement of baggage.

JOHN A. FARWELL CUTS OFF WIFE'S CREDIT BY NOTICE

North Shore Society Shocked by Real Estate Man's Action.

North shore society was given a little shock yesterday when it became public that John A. Farwell, real estate man, leader in university circles, and the member of a number of principal clubs, had caused the publication of notices cutting off his wife's credit. Although his friends knew he had been living apart from Mrs. Farwell, they were surprised to read this:

I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by any one other than myself. John A. Farwell, 1625 Asbury avenue, Evanston, Ill.

He Plans Trip Abroad.

Mr. Farwell's intention, it is reported, is to spend some time in Havana and then sail for England, where he will remain for a time.

It was said by a friend of the real estate man that he had taken the step after he had been unable to make a settlement with his wife on a basis of divorce. He is said to have offered her a large income settlement, which she has refused, on advice of her attorneys, and she is said to have demanded a larger cash settlement than he could afford to pay.

His Wife Reticent.

Mrs. Farwell declared herself satisfied, but would offer no further statement until her attorneys return to the city. She said inasmuch as Evanston is Mr. Farwell's home the chances are he will return and take care of any propositions offered as settlement.

RETURNS EVIL FOR GOOD?

Cold and Hungry Man Alleged to Have Robbed Benefactor Who Gave Him Shelter.

Robert McManus, 20 years old, a tailor who gave no address, was booked yesterday on a charge of larceny, as the result of his alleged ingratitude to Frank Whelan of 2348 Cleveland avenue, who gave him shelter from the cold Wednesday night and promised him breakfast. The next morning, the police say, Whelan discovered McManus had left and that $20 and clothing valued at $55 were missing.

LOST HIS FARM IN TAYLOR GAME

Joseph Hablitzel Asserts He "Bet" $5,000 on Fake Horse Race in Toledo.

BERTSCHE ON SCENE.

Additional evidence in the wiretapping charge against Edward Taylor, alias "Doc" Taylor, came out yesterday in the hearing of removal proceedings before United States Commissioner Mark A. Foote.

A second victim alleged to have been trimmed for $5,000 by Taylor and nineteen alleged fellow-conspirators in the old fake horserace game was placed on the witness stand by the government. He is Joseph Hablitzel, a carpenter and former farmer of Marion, O. He lost his farm as a result of "betting" $5,000 cash on a fake horserace at Toledo, O., in August, 1914.

The other victim revealed by the government is Wilbur L. Rundle, a farmer of Oakland county, Mich. Rundle was trimmed for $5,000 in Toledo in July, 1914.

Wanted in Toledo.

Taylor is wanted on a federal indictment in Toledo. He is accused, with nineteen others, of having conspired to use the mails to defraud a score of farmers in southern Michigan and northern Ohio by the old wiretapping swindle.

Taylor denied he is the man wanted. He said he had never seen any of his accusers. He said he owns coal mines and oil wells in West Virginia and slot machines in Cuba. He said he is holder of numerous concessions at fairs throughout the United States. He said he and his wife were in New York, Cleveland, and Cuba the summer the alleged wiretapping game was played.

While the hearing was in progress before Commissioner Foote "Barney" Bertsche, reformed crook and past master of the wiretapping game, appeared at the federal building to intercede for Taylor.

BERNHARDT SAYS SHE WILL VISIT AMERICA AGAIN

Declares "German Threats" Will Not Keep Her from Making Another Farewell.

BY WILBUR S. FORREST.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—All the diabolical plots in the world can't keep Mme. Sarah Bernhardt from making another "farewell tour" of America, she said in her dressing room in the Coliseum today.

The interview came just at the end of her performance of "Les Cathedrals," a striking indictment of German destruction of cathedrals in France and Flanders that packs two big houses daily in London.

"I have received scores of threatening letters from America," said the "Divine Sarah." "They were signed with ter-r-rible Teutonic names."

A shrug of the divine shoulders.

"But I defy them. I would have gone sooner had it not been for my physician's orders. I will go in October. I have no fear. If I must die in America, it must be. It is fate foreordained. But I shall be fully insured against assassination."

"You mean your life insured?" she was asked.

"O, no, no; not that," she replied. "Assurance that my company will be enabled to get back to France; that they will not be financially embarrassed; that they will not be held liable for damage to some one's property if I am blown up. I must take so many precautions usually unthought of."

Put an Umbrella On Your Window

FROM China to Chicago all the world recognizes the utility of umbrellas. These simple devices for protection against rain are universally considered indispensable.

But only recently has a device been perfected to serve as an umbrella for windows—permitting fresh air to enter while excluding drafts, rain, snow, dirt and burglars.

This wonderful invention—enemy of disease—promotor of good health—far more valuable in any home than umbrellas—is the

Berry Window Ventilator

The Berry Window Ventilator is not an experiment. It has withstood every imaginable test. It is the only window ventilator approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. It is actually bringing each day and each night to thousands and thousands of users in and around Chicago the priceless boon of

FRESH AIR

APARTMENT OWNERS Your tenants are now spasmodically opening the windows at least a dozen times a day in order to air out. You would consume less fuel if you had your apartment equipped with the BERRY WINDOW VENTILATOR, and your boiler and heating plant would last longer.

HOTELS Your curtains and draperies are at the mercy of your guests and chambermaids, through the continual throwing open of windows. BERRY WINDOW VENTILATORS would pay for themselves within a few years.

HOSPITALS: Only through the BERRY WINDOW VENTILATOR can fresh air be permitted to enter the sick room without direct draft.

SCHOOLS In every school, public or private, whether equipped with a mechanical system of ventilation or not, the windows must be opened. How much better it would be for the pupils and teachers to have a little fresh air coming in all the time, making the open window at different periods unnecessary, not interfering with the studies nor giving discomfort to the pupils.

Fifteen Days' Free Trial

If there is any doubt in your mind that the BERRY WINDOW VENTILATOR will not give you satisfaction, we will be glad to accept your order, and if after you have had the Ventilator for two weeks you are not satisfied, you can return it, and your money will be refunded.

How the Berry Ventilator Works

The Berry Window Ventilator is collapsible, operating like an accordion. It opens and closes with the window and lies flat on the inside of the window sill—out of the way when not in use. So simple that to attach or detach it is but the work of a second. It does not interfere with the operation of the window in any way, as the window can be opened without the ventilator. The amount of air admitted is easily regulated by raising or lowering the window.

How to Take Measure

Stock Sizes Fit All Window Openings
Berry Ventilators come in sizes of three inches apart from 17 inches to 71 inches. Any of these sizes will fit window openings that are any part of three inches wider than the length of the ventilator.

CITY TO INQUIRE INTO WILSON AVE. TUNNEL DEALS

Clinnin Report Suggests Investigation of Municipal Engineer's Methods.

An investigation of complaints involving alleged irregularities on the part of Henry W. Claussen, assistant city engineer; Bert Milano, foreman at the Lincoln and Lawndale shafts of the Wilson avenue tunnel; and Clarance Sleight, foreman of the Mayfair shaft, will begin tomorrow by the city civil service commission.

In a report made to the commission by Maj. John V. Clinnin, assistant corporation counsel, it is suggested a special investigation be made of the propriety of Mr. Claussen's relations with the Standard Zinc and Mining company, of which he is a director. Maj. Clinnin learned many city employés under Mr. Claussen's supervision are stockholders. Charges have been made that the purchase of stock was the price of holding their jobs.

Interested in Mines?

Bert Milano, according to Maj. Clinnin's report, is also interested in the mining company.

"A number of witnesses," Maj. Clinnin said, "say money was collected each pay day by Milano, and Mr. Claussen says that this money was on account of stock bought in the Cuba City zinc mine."

Although Sleight has no connection with the mine, it is alleged that he received contributions from employés.

"Gaston Johnson claims to have paid $25 to Sleight for a position at the Mayfair shaft," the Clinnin report says, "and William Bradley asserts he paid Sleight $5 every two weeks to retain his position.

"Many employés testified that various employés paid money for their positions to tunnel foremen. Tilton Johnson and Charles Pettingel state that money was paid to Sleight."

Cement Taken Away.

Maj. Clinnin also found that cement was taken from the Lincoln avenue shaft to build a retaining wall in a basement stairway for a man named Lumia at 4541 Lincoln avenue. Lumia was the former owner of the zinc mine. Claussen's explanation was that the building had been damaged by the city's blasting operations.

Maj. Clinnin's investigation disclosed that steel cable taken from the hoisting cage at the Lincoln avenue shaft was shipped to the Cuba City zinc mine. Mr. Claussen said he traded a box of powder for the cable.

Frank Guerin, blacksmith at the Lincoln avenue shaft, told Maj. Clinnin he had bought five shares of the mining stock and that about thirty employés at the shaft are stockholders.

Maj. Clinnin recommended that the hiring of laborers not United States citizens be discontinued. He found that 118 men who are not naturalized were being employed contrary to the civil service law.

IT'S A MERRY DOCTORS' ROW.

Dr. John Dill Robertson, health commissioner, yesterday took another rap at Dr. Charles E. M. Fischer.

"I am told, though I have not looked up the records," he said, "that Dr. Fischer was a member of the health department under a previous administration and was 'let out because he was a mischief maker.'"

Dr. Robertson was annoyed by Dr. Fischer's statement that the health commissioner "would hardly know the difference between a staphylococcus and an elephant."

BOGUS NAVY OFFICER HELD ON CHARGE OF FORGERY.

C. A. Brown, Accused of Leaving Bad Paper Trail Across Continent, Caught in South.

Federal officials were notified yesterday of the arrest in Chattanooga of C. A. Brown of Chicago. Brown, according to Hinton G. Clabaugh, chief of the bureau of investigation, has blazed a trail of forged checks from New York to San Francisco and from Duluth to New Orleans in the last year.

He is under federal indictment in Denver and warrants are out for him in a dozen large cities. He is charged with impersonating a naval officer and passing fake checks signed "Capt. W. E. Stone, U. S. N.," "Capt. Sellers, U. S. N.," and other aliases.

The government has been searching for him for eleven months. Special agents under Chief Clabaugh got on his trail two months ago in New Orleans and followed him to Mobile, Atlanta, and other cities in the south. They caught him in Chattanooga in the act of passing a check on a merchant. He appeared in the uniform of a naval officer.

He was in the company of a woman said to be Leona Leslie. Brown's wife lives in Chicago at Mrs. Maggie Miller's boarding house at 2458 Indiana avenue. Chief Clabaugh interviewed Mrs. Brown several months ago. He said he is convinced she knew nothing of Brown's activities as a check passer.

Brown was in Chicago about ten months ago and succeeded in passing several fake checks on merchants in East Chicago, Indiana Harbor, and other south shore suburbs. His plan was to register at a hotel, don his naval uniform, and write checks, which he passed on merchants from whom he made trivial purchases.

OPPOSE PARK AT BEACH WITHOUT BATHING FEATURE.

Twenty-fifth Ward Residents Protest Against Ald. Link's Proposal for Wilson Avenue.

Vigorous opposition has developed among residents of the Twenty-fifth ward to the municipal small parks commission's proposal to convert Wilson beach into a park without bathing facilities. Though the plan has the support of Ald. Frank J. Link, many of his constituents condemn the projected conversion as depriving the property of its happiest feature.

At a meeting of the Broadway Commercial association next Tuesday the president, Emil Rohde, will announce arrangements for polling the ward on a straw vote to determine the sentiment of residents on the proposal.

The small parks commission voted Friday to ask the city to convert the beach into a park. A bond issue will have to be voted before the beach, which is a private one, can be acquired.

IDA MAY SWIFT QUIETLY WED TO COUNT MINOTTO

Only Relatives Are Present at Ceremony Performed at Swift Town House.

The marriage of Miss Ida May Swift, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Swift of Lake Forest, and Count James Minotto of Venice, New York, and South America, took place yesterday afternoon in the presence of the members of the family only.

The romance, which has been an event of interest to Chicago since the announcement of the engagement some four weeks ago, is a typically American one. For the bride, who is an expert horsewoman, with stables of her own at Lake Forest, visited in New York City six weeks prior to the engagement announcement and there met the young count, who is tall and distinguished in bearing.

Followed by the Count.

After six weeks' acquaintance, Miss Swift returned to her home in Lake Forest, just at the time when her parents were taking possession of their town house at 1200 Lake Shore drive, and almost on her heels came the count, who established himself at the Blackstone, until the engagement was announced by Mr and Mrs. Swift.

During the holidays the count's father arrived and was entertained by the Swift family at the Blackstone and the Swift box at the opera was a meeting place for some four weeks of the many friends of the young bride, who were eager to know the fiancé of their friend.

The count is in charge of the South American business of the Guaranty Trust company of New York, and he plans to take his bride to South America at once, where they will visit Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, and interesting cities of the Argentine.

Only Fifty Guests.

Because of the fact that the town establishment of the bride's parents is small for a large wedding assembly, only some fifty guests were invited to witness the ceremony.

The Rev. James G. K. McClure of McCormick Theological seminary officiated.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Swift-Fernald, was her only attendant. She wore a gown of sea green chiffon and Chantilly lace, and she carried a bouquet of orchids in shades of lavender and pale yellow.

The bride, who is one of the most beautiful of the young women of Chicago society, with soft, dark hair and Irish gray eyes, wore a simple gown of white charmeuse, with a full tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of gardenias, instead of the conventional shower of lilies of the valley.

George von Seebeck was best man for the bridegroom, and two brothers of the bride, Louis F. Swift Jr. and William E. Swift, served as ushers.

Following the ceremony Mrs. Swift-Fernald entertained, in honor of the bride and bridegroom, twenty guests in the French room of the Blackstone.

Among the guests were Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift, grandmother of the bride, who gave a large dinner party for the couple last week; Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Henry, the latter formerly Miss Annie May Swift; Harold Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift Jr., Charles H. Swift, Mr and Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Niblack, the latter formerly Miss Helen Cudahy and a great friend of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Potter of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Alden B. Swift, Philip Swift, and Edward F. Swift Jr.

Miss Patten a Bride.

At the wedding of Miss Rhoda Violet Patten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Patten of Evanston, to Leslie Wheeler, which took place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the First Presbyterian church of Evanston, the ceremony was read by the Rev. David Hugh Jones, and following it a large reception took place at the home of the bride, on the corner of Davis street and Forest avenue.

Mrs. William Innis of Providence, R. I., was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Frances Gray of Syracuse, N. Y.; Miss Emmalene Sizer of New York City, Miss Martha Clow of Chicago, and Miss Helen Glen of Evanston.

The bride wore a gown of white satin made with a court train and trimmed with chiffon and silver lace. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her tulle veil fell from a silver wreath.

Gowns of Attendants.

The matron of honor wore blue chiffon over taffeta with a large picture hat of the same shade. She carried lavender orchids. The bridesmaids were gowned in pale lavender chiffon over taffeta, with hoop skirts. Their hats were of lavender tulle, and they carried lavender sweet peas and forget-me-nots.

Two nieces of the bridegroom, Catherine Burnham and Cristabel Wheeler, were flower maids and carried baskets of forget-me-nots.

Morris K. Wilson was best man, and the ushers were Joseph Kelleher, Henry Gross, Francis Armstrong of Pittsburgh, Donald Weston of Pittsfield, Mass.; Granville Smith of Kansas City, Mo., and William Innis of Provincetown, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler will be at home after May 1 at 325 Davis street, Evanston.

DAUGHTER OF COL. TURNER MARRIED TO NEW YORKER.

Miss Ruth Jessamine Turner Is Now Mrs. Harry S. Bishop of Baltimore.

Miss Ruth Jessamine Turner, daughter of the late Col. Henry L. Turner, U. S. A., was married to Harry S. Bishop of New York in the east in Christmas week. Announcement of the marriage was made yesterday by the bride's mother, Mrs. Jessamine Turner of 56 Goethe street. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's cousin Mrs. James H. McNulty, 116 Oakland place, Buffalo, N. Y., on Dec. 26. Only members of the immediate families were present. The attendants were little flower girls, Misses Marion and Betty McNulty, cousins of the bride. Mr. Bishop was formerly in the advertising business in Chicago, and at one time was connected with THE TRIBUNE. They will make their home for the present in Baltimore.

"The trees went forth on a time to anoint a king over them; and they said unto the olive tree: 'Reign thou over us.'"
—Judges IX:8.

THE BIBLE thus designates the olive as the King of Trees. Modern science designates olive oil as the King of Foods—nourishing, energy-producing, easily digestible.

And the very finest olive oil ever placed on the American market—smooth, mellow, mild, delicately flavored, and of unequaled purity—is

EXTRA Cyrilla RIVIERA OLIVE OIL

The BEST Olive Oil
And We Can Prove It

YOU can pay more for olive oil—but you can NOT get better olive oil than Extra Cyrilla—the choice virgin product of the Italian Riviera.

Every test emphasizes the absolute superiority of Extra Cyrilla. Appearance, odor, taste, specific gravity, chemical analysis—all confirm our claim that it is the one olive oil you should use either as food or medicine.

There are three tests for quality in olive oil:

1. SPECIFIC GRAVITY: The lower the specific gravity the better, indicating a light, thin, pure oil, easily digested. The specific gravity of EXTRA CYRILLA is 0.9125. This is lower than that prescribed in the pharmacopœia.

2. FATTY ACIDS: The less of these the better; for it is the development of these than causes olive oil to become rancid. EXTRA CYRILLA OLIVE OIL will always be found to have less than 1% of fatty acids, which is less than the percentage prescribed by the pharmacopœia.

3. FLAVOR: Because it has such a minute proportion of fatty acids EXTRA CYRILLA OLIVE OIL has none of the "strong" or rancid taste which Americans find so objectionable; but has a delicate, nutty-sweet flavor highly agreeable to the palate.

Extra Cyrilla is so mild that many people who never liked any other olive oil are simply delighted with it.

You cannot possibly get a more healthful habit than that of using lots of Extra Cyrilla Olive Oil. You cannot use too much of it, for it is a food that is quickly and easily assimilated into the system.

Thousands of physicians prescribe olive oil to strengthen and build up. They find that even the weakest stomach can absorb it readily. Its high nutritive value, together with its digestibility, render olive oil highly efficient for convalescents and in cases of anaemia, pulmonary troubles, biliousness, indigestion, etc.

As an ointment for burns, sprains, eczema, chapped hands and general massage olive oil is quite without an equal.

But the chief and most important use of olive oil is as an article of diet to make every meal taste better—to make every meal more nourishing and wholesome.

Olive oil is largely responsible for the superiority of European cooking. Perfect frying can be achieved only by using olive oil in place of animal fats—a secret not known to many Americans, but not a secret at all in Europe nor to the high priced chefs at our big hotels and restaurants. You do not know how good steak or baked fish can be until you prepare them with Extra Cyrilla Olive Oil. It is really economical to use olive oil in frying, since what remains can be used again.

If well or sick, write for our Free Booklet on the use of Olive Oil medicinally, as well as in cooking.

IN TINS OR CRUETS

Minerva and the Olive Tree

In the legendary lore of Greece is written the story of how Minerva and Neptune competed for the worship of the Athenians. It was during the reign of King Cecrops in the 16th century before Christ that these two rival deities strove for priority in the hearts of the men and women of Athens.

Neptune, to support his claims, struck the rock of the Acropolis with his trident and a salt spring gushed forth.

Minerva spoke and at her voice the olive tree sprang from the soil.

The gods in council decided that the latter was the better, higher, more useful gift. Minerva or Athena became the tutelary deity of the city and from that day on those whom it was designed to honor were crowned with wreaths of olive.

The Romans and the Olive

The Romans surpassed even the Greeks and Hebrews in paying homage to the olive tree. So firmly did they establish it that Italy for more than twenty centuries has led the world in olive culture and particularly in the production of high grade olive oil.

Arthur Tappan Marvin, in his authoritative book, "The Olive," says:

"Italy has long been the source of all the good oil we have ever known. Italy has carried the cultivation of this tree to greater perfection than any other country on the globe."

Riviera Olive Trees

And the finest olive oil in all Italy is that made in the Riviera district—that narrow strip of Eden, between the Alps and the Mediterranean Sea.

It is from this district that Extra Cyrilla Olive Oil is imported—the very finest olive oil ever imported for the American market.

There is a Tuscan saying:

"Plant a vineyard for yourself, an orange orchard for your children, and an olive grove for your grandchildren."

But not even after the grandchildren have inherited the slow-growing olive grove is perfect oil obtainable. The flavor of the oil improves and becomes more mellow with the age of the tree which lives on for centuries, yielding ever more and ever better olives.

It is from such well seasoned ancient groves that Extra Cyrilla Olive Oil is obtained.

Extra Cyrilla Is "Virgin" Oil

It is what is known as "Virgin" Oil—the first rich, pure oil that runs from the press. The several subsequent pressings yield oils of inferior quality, but only that which flows freely from the freshly crushed, hand picked olive is fit to bear the label of Extra Cyrilla.

As is meet and proper this splendid olive oil is beautifully put up. The glass stoppered cruets in which Extra Cyrilla Olive Oil is sold are by far the finest things of their kind ever made. They are a decoration on any table and will be prized when empty.

Yet they contain full net weight of Extra Cyrilla Olive Oil. The depressions in the sides, which make them so convenient to hold and to pour from are not at any sacrifice of quantity.

ALL THE WORLD recognizes the merits of genuine "castile soap"—that is—soap made of olive oil. But to be certain that the "castile soap" you buy is made of olive oil ask your druggist for

MAYOR BRANDS FOES' ALLIANCE DEAL OF 'BOSSES'

His Finish Fight on Deneen and Ickes to Be Waged Before the People, He Says.

"I am opposed by the bosses. This means the Progressive bosses as well as the Republican bosses who usually derive their inspiration from Mr. Deneen. It is the same opposition that opposed me in the mayoralty campaign. They will try to defeat me this time. They will fail. I ask no consideration from them and certainly I shall not extend any. If the people don't want me they will say so. I will accept their verdict and only their verdict in this fight, so everybody might just as well pull their coats and understand that the fight is on that basis and no other."

The foregoing statement was made by Mayor Thompson yesterday to a TRIBUNE reporter. He had just returned from his invasion of southern Illinois, where he formally opened his campaign for national committeeman.

Coalition No Surprise.

With reference to the reported Deneen-Ickes coalition by which certain Progressive leaders were represented as ready to join with the Deneen-West faction in a finish fight on him Mr. Thompson said:

"I am not surprised at all that Mr. Deneen should endeavor to secure the support of some of the so-called Progressive leaders. He did the same thing a year ago, when he and his supporters attempted to defeat me for the nomination for mayor. They carried that opposition into the election campaign.

"As I view the situation, practically the same so-called Progressive leaders are now reported to be dickering with Mr. Deneen. There are a few exceptions. But this so-called amalgamation is not new or startling. It is the same old deal of the 'bosses.'

"Now, I don't think that these bosses, whether they be followers of Mr. Deneen or Mr. Ickes, represent the rank and file of either the Republican or Progressive parties. They can hold all the meetings they desire and can issue all the pronouncements they care to, but they will not be able to fool the voters.

Back to the People for Him.

"I never got anywhere in politics by relying on such leadership. I don't propose to start now. I am going straight back to the people, as I did one year ago. I am asking the people to say whether they will elect Roy O. West or William Hale Thompson national committeeman. And I don't think that a few self-constituted bosses can punt rings in the noses of the rank and file of the voters, either.

"Now, it doesn't affect me or my candidacy one iota what these self-constituted bosses do or say. They have the right of all citizens to meet and draw up proclamations and try to make the voters believe they are going to do this or that. And I don't care the snap of a finger whether they put me on any of their slates or leave my name off.

In the Fight to Stick.

"But William Hale Thompson will be a candidate for national committeeman until the votes are counted in the primary.

"I was not a strong primary law man at the outset of our reform movement looking to the revision and strengthening of the laws so that the voters' choices could be clearly ascertained. But it is the law of Illinois today and I am standing for that law and am not trying to nullify it with proclamations or deals in the effort to fool the voters.

"I stand squarely for the primary law and for the submission of Mr. West's name and mine to the voters. If the opposition is so sure it will win why be afraid to trust it to the verdict of the voters? What is troubling them? There is nothing deep or unexplainable in this.

And He'll Stick to Ticket.

"It's perfectly plain. All we have to do is to have the legislature amend the law to permit the submission of our names to the electorate. Is Mr. Deneen opposed to such an amendment? Will his men in the legislature vote for such an amendment? I am willing to trust the voters, and I will take my medicine with a smile if they elect Mr. West. More than that, I will support the ticket, including Mr. West, with all my might if he submits his name to the voters and then defeats me. I have no knives up my sleeve."

HIS WIFE A "HUSBAND," HE RUSHES FOR DIVORCE.

Pullman Porter, in Asking Decree, Says He Hears She "Married" and Toiled as Stevedore.

They couldn't make both ends meet.

"And to think, man," wailed Mrs. Cora Carter to her husband, Charles Carter, a Pullman porter, "to think that Ah'm as strong as one of these bulls of Bashan. Youah wages isn't enough, and the best Ah could do Ah could take in washin'."

They separated. After several years Carter remarried.

Some days ago he was reading the Chicago Defender, a Negro publication.

In it he read a story which said Mrs. Carter had donned overalls and become "Mr. Kerwin," and as such for ten years posed as the husband of Mamie White. They had a spat, and Mr. Kerwin vanished.

Now she was Walter Edwards and married Dorothy Klenowski, a white girl. She worked as a bellboy for four years, then in an asphalt gang, as a dock laborer.

Which explains why Carter told Judge McKinley yesterday that he left his second wife and wants a divorce from the first one.

Judge McKinley said he would grant it.

SHERMAN GAINS VOTES IN RACE FOR G. O. P. PRIZE

Backers Believe He Will Have 115 Delegates on the First Ballot, Possibly 200.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman's chances for the presidential nomination at the Coliseum next June appear to be much brighter than the general public has been given to understand.

Here in Springfield—Senator Sherman's home town—his political advisers have completed a stackup of reports from all over the nation. Some of these are by letter. Others come from a busy corps of personal representatives, who have been out over the Republican states.

Much was learned directly of Illinois conditions through the members of the legislature present at the second extra session, and at the Carbondale roundup yesterday.

May Have 115 First Ballot Votes.

Based upon these returns, the forecast comes from Sherman headquarters—without specifying further than that the Illinois delegation will be fifty-eight strong and solidly for its senator—that Sherman is likely to enter the convention with 115 first ballot votes, one-fourth of the required nominating majority.

It is added that if there is an authoritative statement from Justice Hughes preceding the first ballot that his name is not to be considered as a candidate, the Sherman first ballot strength will be in the vicinity of the 200 mark.

The Sherman managers have information that there has been rapid development in the northern states within the last ten days of plans for naming the various delegations to Chicago. Conditions, local and otherwise, have been disclosed which tend to the assurance, from a Sherman point of view, that four important states outside of Illinois will name delegations thoroughly committed, if not instructed, for the Illinois senator.

Will Avoid Cook County Row.

The demonstration of outside strength, backed up by the word from Washington that Sherman is steadily gaining support at the capital, has served to strengthen the determination among Senator Sherman's Illinois friends that his candidacy shall not become involved in the factional row now raging in Cook county.

The disposition in the fifteen downstate congressional districts is to name delegates who will be for Sherman, first, last, and all the time.

Regarding the eight delegates at large, Senator Sherman undoubtedly will exercise the prerogative granted him by the presidential primary law and name a ticket of eight Sherman men, and under the law, no other candidate for delegate at large may be a candidate as a "Sherman" delegate.

HARRISON SET FOR NEW FIGHT

Carter Probably Will Oppose Sullivan-Dunne Delegate Slate.

GOVERNOR IN DENIAL.

The probability of a fight on the Sullivan-Dunne slate of candidates for delegates at large to the Democratic national convention loomed yesterday, following the declaration by Carter H. Harrison that "something might develop" in a few days.

Mr. Harrison was left off the slate prepared by the Sullivan-Dunne members of the state committee Friday.

"I have got along pretty well without Mr. Sullivan's help," he said, "and I can do it now."

Conferences of the Harrison Chicago leaders will be held this week to determine whether they will put an entire opposition slate in the field.

Indorsement of the action of the state committee in commending the national and state administrations was voted unanimously by the Democratic Editorial association of Illinois in session at the Hotel Sherman.

DUNNE DENIES DEAL.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—Denying participation in any conference with the Sullivan faction of the Democratic party for the selection of delegates to the Democratic national convention with a view of eliminating the Harrison faction from the delegation, and declaring for Democratic harmony in the coming campaign, Gov. Dunne this afternoon issued the following statement:

"Articles appearing in this morning's Chicago papers intimate that some agreement or understanding has been made or had between Roger C. Sullivan and his friends and myself and my friends as to the selection of delegates to the Democratic national convention under which Carter H. Harrison and his friends were to be excluded therefrom.

"Neither myself nor any of my friends have entered into any such agreement, nor into any agreement of any character, with Mr. Sullivan or his friends. I have not conferred with Mr. Sullivan on the subject.

"Upon Mr. Charles and others who have discussed politics with me during the last few weeks I have urged the necessity of party harmony in the impending national campaign and pointed out that the only way to secure complete harmony was to secure to all elements of the party, including Mr. Harrison and his forces, representation upon the delegation to the national convention. This I have urged repeatedly and persistently upon all who have consulted with me on the subject, and this is my contention and stand today. E. F. DUNNE."

DRY ROW RUMOR DENIED BY CHIEF AID OF RHINEHART

George F. Rhinehart, superintendent of the Chicago Dry Federation, has gone to Montana to line up the dry fight in that state and C. F. Manahan will be in charge of his work during his absence.

News of Mr. Rhinehart's departure gave rise to a rumor that he had had trouble with the board of directors of the federation and had thrown up his contract which calls for his presence in Chicago until the April election.

"There has been no trouble of any sort," said Walter J. Miller, acting chairman of the board of directors. "Mr. Rhinehart has gone to Montana to map out the campaign which later he will direct. He will return to Chicago."

Fyffe Gives Opinion on Petitions.

An effort will be made today to complete the lists of 100,000 signatures to the dry petition. Colin C. H. Fyffe, attorney for the board of election commissioners, delivered an opinion on signatures to election petitions. Judge Scully had asked for the opinion following an inquiry from Curtis Weber, 3628 North Halsted street, who has been circulating a dry petition.

Mr. Weber wrote that he did not know whether all the signatures he had obtained were genuine and asked Judge Scully if he could make affidavit to the genuineness of the signatures without risk of prosecution.

Perjury, Fyffe Rules.

"Where a witness swears to a thing of which he conscientiously knows nothing, he is guilty of perjury," ruled Mr. Fyffe.

"Unless," said Dennis J. Egan, chief clerk of the election board, "the circulators of the dry petition today are careful they will have a contest on their hands and their petition will not be worth the paper it is written on."

Munday Gets Another Delay.

Morris, Ill., Jan. 15.—Judge S. C. Stough today granted C. B. Munday's attorneys another continuance on the hearing of arguments on a motion for a new trial to Jan. 29. A bill of exceptions was filed by the defense. Munday was recently convicted of complicity in the wrecking of the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank of Chicago.

GOV. WHITMAN FAVORS HUGHES AS G. O. P. LEADER.

Declares He Is Choice of Majority of Republicans and Strongest Candidate Suggested.

"Justice Hughes is undoubtedly the choice of a majority of the Republicans of the state and nation," he said.

"He would be the strongest candidate and would make the best president of any whose name has been suggested. If he would accept the nomination, I am unreservedly for him."

DETECTIVE SERGEANT FAY PRAISED AS HE RESIGNS.

Chief Healey Commends Aid Who Quits After Twenty-seven Years to Regain His Health.

Detective Sergeant William P. Fay, for twenty-seven years in the police department, laid down his star yesterday and told Chief Healey and Capt. Hunt that at 65 years his health is impaired and he wants a rest.

"I only wish all the members of the department showed as much devotion to duty as you have done," said Chief Healey in accepting the resignation.

APPEALS ON "DRY" RULING.

Fox River Express Company to Go to Highest Court in Fight on Hinckley Ordinance.

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 15.—Attorneys for the Fox River Express company of Aurora, which was held guilty of violating the liquor ordinance of Hinckley, Ill., announced in the Kane county Circuit court today that the case will be taken to the Supreme court of Illinois and then to the Supreme court of the United States for a ruling. The Hinckley ordinance is copied after the so-called Anti-Saloon league ordinance and prohibits the use of alcoholic liquor in "dry" territory—a curtailment of personal liberty violating the United States constitution, the express company attorneys say. The express company was charged with delivering liquor in dry territory.

DON'T CALL THIS NUMBER!

For nearly two years Charles Naylor of 6333 South Elizabeth street has been called from bed at all hours of the night and frequently annoyed in the day by his telephone ringing and being asked about fires. His telephone number, Wentworth 3488, formerly was that of engine company No. 54, 8023 Vincennes road, the number of which was changed to Stewart 3488. But the old number—54—still remains in some of the records. He has appealed to the press for help.

THE PIPELESS FURNACE

THE HESS WELDED STEEL COTTAGE FURNACE LEADER

This furnace heats an ordinary COTTAGE OR BUNGALOW thoroughly, on less fuel and with less labor than a base burner and it costs less than a base burner of equal capacity. The heat is discharged through the center of a large register face directly over the furnace, and the cold air from the rooms is drawn down to the furnace and reheated through the ends of the same register. A rapid circulation and distribution of the warm air takes place, which is far more efficient than stoves or radiators.

It is a HEALTH FURNACE, with every seam welded and absolutely gas and dust tight; burns any fuel, and moistens the air to its normal and healthful condition.

One of our customers wrote us yesterday after the cold spell, as follows: "The Cottage Furnace (Heater is the proper name for it, as it surely does the work) is giving fine satisfaction. I am more than pleased with it and it does the work better than I expected. I fixed my fire at night about ten o'clock, put on two shovels of coal and checked all the dampers; in the morning at six o'clock all the rooms registered 60 degrees. I turned on the drafts for five minutes and in fifteen minutes had all the rooms up to 70 degrees, and kept it there until evening, without putting on any more coal until evening. During all this time it was from two to four below zero outdoors. The furnace consumes less coal than the two stoves did and I have a warmer house, with an even temperature."

We make, also, the regular type of furnace with separate pipes and registers for larger houses and other buildings. Write or phone for printed matter and estimates.

Announcing a New Home for Case Cars in Chicago

Coincident with the introduction of the new Case 40, we desire to announce the opening of a new home for Case cars in Chicago.

Henceforth the McCarty Auto Company will be distributors of Case cars in this territory.

The show room is located at No. 2210-12-14 Michigan Blvd., where you are invited to inspect the new Case 40.

In addition to the show rooms there will be a complete service station, where the needs of Case owners will be gladly taken care of.

To those who have not yet had an opportunity to see the new Case 40 with its numerous features, we suggest an early inspection, which we know will surprise.

This new Case 40, priced at $1090.00, is well worthy of the name it bears, and is destined to gain rapid popularity. The car and its features will be gladly explained and you are welcome to go over it in detail when you want to make comparisons as to value. It is a quality car through and through—with remarkable new lines and many comfort features.

Building Material Exhibit,
175 West Jackson Blvd.,
Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen:-

I don't believe the public knows what you've got over there on that immense second floor of yours.

From time to time I have seen your advertising telling me to ''Look Before You Build,'' and ''It's Free to See''--but I had no idea what a huge proposition and how interesting the Building Material Exhibit really is.

Why, man alive, I didn't know you could crowd so many interesting exhibits together. There were a lot of people at the Exhibit the day I was there, but there ought to be a whole lot more, and I have been spreading the good word among my friends and acquaintances.

It's my personal idea that you've got the biggest show in Chicago and every family that's thinking of building a home--and every contractor and architect--should trot right down and see what you've got.

My hat's off to you and all the live wire exhibitors. Here's wishing you luck.

Sincerely yours,

ROBERT MAXWELL.

PAUL NEUMANN DISAPPEARS WITH POLICE AT HEELS

Boer War Veteran Accused of Getting Money as Fake Newspaper Man.

Paul R. Neumann, a veteran of the hospital service in the Boer war, who gained unpleasant publicity recently by methods used in collecting subscriptions from wealthy citizens for the alleged purpose of organizing a newspaper men's club, is being sought on a warrant charging him with operating a confidence game. He is accused of having recently obtained sums ranging from $25 to $50 from several prominent citizens by representing himself as an employé of THE TRIBUNE.

Warrants against Neumann and Charles Howe of 3939 Indiana avenue were sworn to by George S. Wood, treasurer of the Chicago Press club. Howe is now under arrest at the detective bureau. Neumann, the police learned, moved his furniture from his home at 4450 Magnolia avenue last week and disappeared without leaving a forwarding address.

"J. L. Neumann."

Wood was informed by a teller of the First National bank that three checks indorsed by a "J. L. Neumann, secretary of the Press club," had been received at the bank, all which had been cashed in the saloon of McFadden & Hegg at [illegible] West Madison street. One for $50 had been signed by Frank O. Wetmore, president of the bank; another for $25 by Attorney John Barton Payne, and a third for a like amount by an official of the International Harvester company.

"I received a phone call," said Mr. Wetmore, "from a man who said he was Mr. Neumann of THE TRIBUNE. 'We are getting up the annual Scoop show,' he said, 'and we newspaper men are very busy people, so each has to do his share. Your name is on the list I have to call up to find out if you wish to subscribe for tickets.' I told him I'd be very glad to subscribe and he mentioned the fact that two years ago I had given $50. I told him he could put me down for the same amount this year and he asked when he could have the check. I told him he could have it immediately. He said he would send an employé of the Press club right over. A man came in shortly afterward and I handed him the check."

Howe Denies Guilt.

The same story, it was learned, was told the others. Howe says he was not the man who went after the checks, and the police are attempting to ascertain the identity of a third man. Howe says Neumann came to him with three checks, told him he was in need of money, but didn't know where he could cash the checks and proposed to split "fifty-fifty" if Howe could cash them.

"I thought it was a little easy money, and, not suspecting anything was wrong, I took the checks to Hegg, and he cashed the two for $25," said Howe. "He didn't have enough money at the saloon to cash the one for $50, so I left it on deposit there. I gave Neumann the $50 I got and planned to get the money on the other for my share later."

Payment Stopped.

When the bank officials learned Neumann was not affiliated with the Press club and that no "scoop show" was under way they notified the signers of the checks and payment was stopped. Charles E. Hegg, who had presented all three at the bank at the same time, told Howe they had been protested, and he notified Neumann. Neumann, Howe said, told him he would fix matters up, and that was the last Howe saw of him.

Neumann is a graduate of Edinburgh. He is the son of a former California newspaper editor who had holdings in sugar plantations in this country and Hawaii. At one time he was employed by THE TRIBUNE, but not within the last two years.

Last fall he collected about $2,000 from Julius Rosenwald, Harold McCormick, and other wealthy men to organize a "pen club" for newspaper men.

LAWYER WILL EXCHANGE MINING STOCKS FOR FEE.

Henry M. Walker Must Return 500,000 Shares When Mrs. Lizzett Spreen Pays Him $900.

Attorney Henry M. Walker was awarded $900 attorney's fees from Mrs. Lizzett M. Spreen yesterday by Judge Baldwin, who also ordered that Mrs. Spreen be returned 500,000 shares of mining stock when she pays the $900 fee to Mr. Walker. Mrs. Spreen sued for the recovery of the stock on the ground that Mr. Walker had failed in his agreement to sell some $250,000 worth of treasury stock in her company. Walker incorporated the company with a capital stock of $2,500,000.

"I am glad to get $900," said Mr. Walker, "although I offered to settle for $1,000 a year ago. I will also get $420 which I laid out in expenses."

Lorimer's actual trial before Judge Dever probably will not begin until the third week in February.

USE OF PHONES TO BOOST BUNDLE DAY GIFTS URGED

Committee Makes Final Appeal to Chicago to Help the Poor.

A city-wide telephone campaign today to help bundle day was urged by the committee. Every citizen who wants to help the great army of poorly clad will call up his neighbors and remind them that tomorrow is bundle day and to be sure and have a bundle ready.

This unique plan was devised to bring in those who put off their charity work until the last minute. Fifty thousand owners of residence telephones are expected to call up at least three persons and remind them that tomorrow is the day to send their unused clothing to the committee.

Bundles can be sent to schools, police stations, or the Pugh terminal warehouse, 365 East Illinois street where headquarters are maintained.

Call Up the Neighbors.

"Every person who has a telephone should ascertain whether his neighbor has prepared a bundle," said President David Gibson in commenting on the latest plan of the committee to get bundles. "We do not want to overlook a single person who has clothing that can be spared. If he can't use it we have persons who can."

Reports from the warehouse, schools, and police stations indicate that a generous response will be made to the committee's appeal. One dealer sent 200 men's hats. One skirtmaker sent fifty skirts and said he would send more Monday. A garment maker pledged fifty women's suits, while wholesale dealers in men's clothing are preparing large bundles for the poor.

Many children who heard of the appeal made by Nelson N. Lampert, vice president of the Fort Dearborn National bank, that clothing be sent for children, have wrapped up bundles of their own cast off garments ready to send on bundle day. The demand for children's clothing has been greater this year than last.

Work Along Broad Lines.

The work of the committee this year has been on broad lines. Representatives of Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish charitable organizations are on the committee. Business men, bankers, and club women have urged citizens to help make the day a success. Mayor Thompson issued a proclamation decreeing that tomorrow should be bundle day, and urging everybody to send bundles.

Plans for the distribution of clothing have also been arranged, so that as little time as possible will be lost in getting it to the poor.

A campaign of personal invitation and publicity will be carried forward in order to fill the theater every day. Courtenay Barber is chairman of the committee in charge.

URGES ELECTION LAW BILLS.

Real Estate Board Recommends Measures Designed to Cut Public Expenses.

Resolutions, which will be forwarded to all members of the legislature, asking them to vote in favor of three measures which it is claimed will reduce the expense of elections, were unanimously adopted at a special meeting of the Chicago real estate board yesterday.

The measures are:

Senate bill 17, which requires a separate ballot for candidates for judges of all courts of record in counties of more than 200,000 population.

Senate bill 18, which provides that Cook county Superior court judges elected in June under the present law, shall be elected on the first Tuesday of April, which is the date of the aldermanic election.

Senate bill 29, which obviates the necessity for a special registration for primaries.

The resolution also asks for a thorough revision of the election laws at the next general session.

SKULLS FOUND ON FOOLKILLER, OLD SUBMARINE

Unwritten Tragedy of Chicago River New Puzzle for Police.

An unwritten tragedy of the Chicago river was brought to light after twenty-five years yesterday when the bones of a man and the skull of a dog were taken from the mud-coated "Foolkiller," the ancient submarine that occupied a berth in the river bed since 1870.

"The Foolkiller" was taken from the bottom of the river a few weeks ago by William Deneau, a diver for the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company. He obtained permission of the federal government to remove the old hulk for exhibition purposes.

Relic of Early '70s.

The craft was built in the early '70s by an eastern man and floated. Its first submersion was its last but one. It remained down for twenty years and then was purchased and raised by William Nissen. He made some experiments with it, but one day about twenty-five years ago it disappeared and was not seen again.

Deneau, while making some investigations in the muddy bed of the river at Wells street, came upon the steel vessel deep in the mud. It was brought to the surface by chains, but no sooner had its pointed nose poked into the air than it sank again. More subsea maneuvering was necessary before it was finally brought up and towed to the Fullerton avenue bridge, where Deneau and his helpers set about cleaning it.

Yesterday in the mud that crusted the inside of the queer craft were found the skull of a dog and some human bones. The matter was reported to Capt. Thomas F. Meagher of the Shakspeare avenue station, and he suggested the bones be sent to the county morgue, where Coroner Hoffman will order an examination.

The police have begun a search of records of the missing about the time of the disappearance of the "Foolkiller," and hope to connect such an affair with the discovery of the bones.

STRIKE BREAKER GUILTY OF AIMING REVOLVER.

Lawyers of Edward Valve Company at East Chicago Will Appeal Decision Assessing $500 Fine.

George W. Shuber, alias Block, 2000 Augusta street, was found guilty yesterday of aiming a revolver at union machinists on strike at the plant of the Edward Valve Manufacturing company in East Chicago. Special Judge A. P. Twyman of the Municipal court assessed a fine of $500. Shuber was defended by company attorneys, who said they would appeal the case.

Shuber's arrest Thursday followed his assault on a crowd of men, upon whom he is said to have fired three shots. On the witness stand he admitted he had worked in street car strikes and had been brought to the valve company's plant as a man "who wasn't afraid."

BOY SWINDLES 25 WOMEN.

Tells Housewives of Irving Park to Pay Imagined Express Charges.

More than twenty-five housewives of Irving Park have reported to the police that a youthful swindler in knickerbockers has obtained from them amounts ranging from $1 to $2. It is said the boy first finds the name of family and then calls there with the information that he has been sent to notify them that a sum of money is due on an express package held at the downtown offices of the express company. He always collects in advance and never returns. Mrs. G. Smith of 2448 Surrey street, Mrs. Mary Hartman of 1401 Fullerton avenue, Mrs. Otto Kart of 2045 Belle Plaine avenue, and Mrs. Martha Bronesky of 3707 Christian street were victims yesterday.

LOUISIANA'S LATEST LAND OPENING

When the United States government throws open its lands for settlement the people recognize the great opportunity; and filing applications often outnumber possible claims at the ratio of 100 to 1. There is a reason for this, and this reason is: "The American farmer knows the value of a new country and new land." This announcement is very similar to a government enterprise in this respect.

Read this announcement of the famous Long-Bell Farms of Louisiana which will be opened for settlement about January 29th. Every city man and farm reader of this paper who knows anything about the value of lands in the famous Ozone Belt of Louisiana's Highlands wants to pay particular attention to the words contained in this announcement. We want only serious minded men and women to consider this opportunity.

Our Lands

Our lands are located approximately 690 miles south of Kansas City on the Kansas City Southern Railroad, and 65 miles from the Gulf of Mexico. They are not swamp, marshy alluvial meadows or anything of that sort. They lie from 130 to 185 feet above sea level and are gently rolling and long grass pasture like in appearance. This is the famous Ozone Belt of Louisiana. These Louisiana Highlands have none of the physical disadvantages and should not be confused with swamps, overflow meadows, etc. We want you to disabuse your mind of these facts.

Transportation

The Kansas City Southern Railroad passes through the heart of our lands, reaching from Kansas City, Mo., to Port Arthur, Texas, that great Gulf of Mexico port. Through Beauregard and Vernon parishes, in which Long-Bell Farms are located, the following railroads run east and west or north and south: Lake Charles & Northern R. R., Louisiana & Pacific R. R., Gulf, Colorado & Sante Fe R. R., and several chartered railroads of lumber companies are available through both of these parishes. Here is an ideal locality, with ready-made transportation at the very door of our farms.

Soil

Long-Bell Farms are composed of soil that is a rich, various colored sandy loam. This is a friable soil. It responds to the warm sunshine, thereby germinating seeds quickly. Underneath this soil is a rich clay subsoil of several shades of red. This clay subsoil is porous and is one of the very best "moisture holders" known.

Rainfall

The rainfall of this section of Louisiana is well distributed over the growing months and, owing to the natural well drained condition or contour of the land, the excess of rainfall is carried away in natural creek beds, draws, etc., so that the evil effects of excessive water do not obtain here.

Climate

The climate of this section of Louisiana is ideal in every respect. The Gulf of Mexico is so near that the breezes of the gulf, winter and summer, form a protecting blanket over this section as against heat and cold. Here is the ideal place for the northern farmer to find his diversified farm. In this section the Satsuma orange grow side by side with cotton and corn. Here the magnolia and the rose mix their perfumes with the scents of clover and hay. This is the ideal spot for all manner of live stock raising, poultry, etc.

Immigration is centering largely upon this section of Louisiana. North of us a short distance is located a Belgian colony, brought in by the Rock Island Railroad, while close by us is a French settlement. The war in Europe will attract tremendous immigration to the South, where there is plenty of land left at a poor man's price.

Schools

Beauregard and Vernon parishes have schools of such a high rank and order that upon a recent investigating tour made by fifteen noted northerners over the Long-Bell Farms, the thing that first struck these men as extremely remarkable was the public school systems of these great parishes. The University of Louisiana, in connection with its Extension Department of the United States Department of Agriculture, is working through the district graded and high schools in teaching the Louisiana youth scientific farming. Children are carried from great distances to district schools, thereby making education accessible from every point of view, no matter what the condition of the child may be.

Fruit Growing and Truck Farming

The climate and soil of the Long-Bell Farms make it possible to produce every kind of fruit and vegetable demanded by the northern markets, and at a good profit to the growers, in competition with all sections of the South except extreme southern Florida.

Transportation—refrigerator car and express service—make it possible to get into the market of 50 million people within 30 hours with fruits and vegetables. The soils and natural drainage of these lands are particularly adapted to fruit and truck growing. The clay subsoil holds the moisture and the top body soil, because it is underlaid with clay, holds all the natural humus and plant food, and equally as well does it hold that added enrichment.

Poultry and eggs will be one of the chief products of this section, with a great demand locally in the principal southern cities now being supplied largely from northern markets. The Long-Bell Farms are located where transportation is good, quick and sure to northern as well as southern markets.

Our Plan

We have a most unique plan for the sale and settlement of Long-Bell Farms. This plan will be announced in the columns of this paper Sunday, January 30th. Suffice to say that every man who reads this announcement will be most interested in reading our definite terms and conditions in that issue. We want to say that we will not permit any man to buy a Long-Bell Farm with the idea that he can go down upon his farm and expect miracles to happen. We want men and women as good as the soil and the climate. We want men and women who are able not only to pay for their land, but we want them to have sufficient funds and sufficient experience and sufficient character to do the work necessary to the development of those lands.

We do not intend to announce our prices and terms before the date given above, but we have prepared a book, consisting of 52 large pages, entitled "Where Soil and Climate Are Never Idle," and we will be glad to send any one a copy of this book, if such a person will send us the coupon below. This announcement is appearing throughout the agricultural press of this country this week, and the big opening announcement will be made the week of January 30th. It is our purpose to offer the American public the same opportunity at the same time. Our only rule in disposing of these lands will be "First come, first served."

We want every one who reads this announcement to know that it is made by this company, which is a sister corporation of the Long-Bell Lumber Company of Kansas City, Mo., which occupies first rank among the world's lumber corporations, cutting capacity 500,000,000 feet of lumber each year. You may investigate this company in any way you desire, your bank, your express company, Dun's, Bradstreet's, or any other way.

If you believe that you will not be able to read our announcement in this publication on January 30th, then send us the coupon below and we will see that our literature reaches you in time to participate in the special prices and terms made at our opening. No matter whether you are city man, farmer, manager, cashier, expert mechanic or trained employee, we believe that here is an investment that will prove most attractive to you, if you have the qualifications within yourself to measure up to our standard. We reserve the right to reject any and all applicants for the purchase of this land, as it is our purpose and desire to say who shall and who shall not buy a Long-Bell Farm. Here is one company that is going to investigate its purchasers and determine whether or not they are the caliber of men or women who measure up to the value of the soil and climate.

This company has 300,000 acres of land to sell, in the two great parishes above mentioned. The first block of these acres will be sold at the terms and figures which will be given at our opening announcement. When you see these, you will readily agree that they will appeal in every way to a larger number of people than we can accommodate. It is for this purpose, and for this purpose alone, that this preliminary announcement is made, in order that due notice may be given for investigation of this company, its lands and its location, before the opening announcement is made, to those who think that they will not be able to see this opening announcement.

Gentlemen: Please send me your 52-page book, entitled "Where Soil and Climate Are Never Idle," so that I may know more about your lands, and will be able to determine whether or not I want to buy a farm at the time your opening announcement is made. I do not agree to buy any of your land, but will read your literature if you send it to me.

WANTED,—a "Showdown"

Who makes the MOST Motor-Car Tires?

Let us have TRUTH——without
"Advertising License"

HEREIN we speak as a Tire Advertiser,—interested in conserving Public Confidence in the Tire Industry.

We believe in Advertising, as an economical factor in the Marketing of Tires to Consumers.

We believe, too, that the value of each line of Advertising Space, paid for, depends not only upon the Message which fills that Space, but, ultimately, upon the degree of TRUTHFULNESS and Good-Faith within that Message.

We believe that a whole Industry may be raised up, or lowered down, in Public Confidence by the general average of Truthfulness and Sincerity in the Advertising used by that Industry.

We believe that a chronic atmosphere of Half-truth,—too dexterous manipulation of facts for Expediency,—and a continuous stretching of the Truth in an effort to "Beat the Devil around the Bush,"—might cost all Advertisers, in a given Industry, half the possibilities of their Appropriation.

We believe that many Advertisers realize this fact, as we do, but hesitate to express it, lest such expression be deemed "Unethical."

THE "Ethics of Advertising," so vaguely defined that each interprets them for himself, seem generally cursed with the same Insincerity and Expediency as that "Advertising License" which is the excuse for Insincerity and Truth-stretching in Advertising itself.

Under these Ethics it is, for instance, considered bad form to, in any way, directly or indirectly, refer to Competitors, no matter how much they may dexterously transgress the truth, regarding a Market which is the common property of all who sell the same product.

But, per contra, these Ethics evidently admit of any Advertiser claiming for his Product, as exclusive features, such features as are common to all, or to others, who make the same grade of Product.

—The Theory of this kind of Advertising being that he who boldly claims that feature, through the widest publicity, is inferred by the Public to be the only Manufacturer who HAS that feature in his Product—

—In other words, to DECEIVE THE PUBLIC into thinking that his is the only Product, on the Market, possessing that feature.

APPARENTLY this is considered "Ethical" in Advertising, although it is deliberately intended to DECEIVE the Reader and, by false pretences, take away from other Manufacturers of similar product (possessing the same feature) part of the Market which, on the merits of their goods, rightfully belongs to them.

Apparently too, it is considered "unethical" for the "other" Manufacturers to even PROTEST against this in their own Advertising, or to show up in print, over their own names, the deception practiced against their own Market, by the untruthful claims of "Ethical" Competitors.

The only course left open to the injured Manufacturer (if he wishes to be considered "Ethical") is to either sit still and let his Truth-stretching Competitor thus steal his market or——Through the same kind of "Ethical" Advertising, claim all the things his Competitor claimed, and somewhat "outstretch" him in the claiming of them.

Is this good for the ultimate interest of Advertising, or Tire Selling?

Is it good for the Publisher (who is the Manufacturer of Advertising Space), or for the Advertising Agency (who is the Dealer in it)?

Is it good for the Advertiser who, in the end, must "pay the Piper" for all the Stretching of Advertising (through discounted credence)? See column to right.

We would rather be "RIGHT" than Victorious.

On January 2nd, 1916 (when this Advt. was first published) we stated, in this panel, that plenty of the "White Ingredients" for White Tread Tires was available.

In proof of our good faith behind that statement, we further offered the "good offices" of our Purchasing Dept. to assist any other Tire Maker, who found difficulty in securing all he wanted of these "White Ingredients" to cover his needs.

Since that time a widely Advertised Tire Concern has mailed us an ORDER for 2,000 TONS (4,000,000 pounds) of ZINC Oxide (a metal).

That Tire Concern has repeatedly and recently claimed, in its Advts., to have on hand a supply of these "White Ingredients" sufficient to manufacture the greater portion of its 1916 Tire output, with White Treads.

Under these circumstances, and its "Order" for 4,000,000 pounds MORE, a Curious Public might naturally inquire whether its 1916 Tires are to be made chiefly of Rubber, or chiefly of that good ballasting material—Zinc.

Be it said here that, when we offered the "good offices" of our Purchasing Dept. we did not offer to act as a Dealer or Jobber in ZINC,—a metal product, which is practically controlled in this country by the New Jersey Zinc Co., whose contracts to all large users prohibit re-sale.

However that be, we here and now volunteer the information that we were mistaken in our belief that "plenty is available" of the Zinc used in making White Tires.

We had experienced no scarcity of it, and so made the Statement in all good faith.

THE B. F. GOODRICH CO.

January 14, 1916.

This was published in the New York Tribune, January 14, 1916.

The Challenge—

TO any Rubber, or Tire, Mfg. Concern, which claims production and sale of as many Auto and Truck Tires combined (by any or all of its United States factories) as were produced, and sold, by the Akron, O., factory of the B. F. Goodrich Co., during the latest fiscal year of each, we extend this Challenge.

We will throw open our Books, and Records of Tire Manufacture and Sale, to a fair and impartial Audit, supervised by a Committee of three to be mutually agreed upon, provided the competing Tire Concern, or Concerns, will do the same.

We will abide by the result of that Audit, and agree that all Rubber or Tire Concerns who are parties thereto, be free to publish the certified findings of that Audit, as to the comparative volume of each Company's combined Auto and Truck Tire Production and Sale.

WE confine the Audit to the Production and Sale of Auto and Truck Tires combined to those made in the American (U. S. A.) Factories of each Concern,—thus excluding our own Foreign Factory and the Foreign Factories of all Competitors.

We do this because, Volume of these Foreign factories cannot materially help in lowering Cost of Production and Selling of Tires, as made by the American Factories of each,—and because some American Rubber Concerns have no Foreign Factories.

We claim, and know, that the Akron, O., Factory of the B. F. Goodrich Co. makes and sells more Auto and Truck Tires combined, than any other Rubber Factory in America, (U. S. A.), or any Rubber Company which operates five or more Tire and Rubber Factories in the United States.

We extend this open Challenge to ALL Doubters,—and ALL Tire Advertisers, who should now either justify their Claims for largest Volume by accepting this fair Challenge, or cease making such misleading Claims.

January 1st, 1916. THE B. F. GOODRICH CO.

Who made the first White Tread Tire?
Who made the first Black Tread Tire?
Who made the first Cord Tire for Autos?

WE are prompted to write the matter in first column, at the beginning of 1916, because we think it a wholesome subject for the Tire Industry to consider (and maybe for Publishers).

Not in a "Holier than Thou" attitude, nor yet in a plea for Good Principle alone,—though that alone should justify it.

We write it believing that many other worthy Advertisers think it, and would gladly co-operate with it,—if someone set the pace, as a sound Business Policy—for multiplying Results from Advertising for all Tire Advertisers.

We write it, too, because we, more than other Tire Mfg. Concerns, have suffered damage from competitive Advertising which claimed, or implied claim to, exclusive Features in Product, Equipment, or Method, which Features had long been common with US, as the Daddy of all Tire-building Concerns.

When a Rubber Concern makes, for instance, 2,000,000 Tires in a year and then Advertises to have a far, far greater output than any other Tire Maker in America, it is mighty trying for another Rubber Concern which makes more than 2,950,000 Tires in the same period of time, to be "Ethical,"—to sit still, and let the inferences, that go with the Competitor's false claims, carry.

It is true that the Public cares little Who makes, or sells, the MOST Tires,—WHO made the first Pneumatic Tire,—first White Rubber Tire, the first Black Tread Tire, or the first genuine Cord Tire.

The Public cares chiefly for who DELIVERS THE BEST VALUE in Tires to Consumers. We realize this, and so concentrate upon it.

But since best value to Consumers is dependent not only upon the Intention, and Good-Faith, of each Manufacturer, but also upon his Experience, Equipment, and VOLUME of production, misleading Claims, by Competitors, are a damage to that Manufacturer who actually DOES make and sell the MOST Tires, of a given quality, at the lowest price, or DID initiate the true pace-making Tire Features.

We know that no Rubber Concern makes, in these United States of America, so many Motor Car Tires as does the B. F. Goodrich Co.

WHEN, therefore, on this page, we seem to transgress the so-called "Ethics" of Advertising by publishing a "Challenge" to all Competitors, upon VOLUME, it is not because we like to do this sort of thing.

It is because we know of no other way to effectively serve notice that we will no longer stand for unfounded Advertised Claims by Competitors, when these claims reflect unfairly (even if "ethically") upon the Market rights of our Product.

We were the first Concern in America to make White Rubber Treads on Tires. When we now discard them we here serve notice that it is through no shortage of the "White" ingredients, caused by War, or other conditions alleged to have made a scarcity.

We abandoned the White Tread Rubber (which we ourselves introduced before 1905) in favor of the Black-Tread "Barefoot" Rubber, which we alone introduced TWO YEARS AGO, on our famous Silvertown Cord Tires.

We abandoned White Rubber in the Treads of our FABRIC Tires for 1916, and replaced it with our Black "Barefoot" Rubber, only after two years of such rigid TESTS for ENDURANCE and Power-Saving, on our "Silvertown Cord Tires," as clearly proved the great superiority, of our black "Barefoot" Rubber, for Road Work and Mileage.

One reason why we are ABLE to sell MORE Motor Car Tires than any other Rubber Concern in America, is because we consider it good business policy to give to Consumers the MAXIMUM of Tire Value, that the largest Rubber Factory in America, with the longest Tire experience, CAN give, while carrying only a fair profit to our Dealers and our Stockholders.

The Consumer demand which results from this Policy is the only Excuse which the B. F. Goodrich Co. offers for actually making "far more more Motor-Car Tires" in America alone, than any other Rubber Company makes in these United States of America.

—Which fact the Challenge herewith is intended to PROVE.

BOY CRIMINAL PROBLEMS REACH INTO THE HOMES

Most Hardened Crooks Shown to Have Had Juvenile Records.

WHAT OF SCHOOL LIFE?

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

A lot of rot is written and spoken about "baby bandits" and waves of juvenile crime.

The place where the problem first comes to public attention is in the Juvenile court. It may be interesting, in the first place, to get an idea of how big the problem is.

Last year the cases of 3,204 so-called dependent children were brought before this court. That means that the parents of 3,204 children in Chicago were unable or unwilling to support them decently. There was nothing wrong about the children themselves except that they had not been wise in selecting their fathers and mothers.

INQUIRY BEFORE COURT ACTION

All these cases—and more than 1,000 others—were brought to the attention of the court by letters from reputable citizens. In every case a careful investigation is made and every effort is made to fix things up before any court action is taken. It is fully recognized that it takes a pretty poor family not to be better than the best institution. Nearly 1,100 complaints—involving some 3,000 children—were handled without bringing them into court at all. There remained more than 3,200 children whose parents were too poor or too depraved to give them a fair chance in the world.

FEEBLE MINDED PARENTS.

Some of these children had feeble minded parents or were themselves subnormal. Under the new law the Juvenile court has the right to send feeble minded children—after they have been so adjudged by a commission, including a physician and a psychologist—to the state home and colony at Lincoln.

Last year some thirty-one boys and girls were so committed. Some of these feeble minded children are extremely vicious young criminals. One trouble is that several of the worst kids sent to Lincoln have run away several times. One such runaway boy committed four burglaries during his first absence from the colony and a holdup during his second. This same boy made his third getaway from Lincoln no later than Jan. 10, 1916, having knocked down a guard at Lincoln and taken three other feeble-minded boys with him.

6,000 Brought Into Court.

In addition to the so-called dependent children—numbering 3,200—there were no less than 2,912 so-called delinquent children brought before the Juvenile court during the year. A delinquent child is one—under 17 years old—who has actually committed some offense which is deemed worthy of action by the police.

This makes a total of more than 6,000 boys and girls under 17 years old, who for their own fault or the fault of their parents, are actually brought into the Juvenile court in Chicago in a single year.

Any one who seriously wants to get at the real causes of "baby bandits" must begin in the Juvenile court and work downward.

Almost all the vicious young criminals who have been given so much publicity in recent weeks have Juvenile court records. Many of them are still of Juvenile court age.

There were, for instance, more than 370 burglaries committed by boys under 17 during the year. There were 86 cases of robbery, 11 of arson, and almost 1,200 of larceny.

What made these children criminals?

A Typical Case.

Drop into Judge Pinckney's courtroom on a Friday morning and listen to the stories and records of the small boys who are brought before him by the compulsory education officers. Here is a little chap of 12 who is apparently an incorrigible truant. His head barely reaches to the top of the judge's table, but his record shows that he is a member of a gang which has burglarized six stores. Another, still smaller, admits breaking into a factory, with five other boys, and stealing half a dozen bicycles. This boy sold the bike he stole for $3.

What can be responsible for the criminal instinct of such an infant?

Lack of home training or training of the wrong kind? Lack of discipline at home and in school? Lack of moral or religious instruction?

What does it mean when school teachers in certain parts of the city are obliged to keep everything not nailed down under lock and key?

The Home and the School.

Some of these children are doubtless more or less feeble minded. The parents of others are drunkards. To still others theft is apparently laudable, so long as he is not caught at it. Most small criminals come from homes that are wretchedly poor. The parents of a smaller number are fairly well to do.

It is at any rate certain that to get to the bottom of the "baby bandit" problem one must go straight into the home of the small criminal. He must go from there to the schoolroom.

What he finds will go further than anything else to explain the "baby bandit."

A MOTHER'S SOLUTION

Yesterday a mother went to call on her 17 year old son, now a prisoner in the county jail—Fred Logue, the "pepper bandit." His mother is Mrs. R. F. Vahntz.

Here's her solution for the boy problem:

Parents are to blame for their children's delinquency. Mothers and fathers should be punished for what their sons and daughters do. I'd gladly take the punishment for what Freddie did. I deserve it. I neglected him. He visited me only a few times during the last three years. And he only 17.

I let my boy drift away from me when he was 14 years old. He was renting his own room and trying to make his own living.

When I asked Freddie why he should have made the first blot on the record of the family, he said: "Mother, have you ever been cold and hungry?"

I had to admit that I hadn't.

"Well, then," he said, "you'll never understand."

"Clucking Hen" Police Mystery Near Solution

Three Cents' Worth of Stolen Chicken Feed May Rock Department.

The mystery of the "Clucking Hen and the Setting of Duck Eggs," which a few months ago threatened an upheaval at the Brighton Park police station, is about to be solved.

Capt. Barney Baer, against whom insinuations were made regarding the "mystery," says there will be a thorough investigation. Chief Healey, who has heard of the "mystery," also is anxious to clear it up. Business of solving the "mystery" was begun yesterday with the filing of charges by Capt. Baer against Patrolman John Leonard.

Leonard is accused of "removing three and one-half pounds of chicken feed from the Brighton Park station which belonged to the captain. The market price of the feed is 3 cents.

Does Some Regular Sleuthing.

Capt. Baer missed the feed several days ago. He examined the bag from which it was taken and found finger prints. There also were footprints of a No. 11 shoe on the barn floor. With these clews to work on the captain began the hunt for the daring bandit who stole his chicken feed.

Patrolman Leonard heard the captain talking about the finger prints and footprints and admitted it was he who "borrowed" the chicken feed. He was short of feed, he said, and took a few handfuls home with him.

Charges were filed with the civil service board following the policeman's admission.

He Starts Something.

"Now that the captain has started something," said a Brighton Park policeman, "we are going to solve the mystery of the 'Clucking Hen and the Setting of Duck Eggs.' When the story about the hen and the duck eggs was sprung in THE TRIBUNE last April, great influence was brought to bear to prevent the men at the station from telling what they knew about it. Another story which was suppressed was the mystery about the Pound Cake.

"Chief Gleason and Mayor Harrison were given the inside dope on both mysteries, but they pigeonholed the matter. The recent scandals in the police department would sink into insignificance if the civil service board would go into the details of the clucking hen and the duck eggs and the pound cake."

One suggested solution of the hen and eggs mystery was that a policeman stole them from a home near the station and took them to his home. But there the matter rested.

SCIENTIFIC RESURRECTION DAY DAWNS, HOFFMAN SAYS.

Experiments on Asphyxiated Animals by Transfusion Leads Coroner to Want It Tried on Humans.

The day of scientific resurrection is breaking, in the belief of Coroner Hoffman, who witnessed experiments of Dr. W. H. Burmeister of the University of Chicago in reviving asphyxiated animals by blood transfusion. Corner Hoffman has asked all hospitals to save the blood resulting from operations and to notify him of cases of asphyxiation. He wishes to see Dr. Burmeister's discovery applied in the first human death resulting from asphyxiation, as he believes that all the animal kingdom is responsive to the same laws. Coroner Hoffman said that the successful use of the treatment in the cases of deceased humans would make this one of the most remarkable discoveries of all time.

NEW JOLT FOR TAX SHARK.

U. S. Refuses Jacob Glos' Offer of Settlement for Neglected Income Levy.

Jacob Glos, Cook county's professional tax buyer, yesterday was given another reminder that Uncle Sam will not be dickered with in tax matters. Assistant District Attorney Michael L. Igoe notified him that the government has refused to accept his compromise in settlement of his income tax for the last two years.

Glos had agreed to pay a tax of $1,500, a $750 penalty, and a $20 compromise. The government demands that Glos pay his full tax and penalty, together with $500 for the compromise, and the costs of the proceedings.

At the rate of $1,500 income tax for two years federal officials said, Glos' income is $70,000 a year.

"BOY CRIMINAL" CONFERENCE SET BY TWO JUDGES

HOYNE OUTLINES HIS VIEWS.

Notices of a meeting to be held in Judge Fisher's courtroom next Thursday were sent out yesterday to the sixty-seven members of the committee selected by Judge Fisher and Judge Pinckney to consider the "baby criminal" problem. Judge Pinckney presides in the county Juvenile court and Judge Fisher in the Municipal Boys' court. Both are confronted with the so-called boy problem every day.

First trial of Chief of Police Healey's plan eliminating indiscriminate arrests of youthful offenders will be given tomorrow, when all police officers will begin carrying blanks summoning violators of city ordinances to appear in court. This plan is the result of a series of articles in THE TRIBUNE several weeks ago pointing out the evils of unnecessary imprisonment for minor offenses.

Avoid Evils of Cell.

Under this plan, boys between the ages of 17 and 21 will not be arrested and placed in police cells for minor violations of municipal statutes. Instead, the police officer will take the name of the offender and give him a sort of subpoena requiring his appearance in court the following day.

The "boy bandit" problem is one which requires legislation and appropriation, according to State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne. Money should be provided to build proper institutions, Mr. Hoyne believes.

"We must be careful not to confuse the question of crime prevention with that of enforcing the criminal laws," Mr. Hoyne said. "The two are quite distinct. In enforcing the law, the state's attorney's office follows the policy of treating each individual case on its own merits.

Warns of Hysteria.

"Care should be taken to avoid the dangers of hysteria. In our murder cases particularly, we are beset with persons who have this or that theory. Dr. So-and-So comes into court and declares that the prisoner has the intellect of a boy of 10.

"It is to be supposed that there is something the trouble with the intellect of most criminals, but that does not mean they shold escape punishment for their crimes. The realization of punishment may awaken that intellect

"As to our so-called baby bandit problem, there again is the danger of hysteria. Legislation and not mere sentimentality is needed to solve the problem. With the legislation should come appropriations to cover the cost of constructing proper institutions—call them hotels if you like.

Plan May Not Work Out.

"Regarding Chief Healey's plan of not arresting certain offenders between the ages of 17 and 21, I am afraid that it is not practicable as at present framed. I don't believe that the authority of municipal examining magistrates should be lodged specifically in every police officer. I don't think the chief has been fortunate in selecting the age limit he has. We have some pretty bad criminals between 19 and 21 years of age. Even now, criminals complain that there are too many street corner trials by police officers.

"There is, however, great work to be done."

Big Brothers Active.

Gus Pollack, president of the Big Brothers' association, says there must be politics behind the stir that has been created about the prevalence of boy crime. He believes there is a "nigger in the wood pile" somewhere. He says there is an element trying to discredit the work of the Big Brothers and of the Public Defenders, the organizations formed by Judge Harry Olson when he was head of the Boys' court, to take care of the boys upon their discharge. But, Pollack, announces the Big Brothers are going to continue their work and will not for a moment drop their plans for a clubhouse for homeless boys, to be opened shortly.

FISHER EXPLAINS ATTITUDE ON TERMINAL ECONOMIES.

Member of City Railway Commission Says False Impression Exists as to His Views.

Walter L. Fisher, member of the city railway terminals commission, yesterday said a false impression had gone out regarding his views on the economies that might be effected by relocating terminals in Chicago. Mr. Fisher issued the following statement:

"The figures I gave related to the saving that could be made by the railroads themselves—not the business interests—by adopting correct terminal methods.

"I quoted the estimate of W. H. Lyford of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad that the adoption of the coöperative method of handling transfer freight would save the railroads of Chicago $2,622,000 each year on this class of freight alone, and the estimate of John F. Wallace, formerly chief engineer of the Illinois Central, that if outbound freight was handled on the trap car principle at outlying points instead of in the heart of the city—like the Illinois Central and Michigan Central freight yards at Randolph street—there would be a saving to the railroads of over $500,000 a year on the initial cost alone.

"I said that these yearly savings would require some capital expenditure but that they would undoubtedly pay a very large net return."

Chief Witness in Poison Case Believed Hidden

Woman Vanishes, and Thomas May Be Secreted in Chinatown.

CORONER HINTS PLOT

Mrs. Cora Davis, the chief witness for the state in its indictment of Joseph A. Thomas on a charge of poisoning his wife prefatory to his marriage to Lillian Wykel Seidomeidge, has disappeared amid a succession of events which leads Coroner Hoffman to suspect concerted action to defeat justice.

One of these is the suspicion that Thomas is being hidden in the Chinese quarter. It is pointed out that his attorney, Thomas Jamieson, is legal adviser for the Hip Sing tong, one of the most powerful of the Chinese secret organizations. Thus a mystic oriental flavor was being lent the plot.

Her Testimony Vital.

Mrs. Davis, who lived at 1301 West Van Buren street, was the only strong witness for the state since Miss Seidomeidge married Thomas and thus was prevented from testifying against him. She is declared to know more of the mysterious death of Mrs. Crystal Thomas than any one outside the family.

Coroner Hoffman, who followed up the investigation of alleged administering of cyanide of potassium to Mrs. Crystal Thomas, sent Detective Sergt. George T. Scrivner to the Davis home yesterday, but she had gone.

Jamieson Decries Suspicions.

Attorney Jamieson took issue with the affidavit of A. Engelmann, the jeweler, who says he gave Thomas two pieces of cyanide with which to kill a dog. Mrs. Sarah Burns, sister of the dead woman, says she has the only dog that ever was about the Thomas premises. Scrivner found the dog to be extremely healthy.

But Jamieson says that wasn't the dog at all. It was a strange cur that Thomas picked up. Besides, he says, Mrs. Crystal Thomas was subject to headaches and had spoken about ending her life.

Jamieson also says he thinks Engelmann has had a lapse of memory regarding the things he spoke of in his affidavit.

Find Thomas Elusive.

Thomas was concealed Friday night, it is said, by friendly members of the teamsters' union, who are said to be ready to furnish bail. Yesterday he changed his hiding place. One report, however, said he had gone to the home of his mother in Michigan. Thomas is said to have drawn about $550 from the bank account that was jointly his own, his late wife's, and his son's.

Coroner Hoffman in speaking of the case said:

"Persons who intend poisoning human beings had better look out. I have the best laboratory in the world. Every case that looks suspicious is going to be analyzed."

MRS. SPREEN WINS SUIT BUT MUST PAY $900 FEE.

Judge Baldwin Gives Decision in Case Involving 500,000 Shares of Mining Stock.

Judge Baldwin yesterday handed down a decision in the suit brought by Mrs. Lissett F. Spreen against Attorney Henry M. Walker to recover 500,000 shares of mining stock which she charges he is fraudulently withholding from her. The court ordered the attorney to return the stock to Mrs. Spreen when she pays him $900 attorney's fees.

"I realize," the court said, "this decision will not be satisfactory to either side, Mrs. Spreen contending the defendant has forfeited all right to attorney's fees through his action in withholding the stock and Attorney Walker contending the fees are not large enough, but I think it is a satisfactory settlement of the case."

Mrs. Spreen charged Attorney Walker, when he learned that she owned a mine in the west, persuaded her to organize it into a company capitalized at $2,500,000, she to receive $1,750,000 worth of stock, $250,000 to be treasury stock, while Attorney Walker was to receive 500,000 shares for selling the treasury stock. The attorney, she said, took his 500,000 shares, but made no effort to sell the treasury stock, and when she sought to recover his stock he refused to give it up.

NICE LITTLE BITING CONTEST IN STREET CAR!

Tip of Sam's Nose Pinched and Part of Mike's Hand Gone—Both Locked Up.

It happened in a crowded street car, was probably caused by an unwelcome smile, was over in a minute—and here are the results:

The tip of Sam Stephana's nose was bitten off.

He was arrested for disorderly conduct.

Stephana lives at 232 West Twenty-fourth street and Urisic at 3209 Princeton avenue. They were standing in the aisle of a crowded Clybourn avenue car. At Wells and West Kinzie streets a woman vacated a seat. Urisic was standing directly in front of the seat, but Stephana elbowed him to one side, slipped into the seat, and then smiled up at Urisic. The latter stooped over, it is charged, and when he straightened up the tip of Stephana's nose was between his teeth. Stephana seized Urisic's left hand and bit off part of the latter's finger.

ILL WOMAN TAKES PLUNGE.

Mrs. Pauline Leler, Just Out of Hospital, Leaps to Death Out of Window.

Mrs. Pauline Leler of 3535 Douglas boulevard committed suicide yesterday by jumping from a window of her third floor flat. Her skull was fractured. Mrs. Leler had been in the Mary Thompson hospital for treatment for nervousness until Friday, when she was taken home. Dr. F. J. Fara was summoned to the house and learned she had jumped from a window. She was dead when he reached the apartment. A sister was nearly hysterical as a result of the tragedy.

MISSOURI G. O. P. TO MEET.

Convention at Excelsior Springs, Mo., Will Nominate Presidential Electors on April 6.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 15.—The Missouri Republican convention to elect four delegates at large to the national convention, to draft a platform, and to nominate presidential electors will be held at Excelsior Springs, Mo., on April 6. This was decided at a meeting of the state committee here today.

THOUGHT OF DEAD COUSIN INDUCED HIS SUICIDE.

Albert Marks, Retired Pawnbroker, Broods Over Mrs. Selma Levy's Death from Burns.

Albert Marks, a retired pawnbroker, shot and killed himself yesterday in his home at 310 East Fifty-third street. A note left by the suicide indicated he had been brooding over the recent death of his cousin, Mrs. Selma Levy.

"I shot myself with my own hand, and I beg forgiveness for what I've done," he wrote. "I shot myself while despondent. May God bless my wife and my children. While brooding over the death of my cousin, Selma Levy. ALBERT MARKS."

Mrs. Jeanette Levy, mother-in-law of Mrs. Selma Levy, who died of burns, fainted beside the coffin when she was taken to view the body. Relatives doubt if she will survive the added shock. The body of Mr. Marks was taken to an undertaking establishment at 4649 Prairie avenue and placed beside that of Mrs. Levy.

KILLS CHILDREN AND SELF WITH POLICE PISTOL

Patrolman Baird Shoots Son and Daughter in Sudden Fit of Insanity.

MYSTERY TO HIS WIDOW.

A triple tragedy which ended the lives of Patrol Sergt. Harry P. Baird of Woodlawn station and two of his children yesterday may deprive his widow of her reason.

Under the constant care of a physician and a nurse, Mrs. Anna Baird sits in the house of death and wrings her hands in a delirium of grief.

"My husband, my babies!" she cries hysterically. "Give them back to me."

"She is a nervous wreck," said Dr. William C. Van Benschoten of 1230 East Sixty-third street. "The shock may drive her insane."

Seized with Madness.

Sergeant Baird in a sudden seizure of madness killed his daughter Caroline, 10 years old, and his son Rodney, 6, with his police revolver and sent a bullet through his own heart.

The tragedy occurred a little after noon. Baird, who was assigned to night duty, arose at 10 o'clock. It was pay day at the station, and he sent Willie, aged 14, his eldest son, to bring home his check.

"I am not feeling well," he telephoned Desk Sergeant Michael Hastings. "Give my check to the boy."

When Willie returned Baird took the check to his wife.

"Here, mother, is my money," he said ten minutes before the tragedy.

Snow Saves a Life.

Then he sat down in his shirt sleeves to lunch in the kitchen. Three other plates were set for the children. Caroline and Rodney came romping in in high spirits. They had been making a snow image in the back yard and their cheeks were rosy from the cold. Willie remained behind to add the completing touch to the snow statue. It saved his life.

"You ought to see our snow man, papa," cried Rodney.

"We stuck one of your old pipes in his mouth," echoed Caroline.

"Children," called Mrs. Baird, who was sewing in the next room, "you mustn't go out in the snow again. You will get your feet wet. Your shoes are worn and I am going to take you downtown this afternoon and get you new ones."

Need No More Shoes.

"You won't ever need to buy them shoes again," shouted the policeman and his wife heard him shove his chair violently back from the table.

"Why not?" she asked in amazement.

The answer was the report of a revolver. The little boy was the first victim. The pistol was placed against his forehead. The powder burned the skin. The little girl ran screaming. A bullet struck her in the back of the neck and ranged upward into the brain. She fell dead across the threshold of the door leading to the dining room.

Then Baird fired a bullet into his own chest. It entered at the right side and came out at the left, piercing the heart and causing instant death.

Widow Goes Into Hysterics.

Mrs. Baird and her niece, Miss Anna Kavanagh, who was dusting in the dining room, ran screaming from the flat and found refuge upstairs in the apartment of Mrs. Baird's sister, Mrs. Alice Concannon.

Mrs. Baird is considered one of the remarkable business women of Chicago. She has been a real estate dealer and builder for ten years. She has built thirty or forty apartment houses on the south side, all of which she has sold. She superintended her building work in person. The fortune she has made has been estimated at $50,000.

Victim of Suggestion?

What caused Sergt. Baird's sudden insanity is a mystery. Capt. John Alcock of Woodlawn, his commanding officer, said Baird had brooded on the tragedy in which Mrs. Christina Mavin of Lyons a week ago killed herself and five children. That affair, Capt. Alcock believes, may have supplied the psychological suggestion for his own mad act.

Sergt. Baird was from the south, and is said to have been a graduate of a southern college. He was a guard during the World's Fair and had been on the police force twenty-three years.

William R. Church, 67 years old, 843 West Sixty-third street, was found dead in a gas filled room in his home last night by Louis Pfeiffer, another occupant of the building. Despondency because of the death of his wife a year ago is believed to have caused Church to commit suicide.

MAID TAKES OWN LIFE.

Gertrude Zobel, 17 Years Old, Makes Mystery of Her Last Act.

Miss Gertrude Zobel, 17 years old, of 8837 Burley avenue, a maid in the home of Sumner C. Britton, 6950 Euclid avenue, of the publishing house of Reilly & Britton, committed suicide early yesterday by inhaling gas. Relatives and acquaintances say they know of no reason for the girl's act. She left a brief note which read:

"Tell mother and sister. South Chicago 6419."

The girl was a daughter of George Zobel, a teamster.

DEFENSE PLANS LAG; SIX WEEKS AND NO ACTION

Congress Formulating Attack on Administration Measure as Crises Arise.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Although it is nearly six weeks since the Sixty-fourth congress assembled, the question of creating an adequate national defense and providing the revenue to defray its cost is still in a state of chaos.

The administration bill providing for the inauguration in the next fiscal year of the Daniels five year navy building program is the subject of hearings before the house naval affairs committee. When it emerges it will be attacked in the house by the big navy advocates, who contend that it proposes a miserable makeshift for the first line of defense of the American nation, with its grave responsibilities arising from the Monroe doctrine, and by the little navy men, who "view with alarm" any strengthening of the existing sea forces.

Dissension Over Army.

The administration army bill is the subject of hearings before the house committee on military affairs. In and out of the committee the house Democrats are torn with dissension over the features of the army program proposed by the president. The continental army feature is unpopular. Chairman Hay of the military affairs committee pronounces the idea a chimera and asserts that the only sane method of building up a citizenry soldiery is to develop the national guard of the several states under federal supervision.

Democratic leaders express doubts that they can muster a majority of the house for the continental army plan.

No move has been made in the direction of legislation to provide revenue to finance the administration program. Chairman Kitchin of the ways and means committee, who is opposed to the army program, opines that it will be time enough to discuss revenue measures when it becomes apparent how much national defense congress is going to authorize and how much it is going to cost.

The apathy of the Democratic majority of congress on the question of national defense is the outstanding feature of the situation.

In an interview obtained by THE TRIBUNE correspondent today, Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, asserted that it is high time the American people and their representatives in congress should take into account the position and responsibilities of the republic and the problem of defense entailed thereby.

Chamberlain's Warning.

"There are in this country," he began, "three classes of people. First, there are the pacifists who speak for peace at any price; peace without honor, if need be. There is one great people at peace—China—and the only others that I know of who are at perpetual peace are the dead. Which do we want—the peace of China or the peace of the dead?

"In the second class are those who believe in preparedness. An emergency exists today such as never existed before. The condition is a critical one, and I believe that we should be ready for it.

"The third great class—and it holds the balance of power—is composed of those who have not given the subject of preparedness very much, if any, attention. These are the people who should be reached. In the final analysis they will have the decision. We should see to it that this class is brought to a realization of the necessities of the hour.

"We ought not to forget in this discussion that America does not occupy the place of isolation she once did. We became a world power when the fleet of Dewey sailed into Manila bay. We are a great factor in the world's affairs.

"The possessions of the United States in the orient are within thirty days of New York. Our territory extends to the West Indies, to the Panama canal, to the Sandwich islands. If we intend to protect these holdings we must have an army and a navy sufficient to guard these outposts and sustain the Monroe doctrine, which for so long we have maintained—on paper—since 1823."

ENGLEWOOD CITIZENS ASK MAYOR TO CLOSE BRISTOL.

Thompson Says Reputable Citizens, Including Ald. De Priest, Asked Him to Restore License.

The Englewood Law and Order league yesterday made a new demand that Mayor Thompson revoke permanently the license of the Bristol café, 6319 South Halsted street. Chief Healey's statement that the café is operated by Ed Weiss of red light district fame, according to John H. Lyle, secretary of the league, is sufficient reason for closing the place.

When the mayor returned to the city during the morning he refreshed his memory concerning the restoration of the license. He said a number of reputable citizens had recommended the restoration, including Ald. Oscar De Priest, alderman from the Second ward. He declined to make public the names of others who "went to the front" for Weiss.

"Tribune" Writer Says Britain Guards Against India Revolt.

BY OSCAR KING DAVIS.

HONGKONG, China, Dec. 7.—There is a decided discrepancy between what the British government says officially in London regarding its confidence in the loyalty and support of its Indian subjects, and the manner in which the British government in Hongkong treats any of those Indian subjects who happen to come within its jurisdiction.

Occasionally some member of the imperial government stands in the house of commons and asserts that everything is lovely in India, and denounces the reports of trouble, ascribing them to German machinations and invention. Then something happens here such as came under my personal observation yesterday evening, when the Japanese steamer Nippon Maru arrived from San Francisco and Japan ports.

Officers Examine Papers.

There were half a dozen British Indians among the passengers on the Nippon. One of them was in the first cabin and the others in the second. When the Nippon approached the entrance to the Hongkong roads it was boarded by two officers of the British navy, who examined the papers of all the passengers.

Every one is supposed to have a passport issued by his government which will establish his identity and his right to travel. All the passengers were gathered in the main saloon of the ship, and these officers looked at their papers.

About a dozen of the American passengers were without passports. They were all told to see the superintendent of police here this morning, and also to see their consul. The papers of the Indians were also examined and the holders told to await further examination.

Second Examination Is Made.

When the naval officers left the ship it proceeded to its anchorage in front of the city. There a second, more searching examination was conducted, this time by members of the Hongkong police. Again all the passengers were gathered in the saloon, and each submitted his papers.

Those who had the proper passports were passed rapidly and without trouble. Those who had no passports but who had a reasonable explanation for the lack were also hurried through, and without much trouble. All of them were told to see the consul the first thing this morning and get proper papers, and two, who for some reason did not happen to suit the keen eyed young man who was conducting the examination, were told to report to the superintendent of police promptly this morning.

There had been much talk among the passengers as to the character of this examination, and the general expectation seemed to be that there would be trouble for anybody who had the least suspicion of German ancestry.

German-American Is Detained.

One man, obviously of German extraction, was selected by most of the passengers as sure to encounter difficulties, but he presented a proper American passport and was not questioned at all.

Almost immediately behind him came a smooth faced young man, who looked as much American as any of the others on the ship. The examining officer scrutinized his passport and then said:

"Where were you born?"

"In Milwaukee, Wis.," was the reply.

"Of what parentage?" asked the officer.

"Of German parentage," answered the passenger.

The officer looked the passport over again and then said: "Report yourself to the superintendent of police the first thing in the morning."

The keen eyed young officer had discovered a German name on the passport, and that was the result.

Indian Told to Wait.

When this police officer took his station in the saloon for this examination the Indian, who was a first class passenger, was waiting to present his papers. He handed in his passports among the first. The officer gave a single glance at it and said:

"You wait a little while."

Then he proceeded with the other passengers. When they were all through he took up the case of the Indian again. The man had presented a proper British passport, bearing his photograph, and there was no question as to the legitimacy of the document.

He said he was an engineer and had been to San Francisco to attend an international congress of engineers held there in connection with the exposition.

It was evident from the way in which the young policeman acted that the examination he was purporting to make had nothing to do with what was finally going to happen to that Indian. That decision had been reached by some one else and in a different place.

Orders from "Higher Ups."

The young policeman was merely going to carry out the orders of some one higher up, and meantime he was "stalling" at the examination.

The young Indian said nothing, simply sat there and watched the policeman. So at length the policeman had to tell him that he would have to go to the police station for further examination. And, of course, that was the verdict with the five in the second cabin.

So those Indians, with their British passports, and the oft repeated assurances in London that the Indians are fervently loyal, all clambered down the ladder with their baggage and into the police launch, and were the first of the Nippon's passengers to get ashore.

Plot Discovered in Nick of Time.

Here in Hongkong I have heard from several reliable sources stories of an outbreak that was to have taken place only a couple of months ago, but was nipped just in time by the police.

The story is that a number of Indians resident here, and all in British employ, or in the regiment of troops stationed in Kowloon, just across the roadstead from this city, entered into a conspiracy to massacre all the whites in the city.

The attack was to begin on a Sunday morning, just as the people were coming out of church, and forty-two men, armed and apparently ready to begin the work of destruction, were actually taken on that Sunday morning as they assembled for their task.

So you see Hongkong does not think as London speaks on the subject of the loyalty of the Indians.

KREUTGEN FOR POSTMASTER DESPITE MANY ATTACKS?

Favored for Local Job by Lewis, Harrison, and Dunne—C. C. Breyer Only One with Clear Slate.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The question of the selection of a Democrat for postmaster at Chicago is becoming muddled.

Friends of Senator Lewis said today the postoffice department has eliminated three of the four candidates—Oscar Mayer, William Schlake, and Ernest Kreutgen—because of various objections.

Charles C. Breyer appears to be the only one of the four candidates presented to Postmaster General Burleson by Col. Lewis who is not the object of attack.

It is known Kreutgen is the candidate really preferred by Senaor Lewis, former Mayor Harrison, and Gov. Dunne, and he is likely to be appointed, unless the opposition of organized labor is deemed insuperable.

WOMAN LEAPS TO DEATH AS FIREMEN ARRIVE.

Mrs. E. L. Fragel, 60 Years Old, Dashes by Men and Ignores Ladder of Safety.

While firemen were raising a ladder to go to her aid, Mrs. E. L. Fragel, 60 years old, broke away from two men who were trying to calm her and leaped to her death from a porch on the second floor of a burning building at 516 Englewood avenue early yesterday. A moment later the men were carried down the ladder to safety.

STRANGLER ADMITS GUILT.

Girl's Alleged Slayer, Wanted in Cleveland, Arrested in New York.

New York, Jan. 15.—Louis Bianchetti, 25 years old, a cook, was arrested here tonight by request of Chief of Police Rowe of Cleveland, on a charge of homicide. He confessed strangling to death Miss Dolores Evans in a Cleveland hotel last Wednesday. Detectives said they found in his room a trunk containing woman's clothing and jewelry.

PICK STOCKHOLM FOR PERMANENT PEACE TRIBUNAL

Ford Delegates Select Swedish Capital, End Labors, and Sail for Home.

BY CHARLES P. STEWART.

[UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

THE HAGUE, Jan. 15.—Stockholm has been chosen as the seat of the permanent peace tribunal established by the Ford peace party. With this action taken the American members of the expedition sailed this afternoon from Rotterdam for New York aboard the steamer Rotterdam. A great crowd assembled on the wharves and cheered as the steamer departed.

The choice of the Swedish capital, however, is subject to Henry Ford's approval. The delegates agreed that since Ford was footing the bills he should be allowed to say where the peace tribunal should sit. Stockholm was favored because of the enthusiastic reception the peace party received there. In Denmark English sympathizers declared this was true because the Swedes are with Germans in the desire for an early peace.

The Scandinavian delegates, who were refused permission to return to their homes via Germany, have made arrangements to make the journey by boat.

Yankees Haven't Accepted.

Several of the Ford lieutenants are remaining in Holland to help start the permanent peace tribunal on its way. No sessions will be held for several weeks.

The Scandinavian countries have not named their members and no word of acceptance has come from William J. Bryan, Miss Jane Addams, or Ford himself, who were elected American members.

The Schwimmer and anti-Schwimmer factions are engaged in a heated fight over the positions on the permanent tribunal. It is considered probable that neither Bryan, Miss Addams nor Ford will accept, and the scramble is over the choice of three of the five alternates elected yesterday to take their places.

Ford Employes to Stay.

Besides the twenty-five members of the permanent peace tribunal—five each from Holland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and the United States—eighteen other Ford employés, including stenographers and advisers, will remain in Holland at Ford's expense. It is estimated that the tribunal which Ford hopes will arrive at a peace program will cost him $10,000 a week.

Dr. Charles F. Aked of San Francisco and Mrs. Joseph Fels of Philadelphia have been added to the list of American delegates on the permanent tribunal.

HOUSE PASSES FERRIS BILL OPENING 700,000,000 ACRES.

Land in California, Wyoming, and Alaska to Benefit Public if Senate Gives Its O. K. to Measure.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—The second of the administration conservation measures, a bill under which more than 700,000,000 acres of public lands in California, Wyoming, and Alaska would be thrown open for lease by private interests, passed the house today without a roll call.

Immediately afterward the 640 acre homestead bill was taken up, with a prospect that it would be passed early next week.

In its report the lands committee declared that the lands opened, which include approximately 450,000,000,000 tons of coal and $90,000,000,000 worth of phosphates and unknown quantities of oil, gas, and mineral fertilizer, should be developed immediately.

GERMANS GUARD ENEMIES' BOOKS LEFT IN LEIPZIG

Writer Denies Reported Loot of Foreigners' Property at Famous Fair.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
[War Correspondent of The Chicago Tribune.]

LEIPZIG, Germany, Dec. 23.—This is the true story of the so-called "loot of the Leipzig book fair."

For sixteen months there have been current in all parts of the world where the German, French, Italian, English, Russian, and Japanese languages are read accounts of the peremptory confiscation of the thousands of books abandoned in Leipzig at the outbreak of the war by librarians and commercial agents who had come from many parts of the world to the book fair in the greatest continental seat of the publishing business.

These accounts are highly discreditable to the German people as a whole and to the citizens of Leipzig in particular.

The accounts are not believed by the agents and firms who are said to have suffered by the confiscation, but the rest of the world believes them.

I am confident that I have obtained the true story of what happened to the books exhibited at the fair by representatives of nations now at war.

Government Did Not Close Fair.

The Leipzig book fair of 1914 (Internationale Ausstellung für Büchergewerbe und Graphik, Leipzig, 1914) was opened on May 18 and closed on Oct. 18, but the pavilions and displays of publishing houses established in countries involved in the war were closed by order not of the German government but by the commissioners and agents from those warring countries upon the declaration of hostilities.

A book fair in Leipzig has been held for many years, but the fair of 1914 was the first international exhibit to be held in the Saxon city as well as the first in which France took part. It opened brilliantly and promised results of high advantage to the enormous publishing trade of the town and to the exhibiters from foreign countries.

The sudden departure of the French, Russian, English, and Japanese agents was a source of regret not only to them but to the community.

No Ill Feeling Displayed.

There was no unfriendly demonstrations on the part of either hosts or guests and many citizens accompanied the various parties to the trains and, as one Leipzig publisher, a member of the great firm of Tauchnitz, said to me this morning: "The best of good feeling prevailed, I can assure you."

But, in the rush and clamor of mobilization and concentration, it was impossible for the agents from countries at war with Germany to remove their exhibits. These exhibits included thousands upon thousands of dollars' worth of treasures in specimens both of printing and binding.

There was also an extensive display of sheet music publications, a fact, probably, which prompted the composer, Saint-Saëns, to enter the "loot" controversy and to declare far and wide that the Germans had "stolen" a great part of the exhibits after the departure of their owners.

Exhibits Not Molested.

The truth is that the municipality and the merchants of Leipzig were at first a good deal at a loss what to do with the abandoned books. Exhibiter after exhibiter had locked up his cases, turned the keys over to the authorities of the fair, and made a run for the train. Only the French sealed their exhibits, and today these exhibits still bear the unbroken French seals, and anybody who wants to take a ten minute walk from the Astoria hotel can see them.

The rest of the departing guests frankly turned their keys over to their hosts and said: "Look after our property for us in this dreadful emergency." The French pavilion had been adorned with $400,000 worth of Gobelins.

The Russians left all their property topsy-turvy, and said, as they put their keys in the hands of Museum Director Dr. Albert Schramm, director of the scientific department of the fair: "Dear doctor, will you be so gracious as to see to the packing of our exhibits?"

Losses Feared in Shipping.

That task was accomplished on behalf of the Russians, and the man who made the catalogue of the Russian publications soon after went into the Russian theater of war to fight the Russians. The more methodical English packed their own things and then turned their keys over to the Leipzigers.

But all this mutual confidence and good will did not dispose of the problem of what to do with the books. At first there was a plan to send them after the owners, but the certainty of delays and the fear of losses either on land or sea led to the decision that the plan was impracticable.

The German emperor finally cut the knot by directing that all the abandoned books should be stored in Leipzig until after the war and should then be forwarded to their owners.

are promptly relieved by applying Absorbine, Jr., the antiseptic liniment. It is soothing, healing, and invigorating—puts vim and energy into jaded muscles. One of the many enthusiastic users writes: "I received the trial bottle of Absorbine, Jr., all right and at that time was unable to walk without a cane, just around the house. I used it freely and inside of two days could walk without limping, something I had not done in two months. I went to the drug store and procured a $1.00 bottle and today can walk as good as ever. I'll never be without it. I am recommending it to everyone I can, for I am a living witness."

WEEKLY REVIEW of the WAR by CAPT. HENRY J. REILLY

GENERAL.

Throughout the week the opposition in parliament to the bill providing conscription has grown less and less, with the result that it undoubtedly will soon become law. Arthur Henderson, president of the board of education, made a striking speech in which he declared he had the authority of Earl Kitchener that Great Britain required at once not only young married men enrolled under the Derby scheme, not only the married men who are waiting to be called, but also the whole available part of the 650,000 men with whom this measure deals.

FRENCH FRONT.

The Germans made heavy local attacks in the Champagne region, which at first were successful. The French later reported they had recaptured the ground lost; this the Germans deny. The Germans later reported fairly heavy local attacks in the same region by the French had been repulsed. On the rest of this front there has been nothing of importance.

RUSSIAN FRONT.

Along the northern and central parts of this front there have been no actions of importance. In the south the Russians have continued their heavy attacks, but apparently have been unable to make any appreciable gains. Czernovitz, last week reported on the verge of being occupied by the Russians, is still in Austro-Hungarian hands. The indications are that the Russian attacks are dying down.

ITALIAN FRONT.

There have been no actions of any importance on this front the last week.

THE BALKANS.

The Austrian steady advance in Montenegro is continuing, with the loss of many prisoners and a considerable number of guns on the part of the Montenegrins. The Austro-Hungarians have captured Mount Lovcen, thus relieving Cattaro of any danger of attack and permitting its free use as a naval base. They also have occupied Cettinje. Montenegro is reported to be suing for peace.

No definite news has been received of the Bulgarian advance into Albania. Last week the Bulgarians were reported within forty miles of the Adriatic in some districts. During the week there was a report that Bulgarian and Greek troops had a small fight on the Greek border. No further news has come of this incident. It is reported the central powers and Bulgaria have started to attack the entente position in front of Saloniki. The allies have occupied Corfu, thus adding one more to the list of Greek islands occupied in violation of Greek neutrality.

THE DARDANELLES.

The British and French have abandoned their positions on the end of the Gallipoli peninsula, thus completely abandoning their attack on the Dardanelles. The British report they had practically no casualties and left behind only wornout guns. The Turks report the allies suffered considerable loss and that they sank one transport loaded with troops. This marks the end of the campaign begun with naval attacks in February, 1915, and generally believed at that time to be the beginning of the rapid downfall of the Turkish empire.

THE CAUCASUS.

Local Turkish attacks at several points have been repulsed. There has been no action of general importance.

MESOPOTAMIA.

The main British force is reported to have retreated to the south from Kut-el-Amara, leaving behind 10,000 troops which are cut off and said to be in imminent danger of capture. The dispatches are confusing. Some say the British force at Sheik Said has lost heavily in an attempt to break through the Turks. Whether this is the force reported to be retreating from Kut-el-Amara or a relief force bound from the south is not known. The British report that a relief force from the south had successfully driven back Turkish troops in front of them.

SUMMARY.

The admission made in the British parliament during the discussion of the conscription bill of their immediate need for men is interesting because it confirms their shortness of troops—apparent for some time in their military operations—and furnishes one more sample of the fact that the voluntary system will not furnish enough men to fight a war with a first class power.

The abandonment of the Dardanelles campaign is important because it marks the failure of the attempt to open up the route to the Black sea, thus releasing Russian grain and enabling Russia to receive many badly needed war supplies.

It marks the failure of an attempt, which, if successful, would have cut off Germany's overland route to Egypt and India in the same way that France's route across Africa was permanently split when Marchand was compelled to abandon Fashoda and England pushed the Egyptian territory far enough to the south to insure its connection with British East Africa.

If successful, it would have neutralized, to a large extent, the success of the central powers' success in Serbia and undoubtedly would have led to Bulgaria remaining neutral or entering the war on the side of the entente allies. Such entry on the part of Bulgaria would probably have insured a similar entry by Roumania.

The opening up of the route to central Asia has largely neutralized the British sea blockade, because of the supplies of all kinds which Germany can draw upon from this region. The opening of the Dardanelles, with the capture of Constantinople, would have prevented any such neutralization.

Had the allies done nothing more than to hang on to their position on the Gallipoli peninsula they would have compelled the presence of a large Turkish force now free to operate elsewhere.

JUDGE ASSAILS LAWYER ADJUDGED IN CONTEMPT.

Attorney John C. Patterson Draws Severe Censure for Filing Bill Criticizing Courts.

Attorney John C. Patterson, one of the three owners of the Stewart building at State and Washington streets, and who has been a contestant in litigation over the property that has occupied the attention of the courts for several years, was yesterday found guilty of contempt of court for filing a bill last June in behalf of himself against the Northern Trust company, trustee of the property, and others by Judge Denis E. Sullivan in the Superior court. The bill, according to Judge Sullivan, was in violation of an injunction issued in 1912 restraining Patterson from commencing further suits against the Northern Trust company.

Judge Sullivan also dismissed and ordered stricken from the files the bill filed by Mr. Patterson last June, holding it "scandalous and impertinent."

In commenting upon the filing of this bill Judge Sullivan said:

"I am frank to say that I do not know what to ascribe it to, whether stupidity or a misconception of legal rights. It is hard for me to understand how a man of Mr. Patterson's apparent ability and affability should so forget himself."

AUSTIN D. MIXSELL DIES.

Vice President of Bethlehem Steel Company Succumbs to Acute Peritonitis Following Operation.

DYES SHORT; EASTER HATS OF 1916 TO BE UNCOLORED?

So Witnesses Declare at Washington, Who Add Men's Suits Will Go Higher Unless Aid Is Had.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—Women will wear uncolored Easter hats and men's suits will cost from $2 to $5 more unless the dye situation is quickly relieved, witnesses today told the ways and means committee.

Men's suits require 200,000 yards of cloth for spring and summer, they said, and present prospects are for a 15 per cent underproduction because of dye shortage.

Prof. Herty of the American Chemical society told of an alleged threat made by an English maker of dyes on the Benzol Products company. The Englishman agreed that if the American firm quit manufacturing European makers would sell analine oil to them at a price making present contracts profitable. Otherwise European dyemakers were determined that the American enterprise should be "nipped in the bud" by selling European products below cost.

SUES TO SHUT OFF PAY TO CATHOLIC SCHOOL.

William H. Dunn Says County Cannot Give Money to Girls' Industrial Institution of Church.

A petition seeking a writ of injunction to restrain Robert M. Sweitzer, county clerk, and Henry Stuckart, county treasurer, from paying $4,151 to the Chicago industrial school for girls on the ground that the payment of money to a school or institution under control of any church is in violation of the statutes was filed yesterday by William H. Dunn of Brookfield.

Mr. Dunn charges the school is maintained as an instrument of the Roman Catholic church; that its main purpose is to effectuate the religious objects and doctrines of said church; that the effect of the institution is to mould and teach the inmates to become members of said church.

OBITUARY.

MRS. ANNA T. SCHREUDER, 47 years old, 4401 Prairie avenue, high chief ranger of Companion High court of the Independent Order of Foresters of Illinois, died at Garfield Park hospital yesterday. Mrs. Schreuder was born in Denmark and came to the United States when she was 3 years old. She had been associated with the Foresters for eighteen years. At her funeral, which will be held from the late residence tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, the active pallbearers will be members of the subordinate courts' high standing committee. They are Dr. G. H. Schaubel, C. E. Hechinger, W. H. Slatter, W. H. Amerson, A. J. Parker, D. B. Carmichael, and P. G. Drauztburg. Mrs. Schreuder is survived by her husband, Dr. T. H. Schreuder, and two sons, Peter and Arthur.

WILLIAM B. SHERRARD—The body of William B. Sherrard, who died in Long Beach, Cal., Jan. 4, was brought to Chicago and funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Rogerson's undertaking rooms, 1502 West Madison street. Mr. Sherrard was a national figure in charitable works, especially pertaining to children. It was at his suggestion that President Roosevelt called a national conference of children's welfare workers. In 1868 Mr. Sherrard organized the Newsboys and Bootblacks' Home association of Chicago and was the first superintendent of the home formerly located in Quincy street. He had lived in Long Beach for the last seven years.

HENRY A. TAYLOR, 70 years old, of Glencoe is dead at the home of his sister, Mrs. Eliza Gormley. Mr. Taylor was born in the Le Pere house, then known as the half way house, where the stage coach running between Chicago and Waukegan stopped to change horses. He was a son of Anson A. Taylor, who during the Indian war of 1833 was a dispatch bearer. Mr. Taylor was employed by the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company for nearly a half-century. He is survived by three sisters, Monica and Maria Taylor and Mrs. Eliza Gormley, and one brother, Louis R. Taylor of South Dakota.

THE REV. JOSEPH FRANCIS McAULIFFE—The body of the Rev. Joseph Francis McAuliffe, vice president of De Paul university, who died in Los Angeles, Cal., last Monday reached Chicago last night. He had gone there in the hope of recovering his health. He was born in Danville, Ill., on June 2, 1882. He completed his scholastic work in Rome, where he received the doctorate of theology and philosophy. After a most successful career as professor of theology and philosophy in St. Louis and in Los Angeles, he was transferred to De Paul university, Chicago. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock in St. Vincent's church.

JOHN W. C. HASKELL, a resident of Chicago for fifty-five years, died yesterday at his residence, 7727 North Marshfield avenue. He was 72 years old. Mr. Haskell was born in Massachusetts in 1844, came to Chicago in 1859, and in 1865 founded the firm of Haskell Brothers, trunk manufacturers. He retired from active business ten years ago. The widow, two sons, and a daughter, Mrs. J. C. Curtiss of London, England, survive.

CHARLES E. HAY, a brother of the late John Hay, secretary of state under President McKinley, died at St. Louis, Mo., yesterday, following an operation. He was an officer in the civil war and a member of the Loyal Legion of the United States. He was of one of the most prominent families in Illinois and was closely allied with banking interest. He was 75 years old.

THE REV. HORACE G. COLPITTS, principal and financial secretary of Cedar Valley Seminary Baptist institution at Osage, Ia., is dead of heart disease at Swaledale, Ia. The body has been shipped to Osage and the funeral will be held there Monday. The Rev. Colpitts only daughter will graduate from the University of Chicago next summer.

Protect Our Good Name
GOODYEAR

Visitors to the Goodyear factories are always impressed with a framed sign which confronts them at every turn.

In every room in every Goodyear building they encounter the same message: Protect our good name.

It hangs on the walls of all the Goodyear branches throughout the country, and is being adopted by tire dealers everywhere as an expression of the spirit in which their business is conducted.

We believe that the public will be interested in the analysis of this simple but striking sentiment which is published herewith.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio

President

STRIPPED to the waist, his huge torso streaming with sweat, a workman swings the heavy iron core to an iron table, and wrenches off a tire which has just come steaming from the heater.

His eye falls on the legend over his head, and he smiles.

Our good name is also his good name.

The two are intertwined.

He will protect the one while he subserves the other.

His thoughts are—as they should be—chiefly of himself, of his little home, and of his family.

Their good name, his good name, our good name—his good work will stand guard over them all.

Two thousand miles away in Seattle, we will say—the same thought in the same simple words.

An irritating moment has arrived—the temptation to speak sharply to a customer, to fling a slur at unworthy competition.

The salesman, or the manager, or whosoever it may be, looks up, and the quiet admonition meets his eye.

Protect our good name.

In a twinkling it smoothes the wrinkles out of his point of view.

He is himself again—a man with a responsibility which he could not escape if he would; and would not, if he could.

Back two thousand miles again to the factories—this time to the experimental room.

An alluring chance to save—to make more profit by skimping, by substitution. No one will ever know. But—the silent monitor repeats its impressive admonition.

Protect our good name.

What chance to compromise with conscience in the presence of that vigilant guardian?

Thousands of men striving to keep a name clean.

And keeping their own clean in the process.

We Americans, it is said, make a god out of business.

Let the slur stand.

Whether it be true or not it is true that business is our very life.

Shall it be a reproach to us that we try to make business as good as it can be made?

Think of this business, please, in the light of its great animating thought:

Protect our good name.

We are thinking of you, always, when we say it—you American millions, and you millions in the old world.

We think of you judging us—by what we are, by what we do, by what we make.

We think of tens of thousands of homes in which our name can be made to stand for that which is worthy and worth while.

We must not lose your good will—we must not tarnish our good name.

You can call that anything you like.

You can call it business, or sentiment, or idealism, or nonsense.

It may be all of these.

It may even be that which our national critics call making a god of business.

But at least it gives to us a motive that is bigger and broader and deeper than money.

It makes thousands of men happier in their work and more faithful to it.

It has made of this business a democracy of united thought—a democracy of common endeavor—a democracy of purpose and principle.

And here is the oddest thing of all:—

The more we live up to this "impractical" ideal, the greater the business grows.

The more we labor for the future, the more we profit in the present.

The more we strive for character, the greater the reward in money.

The more we put into our product, the more we take out in sales.

Perhaps, after all, there is more than one sense in which it is good to make a god out of business.

We think so.

And we think you think so.

FEMINISM IN EUROPE.

To a great many persons feminism is but another indication of the natural perversity of women, another example of the deplorable spirit of Eve in accepting an apple of the serpent.

As a matter of fact feminism, which is best exemplified in the northern continental countries and particularly in Germany, is the answer of the women to conditions under which modern industry placed them. The new ethics, preached so zealously in Germany and Scandinavia, is not an attempt on the part of women to upset the world but the result of the collision of their natural function of motherhood with the necessity of centralized industrial labor.

When women worked under the old family system they made the clothing for Germany, contributed their services to agriculture, and reared the children. The men protected them by fighting. But when the spinning jenny centralized the weaving industries their traditional occupation left the farm and went to the city. The men and a good many of the women followed it.

But feminism did not really begin to take shape until after Bismarck's policy made Germany an industrial nation. It had been previously agrarian, supporting its entire population on the land as late as 1870. For the first time the women were paid for the labor. They were of course discriminated against because they had no means of enforcing high wages. Class consciousness began at that time.

The problem of superfluous women which had been acute in the middle ages under the guild system, which excluded women from most occupations, became acute again. There was nothing profitable to do at home and children did not become an asset until they had nearly reached maturity. Men married later in life. It was a question of being supported by fathers because wives were no longer distinct assets.

German women answered that by going into industry. Only one-tenth of the unmarried German women over 16 remain at home. Many married women also are compelled to be in industry because the men cannot bear the burden of an unproductive household. There are of course widows with children to support. These women as well as the unmarried workers are championed by the feminists. Conventions have hampered them from the beginning.

What hampers them chiefly are the marriage relations, according to the feminist way of thinking. When a woman marries she becomes, the feminist asserts, almost without rights. She has little authority over her children, almost none over her property. With all women the right to bear children is determined exclusively by the man. If the unmarried woman has not received social consent, she and the child are outlawed. The feminist points to the large number of illegitimate children as a proof that something is wrong with marriage. Women, they argue, are helpless at childbirth, and not they, but their husbands, have the right to decide about children. Feminism believes that all other rights of women are illusory until women cease to have children accidentally and when they do not wish them. Economic independence is not possible under the present marriage customs.

This appendage of the marriage question to that of feminism may not be precisely logical. It seems rather an outgrowth than a logical sequence of the movement. All feminists do not subscribe completely to it.

THE BAD TASTE OF GOOD TASTE.

The attitude of the Philistine is superficially contemptuous but really only defensive. To Brahmic offensiveness he responds with greater offensiveness. He views what he regards, and usually quite properly, superciliousness in what he calls a highbrow and he glorifies himself as a lowbrow.

Pretensions to good taste have made themselves so arrogant that they merely stir the multitudes to rage and to cry "If this be culture give us overalls." Glorification of bad taste is the consequence of what the Philistine sees and regards as highbrow stuff. It insults him. It dismisses him as a pariah. It ridicules his judgment. It sneers at his likings. It closes the door in his face. What he regards somewhat tenderly he is told to take away. If he confesses a fondness for anything in music or books or painting there is a request for the smelling salts.

It is not in the freeborn American to accept himself as a mean person whose ideas must be taken to the cleaners. He likes himself too much. When he finds that he is regarded as a rustic too freshly come from the barnyard to be tolerated where people have fine perceptions he rebels.

There is a habit of making virtue odious in this fashion. It is a habit also with what is accepted as good taste. The worst enemies of culture are the professors of it. They make it so malignant that the people who might timidly or earnestly try to correct their judgment are driven into a defiance which entrenches them where they stand.

There are rare souls whose sense of beauty is so true that it is almost effaced from demonstration. Observation of their enjoyment is a spur to the observer. It is human nature not to like limitations. It is human nature to desire a wide scope of emotion. Persons not goaded by a feeling that their restrictions have in them some element of hopeless mediocrity will naturally seek to acquire what they discover they lack.

To defeat this impulse is the seeming disposition of persons professing culture. Their vanity feeds upon the distinction which they can establish between themselves and the majority. The moment the caste system is established in good taste, the pariah glorifies his caste.

A GOVERNMENT MONOPOLY IN MUNITIONS?

The Peoria Journal is still unconvinced of the expediency of permitting any one but the government to manufacture munitions of war. Its arguments run from the moralistic to the economical; its emotions from a fear of Kruppism to fear of being exploited by private greed.

A government monopoly of munition manufacture has certain apparent attractions. There would be, it is assumed, no war scares for the purpose of selling wares and no fomenting of trouble for private gain. The Journal is able to show that the government has paid in the past more than liberally for what it has bought from private corporations. The armor plate trust is a notorious example of organized holdup of the United States treasury. Thus far the Journal is on firm ground.

But it goes further. It does not say that something should be done to prevent private companies mulcting the government. It says that because they have done so in the past, they are sure to do so in the future; it also says that it is cheaper to maintain vast munitions works at public expense than to run the risk of paying a premium for munitions in time of national distress.

But it goes further. It does not advocate a scheme for preventing exploitation of the public need by supervising industry. It would abolish this private industry altogether and set the government up in the manufacturing business.

Extensive plants, expensive tools, on a scale vast enough to meet a public emergency might not be too great a price to pay for security against dearth of shells and soldiers' blankets. But it would bring only a false security.

We would have on hand an immense plant for which there is no use. That plant might be good for five years. It would then be obsolescent. The life of a good lathe is about fifteen years when it is in constant use. Manufacturers figure a depreciation of about 7 per cent a year on machines of this sort. But they have discovered that few lathes are useful beyond five or six years. They are then obsolete.

Many manufacturers, THE TRIBUNE has discovered upon inquiry, yield to the false economy of using old machines. The machinery, not worn out, holds them in its clutches and ruins them. Their plants are old fashioned.

The government would find the temptation even stronger. An enormous plant with new but antiquated machinery would be almost inevitable. For where there is no prospect of gain there is no urge to improvement.

The Journal fails to see, also, one of the chief factors this war has taught. The war in Europe is not being fought by professional armies, but by entire nations. This means the man and the woman at the lathe, the baker at his bread board, the chemist in his shop. The nation which has been conspicuously successful in this war is the one which could divert its industries from the paths of peace to the paths of war. This nation prepared all of its industries against such a crisis as it has since undergone. It did not buy cotton mills and woolen mills for the manufacture of uniforms or set up bakeries to be used at some time to make bread for the soldiers. It encouraged such industries as could be effectively diverted to national needs. It imposed such conditions upon them that they could not exploit the nation.

It will probably be wise for the government to manufacture a part of its own materials of war.

The ability to manufacture armor plate would have provided competition to the armor plate trust. But to forbid the manufacture of a certain list of commodities by private corporations would be to kill an industry which we shall need if we ever have to fight as a nation against another nation.

Editorial of the Day.

FRIENDLESS UNITED STATES.

[From the New York Sun.]

It behooves the people of the United States to realize that there is no nation in the world actually well disposed toward us at present. Belgium and Serbia may be grateful to us for our charitable assistance, but the dominant powers of Europe and the Orient look upon us with jealousy, distrust, and half-concealed antagonism. The soft, gentle phrases of diplomacy are words used by nations to conceal their thoughts. If dark times are ahead of us, if fate ordains that the United States must defend herself, as the board of strategy seems to intimate, from powers combined in the future to our undoing, it seems at this moment as if we should be obliged to fight alone and unaided. How the most extreme pacifist can fail to perceive the necessity for immediate and complete preparedness upon the part of the United States passes comprehension. Let him consider the fact that this is today the richest country in the world and, from a military standpoint, one of the weakest, and that we cannot rely for assistance at a crisis upon any one of our so-called historic friends among the nations. Then he will perceive, perhaps, through a sudden flash of common sense, that in preaching national disarmament he is a pernicious visionary, imperiling the existence of the one country on earth that claims his allegiance.

JACKING UP AMBASSADORS.

[From the Minneapolis Tribune.]

How pleasant it will be for the ambassador at the court of St. James, or the one at Berlin, or at Petrograd, or any other old place, to have an unofficial agent, a personal representative of the president, call on him and jack him up—tell him to attend strictly to his own diplomatic field and not try to butt in on other diplomatic representatives, to get busy and clean up his correspondence, or hurry up some report that the state department at home is anxious to hear about! But that is declared in inspired sources to be the errand on which Col. House is going to Europe. What man fit to be an ambassador, the personal representative of the president, would consent to be inspected and prodded and drilled by a special agent of unknown powers and unofficial standing? This is a new way of running the diplomatic service and implies a lack of confidence in the selections for posts of the first rank, which this practice is calculated to communicate to the public.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright, 1916, by the Brentwood Company.]

RS. HENRY CECIL BEAUMONT, who has just succumbed to heart disease at the Metropole hotel at Brighton, in England, due to the fatigue resulting from constant attendance upon her badly wounded husband, Capt. Henry Cecil Beaumont of the Scots Greys, was an American and the daughter of the late George A. Fellows of New York.

She made the acquaintance of the captain when he was on a visit to this country more than twenty years ago, and married him at St. James' church, Piccadilly, in London, in 1894. Afterward he left the army, but returned to his old regiment on the outbreak of the present war.

The captain is a younger brother of the late Sir George Beaumont and an uncle and one of the heirs of the present holder of the ancient family baronetcy. He represents the only remaining branch of the ancient house of De Brienne and De Beaumont.

The baronetcy of Beaumont was created by Charles II. in the year of his restoration in favor of Sir Thomas Beaumont of Stoughton grange, Leicestershire, descended from a younger son of the fourth Lord Beaumont.

It was Henri de Brienne, Vicomte de Beaumont, of the French province of Maine, and grandson of John de Brienne, one of the last of the crusader kings of Jerusalem, who may be said to have founded the English branch of this historic French house.

He accompanied Edward I. to the Holy Land, afterward served under him during the wars with Scotland, was appointed by him lord high constable of England, king of the Isle of Man, and justiciary of Scotland, being summoned to parliament as Lord Beaumont, a baron by writ, in 1309.

Don Carlo Brancaccio, Duke of Lustri, who has just passed away at Rome, had been an invalid for several years past, so much so that it was his younger brother, Don Marc Antonio, who was regarded as heir to the family honors and estates and who as such bears the titles of Prince Roviano and of Duke of Brancaccio.

Like his elder brother, the late Don Carlo, he is half American, his mother having been Miss Elizabeth Hickson Field, daughter of Hickson Field of New York. She was in her younger days a beauty, and was one of the two American born ladies in waiting of Queen Marguerite, who was very fond of her.

She died in 1909, and two years later her husband, Salvatore, Prince of Brancaccio, came to America and spent six months in this country with his wife's relatives, the Fields and the Parsons. In fact, he became quite a familiar figure in New York, where his striking resemblance to the late King Edward often attracted attention on Fifth avenue.

The ancient Neapolitan family, the founder of which is said to have been a certain Burrhus Brancaccius, who lived 900 years ago, their dual titles of Castelnuovo di Lustri and of Pontelandolio dating from the beginning of the seventeenth century and their princely title of Roviano and of Triggiano from the commencement of the eighteenth century.

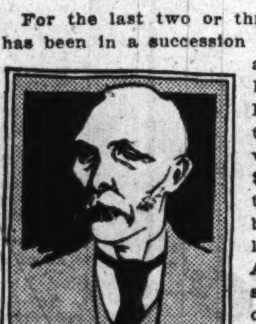
The only daughter of the old Prince of Brancaccio is Dona Maria, wife of Don Francesco Massimo, Prince of Arsoli, with whom she spent an entire season in New York and Washington a few years ago in order to make the acquaintance of her American mother's relatives.

Her jewels on that occasion attracted a considerable amount of attention. For they were not only magnificent but also of a historical character, having been presented to her by her mother-in-law, Princess Massimo, daughter of the royal Duchesse de Berry by her second husband, the Marquis Lucchesi-Palli, and had at one time belonged to Queen Marie Antoinette of France.

Lord Edward Fitzgerald, whose affairs are again engaging the attention of the Bankruptcy court in London, seems to be as wholly reckless and irresponsible as his fellow bankrupt, the Duke of Manchester, in monetary matters. For the proceedings show that among his transactions with London usurers was one where he was granted a loan of $1,700 in cash on the condition that he bought a picture of the money lender priced at $3,250, the shylock taking a promissory note for $5,000, with interest at 30 per cent.

The picture, represented as worth $4,000, was sold at public auction for less than $100. There were a number of other transactions of the same kind, designed by the money lenders in order to save themselves from accusations of altogether extortionate usury in the eyes of the law.

Lord Edward is the younger of the two brothers of the Duke of Leinster, and inasmuch as the latter is a complete and hopeless invalid and Lord Desmond Fitzgerald, badly wounded at the front in France as a captain of the Irish guards, is still a bachelor, there is some chance of Lord Edward eventually succeeding to the dukedom and to the property pertaining thereto.



For the last two or three years, however, he has been in a succession of financial difficulties, and when he first made his appearance in the Bankruptcy court, a little over two years ago, with liabilities of about $50,000, it was shown that he had few assets beyond some 1,100 town lots of land in northern Alberta, Canada, representing an investment of $15,000.

Lord Edward, who is about 25 and good looking, held a lieutenancy in the Irish guards until 1913, when he was compelled by the regulations established by Edward VII. to resign his commission owing to his marriage to a musical comedy actress of the name of May Etheridge of the Shaftesbury theater in London and previously one of the Gaiety girls. Should May Etheridge eventually become Duchess of Leinster and, as such, premier peeress of Erin, as appears now probable, she will be the only actress to become a British duchess in the annals of history, with the one exception of Harriet Mellon, who, after losing her first husband, Thomas Coutts, the banker, became the wife of the ninth Duke of St. Albans.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

Dr. Evans' advice on "How to Keep Well" appears daily on the editorial page of "The Daily Tribune."

PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND EPIDEMICS.

THE newspapers from time to time announce that some small town has closed its schools as a means of controling an epidemic, in spite of repeated advice coming from a great many sources. When the schools are closed in order to control an epidemic it means that the local health officer is not well informed or else that the school board has lost its head and refused to be guided by advice.

When an epidemic prevails in a town, closing the schools wastes money and aids in the spread of the disease. It wastes money, since the salaries of the teachers go on, and but little of the expense of maintaining the schools is in abeyance. By finding a little money for one or more nurses and an inspector the schoolrooms can be kept fairly well filled with pupils, while closing them aids in the spread of disease, since the possibility of a competent inspection at the school house is done away with. The erstwhile students continue to meet on the streets. The possibility that cases will be hidden is greatly increased.

I am sure that in every community there are many who have heard that it is not now the rule in well governed communities to close the school to control epidemics. Perhaps some of these have not protested because they thought possibly the particular disease called for an exception to the rule. Therefore, let us take up the diseases separately.

SMALLPOX.

If a case of smallpox is found among the pupils of a school the school must not be closed. The case must be taken out of school and quarantined in a hospital, or at home if there is no hospital. The school inspector must see every child that has been exposed every day for two weeks after exposure. If any child has fever it should be isolated and held under suspicion. In smallpox there are four days of fever before the eruption appears. Children absent from school should be sought for by the inspectors.

All children not protected by vaccination must be vaccinated at once. As the vaccination incubation period is five days and the smallpox incubation period is twelve to fourteen days, prompt vaccination with fresh vaccine may stop the epidemic in the school before a single secondary case develops. This is the policy of action. To dismiss the school and trust to luck—a policy of inaction—invites disaster.

TYPHOID FEVER.

It is rare that day schools are responsible for the spread of typhoid. The same cannot be said of boarding schools. A day school may spread typhoid through an infected water supply. If milk is a part of a school lunch it may be responsible for typhoid.

If it appears that typhoid is spreading from a school, the school should not be closed. It is much too easy to make the school safe. The water can be made safe by heating it or by treating it with bleaching powder or with chlorine. The expense is nominal and sterilization is easily done. The milk can be made safe by pasteurizing.

The water and milk having been made safe at once, the health officer can proceed more leisurely to find out the source of infection and to remove it. School boards rarely close day schools on account of typhoid.

DIPHTHERIA.

Schools should not be closed for diphtheria. To do so spreads the disease. Usually all that it is necessary to do is to remove the infected child to a place of quarantine and to daily inspect the children in the schools no only for typical diphtheria but also for sore throats. One nurse working with very little medical supervision is all that this plan calls for. Should a number of cases be found among school children it is still bad judgment to close the schools. In fact, in that event to close the schools is to lose a great resource in fighting the disease.

In the event of a bad diphtheria situation in addition to the policies given above the following should be carried out: A culture of every throat in the school is to be made. All children with diphtheria bacilli in their throats, whether they are sick or well, are to be excluded from school temporarily. Efforts to clear the bacilli from the throats of carriers with kaolin or some other remedy are to be made. The excluded children are to be held in a moderately close quarantine.

This is as far as the authorities need go in most epidemics. A physician working throughout the school hours can culture several hundred throats in a day. One nurse can do all the school and home inspection for an ordinary sized school. State laboratories are available for all schools.

If conditions are very bad still other activities must be added to the above. All children left in the school by the throat examinations and the culture tests are to be given the Schick test. The children who do not give the Schick test are safe. They cannot have diphtheria and probably will never be in any danger of contracting the disease. Those that give the Schick test are in danger. If they have been recently exposed to the disease they are to be immunized with antitoxin. If they are not in danger of an immediate attack of the disease they are to be immunized by injections of antitoxin mixed with one billion diphtheria bacilli.

Mixtures for immunizing according to the modified Von Behring method can be had from some boards of health or can be purchased from the commercial vaccine laboratories. Controlling an epidemic of diphtheria in a school now presents no great difficulty. Nothing is gained in closing the schools, whether the epidemic be mild or severe.

MEASLES.

Some well informed health officers believe in closing the schools as a means of controlling an epidemic of measles. A few years ago the standard English practice was to close the schools if the epidemic was just starting and the cases were coming in crops. If the effort at control was inaugurated at a later stage in the epidemic closing the schools did no good. The trend of opinion is away from closing the schools for measles, and I doubt if the procedure now has the approval of an authority anywhere.

Dr. Gray of the Palo Alto health department reports an epidemic in which the folly of closing the schools under the most promising circumstances did more harm than good. On May 3 a 9 year old boy was exposed to measles in San Francisco. On May 18 he broke out with measles. He exposed his schoolmates thoroughly, as he had been in the schoolroom with "a bad cold" since the 15th. On May 20 the school was closed and the children were collected in groups to practice some exhibition stunts for Decoration day. As Decoration day and Sunday came in succession, the children did not come together again until Monday, June 1. By that date there were fifteen cases of measles in Palo Alto.

In order to guard against the next crop of cases it was decided that when the children came to school on Monday, June 8, they would be sent home with a printed notice calling attention to the danger of measles, the symptoms of the early stage of the disease, methods of preventing it, asking the parents to keep the children at home, and announcing that school would be closed on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Dr. Gray says: "Instead of doing any good, this closure of the schools served in turn to spread the disease, as the parents in most cases let the children run wild, mingling even more than if the school had been in session. The children at once started to attend the motion picture houses, which were then immediately closed to them. It (closing the schools) probably did more harm than good."

Some of the conclusions of Dr. Gray are of great value. He found the average time from exposure to the first symptom was eleven days—the minimum, seven days; the maximum, fourteen. The average time from exposure to the appearance of the eruption was thirteen and one-half days; the minimum, eleven days; the maximum nineteen days. This means that in the average case the eruption came two and a half days after the onset of the symptoms. The disease is most contagious on the first day of symptoms. This means that the disease may be contagious for five days before the eruption appears. The case is contagious for five days and perhaps at times for seven days after the eruption appears. This means that measles should be quarantined about nine days, on the average—seven days as a minimum and twelve days as a maximum.

The proper procedures for the control of an epidemic of measles in a school are as follows: Have every child in school examined every morning for fever, spots in the throat and on the inside of the cheeks (Koplik's spots), and for evidence of colds. This examination can be done by physicians, nurses, or teachers. Dr. Gray says that it is easy to teach teachers to take temperatures, diagnose measles spots in the mouth, and detect colds. In a word, to diagnose measles the very first day the disease is contagious and several days before the eruption appears.

All cases of oncoming measles are to be at once excluded from school and quarantined. Inspectors will see that the quarantine is kept. The cases are to be kept in quarantine for seven days after the eruption appears (or for nine or ten days from the first symptom), after which return to school is permitted. Exposed children who have not previously had measles are to be left in school for seven days, but after that they should be kept at home under observation for seven or ten days.

SCARLET FEVER.

It does not pay to close the schools for scarlet fever. An epidemic can be better controlled if the children are brought together in the schoolroom for observation each morning. In this disease, as in measles, the keynote of success is to get hold of the cases in the early stage before the eruption appears.

In time of epidemic every child must be individually observed each morning. The children with colds, fevers, aches, and nausea must be sent home and a nurse or physician or both must follow to make the final diagnosis, establish the quarantine, and to see that the restrictions are carried out.

MUMPS.

There is seldom any temptation to close a day school on account of an epidemic of mumps. In the main for the guidance of those in charge of boarding schools reference is made to the Hess method of vaccinating against mumps.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Occasionally a board is tempted to close the schools on account of whooping cough. Generally they resist the pressure and show their wisdom in doing so.

Whooping cough is most contagious with the onset of the disease. Its contagiousness declines from the beginning and there are those who hold that after whooping is established the disease is not contagious.

Some health departments require that quarantine in the house should start with the onset of the cold and cough, that the house quarantine continue so long as the fever stage continues; that when the child is free from fever and wants to get out be be tagged with a large whooping cough tag and allowed to go out of the house—in fact, given a good deal of liberty.

When whooping cough appears in a school the school must be kept open. All coughers, all children with colds, must be temporarily excluded. The teachers, nurses, and physicians must be on the alert for the ordinary colds, which constitute the first and most contagious stage of whooping cough. After a child has been out of school a proper length of time he can be returned to school, even though he is still whooping and vomiting. The hang-on, tailing-out whoops and spells of nausea do not indicate that the case is still contagious.

WEAK KIDNEY.

REPLY.

I do not know that I know what you mean by weak kidney. If you mean that you have been to a physician and he has found you have sugar in your urine—diabetes—or albumin—Bright's disease—I would suggest that you follow his advice carefully. He has evidently told you what to and what not to eat, and if you need any medicine, prescribed it for you. If you have not consulted a physician you should do so before taking any medicine.

LOOK TO DIGESTION.

E. E. L. writes: "Please tell me what I can do to prevent the constant recurrence of cold sores on lips and nose in a middle aged person."

REPLY.

Their prevention is not easy. People who have "cold sores" usually have some digestive disturbance. These people should form such eating and hygienic habits as are necessary to maintain good digestion.

SERVICE TWICE A WEEK.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—We are having a lot of trouble in this block on account of the ashes not being collected as often as they should be. The cans are always full and we are not allowed to dump ashes in the alley. I took the matter up with the alley inspector on Dec. 23, at which time he informed me the ashes were collected regularly twice each week. Knowing this not to be the fact, we refilled the cans as soon as they were emptied on Dec. 23 and have watched them ever since, with the result the cans were not emptied for ten days.

GEORGE H. TUCKER,
731 West Forty-seventh street.

Our records show that ashes were removed on Dec. 24 and 31st, and again on Jan. 6, and present schedule calls for service on Tuesdays and Fridays. Mr. Tucker has agreed to notify the ward superintendent if he does not get service on those days.
A. W. MILLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

CITY PROSECUTING OWNER.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—My neighbor put up a tin fence that reaches up to the third floor of the building that I am living in, thereby shutting out the light and air.

E. GEARON,
3234 Douglas boulevard.

This fence is about 30 feet high, consisting of four telephone posts, 2x4 inch stringers covered with iron, and was erected in violation of section 230 and 709 of the building code. A notice under date of Dec. 9, 1915, was served on the owner, James H. Hose, to remove the same. Upon failing to do so the matter was referred to the city prosecutor to enter suit on Dec. 31, 1915.
CHARLES BOSTROM,
Commissioner of Buildings.

LIGHTS ON ARTESIAN AVENUE.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Please let writer know when the poles and wire erected on Artesian avenue south of Diversey avenue will be used for lighting purposes.

H. M. HENRICKSEN,
2731 North Artesian avenue.

It is expected that the lamps in this part of the city will be placed in service within the next sixty days.
WILLIAM G. KEITH,
Commissioner.

TEN HOUR WORKING DAY.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—[Lo the Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a woman working in a factory and cannot afford to give up my position, as I have a home to look after, but the hours are too long. We work ten hours a day, including Saturday. Kindly inform me if there is a law not to work girls more than ten hours a day. We would like to have Saturday afternoon to ourselves.
A READER.

In Illinois it is against the law to employ female factory workers longer than ten hours per day. However, there is no law requiring the employer to give Saturday afternoon off to his employés, male or female.

INTEREST ON NOTE.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A lends money to B and receives promissory note to be paid within six months from date. B fails to pay either principal or interest at 6 per cent, as promised in note. Can A only collect 5 per cent because of B breaking his contract, or how does the law read in regard to that?
E. W.

If the note specified that it was to bear 6 per cent interest then "A" can collect 6 per cent interest. If the note did not specify the amount of interest then "A" can only collect the legal rate, which, in Illinois, is 5 per cent.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CAN COLLECT DELINQUENT RENT.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—[Lo the Legal Friend of the People.]—A former tenant owes me several months' rent. Can I legally collect same after ejecting him from the building for not paying the rent?
M. C.

You can legally collect all back rent due at the time of ejectment after ejecting the tenant.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NOT LEGALLY MARRIED.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—[Lo the Legal Friend of the People.]—Are man and woman living together in Illinois for three years as man and wife recognized as legally married?
J. O'C.

No; a man and woman can only become legally married in Illinois by going through a legally recognized marriage ceremony before a legally recognized official, such as a judge, justice of the peace, or clergyman.

DEMOCRACY OF GERMANY.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The eloquently disgusted gentleman styling himself "A Former Reader" is a good example of a type of citizen which proves such a help to a country in a crisis. We have heard of destructive criticism, and his letter brings it to mind. He wants the "democracy of Germany."

"Democracy"—the word means government by the people. What nation has been more conspicuous as a crusher of democracy, an example of monarchy amounting almost to tyranny, than Germany? In fact, the present war appears, upon reflection, to be a struggle to the death between absolute monarchy and democracy, represented respectively by the Germanic powers and the allies.

The gentleman of Teutonic sympathies objects to the statement that a victory of the Germans may be considered a menace. Certainly he has heard of the balance of power? And that its destruction by any nation or nations constitutes a menace? The opinion is still prevalent. On the other hand, the allies, victorious, may be counted upon to preserve this balance.

And, finally, after dealing with President Wilson, the ammunition "traffickers," and Wall street, the disgusted one falls upon the press. What a step toward preparedness it would be if he and his kind could be shipped at once to Germany, there to enjoy the gagged press, stainless politics, and the sway of that incomparable democrat, William.

FELIX W. MCKAY.

MILITARY AND IDEALISTIC GERMANY.

Goshen, Ind., Jan. 13.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Mr. Goldbeck endeavors to divide Germany into two classes, the militarists and the Germany of Kant and Beethoven, of music and philosophy, a meeting place of pure and lofty poets and thinkers who all would have denied the degraded caricature which the fatherland has become under the rule of William II. Mr. Goldbeck's article makes a plea for Germany by appealing to our love for her music and philosophy. But is not Germany united as no other nation? There is no dividing line between the military and idealistic Germany, the two unite into the German kultur. Germany admits that and is proud of it.

R. L. ROUGH.

WHERE ARE THE MEN?

Chicago, Jan. 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I am submitting my view on the article written by Mr. Gustav Roeder. Population of German empire—the highest figure—75,000,000; population under the rule of Austria—the highest figure—50,000,000; total, 125,000,000. Let us subtract females from this figure, 62,500,000; total of males, 62,500,000. Can any nation furnish more than one soldier out of five males? Sixty-two million five hundred thousand divided by five equals 12,500,000. German and Austrian empires in the beginning of the war—all available men they had for the fodder of guns, 12,500,000. The Prussian army that the official list can prove lost in killed, maimed for life, and missed at least 1,250,000. Where are the other principalities that comprise the German empire? Germany and Austria lost in killed, maimed for life, and missed at least if not more than 5,000,000 out of 12,500,000. From what sources can the German empire alone raise 10,000,000 of fresh human beings for the gun fodder?

A. SAWICKI, 2130 Bingham street.

A VALUABLE ASSET.

Three Oaks, Mich., Jan. 13.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A sale of the Philippines would repudiate all the promises we have made to them. If we are ready to sell them, what is the reason that has come to light to cause us to change our intentions? If we want to sell, why consider Japan as the logical and only buyer?

So far as selling is concerned, there can be no necessity on account of needing the money it would bring, and if we have not secured profits on them as an investment, it is not the fault of the islands, but it is on account of the unfriendly laws which have caused capital to avoid the trouble and risks of any enterprise so uncertain as it is while the future is unknown.

As for the real values that are found there, all the expense they have caused to the United States is small when we look upon the future returns the islands are capable of making. It is as insignificant as the money paid for Alaska.

N. B. EASTON.

HAULING DOWN THE FLAG.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—As regards the Philippine islands in response to your request: "Wherever our flag is unfurled shoot the man on the spot who attempts to hold it down," is my sentiment.

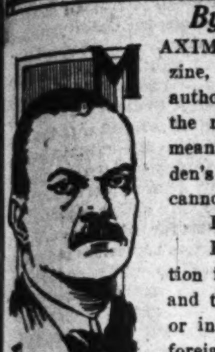
MUZZLING HARDEN

By Edward Goldbeck.



MAXIMILIAN HARDEN, the editor of the German magazine, Die Zukunft, has been prohibited by the military authorities from speaking or writing about the war for the remainder of that great struggle. This prohibition means that the magazine must stop appearing, as Harden's articles are its real attraction and as of course he cannot write in these days about anything but the war.

How was such an act possible?

Harden is the only journalist of world-wide reputation in Germany. He is the most acute political thinker and the best expert in international politics. In France or in the United States he would be at the head of the foreign office. I have known him intimately for twenty years and have followed his activity closely. I have read and reread all his articles, and I can witness that, once he became an author, he has given his whole life to the study of international relations. If there is a glowing patriot in Germany it is Harden, and after twenty years of an untiring activity "in majorem Germaniæ gloriam" the reward is that the authorities "muzzle" him! It is good to use this undignified word for an undignified action.

IF a man of Harden's character and performance is forbidden to speak at a time when nothing is more necessary than enlightened criticism, then it is nonsensical to talk about German freedom and superiority of culture. Then I shall not believe for one moment longer that Germany wants to hear the truth, that all the Germans are united in feeling and that they are allowed to express their opinions frankly and sincerely. I consider the suppression of the Zukunft an act of base ingratitude, brutal contempt of a wonderful life's work, and I shall say, with Talleyrand: "It is worse than a crime; it is a blunder."

I have carefully studied the articles Harden has written during the war. There was not the slightest trace of criticism in them which could have influenced the man on the street. He never said anything disparaging about the military operations. Harden is too modest as well as too clever to risk himself in a territory where the civilian critic always cuts a poor figure. Whatever there was of criticism about political and diplomatical matters was wrapped up in historical excursions or given in the form of a dramatic dialogue. Only the most attentive reader could grasp it, and how many attentive readers does an author find in times like ours?

Even Harden's enemies will not doubt that his intention was patriotic, and if they should doubt it they would only prove that they do not know the man.

A country which is involved in war cannot allow free discussion? An occasional hint that this or that might be improved is not free discussion, and why does France, why does England, allow free speech? Clemenceau has said things in his paper compared to which Harden's talk is like the wail of an infant after the howling of an irritated tiger, and not only Bernard Shaw and, from a different point of view, Lord Northcliffe, but dozens of other people are ruthlessly criticizing the English government. The leading men in Germany ought to know of what the whole world is accusing us: brutal trampling down of the weaker ones without any respect for spiritual aims. The prohibition of the Zukunft furnishes our adversaries with material which is difficult to refute.

THE articles of Harden were very useful. He protested against the self-glorification which since William II. ascending the throne has been a repulsive feature of official Germany and its higher classes; he published utterances of the other nations which showed their feelings much more graphically than we found them pictured in the government-ridden papers. He took his stand against the disgusting manner of depreciating the enemy and reviling in the language of the gutter the leaders of the other belligerents. He always talked like a well bred man, and particularly towards the United States he kept up an attitude of friendliness and moderation which I am sure will be appreciated here. When he published in the Zukunft my article, "Wilson and the Hyphen," which had appeared in THE TRIBUNE, he mitigated it by adding the following words: "The writer of this article will surely hear with pleasure that in this country the hope has not vanished of getting along with Mr. Wilson, whose wish to come to an honorable understanding with us we have no right to doubt up to now."

But even if the articles written by Harden had been obnoxious it would have been clever to consider the question of what might hurt Germany more: the continuance of these essays, which are fully understood only by a small minority, or the noise which the prohibition would make. Probably many Germans will think that I should not have increased this noise by emphasizing the disgraceful fact. I am sorry, but I can only be led by my conscience, and I think that this is a case which ought to be discussed without reticence. If the German chancellor or the kaiser should see that their attitude does not receive unanimous applause from the German-Americans, it might do some good. But whether it does or does not is not important to me. The truth alone matters. If an independent author such as I am (thank the Lord!) does not say what he thinks, then he had better be silent altogether. I have seen very often that German newspapers omit protesting when another newspaper is badly treated by the government. In a case like this they ought to stand up as one man and rebel against such acts of despotism; but I am sure they will not.

I must frankly confess that freedom of speech is more important to me than Germany's victory. If there is an axiom which makes for progress it is this, and the moment it would be annihilated we should fall back into barbarism. I certainly desire Germany's victory, but only so long as I know that Germany is really a guard of freedom and culture, and not one moment longer.

MAXIMILIAN HARDEN

LOOK at the matter from a human point of view. The Zukunft cannot appear for the remainder of the war. In this hour of destiny a man who knows international polity better than most others, who has made its study his specialty for the last twenty years is forbidden to speak. A patriot who is considered one of the glories of the fatherland is pilloried as an enemy of the nation, who endangers her by his clumsy criticisms the bearing of which he is not able to measure. It is a tragical fate, and it will appear so to everybody who knows Harden as well as I do.

Of course such an act is impossible without the kaiser's consent. Harden's standing is so high that no minister would risk suppressing the Zukunft without being sure of the kaiser's approval. Ballin and Rathenau are intimate friends of Harden, and Ballin at least is in a position to speak frankly to the kaiser. The "authorities" know Harden's far-reaching connections. Let us hope that this prohibition may be canceled, otherwise it will appear as an act of personal enmity on the part of the emperor. It would not be the first. He owes to Harden a still unpaid debt of gratitude for delivering him from the unspeakable set of unclean noblemen who surrounded him for years. It is highest time that it should be paid.

WITH all our great qualities, we Germans lack just what we are constantly boasting of: kultur. It is a word which has been defined a hundred times, and everybody looks at another facet of it. But if there is a man in Germany who has "kultur" he certainly is Maximilian Harden, and the coarse ingratitude with which he is treated now shows the reverse of it. If it is permissible to compare great things with small ones, it reminds me of Bismarck's dismissal. Bismarck was so hurried by the emperor's adjutants to leave his official lodgments that a very valuable vase, a present from the King of Italy, was saved only by a miracle in the rush of packing. It would be no great exaggeration to call such a lack of decency barbarism.

If Germany cannot stand the homeopathic dose of criticism which is to be found in Harden's articles, then she is a colossus with feet of clay. I do not think that this is the case, and I hope against conviction that the prohibition of the Zukunft will prove to be the blunder of a stupid and overzealous bureaucracy. But it seems necessary to me that it should be characterized as such, and I want to say bluntly that there are still some Germans left who look at acts like this with sad indignation. Only consider, dear fellow countrymen, where very many of us would be if the American government should be inspired by principles of this kind! I certainly would be on the way to happier shores. No war excuses a petty tyranny which hurts the real interests of the country while pretending to protect them.

ITALIA VINDICATA

By Robert Herrick.

IT seems to be the fashion of American public opinion just now to sneer at the manner in which Italy has waged her war. American writers, with the supreme wisdom of neutral observers, call it "peculiar," "selfish," "Italy's own little war," etc., as if the Italians were carrying on an independent, selfish enterprise, only incidentally related to the efforts of their nominal allies. Likewise American public opinion was for the most part quite skeptical of the purity of Italy's motives when she finally, after long months of hesitation and negotiation with Austria, ranged herself beside the allies last May. Very little authentic news came from Italy at that time. Very little, less even than from the other belligerents, gets us now. Instead, American newspapers print the sneering accounts from the "Overland News agency" of Italy's inability to pierce the mountain fortresses that Austria has spent the last generation of peace in strengthening.

To any one who loves Italy and the Italians, especially to one like myself who had the good fortune to be in Italy during those fateful weeks of her great decision last spring, such superficial opinions and ignorant slurs upon a brave people, who in some respects have played the most courageous part of all the warring peoples, are irritating. They betray our national weakness for immediate results, also our willingness to judge without any evidence. They come from that dense mass of ignorance upon which our journalists reason with all the assurance of infallibility. There are no signs in the press of the allied powers that Italy's share in the war and her conduct of her campaign have not had the complete approval of all the allies. As I write a report from a usually well informed Paris paper states that Italy was given the opportunity through Germany of making a very favorable peace with Austria some months ago before Italy had signed the agreement of London with her allies not to make a separate peace. The offer was refused. It is credible, even highly probable, that such was the case, knowing as we do that at the eleventh hour, after the Italian parliament had voted what was tantamount to a declaration of war against Austria, Germany's ambassador, the Prince von Bülow, was still busily offering "compensations" at the Italian foreign office. He backed reluctantly out of Italy on the eve of war, trying vainly to buy Italian neutrality, and a plausible reason for Germany's nondeclaration of war against Italy since is that the proud Hohenzollerns still hope to buy Italy off somehow—as they have tried unsuccessfully with Russia and with France.

IT is quite true that Italy did not share in the Dardanelles expedition, though probably urged to do so. She showed her good judgment in not wasting men, money, and ships in that monumental piece of English futility. At that time Turkey had not become her avowed enemy, and Turkey could be a more troublesome neighbor to Italy in the eastern Mediterranean than she could even to England. It must be remembered that the French were too shrewd to spend themselves vainly on the Dardanelles fantasy, though they sent a small expeditionary force, at least two good generals, and some ships. It is to the credit of the political and military sagacity of these two Latin nations that they did not waste themselves on this English folly. They probably calculated that the operation was doomed from the start; it did not fail because of lack of men, either.

For the same good reasons, probably, Italy judged the ill starred Balkan relief expedition inaugurated by the allied attempts from Saloniki as futile and refused to throw away troops and supplies that might be utilized effectively elsewhere in a vain effort to lock the stable door after the horse had been stolen, which seems to be the English method. Instead, it sent troops and supplies into Albania—one report has it that it has 35,000 soldiers there now—where its assistance to the demoralized Serbian army might be effective in supplying a base for a fresh attack against the invaders of Serbia. Such a move would seem both intelligent and far sighted, for Italy means to come out of this war with the control of the eastern coast of the Adriatic, which she needs for future tranquillity. Whatever she can do there for Serbia will not only help the Serbs but protect her own shores.

IT should not be overlooked in assigning jobs to Italy that it, like England, has its own running sore in the half civilized colonies that it has tried to establish along the north coast of Africa. Even before Italy had made up its mind to enter the war the tribesmen of Tripoli were stirred to revolt by German agents. A shipload of arms and ammunition designed for this purpose, which was discovered before it sailed from an Italian port last spring, had something to do with Italy's determination that it could have no more dealings with Austrians and Germans. At all events, shortly before it declared war in the north it was forced to send troops into Tripoli to put down insurrections, which the German mind probably expected to be a deterrent to hesitating Italian statesmen. It was not. Sometimes treachery works the other way. And Italy has had to fight this little guerrilla war in Africa ever since.

Italy is far from being rich. The war, which to date has cost it well over half a billion dollars, in addition to a round hundred millions spent in preparation, is probably straining its finances, even with the moderate English help it has had in its loans, more than it is the finances of the other allied powers. It has to cut its cloth very carefully to do the part it has set itself. If it entered upon every wild goose chase that the allied diplomacy offered it would weaken its main effort, which is to keep three-quarters of a million of Austrians busy along the Trentino and the Isonzo, to prevent this considerable army of seasoned troops from inconveniently appearing elsewhere on the allied fronts.

For Italy's no inconsiderable task, as doubtless the staffs of the allies realize, as the Italians knew before they began—even if our newspaper strategists were ignorant of the fact—is to pierce that almost impregnable combination of superior mountain positions fortified with all the ingenuity of modern defensive works with which Austria had ringed her former ally. If it can blast and hack its way through the steel locks of Gorizia, even after a full year of effort, and open up the road to Vienna, it will have done a large part in the work of breaking down the trench wall of the central powers. And it is too early yet to say that it will fail. Progress on this gigantic task has been necessarily and discouragingly slow—especially discouraging to American opinion, though there is no evidence that it has been slower than informed Italians expected last May.

Its enemies announce "terrible losses" after every Italian attack. It is difficult to guess what Italy's actual losses have been. One report in Rome last May was that it would take 150,000 casualties a month for an uncertain number of months to blast through the line of mountain fortresses. That surely was too high an estimate. One recent report from Rome gives a total casualty list of 45,000. That seems incredibly low. Another, probably nearer the correct figure, says 100,000, which is also low, judging from the scale of losses on the other fronts.

Even these favorable reports of losses are taken by Italy's critics as indicating the nerveless and selfish manner of its waging of war. They mean probably anything but that. The mountainous character of the country does not lend itself to the terribly costly slaughters of open country. It is a series of outpost fights between small detachments, where losses are relatively small. And Italy, like France, is saving its human material, which is to the immense credit of its general staff. Italy, no more than France, intends to spend its last man in getting quick results. The Latin temperament, vivacious as it is, is also the most clear headed—the shrewdest—of all the warring races. Latin peoples do not believe in "muddling through" with enormous human wastage.

ITALY was in something the same position between the two warring camps last spring that Greece has been this fall. The threat was not as close, as immediate, as it has been for Greece. But it was as sure in the long run. Italy had to make up its mind which side it would choose to aid or by which victor it would be eaten. And it chose last May not the side that seemed to be winning then, not the side that would be most dangerous to it in case of victory, but the side which had the least substantial future to offer it in case of victory, the least threat in case it was a suppliant for mercy at the peace conference.

It is true that it looked for substantial rewards in the way of a secure, defensible frontier won from its ancient enemy—but what one of the fighting nations does not expect some substantial reward for the sacrifices made? That Italy took good thought, judged the situation clearly, and decided to throw in its lot with the less promising side seems to me all to its high credit. And no one who looked on with a sympathetic mind during those tense weeks of decision last April and May can ever doubt that a very large element in the emotions that swayed the Italian people was not the sentimental desire to regain some lost land or the thirst for the glory of conquest but a deep fear and loathing of German supremacy in the world.

Right or wrong, Italy no more than France or England could "stand for" the conquest of Belgium, the sinking of the Lusitania, and all the rest of the German count. Modern nations do not wage wars on purely chivalric or sentimental or ethical grounds any more than the ordinary citizen acts solely from patriotic motives; but in that ferment of mind and emotion which prepares a people to run the gravest of all risks there must be some principle of idealism.

Italy's idealism in this war has not been justly recognized as yet by Americans. That it unites with this idealism a shrewd practical sense of the possible and the impossible is a comforting factor to those of us who desire the victory of the allies. If England had more Latin clarity of mind in its conduct of affairs we might be more hopeful at the present juncture.

No matter which way the final decision goes, Latin blood has vindicated itself in this world war.

THE RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE

By Frank H. Simonds.

Author of "The Great War."

[Copyright: 1916: By the Tribune Association.]

PERHAPS the most interesting detail about the latest Russian offensive is found in the fact that there could be a new drive of this sort on the part of the Slav. Nothing is more amusing than the fashion in which the observers of the great war pass from mood to mood and with each change totally forget the preceding state of mind. But to understand the real value of military conditions it often is essential to recall exactly what was expected and believed in the earlier period.

Thus from May to September of last year the Germans asserted, the allies feared, and the neutral observers regarded it as probable that the Russians were on the point of being put out of the war, that they were undergoing a series of defeats which could have no other end than complete collapse.

Looking backward, it will be remembered that beginning with the battle of Gorlice-Tarnow, the battle of the Dunajec, as it is also called, there followed a series of Russian disasters that covered the whole period from May 1 to late August and only terminated when the main Russian army slipped away from the German enveloping forces at and about Vilna. All that time Berlin told the world, but more particularly told the German people, that Russia was almost done, that there would be a separate peace with Russia in the fall, and that the war would be ended by winter.

Now, there is no thought of criticizing the German statements; they were honestly enough made and made on the basis of reasonable probability. Certainly they had as good a foundation as any allied forecasts of success, which were not realized, and it still seems as if the Germans were quite as near to realizing their hopes as were the British at the Dardanelles.

But the hopes were not realized. Russia was not put out; she was not crushed, and now she is coming back; she may win or lose, her offensive may collapse or be pressed successfully; but the first thing to consider about it is the effect upon the German people of the announcement conveyed in German official statements, perfectly frankly, that Russia is vigorously on the offensive again.

Fight in Relays.

The second detail that is worth considering is that the Russian offensive, breaking upon the Austrians primarily now, reveals an accidental or calculated policy—it does not make any difference which—that should be considered by every observer of the war. Apparently the allies are fighting the central powers by relays, and the result is to give Germany no time for rest, while the several allied nations in turn get their respite.

Go back to last spring and it will be recalled that while Germany was making her great Russian drive the French and British opened a severe attack in Artois. It failed of all but purely local profit, but it strained Germany's military resources to the limit and prevented the sending to the eastern front of corps which might have won the decision.

All through the summer Germany bore the costs of a tremendously expensive campaign in Galicia, Poland, and the Courland. Austrian and German resources were involved to the utmost. Russia, having done her part, suffered great defeats and lost many thousand square miles of territory and yet managed to keep her armies in existence. France and Great Britain struck the heavy blow, which was the battle of Champagne and the subsidiary fight at Loos. This cost the allies about 200,000 men; it cost, with the counter attacks and prisoners, at least as much to the Germans and the loss of over 200 cannon and 30,000 prisoners.

Roughly speaking, it does not take more than 4,000,000, at the most 4,500,000, men to hold the lines occupied by the central powers. Now, no one supposes that the losses of the central powers have yet reached a point where they cannot find these 4,000,000 men. But if the French, British, Russian, and Italian armies spread the allied losses proportionately among four, and the Turks and Bulgarians may be set off against the British and French colonial and native troops with the Belgians and Serbians, then the four will run short of men later than the Germans and Austrians because their resources in men are two to one larger.

The great fact that the new Russian offensive sets forth to the world is that the process of exhaustion is to be carried forward. Russia, after some months devoted to refitting and equipping her troops, is ready to go at it again. She may lose her winter campaign and be halted where she stands or forced back out of Galicia altogether, but she will kill, wound, and capture many Austrians, losing heavily herself. But when she has done her work and fought a winter campaign it is fair to expect that the western allies, France and Great Britain, will be prepared to make a spring attack, Italy will be ready to go in again, and Russia will be able to rest in her turn.

Music for Roumania's Ears.

So much for the larger aspects of the new Russian offensive, but there is an immediate political object not to be overlooked. Last May, when Italy came in on the allied side, there was general expectation that Roumania would follow suit. But Roumania was held back mainly by the fact that Russia was getting tremendously defeated and driven out of the districts she had offered to give Roumania for the latter's enlistment. The German and Austrian victories in Galicia made a confirmed neutral out of Roumania and the Balkan fiascos only accentuated Roumanian neutrality.

But it is well to remember that the neutrality is wholly calculated. In Greece a sister of the kaiser dominates the situation, but in Roumania the situation is controlled by those who recognize that the real profits can come only from the allies. Roumania wants Bukowina, Transylvania, and the Banat, and these are Austrian or Hungarian; she also wants Bessarabia, which is Russian, but is of minor importance by comparison. Again, Roumania fears and hates Bulgaria. She fears her because she wronged her in the second Balkan war and stole one of her provinces; she fears her because Bulgaria is her rival for the Balkan primacy.

Since Bulgaria is now the ally of the central powers, since she has regained the great territory of Macedonia that Roumania went to war to prevent her obtaining three years ago, since Bulgaria, holding the road to Constantinople and supplying the keystone of the arch of the central alliance, is bound to be favored always by the central powers to the disadvantage of Roumania, there is every reason why Roumania should desire the defeat of the central powers and every temptation to enlist as soon as the issue is certain and thus to share in the spoils.

Accordingly a Russian victory in eastern Galicia which should clear the Germans and Austrians out of Bukowina and eastern Galicia would have a tremendous moral effect at Bucharest and it might persuade the Roumanians to enlist; if they did then the German road to Constantinople would promptly be cut by a Roumanian invasion of Bulgaria and an allied advance from Saloniki. Cutting this line would mean the isolation of Turkey again.

But there is another element to be considered in estimating the Russian purpose. By opening the road to Constantinople the Germans have assured the munitionment of the Turks; by their alliance with the Bulgars they are breaking Russian influence in the Balkans; and it must never be forgotten that the occasion of the great war was the demand by Austria, backed by Germany, that Russia resign her claim to influence in Balkan affairs; her claim to protect Serbia. Notwithstanding the present German supremacy in Bulgaria, Russia has still a following and a faction favorable to her, both because of religious reasons and because Bulgaria owes her freedom to Russia.

If Russian pressure upon the Austrians in Galicia becomes heavy Austrian and German troops will have to be recalled from the Balkans and Bulgaria will be left to bear the brunt of the allied attack with only Turkish aid, and Turkish troops are not popular in Bulgaria. This may result in a change of sides by Bulgaria; it will certainly lessen the numbers of Turks available for operations against the Russians in the Caucasus and the British at Suez.

The Russian Purpose.

Thus it is quite plain what the Russian purpose is. Russia wanted to invade Bulgaria by way of Roumanian territory when the Bulgars attacked the Serbs. But Roumania forbade the operation after the Russians had gathered their army at the Bessarabian frontier. The Balkan prospects looked too thick to the Roumanians, who are a nation of horse traders both in politics and business, to warrant risks.

"Go win your war and then we'll come to your aid," has been the Roumanian advice to the allies. But a successful Russian campaign within view of the Roumanian frontier and in territory that Roumania wants and Russia is willing that Roumania should have if she will come in might turn the tide.

If the Russian pressure continues we may expect to see the operation against Saloniki abandoned and the troops that were to make it recalled to the Russian frontier. Or we may see the transfer from the west of troops who are supposed to have been sent there for an offensive against the French and British when the weather became favorable.

By contrast, if the Austrians and Germans succeed in halting and smothering the Russian offensive we shall know that the stories that their numbers are beginning to fail have been exaggerated, to say the least; we shall know that the Russian recovery has been less rapid than now seems, and we shall probably be able to dismiss from the reckoning any chance of a successful winter campaign by the Russians.

Such a situation, followed by successful German and Turkish campaigns against Egypt and Saloniki, might go far to convincing the allies that Germany could not be defeated. This would make for peace.

Yet, to balance this, there must be kept in mind the allied belief that Germany is past her high water mark. The Germans believe that the allies are beaten but will not admit it. The allies believe that German numbers and resources are failing and that the proof or disproof of this cannot long be postponed.

The allies and the neutrals are watching for the first sign of a German weakness. If the Russians win anything more than a purely local success now, if the Germans have to change their front and retreat, the effect cannot be exaggerated—that is, the moral effect. It will inspire the allies to new and greater effort and it will abolish all thought of peace.

Meantime nothing has yet occurred beyond the disclosure of the new strength of the Russians to warrant any forecast. Russia has come back more quickly than any one expected, and we have German testimony to the fact that she has come back. Her present campaign has great possibilities, both in military and political fields. It might be the straw that broke the camel's back; it might be the thing that finally proved that Germany was, for a long time at least, invincible on her present lines. This is the area of possibility of the Russian operation as it now begins to unfold itself.

THE CAVELL CASE

It was for writing articles like the one translated herewith from his magazine Die Zukunft that Maximilian Harden, Germany's most famous editor and critic, was forbidden by the German government to write for, or address, the public until after the war. Last week there was published on this page two other translations from Die Zukunft, in one of which Harden berated the German newspapers for attacking Winston Churchill and in the other of which he defended the violation of Greek neutrality by the allies.

By Maximilian Harden.

WHAT do I think about the case of Miss Edith Cavell? The same as I do about the "Tragedy of Errors." The young Englishwoman who had trained young women in Belgium to become war nurses and who herself had faithfully nursed the wounded (including Germans, it is said), had succeeded in smuggling Belgian and British warriors across the frontier of the country occupied by us; in other words, in increasing the number of men able to fight against Germany.

A crime resulting from patriotism which Kleist and Arndt, Schill and York would have praised, which is neither as dirty nor as dangerous as spying, which, however, must be severely punished. The rule of the Hague convention which says that the avenger of violated neutrality never acts contrary to law cannot excuse such an act this contention is crumbling under the hands of our enemies. Miss Cavell fearlessly acknowledged her deed and was sentenced to death by the court martial of Brussels. Perhaps it was the latter's intention to warn other smugglers of men by the severity of the sentence; perhaps it considered it an aggravating factor that the Englishwoman had betrayed the confidence placed in the garb of a sister of mercy.

This feeling seems to me correct. Nurses, surgeons, priests, and the members of hospital corps are invulnerable because their duties prohibit them to fight and use stratagem. Miss Cavell, having devoted herself to the sacred cause of humanity, either should have openly renounced it and removed its sacred insignia or abandoned the secret, artful furtherance of patriotic interests.

BECAUSE the sentence was executed despite a petition for pardon filed by the representatives of two neutral countries a howl of rage went through the world which drowned everything heard since the Lusitania affair. Insulting cartoons and epithets were hurled at the governor general of Belgium and the German emperor, and the consensus of opinion on both sides of the Atlantic was: "All Germany is an accessory to the crime committed on this woman, because not one voice had been raised against it."

Most of the revilers knew perfectly well that the governor of Brussels was far away, had nothing to do with the affair, and that the German emperor intended to extend clemency; in fact, that he did so. The judge, who did not anticipate this intention, had the sentence carried out before the pardon arrived from great headquarters. He was entirely within his rights. In war even the best intentions cannot always avoid such perplexity. Nothing but raving malice can twaddle of "reminiscent of the fifth act of Schiller's drama, 'Mary Stuart.'"

ANY one with an ounce of reason left must admit that the emperor acted humanely and recognize that prudence alone bade the Germans to hope for a different result of the case. Do you imagine that the spectacle of a virgin dragged before twelve rifle barrels was a delightful sensation for the people of Kant and Feuerbach, Goethe and Schopenhauer? Then, at least, believe them sober enough coolly to deliberate on lust for revenge which quickly dies and detrimental effects lasting a long time.

Attempts of intimidation in our war zone have seldom borne wholesome fruit. King Edward's widow, when informed of the execution of Miss Cavell, named a new home for nurses in London, which was to be called after her, "The Edith Cavell House." Money is being collected in all hostile countries for Edith Cavell monuments. Le Matin, the great Paris newspaper, has offered a big bronze relief of Edith to the city of Paris, and M. Mithouard, chairman of the Paris city council, wants to tenderly take charge of it. Inscription: "A Woman Murdered by a Nation."

SO that the web of lies might not burst, the public is told that Germany had rejoiced upon learning of Miss Cavell's execution. If the details of the execution were at least given truthfully to the public it is said that she bravely walked from her cell, that she told the priest accompanying her how glad and proud she was to die for her country, but after that she fainted and was killed by the German officer (who led the file of soldiers) with a shot from his revolver.

If this was so (I am unable to prove it) I must praise the compassion of the officer (who in French eyes is a "miserable monocled Junker and mean assassin"). If he faint-heartedly adhered to the letter of the command he must have had her revived and let her go once more through the ordeal and agony. He could not have his men fire on a woman who had collapsed and fainted. If, at this critical moment, he shouldered the heavy burden of the execution himself, then he was merciful, not cruel; a compassionate human being, not a rough henchman.

AS a whole, every one of the dramatis personæ acted as his conscience dictated, and there are not a hundred people in Germany who do not sincerely regret that the imperial pardon arrived too late. War is no game or trifling; it's a rough trade. Any one increasing the danger to our army can never count on consideration. However, we all, the people and the princes, warriors and citizens, agree on the resolution to prevent unnecessary cruelties, and to nurse the tender little plant of humane feeling, even between trench and wall, howitzers and mines. Help us at that, kind enemies, and impress upon the minds of your nurses and surgeons, priests, members of the hospital corps that stormy patriotism must not tempt them to misuse their sacred insignia for underhand expedients and deceit. What do Burleigh and Talbot think of this case?

LIVERPOOL EASY; LARGER PLATE OFFERS FACTOR

Many Vessels Provided for Argentine Grain; Wheat Rallies After Setback.

Lower cables with the report that many vessels would be placed in the Argentine and Australian carrying trade caused a sharp price dip in the wheat market yesterday. At the decline commission houses were good buyers, however, and there was a steady improvement in prices during the short session, with last prices unchanged to ¼c higher. The July was especially strong on reports of a serious menace from green bugs in Texas and on the fear of damage from the cold weather in sections where the winter wheat has had but little snow protection.

The Broomhall news in regard to the Argentine freight situation was much more favorable to the bears. It is understood Australian and Argentine shippers are willing to make concessions to effect sales, and advices from both countries indicating increasing shipments were received. In both countries the wheat is of excellent quality, which is likely to be a big factor if foreigners are disposed to discriminate against our hard winter wheat.

Shorts Cover on Decline.

There was a good deal of short covering on the decline. The cash trade was slow, but a Winnipeg report that foreigners were good buyers of cash wheat and futures counted in favor of the bulls. At Minneapolis mills were said to have picked up the offerings on the decline.

A late New York message said that the Italian government had not bought any more wheat, but that on the contrary two Italian boats were offered to re-let with the leading Italian buyer out of the market. This was regarded as significant. Recent transactions were said to have been of Manitoba wheat between exporters. Receipts were comparatively light, the let up in the receipts being due to the bad weather conditions.

Weather Conditions Seasonable.

Generally seasonable weather conditions prevail over the grain belts. Numerous reports are being received in regard to the green bug plague in Texas, and latest advices indicate it is a serious menace. The export demand via the gulf was slow, and no large sales were reported. Country offerings were moderate in the northwest. Receipts were sixty-four cars, with primary receipts of 973,000 bu, against 667,000 bu a year ago. In spite of the bad weather of the last week primary arrivals for six days were 7,992,000 bu, against 5,087,000 bu a year ago.

Northwest receipts were 220 cars, against 201 cars a year ago, and Winnipeg had 131 cars, against 95 cars a year ago. Clearances were the smallest in some time, at 377,000 bu. Minneapolis wheat stocks increased 50,000 bu for one day. Liverpool cables were ½@1d lower, and Buenos Aires was 1⅛c down.

Pressure Heavy on Corn.

Corn selling pressure was heavy at the start, with prices sharply lower. When wheat rallied there was covering on quite a liberal scale. Prices finished ¼ to ⅛@⅜c lower. The cash demand was fair and there were sales of 75,000 bu, with some export inquiry at the seaboard. Cables were steady. Buenos Aires futures were firm, and there is not much corn pressing for sale from Argentina. Freights, however, were reported a little easier. Weather conditions were generally favorable for the time of year.

Country offerings were reported light as a rule. Local stocks should show a good increase, as receipts have been much larger than the shipments. Local receipts were 150 cars, with primary receipts for the week of 6,105,000 bu, compared to 12,404,000 bu a year ago. Clearances for the day were 137,000 bu.

Good Demand for Oats.

The feature in oats was the report of excellent export buying demand. This helped rally the market. The May developed considerable strength, but in the late trade there was considerable selling of the July. The close was ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower. The cash demand was good, and local sales were about 400,000 bu, most of which was to exporters. The seaboard reported sales in all positions of about 1,000,000 bu late Friday and yesterday. Receipts here were 156 cars, and primary receipts were 779,000 bu, compared to 1,173,000 bu a year ago. For the week primary receipts were 5,697,000 bu, against 5,345,000 bu a year ago.

Provisions were higher at the close. The cash trade was not so urgent, according to most reports, but the late rally in grain started some buying, and prices closed firm. Commission houses were fair buyers. Packers were not doing much. Hog receipts were 34,000, with 80,000 for Monday and 275,000 for the coming week. Prices at the yards were 15@20c lower. Liverpool prices were unchanged for meats and 3d lower for cash lard.

Rye Prices Advanced.

Rye was ½c higher with a sale of No. 2 at 96½c. Receipts were 2 cars.

Barley ruled quiet and steady, malting selling at 73@77½c and screenings, 62c. Receipts, 32 cars.

Timothy seed was steady. March closed $8.55 bid and $8.80 asked; cash lots, $6.00@8.00 nominal. Clover seed ruled easy with cash lots quoted $10.00@18.75 nominal.

Duluth flax closed 1¼@1⅜c higher. Cash on track, $2.41; May, $2.44; and July, $2.43. Receipts, 6 cars. Minneapolis was 1½c higher with cash on track, $2.28@2.41; receipts were 7 cars. Winnipeg closed ½c higher with May, $2.24¾. Receipts, 2 cars.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE.

Reports from Liverpool yesterday were to the effect that a large number of boats had been made available for carrying grain from Australia and Argentina. If these reports are correct it will be a big factor in the trade, especially in wheat, as much of the recent speculative buying has been based on the assumption that while Australia and Argentina had lots of wheat to spare they would be unable to move it in any big quantity. While boats are likely to be scarce enough to command high rates, it is believed England now will see that fairly ample tonnage is provided. The next few weeks are likely to see big shipments from the southern hemisphere. Neither Argentina nor Australia usually ships any big amount of grain before the end of January. With the Canadian wheat going through this country freely in bond, domestic wheat is likely to find strenuous competition.

The cash demand for wheat was slow here, but spring wheat was held firmly. Local sales were only 10,000 bu. But little business was reported at the seaboard. Winnipeg wired that foreigners were free buyers there. Cash corn was easy and sales were 75,000 bu. Country offerings were moderate as a rule. Oats sales were about 400,000 bu from here, including about 300,000 bu for export. The seaboard claimed sales of 700,000 bu late Friday, and there were fair sales of oats yesterday from outside markets.

Local receipts of wheat were 1,714,000 bu the last week, with shipments of 1,345,000 bu. Corn receipts were 2,592,000 bu, against shipments of 1,026,000 bu. Oats receipts were 3,242,000 bu; shipments, 2,381,000 bu.

A board of trade membership sold yesterday at $3,800, the highest price in about ten years. There is an excellent demand for memberships reported, reflecting the prosperous condition of business on the exchange.

Chicago stocks of lard have increased about 2,750,000 lbs in the last two weeks for lard made since Oct. 1. Old lard showed decrease of nearly 4,000,000 lbs. New short ribs showed a gain of nearly 2,000,00 lbs, and the present stock is nearly three times as large as a year ago.

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 64 cars; corn, 115 cars; oats, 156 cars; rye, 2 cars; barley, 32 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 80,000 head and for all next week, 275,000 head.

Eugene Cox and Marcus Hager made application for membership on the board of trade, while John F. Jelke Jr. and John J. Sullivan posted memberships for transfer.

The congestion in the Kansas City yards is not being relieved rapidly. It is estimated there are 3,000 cars of unloaded grain in the yards, most of the grain being wheat.

Texas reports indicated the green bug pest is a serious menace this year to the wheat crop and that without warm weather the wheat crop will be greatly damaged.

A cargo of 220,000 bu corn was being loaded yesterday at the Calumet E elevator for spring shipment to any Lake Erie port at 3c per bushel, shippers' option.

The crop of wheat in New South Wales is officially estimated at 62,000,000 bu with 40,000,000 bu available for export.

Argentine meat shipments the last week were 25,000 quarters beef to the United States and 39,000 carcasses of sheep.

Packing of hogs at Chicago for the season to date, 2,286,000 head, compared to 1,822,000 head a year ago.

Kansas City stocks of wheat increased 325,000 bu for the week and corn stocks increased 500,000 bu.

The Minneapolis cash market was strong, with No. 1 northern blue stem 1@4c over the May.

Brazil has reduced import duties on wheat and flour 80 per cent.

Cull lambs	8.00@ 9.25

Hog market at Chicago yesterday was oversupplied and sales were made at reduced prices. There was an active trade, however, and the market closed in a strong position. Fresh receipts were posted at 33,000 head, and there were 10,594 hogs left from Friday. Market opened 15@25c lower than on Friday, with shippers moderate buyers and speculators afraid to take hold because of the big supply on sale the last day of the week. Packers appeared anxious to stock up at the reduction, however, and the market developed strength and activity, closing fully 10c higher than it opened. Top sales were made at $7.30 and the bulk at $6.90@7.20.

Hog purchases for the day: Armour & Co., 5,500; Swift & Co., 4,800; Sulzberger & Sons, 3,500; Morris & Co., 3,000; Anglo-American, 2,000; Hammond, 1,800; Boyd-Lunham, 1,800; Roberts & Oake, 1,500; Western Packing company, 2,000; Miller & Hart, 900; Independent Packing company, 1,200; Brennan Packing company, 600; butchers, 2,000; shippers, 6,000; total, 36,600; left over 4,500.

CATTLE.

Beef steer values at Chicago this week closed unchanged to a shade higher than a week ago, with the lowered priced offerings showing the advance. Trade during the week was on a broad scale and the market closed in a healthy condition, although receipts for the six days showed a substantial increase. Cows and heifers followed steers and closed steady to 10@15c higher than a week ago, while bulls were unchanged, and calves closed 50c off for the week. The expectancy is for more liberal supplies of cattle in the coming week, but the demand is also expected to expand, and a broader trade at steady to strong prices is being predicted.

SHEEP.

Aged sheep finished the week at an advance of 50c, and yearlings showed a gain of 35@50c, while lambs closed 50@75c higher than a week ago, making new high record prices for this market. Receipts for the week were more than 10,000 head in excess of arrivals last week, but fell far short of arrivals for the corresponding week last year. Traders do not look for any material increase in marketings the coming week, but high prices appear to be having a restrictive influence on the consumptive demand for mutton, and buyers are showing less inclination to follow the upward movement of values. Lambs this week topped at $10.90 and sheep at $8.00. Yearlings sold up to $9.40.

Public Service Commissions.

Public service commissions are supplanting city councils as the representative of the people with whom the various utility corporations must deal. The change has been hailed as inaugurating a new era of stability for securities and safety for investors. Under the new system instead of sometimes dealing with hungry gray wolves the corporation must make terms with a board whose members are more or less familiar with engineering and financial problems and are amenable to the force of logic.

Investors should not, however, lose sight of the fact that commissions have weak points, and that instead of doing away with all the difficulties confronting public utilities the new plan merely lessens or abolishes the old troubles, while presenting another series of problems. If the stockholders and bondholders do not put forth their best efforts toward dealing with the new problems, the value of their securities may be undermined by the same process to which railway stocks and bonds long were subjected. The process appears to have run its course with the railways. After the weaker systems had been forced into bankruptcy a change came, and now the right of investors to a reasonable return on their capital seems to be admitted. One direct result of the change is a small increase in interstate passenger rates just now being put into effect.

In the case of utilities the destructive process has only begun, and investors should try to stop it before it has gone to such lengths as it reached with the railways. A suggestion of what may come is seen in the statement of the reasons for reducing the dividend on preferred shares of the Chicago City and Connecting railways. One cause for the decline in profits is "the operations of various regulatory boards whose activities have added heavy expense with no corresponding benefit either to the public or to the company."

Let the owners of utility companies make their influence felt to check any such waste. Their votes in almost any community make a formidable total if the facts were only known and their personal influence and power is certainly as great as that of any other equally large body of citizens.

Brief Answers.

J. H. M. N.—The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway has not been reorganized. No reorganization plan has been formed as yet. The reorganized Wabash road is nearly earning the dividend on its preferred A stock.

We are not offering a "war-bride" or an oil stock, but an investment based upon the most stable of all values—improved and productive real estate. The property is centrally located, cost over $1,000 per foot, and the improvement is a large, new fireproof building, with revenue guaranteed by long-term leases with tenants. This is not an equity and your investment would not involve the assumption of heavy mortgage or other liability.

An investment of $75,000 will purchase the whole ownership; but owner will sell fractional interests of not less than $15,000 each. As this opportunity is made possible by owner's desire for immediate cash conversion, will interested principals only please reply?

During Eight Years

in the capacity of Secretary, Treasurer and General Manager, I have tripled the business of a merchandising corporation. Today it is one of the leading institutions of its kind.

This business, due to its nature, is limited; nevertheless it has reached the top of the ladder. My constructive and executive ability can accomplish nothing more in this field.

I have prospered. In ten years I have risen from the ranks to an enviable position. Whatever attempted, I have brought to a successful conclusion. I am not a financial genius; but, at the age of 32, the result of my efforts might be called extraordinary.

My ambition is to gain legitimate wealth. In the accomplishment of this object, my future business associates will prosper along with me. Owing to the fact that it is impossible for me to reach the goal of ambition in my present field of endeavor, I am open for negotiations of the following character:

The business I enter must be established. It has to possess unlimited prospects of creative volume and tremendous possibilities. Its future growth to be limited only by the capability of its management (of which I am to be a factor) to develop it. The nature of the business to be general merchandising, either retail or mail order.

At the psychological time I am prepared to invest financially.

The New York bank statement showed an increase of $28,673,000 in demand deposits. The loan account disclosed a moderate expansion, while the surplus reserve increased over $18,600,000, due to a heavy gain in cash.

The banks now have a surplus reserve of $172,518,370. A few years ago a surplus of $45,000,000 appeared large. The bank statements since the beginning of the year fail to suggest conditions making for higher money rates. The figures follow:

Rock Island Passes Interest.

The Rock Island railroad directors not only took no action yesterday to pay the interest on the $20,000,000 5 per cent debentures that came due but the indications are that no action is contemplated within the grace period.

Edmund D. Hulbert, chairman of the finance committee, is now in New York, partly at least on Rock Island business. But the explanation is advanced that the defaulting might be a part of the general reorganization scheme, a default being considered necessary if the plan is to move ahead. There is also a demand for cash, partly to meet short time notes that will come due soon and for borrowing purposes.

Goodrich Sales Larger.

Gross sales of Goodrich company in 1915 exceeded $55,000,000. January sales so far are running twice those of January, 1915. In 1914 Goodrich reported total sales of $41,764,000. The net for dividends was $4,450,427. This, however, was after special deduction of $900,000 in valuation of treasury preferred stock from cost to par value.

On same average of net to gross without deductions for stock valuation the company in 1915 should show earnings of about $7,114,000, which would leave about 8½ per cent for common stock after preferred dividends.

Unlisted Stocks Active.

The local unlisted securities market continues fairly active, although a number of the more popular issues have been rather quiet awaiting the outcome of annual meetings which will take place within the next few days.

American Fork and Hoe common sold as high as 111 and is in good demand at 109 to 110. The preferred is 116 bid, offered at 119. American Hominy preferred changed hands at 79 and the common at 46. Avery preferred continues to improve, sales being made at 108. The common is wanted at 67, with light offerings at 69. The bid price for Bucyrus common advanced about two points to 18. Butler Brothers declined from sales at 347 to 325 and reacted to 330. Trading has been in small lots.

Advance in Consumers.

Consumers Company common advanced two points to sales at 26½ and closed at that price bid. The preferred is strong at 77 bid, offered at 78. Emerson-Brantingham common has been active and made an advance of about three points, with sales at 21. The preferred is firm at 57½ bid. Hart, Schaffner & Marx common has been fairly active, selling as high as 60, closing at 59 bid, offered at 60.

Reo Motor Car continues firm at 32¼ bid, offered at 33. Reo Motor Truck advanced to sales at 24. Sulzberger & Sons preferred improved about two points to sales at 89, closing at that price bid, with small offerings at 90. United States Gypsum common is a trifle easier being offered at 48½, with buyers at 47. The preferred changed hands at 103. Ætna Explosives common has been very erratic and after a quick advance to 105 showed a rapid decline to reported sales at 60, closing at 78 bid, offered at 82. The preferred is 82 bid, offered at 86. Peerless Motor Car showed a steady decline to as low as 28, but improved somewhat at the close to 29 bid, with offerings at 31.

Decline in Fisk Rubber.

Fisk Rubber common declined from around 130 to sales as low as 116, but improved to 118 bid, with stock offered at 121. The preferred remains strong at 113, with light offerings at 113. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply continued in good demand, with sales between 370 and 375. Great Lakes Dredge and Dock is wanted at 101. Goodyear Tire and Rubber was a trifle lower at 330@335, and the preferred at 115@117. Oxweld Acetylene has been firm around 121½@122, although very little trading is taking place.

Some inquiry for Iroquois Iron improved the bid price to 65, with stock offered at 70. Drake Hotel preferred sold at 99. Public Utilities have been rather quiet with a fairly firm undertone. Union Trust Company.

In his annual statement of the condition of the Union Trust company, showing an increase in deposits of over 38 per cent for the year, President F. H. Rawson says in part:

"During the last year the demand for money failed to keep pace with the increase in loanable funds, and as a result we have carried large reserves and have received small returns from interest on commercial loans. In other respects our statement is the most gratifying exhibit which the Union Trust company has ever presented to its patrons."

Bank Clearings Rise.

Chicago bank clearings for week ended Saturday, Jan. 15, were $355,730,977, an increase of $41,293,960, or 13.1 per cent, as compared with the same week last year. The clearings last week were more than $402,000,000. The figures:

NEWS OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD

Semi-official announcement was made that the American Smelting and Refining company is now operating its three Mexican plants to their full capacity without trouble from the opponents of the Carranza administration. While there is nothing definite, the market still assumes that at the February meeting of the board the dividend on the common shares will be increased to a 6 per cent basis.

Brokers are marking up customers' margins at a point where their liability in the event of a slump will be at a minimum. Four New York commission houses alone have outstanding loans aggregating $120,000,000. One of the firms a year ago was borrowing $6,000,000 against its speculative accounts, while today the borrowings are at $35,000,000. Another has $50,000,000 outstanding.

The upturn in war order stocks brings out the opinion in Wall street that activity in these issues cannot be repressed. Some examination of the accounts of several of the concerns indicates that estimates of earnings made a short time ago will prove to be not far out of the way, and that when such earning power is clearly defined new high levels will be reached by the stocks.

The American Steel Foundries company's domestic business is reported to be at capacity, the output being about 18,000 tons per month. On Jan. 1 unfilled tonnage for five months' business was twenty times the volume of unfilled orders at the same date in the previous year. Domestic earnings will amount to 17 to 18 per cent, it is said, and the war orders will add an extra 7 per cent under favorable conditions.

A director of the American Locomotive company has estimated that net profits for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, will be between $35 and $40 per share for the $25,000,000 common stock. Banking interests are also depending upon a revival in the equipment business for 1917 that will hold earnings steady, regardless of war conditions.

Directors of the United Fruit company have voted to offer stockholders of record at the close of business Jan. 18 rights to subscribe at $120 a share for 121,981 new shares of the company's stock at the rate of one new for every three old shares owned. The rights will expire at the close of business Feb. 15.

Directors of the Standard Oil company of Indiana are scheduled to meet within a week for dividend action. No official view has become public, but the street thinks the regular quarterly dividend will be supplemented by an extra dividend of probably 3 per cent, which was the usual rate until about a year ago.

The Chile Copper company is under way to expand present construction by 300 per cent, reaching a capacity of 500,000,000 pounds of copper per annum. Engineering plans should require about a year before getting under full headway and construction between two and three years.

Stock of the Willys-Overland company was up 23 points, following the action of the stockholders in voting an increase in the capital stock of $50,000,000 common and $25,000,000 preferred. The original capital was $25,000,000 common and $25,000,000 preferred.

The advance in Corn Products Refining company shares is attributed to a belief that the concern will not be held to have violated the Sherman anti-trust laws and that hereafter a larger volume of earnings than heretofore will be shown.

The New York Central has petitioned the Ohio public utilities commission for permission to issue $12,000,000 4½ per cent equipment trust certificates to be sold at 96 and secured by purchases of cars and locomotives.

Articles of incorporation have been filed in Albany, N. Y., by the Jewel Tea company with capital $16,000,000. It will take over the business of the Illinois corporation of the same name.

It is estimated the forthcoming report of Cluett, Peabody & Co. will show net earnings 30 per cent better than 1914. This would be equal to $2,000,000, making a record for the company.

HIGHER PRICED STOCKS GAINERS

Advances of 7 to 27 Points in Specialties Sole Features of the Trading.

Total sales of stocks, 415,000 shares.

Total sales of bonds (par value), $4,345,000.

New York, Jan. 15.—Aside from some very substantial advances in a few of the closely held high priced specialties, such as Bethlehem Steel, International Nickel, and American Coal Products, in which gains ranged from 7 to 27 points, today's short but active session developed few features of interest. The more moderate priced issues of that same class tried to keep pace with this movement, but met with indifferent success, some closing with net losses.

Mexican shares were once more offered in large quantities, Mexican Petroleum and American Smelting being subjected to renewed short selling. United States Steel was under steady pressure, with resultant heaviness, and final dealings in Crucible Steel, Lackawanna Steel, Baldwin Locomotive, and Studebaker left those stocks quite generally under the previous session's closing quotations.

Rails Irregular.

Rails were at all times backward and irregular, New York Central, the Harrimans, St. Paul, and Eries being sold by houses with foreign connections. Some of the utilities, particularly telegraph and telephone shares, added to yesterday's gains.

As a group, Mercantile Marine issues again dominated the list, the preferred stock making another new high record on its advance of 2⅛ to 82¼, while the 4½ per cent certificates made a new maximum on their rise of 2⅛ to 101⅜. Trading in Marine preferred was larger than in any other stock, far exceeding the turnover in Steel or any of the better known speculative favorites.

United States coupon 3s and registered 4 declined ¼ per cent on call during the week.

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Money and discount rates were quiet today. American exchange was a shade easier at 4.77 for cable transfers. The stock market closed the week extremely dull and uninteresting. There were only a few transactions in th French loans, rubber shares, and Argentine rails. The latter, it was said, were bought for American account. American securities closed steady and a fraction higher. Bar silver, 27d per ounce. Money, 4¼@4½ per cent. Discount rates: Short bills, 5¼ per cent; three months, 5¼ per cent.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Trading on the bourse was quiet today. Rentes were quoted at 63.30. Exchange on London was quoted at 27.91.

Four Generations of Investors

Some little time ago we received a gratifying letter from one of our Eastern clients from which we quote:

"It is quite an interesting fact that the fourth generation of our family are looking to you as safe custodians of their little property. My grandmother invested with you when I was a little girl, and now my daughter, who is just twenty-one, is asking if she cannot have some of her money placed with you. Have you a gold bond for $500, and one for $100?"

The young lady referred to has since purchased two bonds—making the fourth generation of satisfied investors in that family.

THE two purchases of John G. Shedd, president of Marshall Field & Co., featured last week's real estate market, which made a surprisingly good showing in view of the exceedingly unfavorable weather conditions which prevailed during a good share of the week. Mr. Shedd's purchases in themselves would have made the market of an eventful character, but they were supplemented by important transactions in other classes of property, notably Robert H. McElwee's acre purchase north of Lake Bluff, another big purchase by W. F. Kaiser & Co. in the vicinity of their Arcadia terrace subdivision, together with several noteworthy deals in apartment house property.

There was in addition considerable doing in medium priced outside business and flat residence properties, as well as vacant. In other words, it was a broad market, and in the number of really important transactions carried through compared favorably with the previous week, which was commented on as being a remarkably fine showing for this time of the year.

Both Deals of Interest.

It would be difficult to say which was the more interesting of Mr. Shedd's purchases, that of the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank property or his purchase of the Beidler property on the west side. Of course, the amount of the consideration and the general interest which attached to the disposition of the La Salle street bank property, as well as the prominence of Mr. Shedd in a business way, imparted an unusual degree of interest to this purchase.

At the same time the fact he, who heretofore has confined his investments to downtown property, should go over into the west side business district and make an investment of $200,000 is an exceedingly significant event from a real estate investment standpoint. It certainly should encourage west side owners in the belief that the shrewdest and most successful of investors evidently have a high regard for property in this part of the city.

Efforts to Sell It Recalled.

Much interest also attached to the sale of the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank property because of the prominence which it acquired by reason of the collapse of the institution which once owned and tenanted it, as well as by reason of the several unsuccessful efforts which were made to dispose of the property at a satisfactory figure since William C. Boyden's first bid of $388,000 for the property.

Joseph W. Moses, attorney for the creditors, was insistent that a better figure could be secured for the property, which was justified by the figure secured in the final sale of the property to Mr. Shedd for $405,600, which bid was made by Albert L. Strause, who represented Mr. Shedd.

Drops Out at $405,500.

Mr. Boyden bid up to $405,500, when he dropped out. Much curiosity has been aroused among real estate men as to the identity of his principals. The belief among many is that he represented the Ayer estate, owner of the remainder of the property in the block, and the logical purchaser of the property. It is known the estate was figuring on the property, and there is much force to the suggestion that Mr. Boyden's bids were in its interest.

The property fronts thirty-eight feet on La Salle street, with a depth of sixty feet on Quincy street, and is improved with a twelve story fireproof building which was valued by the board of review at $160,800. The land was valued at $243,178.

It is interesting to note that the property was sold by John G. Mallers to Granger Farwell in 1911 for $450,000 and by the latter to the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank for a reported consideration of $500,000. It is stated the bank expended $100,000 in improvements on the building.

Pays $200,000 for West Side Corner.

Mr. Shedd's west side purchase was the acquirement from David Beidler of the property at the northeast corner of Washington boulevard and Union street for $200,000. It fronts 168 feet on Washington street and 152 on Union, extending back to Waldo place, a forty foot street, and is improved with a five story and basement building largely occupied by the Chicago Mat Board company.

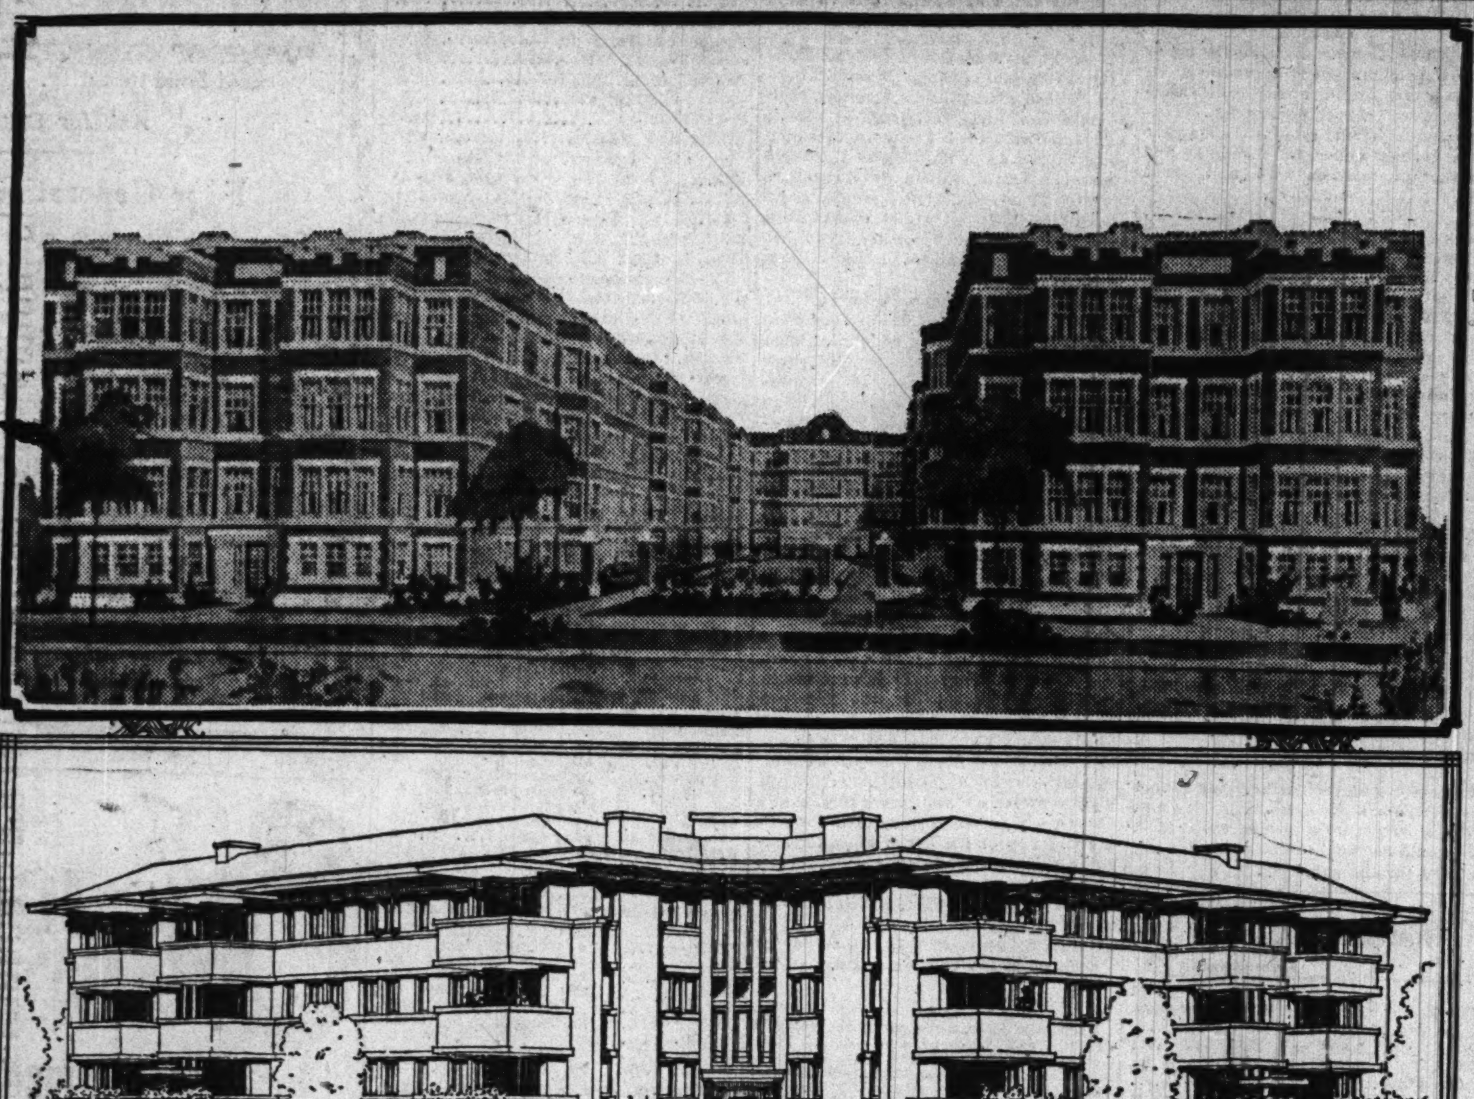
The purchase is said to have been made as an investment and no changes in the property are contemplated. Including the building, the sale was at the rate of $7.83 a square foot. Jackson Bros. were the brokers and will have charge of the property.

HIGHWAY FOR MEMORIAL.

OTTAWA, Can.—[Special.]—A stone highway to cost $600,000 is to be built from Ottawa, Canada, sixty miles south to the St. Lawrence river international boundary. It is stated that the road is to be built as a memorial to the late J. P. Whitney, premier of Ontario.

MORE MODEL FLAT HOMES GO UP.

New Apartments Facing Jackson Park Between Sixtieth and Sixty-first Streets Shown in Upper Picture. Below Is Modern Oak Park Structure Being Erected.



AN attractive new south side building is the Park View apartments, in Stony Island avenue, between Sixtieth and Sixty-first streets, now in course of construction. The building contains forty-two apartments of three, four, five, and six rooms. Some of them have two baths, with sun parlor, and are provided with the latest improvements. The building is on a lot fronting 150 feet in Jackson park, with a depth of 200 feet. The apartments will rent from $42.50 to $80 each, and it is estimated the annual rent will be $26,800. S. W. Straus & Co. have made a loan in form of serial bonds of $115,000, from one to seven years.

A particularly interesting building is the eighteen apartment structure now in process of construction at the southwest corner of Linden avenue and Ontario street, Oak Park. It will occupy a lot 150x165 feet, with a forty foot building line on Linden and thirteen feet on Ontario street. The building is a decided departure from the conventional apartment building, and was planned with the purpose of affording a maximum amount of light for each apartment. It was designed by John S. Van Bergen and will be under the management of Dunlap & Co. The apartments will rent at $65 to $85.

OUTSIDE BUSINESS SITES DEMAND TAKES A SLUMP.

Little of importance was done on outside business property during the week.

Record was made of the sale by the Samuel Cupples Woodenware company to Thomas C. Moulding and William Goldsmith, trustees, of the leasehold interest in the 125x100 feet of ground at the northwest corner of Illinois and St. Clair streets and the six story warehouse thereon for an indicated consideration of $68,000, according to the revenue stamps on the document. The ground is under a lease for a term of ninety-nine years from Jan. 1, 1908, at an annual rent of $2,000. The purchase is said to have been made as an investment.

Charles F. Lank has bought from Andrew M. Dahlquist the property at 3613-15 Lawrence avenue, 50x125 feet in extent, improved with a building containing two stores and four flats, for a reported price of $25,000, subject to an incumbrance of $15,000. In part payment the buyer gave the vacant 47x120 feet at the southeast corner of Division street and Oakley boulevard, and the lot at 2228 Belmon avenue, for $7,500, subject to $2,500 incumbrance. H. W. Meyer & Co. negotiated the transaction.

The property at the northeast corner of Menard and Chicago avenues, 50x125 feet with brick business improvements, was conveyed by Henry Thiele to Gustav G Huerlin for an indicated consideration of $17,000, subject to an incumbrance of $12,000. The grantee subsequently conveyed to the Standard Trust and Savings bank for the same consideration.

The property at the northwest corner of Stewart avenue and Seventy-ninth street, lot 196x133 feet, with improvements, has been sold by J. J. Brooks to Arthur C. Kussman for an indicated consideration of $45,000, subject to an incumbrance of $25,000.

FAMILY HOTEL FOR THE MIDWAY

Million Dollar Corporation Plans 10 Story Structure at Stony Island Ave.

If the necessary financial arrangements can be made the American Cities Hotel corporation will erect a ten story 400 room fireproof family hotel, to cost around $500,000, at the southwest corner of Stony Island avenue and the Midway. The land, 176x150 feet, was placed under a contract of purchase during the week from L. G. Fisher at a consideration of $60,000.

The corporation is capitalized at $1,000,000, and it is said over $200,000 of the stock has been subscribed by about 400 people. A. S. Coyle, who was connected with several Chicago real estate promotion schemes, is president; J. F. Letton former general manager of the Galvez hotel at Galveston and the Bentley at Alexandria, La., is vice president, and George Percy of Chicago is secretary.

Big Garage to Be Built.

N. Landon Hoyt is to build for the occupancy of the Yellow Cab company what is said will be the largest garage in the country. It will occupy 100x200 feet, north front, on Twenty-first street, 131 feet west of Michigan avenue, will be four stories high, of reinforced concrete construction, and will cost about $180,000. Mr. Hoyt has leased it to the cab company for twenty years at an annual rent of $2,500 for the land and 8 per cent on the cost of the building.

Gustav G. Anders has sold to Edward A. Bertha the 145x150 feet at the northeast corner of Woodlawn and Madison Park avenues for a reported consideration of $30,000. This is a part of the old Dunham estate property, recently acquired by Mr. Anders. Mr. Bertha will at once improve the corner with an extra high grade three apartment building to cost about $30,000. The apartments will contain seven rooms, with sun parlors and three baths, and are expected to rent at about $200 a month. He will also improve the rest of the frontage with two high-grade three apartment buildings. John A. Carroll & Bro. were the brokers.

24 Flat Building Planned.

Record has been made of the purchase by Frederick Becklenberg, the builder, from Louise M. Trainer of the property in Michigan avenue 200 feet south of East Forty-second street, 100x116 feet, east front, for an indicated consideration of $15,500. Mr. Becklenberg will improve the property with a twenty-four apartment building.

Two interesting transactions in the new south shore district involving important improvements are reported. One is the purchase by Levi Nelson, the builder, of the property at the northeast corner of Sixty-ninth street and Dante avenue, which, it is stated, he will improve with a twelve apartment building to cost about $50,000. S. H. Harrison of H. F. Norcott & Co. was the broker.

East End Avenue Sale.

The other was the purchase by Henry F. Norcott of the property at the northeast corner of Sixty-ninth street and East End avenue, 87x125 feet, upon which he has started the construction of a high grade eighteen apartment building, to be known as the Rhinelander, to cost in the neighborhood of $90,000. Mr. Harrison also was the broker.

FLAT PROPERTY MOVES FREELY ALL OVER CITY

Milwaukee Men Buy Costly North Side Apartments; Big Kenmore Avenue Sale.

There was much doing of an important character in apartment house properties during the week.

Two nonresidents—Alvin P. and Herman O. Kletzsch of Milwaukee—appeared as purchasers in the most important of the flat sales. They acquired from Louis Rosenbluth of Chicago the extra high grade twenty-three apartment building at the southwest corner of Clarendon and Leland avenues for an indicated consideration of $155,000, subject to an incumbrance of $90,000.

The building is on a lot 125x124 feet, and the building is divided into apartments of five, six, seven, and eight rooms, with two baths, showers, and vacuum cleaning system. It is directly opposite the old Wilson beach, which is to be acquired for a small park and boat lagoon. A clear farm was given in part payment by the purchasers. E. B. Woolf & Co. and George W. Stewart & Co. were the brokers representing both parties.

Sale in Kenmore Avenue.

Another big north side deal closed late in the week was the sale by H. M. Crowe to George H. Thomas of the new thirty-six apartment building at 5311-29 Kenmore avenue, 100 feet north of Berwyn avenue, for an indicated consideration of $126,000, subject to an incumbrance of $75,000. The apartments contain four and five rooms, and the building, which occupies a lot 200x150 feet, is said to have a gross annual rent of about $19,000.

A big Oak Park deal was the sale by Callistus S. Ennis, Dr. R. A. Harlan, and A. L. Fridstein to John J. Rutherford of the property at the northeast corner of Washington boulevard and Ridgeland avenue for a reported consideration of $100,000, subject to an incumbrance of $75,000. The building was completed last November. Dunlop & Co. were the brokers.

Good Deal on the South Side.

An interesting south side transaction reported was the sale by Dr. W. H. Knap to the Oak Hills Farm company of Indianapolis of the new twenty-seven apartment building, on a lot 125x160½ feet at the northwest corner of Prairie avenue and Forty-fourth street, for a reported consideration of $140,000, subject to an incumbrance of $70,000. When recorded, however, the revenue stamp showed that only $20,000 was paid for the equity. In part payment the purchaser conveyed a farm of 720 acres near Kankakee, Ill. The building is stated to have a gross annual rent of $15,500, and the transaction was negotiated by Giles P. Corey & Co.

Another noteworthy south side transaction made a matter of record was the sale by D. L. Frank to Abraham Silver of the property at the southwest corner of Sixty-fifth place and Blackstone avenue, lot 70x125 feet, with twelve apartment building, for an indicated consideration of $51,500, subject to an incumbrance of $41,500.

Thirty Flat Building Sold.

The thirty apartment building at 4814-22 Hutchinson street has been sold by Karol Glakowski to Samuel A. Smith for a reported consideration of $68,000, subject to an incumbrance of $52,000. The purchaser conveyed in exchange, the business property at 5711-15 South Ashland avenue, lot 50x125 feet, improved with a new building containing three stores and two flats; also the property at the northeast corner of Chicago avenue and Mozart street, 25x125 feet, improved with a building containing one store and eight flats, and the four flat building at 4034-36 Hirsch boulevard on a lot 50x125 feet, the three properties being valued at $52,000. Louis H. Shapiro & Co. represented Mr. Miller, and John Le Vant & Co. represented Mr. Glakowski.

The twelve apartment building at the southwest corner of Schubert and Richmond streets has been sold by William R. Mitchell to Samuel B. Friedman, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $23,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment the property at 3743-45 Montrose avenue, containing two stores and two flats, subject to $5,640. E. C. Jacobs of F. P. Basko & Co. was the broker.

The flat property in Cornell avenue 117 feet north of Sixty-ninth street, lot 60x125 feet, east front, has been sold by E. N. Larson to May L. Fountain for an indicated consideration of $24,500, subject to an incumbrance of $14,000.

The property at the northwest corner of Ashland boulevard and Van Buren street, 80x180 feet, with brick improvements has been sold by Mary C. Brown et al. to Thomas J. Ahern, for an expressed consideration of $35,000.

Sheridan Road Flat Sold.

The premises at 4942 Sheridan road have been sold by Isadore Hoffman to Samuel Lederer for a reported price of $23,000, subject to $7,800 incumbrance. Krause, Beak & Co. closed the deal.

Thomas Tagney and De Forest A. Matteson have purchased from Thomas Boyle the property on Diversey parkway, sixty feet east of Cambridge avenue, 97x150 feet, south front, for an expressed consideration of $25,000. T. S. Bullock has sold to D. H. Steinmetz the property in Twenty-first place 138 feet east of Loomis street, 325x127 feet, north front, and other property, subject to an incumbrance of $25,800.

Basil D'Emo, engaged in the advertising business and about to move to New York, has sold his attractive residence at 2336 Commonwealth avenue to John E Wells for an indicated consideration of $26,000, according to the revenue stamps on the document. The dwelling is an attractive structure containing eleven rooms, and is on a lot 35x222 feet. Paul Steinbrecher & Co. were the brokers.

ERECT ADAM'S MONUMENT.

GARDENVILLE, Md.—[Special.]—The first monument in America to Adam has been erected here. The memorial to the claimed first of the species is a square of concrete with a sun dial on top and the inscription on one of its faces, "To the Memory of Adam, the First Man."

Leases and Loans.

There was nothing of special movement in the way of leases and loans reported and filed for record during the week. The most important in the way of leases was the one by the T. E. Foster Shoe company formerly located at 123 North Wabash avenue, which building recently was destroyed by fire, from Herbert C. Metcalf the store and basement at 115 North Wabash avenue, 25x162 feet, for a term at a total rent of $137,000. It is stated the lessee will expend about $25,000 in remodeling the building. Willoughby & Co. were the brokers.

They also have leased for W. H. and E. H. Farrington from Horace Wright Cook and Charles H. Hill, trustees of the estate of Martha S. Hill, the second floor of the building at 110 North Dearborn street, 72x80 feet, for a term rent of $56,000. The space has been remodeled and will be occupied as the "Bonnie Cafeteria." Harry M. Kipley had charge of the negotiations.

The downtown district also figured in an interesting lease closed by E. F Keebler & Co., who have leased for Henry C. Lytton, president of the Hub Clothing company, to the Golden Fur company the top floor of the building at the southwest corner of State and Quincy streets, which disposes of all the space in the building, 50x100 feet, four stories and basement. It formerly was occupied by the Hub Clothing company and is all rented to various tenants at a rental of $45,000 annually.

Other tenants who have taken space in the building are the John Gately company, Mandel's Hungarian restaurant, the London Fur and Raincoat company, the Raymond Jewelry company, Machinis' billiard hall, the Apollo Lunch company, Eger Cigar company, and the Garden City Fruit company, all the leases having been negotiated by Keebler & Co.

The Chicago Title and Trust company was trustee in a loan of $125,000, six years at 5½ per cent, to Anna P. Smithson et al. on the Busby apartments, east front, on Indiana avenue, between Twentieth and Twenty-first streets, 373x161 feet. Also a second loan of $25,000 at 6 per cent.

It also was trustee in a loan of $90,000, five years, at 6 per cent, to John H. Hardin et al. on the property, northeast corner One Hundred and Twenty-first street and Carondolet avenue, 1,320x1,436 feet.

Baer, Eisendrath & Co. have negotiated a loan of $42,000, for five years at 6 per cent, to William Mason on six high grade three apartment buildings to be erected on Birchwood avenue, near Ridge boulevard. The same firm also has underwritten a bond issue loan of $25,000 for five years at 6 per cent to Albert O. Fried, on the new ten apartment building in process of construction at Belle Plaine and Lavergne avenues.

Henry C. Morris has borrowed $100,000 for seven years at 6 per cent interest from O. H. Haugan, trustee, secured by the property at the southwest corner of Woodlawn avenue and Hyde Park boulevard, 158x164 feet in extent.

Thomas Tagney and De Forest A. Matteson also have given a trust deed to Augustus S. Peabody to secure a loan of $60,000, six years, at 6 per cent, on the Linden apartments, at the southeast corner of Lincoln and Berenice avenues.

The Fort Dearborn Trust and Savings bank is trustee in a loan of $50,000, seven years at 6 per cent, to Henry F. Norcott on the Rhinelander apartments, at the northwest corner of Sixty-ninth street and East End avenue.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $60,000, six years at 6 per cent, to Frederick Becklenberg on the Michigan apartments at 4220-28 Michigan avenue, on 98x160 feet of ground.

The Union Trust company is trustee in a loan of $61,000, seven years at 6 per cent, to Louis F. Braun on the Prattland apartments at the northeast corner of Pratt and Ashland boulevards.

Four trust deeds aggregating $73,000, bearing 6 per cent, have been given by Emanuel Levy to the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, on the property in Lakewood avenue, fifty-seven feet north of Farwell avenue, east front, 100x140 feet. Of the aggregate amount $55,000 matures in six years, $14,000 in two years, and $4,400 is payable quarterly.

RECORDER'S ABSTRACT HELD GOOD BY SUPREME COURT.

County Recorder Joseph H. Connery calls attention to the fact that merchantability of the recorder's abstract is further upheld in a recent decision of the Illinois Supreme court. The decision has aroused lively interest among lawyers and real estate men.

Section 18 of the Illinois land registration act (Torrens system) provides that in proving the title of applicants "the examiner may receive in evidence any abstracts of title or certified copy thereof volume 270, Ill. Reports, page 390, held by makers of abstracts."

The Supreme court of the state in the case of Walther vs. Glos, reported in volume 270, Ill. Reports, page 390, held that an abstract of title made by a county recorder under chapter 115 of Hurd's statutes, 1913, which provides that the recorder when required by the county board shall furnish abstracts of title for the public, may be received in evidence by the examiner the same as abstract of titles made by private concerns.

It would appear from the foregoing decision that if one agrees to furnish an abstract of title or a "merchantable" abstract of title, the recorder's abstract would be tendered with the assurance that the abstract of title would be sustained by the court.

ACRES ACTIVE ON NORTH SHORE AND WEST SIDE

Robert H. McElwee Buys Tract of 78 Acres for a Country Home.

Acres figured prominently in the week's market and especially north shore acres, which have been particularly active during the last few months. One transaction, involving acres north of Lake Bluff, is of particular interest both because of the prominence of the buyer, Robert H. McElwee, as well as the extensive character of the improvements involved.

He purchased from the Chicago Real Estate Investment association, an syndicate controlled by McGuire & Orr, large operators for a number of years along the north shore, a tract of seventy-eight acres, being a part of the land known as "Lakewoods," adjoining the famous "Crab Tree" farm of Mrs. Scott Durand. It is a part of the syndicate's holding of 875 acres at this point with approximately a mile of lake frontage.

915 Feet on the Lake Front.

The parcel just sold is at the south end of the tract and embraces a frontage on Lake Michigan of 915 feet and extends back approximately 3,700 feet to the highway just east of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad and the Chicago-Milwaukee Electric line.

The deed conveying the property recites a consideration of $10. The revenue stamps on the deed amounted to $163, indicating a purchase price of $163,000, which is a trifle over $2,000 per acre. It is understood that Mr. McElwee obtained a material concession on the price at which the property was held, in consideration of his improving the property and being the first purchaser in this tract.

Much Development in Section.

There has been considerable development and activity in the neighborhood of this property. Last year Edgar J. Uihlein purchased twenty acres immediately south of and adjoining Mr. McElwee's purchase, which he has started to improve for a country home, having already erected fireproof service buildings.

The location of the land purchased by Mr. McElwee is one mile north of the Lake Forest syndicate which McGuire & Orr operated successfully, and in which they sold over 150 acres to Stanley Field, A. A. Sprague II., H. B. Clow, Roy McWilliams, and Mrs. C. Morse-Ely, nearly all of whom have built magnificent country estates.

Lake Forest acres figured in another notable transaction, the purchase by Lawrence Williams from the C. O. Young estate of sixty-one acres on Greeny Bay road, on both sides of the Skokie river. The price is not disclosed, but it is understood the asking price was $30,000. It is understood Mr. Williams plans the erection of a handsome country home. The land adjoins the Ralph Poole estate, and the sale was negotiated by John Griffith.

Bank Buys on West Side.

Another transaction, also made a matter of record, was the purchase by W. F. Kaiser & Co., the State Bank of Chicago taking title, from W. A. Peterson of two tracts comprising altogether forty-nine acres on North Crawford avenue, between West Bryn Mawr and Peterson avenues, and on Bryn Mawr, between Crawford avenue and the Chicago and Northwestern railroad right of way, for an expressed consideration of $83,600.

The property, which formerly was a part of the Peterson Nursery property, is thought to have become more available for subdivision purposes by reason of the extension of the Crawford avenue car line, which is now in operation to Bryn Mawr avenue, also the construction of the Bryn Mawr avenue sewer. Peterson station on the Northwestern road is on the property.

Kaiser & Co. have also purchased from James N. Litsey a tract of ten acres which has already been platted as their Fifth addition to Arcadia terrace. It is located on Peterson avenue, just east of Western avenue. The operations of Kaiser & Co. at Arcadia terrace began in 1914, and these last purchases bring their subdivision purchases up to 373 acres.

MAROONS LOSE BASKET GAME TO HAWKEYES

Page's Pupils Beaten in Rough Affair by Free Throw Failures.

BY MAROON.

Iowa nosed out the Maroons in the last two minutes of a heartbreaker last night at Bartlett gymnasium, 19 to 18. The final whistle came with the ball under the Chicago basket and a chance for a score likely. The failure of the Maroons to take advantage of the roughness of the Hawkeyes cost them the game, for Clark and Townley were able to score only four free throws out of thirteen chances, while Capt. Von Lackum of Iowa registered seven out of his nine tosses.

Two baskets by Roy Parker, who lifted his ineligibility ban yesterday after a strenuous quarter in the classroom, gave the Maroons a four point lead in the first three minutes. Iowa then caught Page's men on two sensational shots by the speedy Bannick.

Scuffle On the Floor.

At this point Parker of the Maroons and John Von Lackum got into a scuffle, and the Hawkeye kicked Parker while he was on the floor. Referee Angell joined the pair and removed Von Lackum from the hostilities. Schiff replaced the twin brother of the visiting captain. In the second half Dutton was ousted for four personal fouls.

The score was tied at the end of the half by Parker on a sensational basket at 8 to 8. The Maroons came back strong in the second period and took the lead. Iowa tied it up and the remainder of the half was a struggle to keep ahead of Capt. Von Lackum, who was shooting his free throws with regularity.

With two minutes to go, Schafer scored from the center of the floor and the Maroons were a point ahead, but Nevin's basket a few seconds later was decisive. Lineup:

Illinois, 21; Ohio State, 10.

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Leader was the only Ohio State thrower able to penetrate the gilt edged defense of the Illini tonight when the Buckeyes were beaten by a score of 21 to 10 without much exertion on the part of Jones' champions. Leader caged two baskets, but the rest of the Buckeye points were garnered from his free throws.

The Illini went to the fore at the start when Alwood caged two baskets, and maintained a comfortable lead all through. Capt. Woods played a sensational game. Norton's guarding of Ralph Woods was a feature. Lineup:

Wisconsin, 31; Minnesota, 11.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—After Minnesota had led Wisconsin through the first half, the Badgers came back in the last round tonight with a burst of speed breaking through the stubborn Minnesota defense for a victory, 31 to 11. The game finished with the Cardinals showing invincible team work, the Gophers being desperate in their efforts to keep down the score. Lineup:

Wisconsin [31].		Minnesota [11].

Purdue, 26; Indiana, 17.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Indiana's basketball team crumpled before the improved attack of Purdue here tonight, taking the small end of a 26 to 17 count. The Boilermakers were easily the better, although the downstate quintet led by two points at the end of the first half, when the count stood 12 to 10. Capt. Stinchfield of Purdue was injured and had to leave the floor in the last half.

ST. IGNATIUS FIVE TRIMS ST. JOSEPH COLLEGE, 72-5.

St. Joseph college of Rensselaer, Ind., furnished little opposition for St. Ignatius college five and lost a one sided farce, 72 to 5, in the "Iggy" gymnasium. The visitors scored a free throw in the first half while the locals were making thirty-five points. McNulty with fifteen baskets and Cunningham with fourteen led in scoring. In the first contest the college lightweights defeated the Holy Trinity team, 18 to 10. Lineups:

Amateur, Del Monte, July 17-22.
Open, Minikahda, Aug. 17-18.
Junior, Hinsdale, Aug. 22-24.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Pulling, slicing, topping of drives, and playing in the rough marked the annual meeting of the Western Golf association, held at the Blackstone last night. The delegates got into a wrangle and squabbled until a late hour, when they at last got together and awarded the amateur championship to the Del Monte Country club of Del Monte, Cal.

The final vote stood 134 to 71, the deciding ballot being taken after oratorical approach shots that brought about the worst mixup ever experienced in the history of the national body. The scrap arose over the action of the California Golf association representatives, who offered to furnish a special train on which to take the middle western players to the Del Monte club.

Warm Debate Follows.

This offer brought the delegates to their feet and for a while pandemonium reigned. It was pointed out that the offer of the special train, which carried with it the payment of the players' expenses, might jeopardize their amateur standing and the decision to accept the proposal of the Californians was reached after a hot and interminable debate in which everybody took part.

At last a vote finally was taken on the straight offer to run the championship and the question of accepting the special train offer was left until later in the night when more balloting was indulged in and many more oratorical broadsides were fired.

While the balloting was going on the woes of the delegates were added to by another mixup that involved two of the leading organizations in the association. This situation came about when it was discovered that the Midlothian Country club and the Omaha Country club, both of which had been candidates for the tourney, had in some manner been left off the ballot. It was supposed that the two organizations had withdrawn from the running, but they had not done so and their delegates became huffy and for a time threatened a deadlock.

The Midlothian and Omaha men charged irregularities, but later were calmed down by the other delegates.

After the vote awarding the tourney had been taken the delegates started balloting on the question of allowing the players to ride on a special train paid for by the California association. This again started trouble and the meeting began to look like an all night affair. Last week the executive committee, which had heard of the special train offer, had by a vote of three to two decided that the action would professionalize the players taking part, but last night the delegates thought best to take up the matter and vote on it.

Balch Re-elected President.

George R. Balch of Cincinnati was reelected president. The regular ticket, which had no opposition, was as follows:

President—George R. Balch, Cincinnati.
Vice president—Trustin T. Boyd, Bellerive C. C., St. Louis.
Secretary—E. Hoover Bankard, Midlothian, Chicago.
Treasurer—C. C. Paddleford, Flossmoor, Chicago.
Directors—Horace F. Smith, Nashville Country club; William F. Brooks, Minikahda club; E. S. Armstrong, Los Angeles C. C.; William J. Foye, Omaha Country club; Arthur B. Caldwell.

EASTERN GOLFERS FIRST IN ADMEN'S TOURNAMENT.

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 15.—An eighteen hole medal play best ball event, with 102 entries, concluded the advertising men's golf tournament today. Class A winners were D. M. Parker of Garden City and E. J. Ridgeway of Montclair with 83—5—78. H. B. Green, Baltimore, and W. R. Roberts, Morristown, with 91—5—86, were first in class B. W. R. Hotchkiss, Montclair, won first prize for men in the all-week clock putting contest and Mrs. C. W. Beck Jr., Philadelphia, first prize for women.

The contest in class C resulted through a curious coincidence in both scoring and handicapping in a triple tie for the prize among G. S. Thorsen, Chicago, and J. W. Doty, New York; C. E. Beane, Woodland, and F. L. E. Gauss, Siwanoy; T. K. McIlroy, Governor's Island, and J. M. Thorsen, Sleepy Hollow. All three teams made the round in 91 gross and 85 net.

In the same division Guy S. Osborne, Westmoreland, and S. Wilbur Carman, Merion, scored 99—6—93, and J. F. Matteson, Chicago, and R. T. French, New York, 100—6—94.

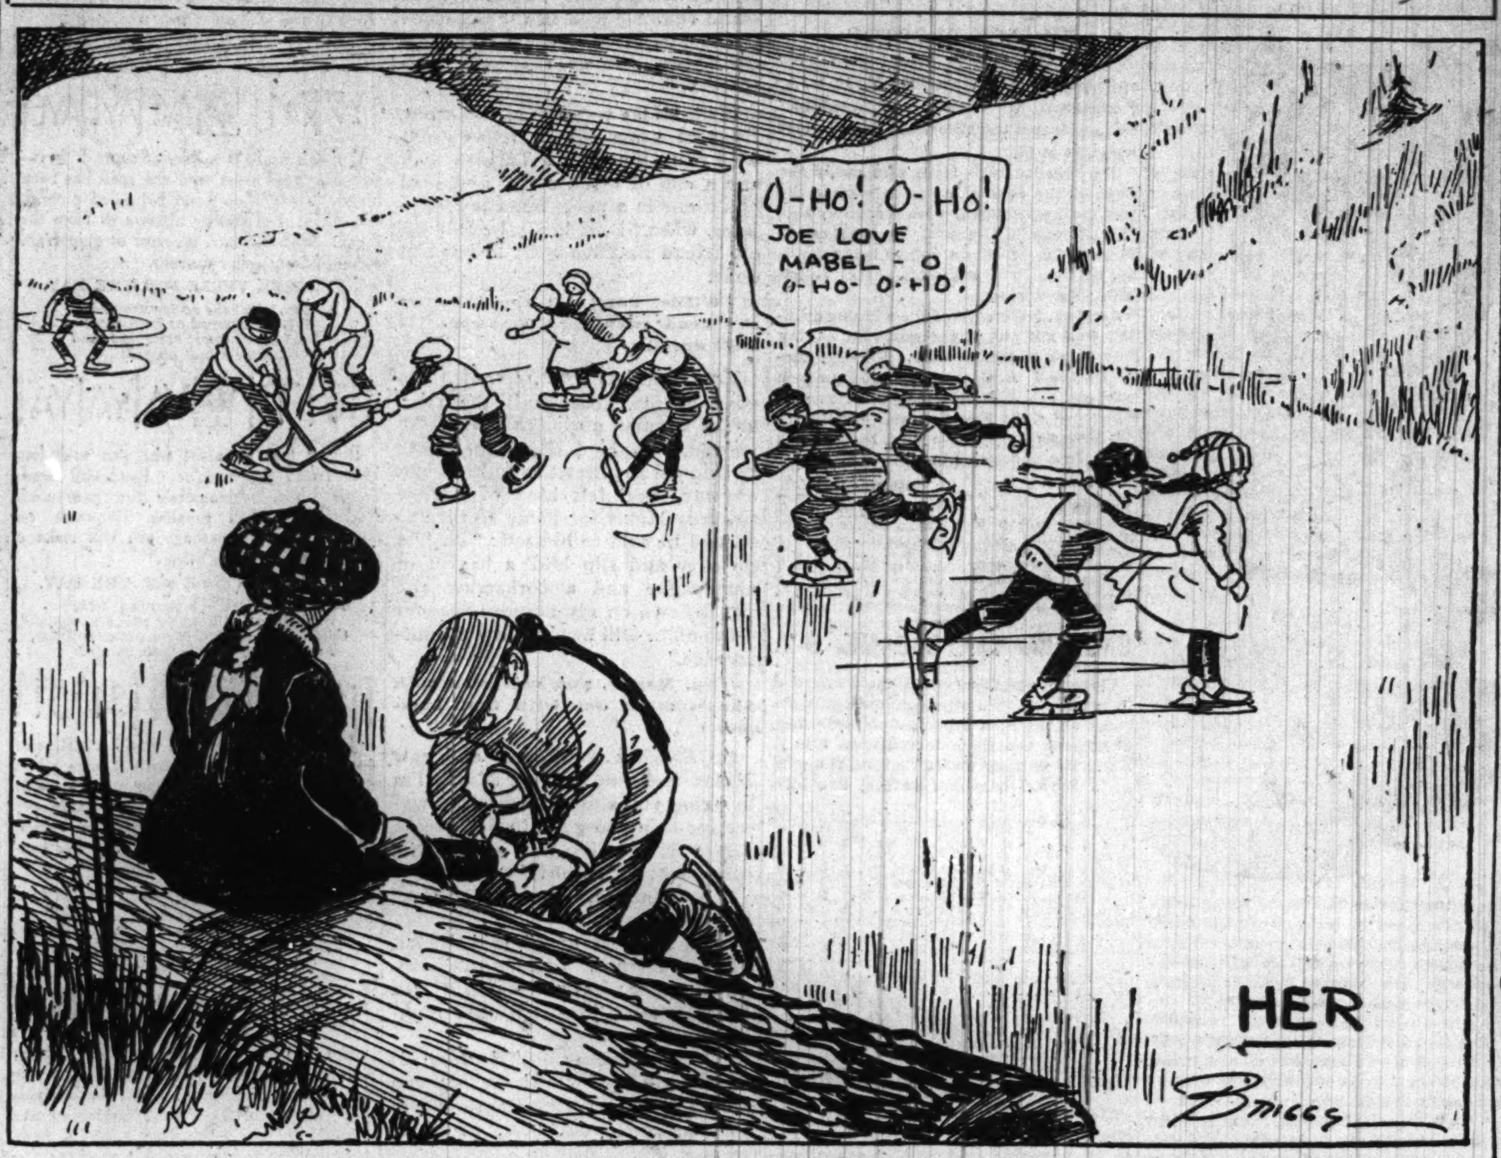
THE DAYS OF REAL SPORT.



LINKS AMATEURS CAN'T TAKE JOBS IN SPORT STORES

In its capacity of lord high executioner the executive committee of the United States Golf association has added the amateur who commercializes his skill to the list due for decapitation.

At its meeting held yesterday morning at the University club the following rule was adopted, and will be added as clause 6 to the defining of an amateur:

> Accepting or holding any position as agent or employé that includes as part of its duties the handling of golf supplies, or engaging in any business wherein one's usefulness or profits arise because of skill or prominence in the game of golf.

Would Hit Ouimet.

This is the most drastic measure yet adopted and hits several of the leading players. Francis Ouimet, open champion in 1913 and amateur champion in 1914, recently announced his intention of opening a sporting goods store in Boston. Under the new rule he cannot retain his amateur standing.

John G. Anderson, runner up in last year's amateur championship at Detroit, is employed by a big dry goods house in its sporting department, and it is expected he will come under the ban.

There are scores of players of lesser skill who will be affected by the ruling, mny of whom are members of clubs, and if the lines are to be drawn as tightly as the new rule indicates they will be unable to compete in their club events, although it is not likely their club standing would be jeopardized.

Sees Improved Conditions.

One prominent local manufacturer expressed satisfaction that the national body had taken decisive action, stating that so many evils have been creeping into sports like golf and lawn tennis that it is time a halt were called and competitions be confined to real amateurs.

NORWAY GIRL LEADS SKI STARS WITH 122 FOOT LEAP.

Miss Anna Anderson of Norway, now in Chicago visiting friends, defeated jumpers of the Norge Ski club at the Gary slide yesterday. G. Petersen, who was nearest Miss Anderson's mark,, was beaten by four feet, leaping 118 feet to the mark of 122 set by the young woman.

A feature race next week will be a two mile cross country event on skis, for women. Ten entries are already in. Thirty applications have been received by professionals and amateurs for competition in the open classic. Entries close on Thursday, with C. A. Engedahl, 2509 North Hamlin avenue.

KIECKHEFER WANTS CHANCE.

Not satisfied with his defeat last year by Alfredo De Oro, August Kieckhefer, the young Chicago southpaw, yesterday challenged the winner of the De Oro-Ellis match for the world's three cushion championship. Kieckhefer deposited his forfeit with the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company. Charley Ellis, now of Pittsburgh, is the Interstate Three Cushion league champion, and defeated De Oro in a special exhibition game here shortly after the Kieckhefer match. No date has been set for the Ellis-De Oro match.

In the Wake of the News

The Diary of a Siren.

JAN. 10.

IT'S all over between Geo. Barnes and I. He got in town last Wed. and called me up and I was cold to him over the phone because I made a New Yrs. resolution that I would not lead any man on after this unless I was sure that my feelings towards him was more than meer friendship. So when he didn't call up or come around to see me Thurs. or Fri. I begun to get realy alarmed and was afraid he had became desprate and done himself a mischief. "How would I feel," thought I, "was I to pick up the paper some A. M. and see the news of his haveing taken his life by his own hand and I would always feel like a murdress." When this idea come into my head I was nearly frantic and made up my mind that I would locate him at once for fear I wouldn't be on time. After calling up several of the A No. 1 hotels I happened to think of he haveing asked me for Hazel Graham's phone No. and prhaps in a fit of spite towards me had gone to see her and she would know where he was located. So I called Hazel at her home and asked her point blank if she knew his whereabouts. "Who wants to know," she said. At first I was attempted to tell her it was none of her busness but another of my resolutions is to be democratic under all circumstances so I told her my real name. "He is here right now," said Hazel. "But he says he has not got time to talk to you." "Let him tell me that himself," I said keeping well in check. But she hung up the phone. Geo. there? Of course he wasn't and I knew it or he would of insisted on knowing who I was and then wild horses couldn't have kept him from that phone. I found out day before yest. where he was stopping and failing to get him on the phone I sent him this note.

"Dear Geo," I wrote. "I have decided that things have gone far enough between you and I. Try to make the best of it, and if you should want to see me one last time I will not deny you. Any way call me up tomorrow A. M. With love. Clara."

But Geo. has not called up and I am afraid he is drinking to forget. O that I didn't have a conscious to trouble me.

JAN. 12.

I will not hardly dare look at a paper tomorrow A. M. I am speechless with fear that my picture will be in it and notoriety is certainly the last thing I am looking for.

Comeing home on the L last night the train was crowded and a young man quite a good looker got out of his seat and let me sit down. I thanked him and he begin at once to presume on his small act of curtsey. "I sit down all day," he said. "Work in an office some where?" I said trying to be polite. "Yes," he said, "in the city hall." "Your right close to me," I said. "I am in the Grand Opera House bldg. Room 311." "Is that so?" he said. "Yes," I said. And trying to be pleasant I said. "I am never to busy to talk over the phone to friends." "I am," he said and I seen at a glance that he was trying to flirt. As luck would have it there was a policeman on the car. "Here," I said to him. "This young man is a masher." The young coward that had got so fresh tried to sneak out on the platform and into the next car. But I pointed him out and the policeman grabbed him and give him the balling of his life. Then the policeman come and took my name and address and promised me the young cur would leave me alone the rest of the way. But the papers got a wind of it some way and I had not been home an hour when the phone rung and a reporter wanted me. I told him the facts and he asked if he could have a picture if he come for it.

"Not under no circumstances," said I. But he coaxed and coaxed and would not hang up the phone till I promised him a picture so he come out for it and I give it to him but told him to please not print it but he said he could not promise. We had quite a talk and finally he went. I wish I had a better picture and I will be furius at the paper if they print my picture.

JAN. 13.

I will never buy another copy of the Tribune as long as I live. After begging me and begging me to let them have my picture and putting me to all the trouble of sending over to Joe Klein whose got the only decent picture of me that I have had taken since I was a little girl because I am not the kind of girl that wastes all their money getting pictures taken and then they go and don't print the picture. I have called them up three times today trying to get that reporter on the wire but they keep telling me he isn't in and won't be in till evening just as if he was a watchman and worked nights. I will keep calling them up till they are sick and tired of hearing from me and I will never buy another of their papers as long as I live. And I will insist of them giveing me my picture back. Who knows but they might take it into their head to run it any morning. I would make them pay dear for it if they did.

SAWYER AND BOLE VICTORS OVER EVANS AND NEVILLE.

The new indoor course at Rothschild's, which was opened yesterday, received a bigger baptism than was on the regular program. Ned Sawyer, former western champion; Joe K. Bole of Cleveland, former Ohio champion, opposed Charles Evans Jr., western champion, and Jack Neville of San Francisco, former Pacific coast champion, in a 36 hole match, the Chicago-Cleveland combination winning, 1 up.

Evans and Neville won the first five holes and led, 4 up, at the end of the first round.

"TRIBUNE" DECISIONS

At Brooklyn—Soldier Bartfield beat Jack Toland (10). Leach Cross beat Walter Mohr (10).

LEAGUES BREAK FAMOUS REVOLT BY BALL PLAYERS

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Concerted rebellion by ballplayers against organized baseball has occurred only once in the game's history, and the records of the Brotherhood revolt in 1890 were such that there has been no attempt by the pawns of the sport to wreck the machine in the twenty-five years since their first disastrous uprising.

The Brotherhood of Professional Base-ball Players had been in existence several years previous to the rebellion, which probably would not have occurred at all but for the blind pride and chestiness of the National league club owners. Under the influence of John T. Brush of Indianapolis, then a member of the National league, the self-appointed rulers of the game undertook to reduce the growing sport to a strictly business basis.

Low Salaries Bring Revolt.

A classification rule, for which Brush was sponsor, was adopted for the purpose of keeping salaries down to a hard and fast scale. By it the players were divided into five classes, the lowest of which were entitled to $1,500 salaries and the highest to $2,500. The latter figure was the topmost limit. Some idea of the strides made by baseball in twenty-five years can be gained from that wage scale, which would start a riot if it were even suggested in these days when a bench warmer draws more than the star of 1890.

To make matters worse, some of the club owners evaded the Brush scheme and paid their stars higher salaries, while other club owners lived up to the rules, thereby causing great dissatisfaction. All efforts by the Brotherhood leaders to obtain a hearing from the prosperous magnates failed. Consequently the players secretly organized a league of their own during the season of 1889. The profits of the sport made it comparatively easy for the players to tempt capitalists to furnish backing for teams to be made up of star players, and the Brotherhood guaranteed the stars.

To Share Profits Equally.

An eight club league was made up under a copartnership agreement which beat anything ever attempted, before or since, in the way of syndicate baseball. All clubs shared alike in the profits and the players also were to share equally with the capitalists. The reserve rule was absolutely abolished and the players had an equal voice with the backers in the government of the league, which was in the hands of a board of directors. It was an idealistic, communistic dream, all right, but its greatest weakness was that there was no hard and fast provision for sharing the deficits equally, and deficits appeared mighty early.

The Brotherhood circuit was made up of Boston, Brooklyn, New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, and Chicago, and an all-star team was provided for each city. This circuit was identical with that of the National league except in Buffalo. The old league changed its makeup a little.

Three Clubs in Philly.

The American association, torn with internal dissensions, had a nonconflicting circuit except in Philadelphia, where all three organizations were represented, but the association took little active part in the fighting, which was conducted by the National league with great

ROSENWALD A PROSPECT, SAYS NEW PRESIDENT

A "TRIBUNE" SCOOP.

AT the time of the baseball peace conference in New York, James Crusinberry, staff correspondent of "The Tribune," wrote a story that J. Ogden Armour would be associated with Charles H. Weeghman in the proposed purchase of the Cubs. The story was derisively denied by other baseball writers at the time. Mr. Armour's denial, through his secretary, adroitly stated that no such connection then existed, thus keeping within the letter of fact, while "The Tribune" story anticipated what happened. Baseball men who know what is going on from the "inside" have expected right along that Mr. Armour's name would be found among the stockholders of the combined Cubs-Whales.

Weeghman at Callahan Dinner Affirms Yarn Printed Month Ago.

HONORS TO IRISH GENT

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

The fact that J. Ogden Armour, Chicago's millionaire meat packer, is associated with Charles Weeghman in the purchase of the Cubs from Charles P. Taft was given the official stamp last night when Weeghman, who is to be the new president of the Cubs, made the statement from the banquet floor when called upon for a speech at the dinner given James J. Callahan by members of the Majestic club at the Great Northern.

In the presence of 200 prominent Chicagoans, friends of Callahan, Weeghman announced that three of Chicago's biggest business men were interested with him in the north side proposition, and that a fourth was to be seen at a later date. The first of the three named by Weeghman was J. Ogden Armour. The next was William Wrigley Jr. and the third was given as the president of one of Chicago's biggest banks, the name being withheld under promise. The fourth, whom Weeghman is to see at a later date, is Julius Rosenwald, head of the Sears-Roebuck company.

The announcement that Armour and Wrigley were stockholders in the new company which is to run the Cubs came as a surprise to every one present. Although THE TRIBUNE announced several weeks ago that Armour was to be one of the members of the new syndicate, the report was denied and the name of Armour was forgotten in that connection.

Weeghman was one of the early speakers called upon; in fact, the second on Toastmaster McCullough's list, and when the north side magnate arose to his feet he was given a round of vigorous applause. He told briefly of his work in acquiring the Cubs, and then spoke of a meeting in his office of stockholders and friends of the new venture.

Four Biggest Men Named.

"I told my friends and associates to name the four biggest business men in Chicago," said Weeghman, "and then said I would go out and see them personally regarding taking stock in the purchase of the Cubs. The first one named was J. Ogden Armour. The next was Julius Rosenwald, the third was the bank president whose name I must keep secret, and the fourth was William Wrigley.

"At first I didn't expect the financial support of these men, but I talked to them. Much to my joy Mr. Armour took up with it and so did Mr. Wrigley and the banker. I haven't seen Mr. Rosenwald yet, but expect to before long."

At the close of the banquet Weeghman declared that he really hadn't intended to give the names of the prominent business men associated with him until the actual transfer of the Cub stock had been made on Jan. 20.

Election After Transfer.

When asked just what percentage of stock was held by the big business men Weeghman declined to give the figures but said ti wasn't a controlling interest, but hinted that it was a large enough portion to cut some figure. He also was asked if Mr. Armour would be on the club's board of directors but said that was something he didn't know at this time. After the stock is transferred on Jan. 20 there will be a formal meeting of the new owners, at which officers, including a board of directors, will be elected.

The speech by Mr. Weeghman was really the sensation of the dinner party, and many of those present, who also were prominent baseball men, considered the entry of such men as Armour into the baseball business as the greatest boost the national game ever has experienced. It was thought that with the names of Armour, Wrigley, and the bank president on the roll of stockholders of the north side club, along with Weeghman, Walker, Plamondon, Schuettler, and other members of the corporation, the combined wealth of the Chicago owners represents more money than ever was behind any baseball club in the past.

Callahan Dinner Success.

The Callahan dinner was one of the biggest baseball successes of the season in Chicago, being attended by many prominent Chicago men, as well as some from out of the city. One of the latter was Col. Frank Smith of Dwight, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Illinois as well as a warm friend of Callahan's. Col. Smith was among those who responded to toasts.

The dinner was a farewell affair to Callahan, who is soon to leave for Pittsburgh to take up his new job of managing the Pirates, and indications are that whenever Pittsburgh comes to play the Cubs here there will be a lot of Chicago men rooting for Pittsburgh simply because they are hoping that Callahan can win a pennant down there.

Chief of Police Healey was among the speakers and promised Cal police protection when he comes here to battle Tinker's team, even if Cal does win the game. Joe Tinker, Germany Schaefer, Bill Corbett, and Joe Farrell were among the others who had to do stunts, and between courses a male "quartette," composed of Gene Green, Bruce Watson, and six other fellows, filled in with harmonious noise.

SPIDERS UNSOLD; A. A. MAGNATES PASS OVER DEAL

BY SAM WELLER.

American association baseball magnates assembled in Chicago yesterday for their annual meeting and, among other things, decided never to meet in Chicago again. It was explained that there was no bad feeling against Chicago but it was thought better to hold the league meetings in the cities represented in the association.

The A. A. will choose these meeting places in alphabetical order, so the next meeting will be in Columbus, Feb. 28. At that time a schedule will be adopted and a committee was appointed yesterday composed of President Wathen of Louisville, President Schoenborn of Columbus, and President Cantillon of Minneapolis, to draft a set of playing dates to be submitted to the magnates at the next session.

No Action on Cleveland.

Much discussion was given to the Cleveland-Toledo situation, but nothing definite was done at yesterday's meeting. There was a report that Roger Bresnahan was in Cleveland talking to the owners of the franchise with the hope of getting it to move to Toledo. A further report was that Charles Thomas would be associated with Bresnahan. Thomas was at the meeting, talking with various members of the association, but said he knew nothing definite regarding the situation at Toledo.

The magnates adopted a resolution against the free issue of passes at ball parks and limited the number of the home club to 100 passes a day. Any club exceeding that number shall be liable to a fine. Part of the business of the meeting was the official awarding of the pennant to Minneapolis.

Penalty for Postponements.

A rule was made to prevent the postponing of games without sufficient cause, and a penalty of $125 named in connection with it. The magnates assembled in the morning and were busy until 8 o'clock at night, when they adjourned to meet in Columbus.

Every club in the organization except Cleveland was represented at the meeting, those present being: President Tebau and Manager Shea of Kansas City, President McGill and Manager Hendricks of Indianapolis, President Schoenborn and Secretary Quinn of Columbus, J. W. Norton and Manager Kelley of St. Paul, President Cantillon of Minneapolis, A. F. Timme of Milwaukee, O. H. Wathen and Thomas Barker of Louisville.

WHITE SOX BOOK MORE GAMES FOR SPRING TRIP.

Secretary Grabinger of the White Sox announced yesterday that six more exhibition games have been booked for the south siders on their training trip to Texas. The schedule is not completed yet, but inside of another week it is thought all will be ready for the invasion of the Comiskey party.

The games which have been closed are at Dallas, Fort Worth, and Houston, and come after the Chicagoans will have had about a couple of weeks of drill in the camp. The first team will perform at Dallas on Saturday, March 18, while the second team is in Fort Worth. On the following day the order will be reversed.

Two games have been arranged for the first team at Houston, Tex., on Saturday and Sunday, March 25 and 26. Houston is an all night's ride from the training camp, and probably is the only long trip from training quarters which will be made.

KANSAS CITY CLUB BUYS PHELAN, HARGRAVE, BECK.

President Weeghman of the Cubs reduced his supply of thirty-odd athletes by three yesterday when, through Manager Tinker, he announced the sale of two west siders and one Whale. Artie Phelan, utility player, "Bubbles" Hargrave, and First Baseman Fred Beck were sold to the Kansas City team of the American association. Manager Danny Shay of the Blues bought the players for $1,500.

Deerfield Basket Tossers Beat Light and Heavy Rivals from Bloom.

BY OTTO A. ENGEL.

Deerfield High school, making its initial bow to the Suburban league, won two basketball games last night, defeating Bloom township fives. Deerfield took the heavyweight contest, 24 to 13, after trailing, 10 to 11, at half time. Carlson featured the attack with six ringers. The lightweight game resulted in a 14 to 10 victory, with the score 9 to 8 at intermission time favoring Deerfield. Lineups:

Fournier White Sox Puzzle; Will He Be Regular in 1916?

JACK FOURNIER.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

FOR the last two years White Sox baseball fans have had arguments regarding the ability of Jack Fournier, the sturdy and heavy hitting French boy of Comiskey's squad of warriors. They all agree that he can hit and they all agree that he is a poor fielder, and the argument starts when some one says the Sox would be better off to keep him out of the game, except as a pinch hitter.

As a matter of fact, Manager Rowland has faced the same problem and tried it both ways, and indications are that he will face it again next spring and perhaps try both ways again. The fans like Fournier because he always shows a fighting spirit and they know he is trying desperately to win the ball game and, at the same time, increase his batting average.

After many stories had been printed exploiting the batting prowess of Fournier and deploring his weakness in the field, the young player grew self-conscious and for a time last season was so nervous that his fielding became even worse, in fact, so bad that finally he was taken out so that he might gain peace of mind.

There was one day that the French boy had a comeback, for things went quite the reverse. The team was playing in Philadelphia and Jack went to bat four times and got nary a blow. He fanned twice and popped up a couple of weak flies and as a batter looked fit only for a class D league.

In the field that day he was a sensation. He nabbed several wild throws to first base, some of them necessarily with one hand. He scooped a hot grounder and pegged a runner out at the plate, and once he stabbed a roller, shot to second for a force play, and completed a double play at first. At all times he handled himself in a way that would have made Hal Chase jealous.

After the players had returned to their hotel and had eaten dinner, Jack strolled out in front, where a bunch of his mates were gathered. Taking a position near them he addressed the following remark to an imaginary companion:

"Do you know Mr. Jacques Fournier of the White Sox? He's a great fellow and you ought to meet him. He's a rotten fielder, but he sure can hit that pill."

Perhaps there never was a ball player who loved a base hit more than does Fournier. When he is hitting in his regular stride, he's as gay and happy as a school boy. But if he gets into a slump and goes a couple or three days without a blow, it is unpleasant to be in his company.

Once last spring the Sox were engaged in a four days' session against the Tigers in Detroit and Fournier went hitless for the first three days. When the fourth day arrived he was all unstrung and any one who crossed him was in danger of being punched in the jaw. Three times that afternoon he went to bat and failed to land the ball to safe ground. Finally the fourth time up he hit one on the nose right over second base, as pretty a line drive as one would care to see.

The Sox left Detroit that night for St. Louis and after the train was well under way, Fournier joined a group of war scribes in the smoking compartment.

"Well, fellows," he said, "I nearly had a great story for you to send to the Chicago papers. That blow I got the last time up spoiled it. When I walked up to the plate that time I had made up my mind that if I didn't get a hit, I would end it all tonight by diving through the car window after the train got up speed. I'm sorry I had to disappoint you on the story."

When the war broke out in Europe Fournier's mates on the White Sox jokingly rebuked him for not quitting baseball and going at once to help the French lick the Germans.

"I'd like to go," declared Fournier. "It wouldn't scare me a bit to be in one of those trenches and take pot shots at the Germans whenever they dared to show their heads. I wouldn't have the least bit of fear when those shells were breaking around me, either. If one ever hit me, I wouldn't know it anyway. There's only one thing about war I don't like. The first time they ever gave the order to charge bayonets, that's when I would quit."

TRICOLOR QUINT TRIMS BROWNS BY 34-18 COUNT

Freiling Banished Under Foul Rule; Feeney Stars with Ringers.

BY JACK PROCTOR.

Before the largest crowd that ever crowded into the West Side Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, the Illinois A. C. basketball team defeated the West Side Browns last night, 34 to 18.

The tricolor club team was easily the class of the contest, as was shown in the first half, when the Browns were only able to make one field basket. The half ended 18 to 8, the other six points being made by Butzow, who registered six points from free throws.

Freiling, left guard of the winning quintet, was put out of the game for having four personal fouls called. Feeney, center on the I. A. C. team, scored four field baskets, and Johnson, the right forward, registered eight free throws. Butzow of the Browns scored two field baskets and eight free throws. Lineup:

The Story of Midas.

Once upon a time long ago, dear children, there was a kink whose moniker was Midas.

(Willie, if you interrupt me again I'll bust you on the beak.)

I forget what he was the kink of, but it doesn't make any difference. One day, as he was sitting on his throne playing pinochle with the courtiers, somebody brought in a guy named Silenus who had been found running wild in the cabarets.

(Mamie, stop kicking Willie on the shins. Those are your new shoes.)

Well, Midas was a good old scout. He sent some of the fellows out with Si to give him a Turkish bath and a cup of black coffee and send him home in a taxi. So, a few days later, when Si got home, he told his old friend Bacchus what Midas had done.

(Willie, don't hit the baby on the head with that hammer. It isn't ours.)

Now Bacchus was one of them wine agents, soused all the time, and a regular goshdernit with the women. Maybe I should not have mentioned Bacchus to you kids, but, anyway, Bac' felt kind of mellow towards Midas for being so nice to Si, and he said to himself: "I'll just go over and slip Mid' a basket of champagne and a corkscrew and put it down on my expense account—the office will never know the difference."

(No, Mamie, you mustn't knock baby's tooth out with that hammer.)

So Bacchus went over and saw Midas and said: "'Lo, Mid.' I'm bringing you a flock of wealthy water for being so good to Si."

And Mid', who was a forgetful cuss, said: "Si who?"

"Si Sanborn, you poor nut," howled Bacchus.

"Oh, I know now," said Midas. "It was Silenus. Yes, he was in an awful shape; been drinking creme Yvettes, mint juleps, Scotch highballs, etc., for a week."

"Well," Bac' said, "if there is anything else I could do for you let me know. I'm pretty strong in the city hall, you know." And he winked.

(Why should I know why he winked, Willie?)

"It's like this Bac'," said Midas. "It costs a lot of money to be a kink and support a throne in the manner to which it has been accustomed, and I can't stall off that landlord and butcher much longer, and the electric light man was around today and threatened to turn off my lights if I didn't pay up."

Now Bacchus, before he went wrong and became a wine salesman, use to be a counterfeiter. So he taught Midas how to make phoney money and went on his way. For weeks after that Midas was literally coining money and he had almost enough money to pay off his debts when the Secret Service got after him.

They got the goods on Midas for counterfeiting and they sent him to the Coop for twenty years.

(No, Mamie, he didn't meet Uncle James there. He was in a different jail.)

Next week I will tell you the story of Atalanta and the A. A. U.)

KIECKHEFER RUN FEATURES WEEK ON CUE CIRCUIT

Local Three Cushion Expert Goes Out in 44 Innings; Shifts by Players.

August Kieckhefer's record breaking score was the feature of play in the interstate Three Cushion league last week. Playing against James Maturo, the local southpaw went out in forty-two innings, which is low mark for the league. The previous record for the league was forty-four innings, made by Charles Ellis at Cleveland last March.

Charley Morin of Weeghman's room made his reappearance in the league last week after an absence of several weeks and will start on another road trip tomorrow, meeting Maupome at St. Louis. Young Marcus Catton, who is representing Cooler's room at Indianapolis, played his first game last Wednesday, losing to Lean. Catton takes the place of Charles La Mothe of Cincinnati.

James Maturo, who is substituting for John Moore of Flenner's was on tour last week and played several good games.

FULTON UPSTART IN BOXING GAME; TITLE ASPIRANT

Kansan Hot on Trail of Champion Willard, Fellow-Jayhawker.

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

If ever a fighting man believed in himself that man is Fred Fulton, the Rochester, Minn., giant, who is trying his hardest to arrange a meeting with Jess Willard, heavyweight champion of the world. Fulton is an upstart in the game of pugilism, and he admits that he has much to learn. His career as a ring man has been brief, but it has been successful. His greatest achievements have been scored through the medium of a good right hand, with which he has registered numerous knockouts.

Looking at Fred Fulton, one sees a gawky, bony giant, who would not impress one as being a possible heavyweight champion. Carrying 6 feet 4 inches of height, and not being overburdened with flesh, the Minnesota giant does not present a formidable appearance that would indicate in any way the ability to fight.

The man with whom Fulton is trying his hardest to arrange a match is a Kansan. So is Fulton. Not long ago Fred remarked that it was strange none of the scribes had called attention to this fact.

Fulton was born in Blue Rapids, Kas., on April 18, 1892. If ever there was a booster for the state in which he was born that man is Fulton. The new ring giant did not remain long in Blue Rapids, however. When 5 years old his parents took him to Wymore, Neb., where he remained until he was 12 years old. His education in the grammar school grades was obtained there.

The giant had ideas of his own by the time he had reached the mature age of 12 years, as evidenced by the fact that he quit home and started out to shift for himself. His first move was westward, and he finally landed in Colorado. On his arrival there he set out to learn a profession. His opportunity came in the plastering line, and by sticking close to the job he became a journeyman.

Restlessness seized Fulton, and he located in Rochester, Minn., when 15 years old, there taking up the plastering trade. Two years later he achieved the honor of becoming a contractor, and to this day he prides himself more on that than on anything he has accomplished in the prize ring.

"You know that any one who becomes a plastering contractor at the age of 17 is certainly doing something out of the ordinary," said Fulton recently. "That is what I did, and, believe me, I am some plasterer."

But this does not explain how it happened that Fred Fulton became a fighting man. He didn't know that he possessed slugging caliber until one day a Minneapolis detective named Norman King happened to drift into Rochester. King took one peek at the giant and saw that he had the size.

Fulton answered a question as to whether he had ever made a fight. "No, I never fought anybody, but I am willing to take a chance. I don't care how big they are, because they can't be very much bigger than I am."

The big fellow made a hit with King, who quickly began to frame up plans to make a fighter out of the Rochester giant. Up to that time Fulton never had seen a pair of boxing gloves, let alone have a pair on his huge hands.

It so happened that work at this time was scarce in the plastering trade, and the stuff that tickles the palm of the hand was not coming in any too fast, so Fulton was willing to take a chance at pretty nearly any game that would bring in the "jack."

Frank Force, a Minneapolis newspaper man, was tipped off by King to the possibilities in a pugilistic way that were represented by Fulton. Force did not waste any time getting into communication with the Rochester giant, so Fulton made a trip to the newest half of the Twin Cities.

It was then up to Force to find something for Fulton to do to earn his meat and potatoes. He was strong enough to get a job for Fulton on the police force, and the department boss immediately installed the giant as a traffic cop. Fred was put to work the first day he landed in Minneapolis, and he is still talking about the things that happened on that job.

"It certainly was tough going, all right," said Fulton. "People would dash up to me and ask me where was this and that building. Of course I didn't know. Then I would have to stall. I'd say, 'Down that way a block,' but as far as I know the building for which they were inquiring might have been a million miles away. I held that job for a time until they shifted me to a worse one, which meant that I was out on the line to pick up crooks."

When Force took Fulton, he was figuring on the latter's fighting ability, the sleuth job naturally being a side issue. Force did not waste any time in trying to find out whether Fred had the making of a fighter. He immediately stacked him up against a bunch of heavies in Minneapolis, Tom Gleason, Jack Doyle, and a couple of others whose names are not familiar to the fighting fans. Fulton cleaned up the bunch in clever style and showed principally that he could land a knockout punch.

This successful start was all that Fulton needed. He determined to stick to the game. But he found securing matches was not easy, for he broke company with Force, his first manager.

Finally Fulton got the idea that if he went to California he could get matches. This mission proved a most disastrous failure. He nearly starved on the coast and was forced to return to Minneapolis. But one thing that he did on the coast proved most helpful to him in the fighting game. He took a course of twelve lessons from Kid McCoy, the old time heavyweight, who was considered one of the cleverest men in the ring. But an empty stomach was responsible for his return to the plastering trade, and he stuck to that profession until another chance in pugilism appeared.

That chance came when Mike Collins, his present manager, offered him a fight with Ben Tremble at Hudson, Wis., on Feb. 2, 1915. He licked Tremble. Immediately Collins became his manager.

Perhaps the greatest reason why Fulton should remain in the fight game is the fact that on two occasions he has put on the gloves with Jess Willard, present champion. They first met in an exhibition in a Minneapolis theater, and Fulton is credited with having the better of the bout. Later, after Willard became world's champion, he again met Fulton in an exhibition. This time Fulton clipped the champion on the chin and knocked him down. Ever since that time the Rochester giant has been trying to secure a match with Willard, whom he believes he can defeat.

Fulton is a married man and has a son 2 years old. He comes of a family of giants. He has six brothers who average 6 feet 3 inches in height. His two sisters are also large. His mother, who is still living, is nearly 6 feet tall and weighs 200 pounds.

MIKE GIBBONS AND AHEARN FINISH TRAINING FOR BOUT.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 15.—With a flash of pugilistic skill, Mike Gibbons and Young Ahearn tonight finished their training for their ten round match in St. Paul Tuesday night. Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday will be passed by a quiet.

Just a little excitement ended the training. Walter Larkin, Ahearn's trainer, was discovered in the shadows of the Gibbons gymnasium, according to Gibbons himself. He was quietly asked to leave. He did.

Johnny Tillman of Minneapolis acted as Mike's sparring partner for the final training. Mike's brother, Tommy, officiated.

Young Ahearn took Al Palzer, Johnny Salvator, and Kid Morris for the objects of his punches today.

Jack McGuigan, owner of the National Sporting club at Philadelphia, will referee the scrap Tuesday. Louis F. Dow of the Capital City Athletic club stoically maintains there will be a referee's decision. Minnesota laws prohibit it. Low declines to state how it will be done. A meeting of the boxing commission Monday is rumored.

KID LEWIS GOES THROUGH PACES

Ted (Kid) Lewis, the British welterweight, who is going to scrap Kid Graves in the ring of the Cream City Athletic club in Milwaukee tomorrow night, blew into our fair city yesterday afternoon, and, although it was late in the day, hurried to the Arcade gymnasium for a workout. Judging from the way he worked the train ride from Gotham didn't even make him tired, for he stepped three of as fast rounds as any one would care to see.

Lewis donned the mitts with Stockyards Tommy Murphy, who has it on him in weight by nearly fifteen pounds. When the stockyards person left the ring he bore plenty of evidence of the force behind the punches delivered by the Britisher. The best way to describe the boxing of Lewis may be done by Murphy, who remarked after the session:

"That fellow can hit, and he doesn't miss."

Kid Howard, the boss of the Arcade, announced that Lewis would take another workout there this afternoon, but late in the evening Tom Andrews, the promoter who is going to stage the Lewis-Graves mixup, was making frantic efforts to connect with the Britisher by long distance phone and have him come to Milwaukee to close his training.

Joe Rivers, the Spanish-American lightweight, departed for Cincinnati last night, where he meets Richie Mitchell on Monday in a ten rounder.

DARCY OUTPOINTS KNOCKOUT BROWN IN SYDNEY RING

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Jan. 15.—Les Darcy, the Australian middleweight champion, scored another decision victory this afternoon by defeating George [Knockout] Brown of Chicago in a twenty round battle. When Referee Scott raised the right hand of Darcy, signifying victory for the antipodes fighter, there were shouts of disapproval, for many of the ringsiders at the Rushcutters' Bay stadium believed the Chicagoan was entitled to a draw.

The contest was replete with action, due principally to the aggressive tactics employed by Brown. He was forcing the milling at all times, and even when halted temporarily by severe wallops, he came back for more. Brown didn't land as often as Darcy, but what punches he put over had plenty of force behind them. The Australian was given the decision by outpointing his rival and through a clever exhibition of boxing.

During the seventeenth and eighteenth rounds Darcy was so tired that he could scarcely raise his hands, but he had sufficient left to come back strong in the last two rounds. Of the two Brown was the stronger at the finish, and his work won a host of friends for him. A crowd of 16,000 fans saw the contest. The men weighed 160 pounds at 2 o'clock. On the showing by the battlers today it is almost certain that they will be rematched in the near future.

CONIFREY STAYS BEFORE KILBANE

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Frank Conifrey, New York featherweight, stayed in the same ring with Johnny Kilbane, monarch of the feathers, six rounds tonight.

Conifrey stayed, and that about expresses the reason why the Cleveland champion failed to put over one of his specialties—the K. O. punch. If the New Yorker had exchanged punches with the champion, there probably would be another story to tell, but Conifrey went into the ring with the idea of just remaining there for six rounds, which he accomplished.

At the close of the fifth round the little champion was so peeved at the "watchful waiting" of Conifrey that he strolled to the reporters' corner and announced that he was helpless to do anything in view of the fact that Conifrey was far superior to him as a hugger.

WAGNER WINS OVER BAUER.

Cripple Creek, Colo., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Billy Wagner, Chicago lightweight, won a decision here last night over George Bauer of Cripple Creek in twenty rounds of fast boxing. Bauer was outpointed and outboxed by the Chicagoan, who proved to be the cleverest lightweight ever seen in the local ring. Bauer was floored for a count of eight in the ninth round and knocked to the ropes many times.

JOHNSON LEADER IN SHOOT.

Although many local shooters are at Pinehurst, the Lincoln Park Gun club enjoyed good sport at the traps yesterday. In the hundred bird event, A. Johnson was high with an eighty-nine, while in the twenty-five target affair three tied for top place with twenty-four each. These were A. Johnson, W. R. Clifford, and A. H. Ammann. Scores:

One hundred birds—A. Johnson, 89; D. A. Raymond, 88; W. R. Clifford, 85; Dr. Lewis, 85; A. H. Ammann, 85; R. Davis, 78; W. Gwinn, 51; A. Brown, 55; G. Jorgenson, 67; J. Johnson, 57.

Twenty-five birds—A. Johnson, 24; Clifford, 24; Ammann, 24; Raymond, 23; Dr. Lewis, 23; J. A. Groves, 23; Davis, 22; H. J. Foster, 22; Jorgenson, 18; J. Johnson, 16; Gwinn, 14; A. Brown, 14; A. Smith, 13; L. O. Smith, 10.

SOME HAIRS from the TIGER'S TAIL and OTHER TALES

by Sam Summerfield

POKER: EVOLUTION OR DECADENCE?

It is said that nothing on this little old earth of ours is ever destroyed, but that changes are constantly taking place. This is as true of our national game of poker as of other things.

Despite impassioned oratory hurled against the game from the pulpit, activities of the various reform associations, rigid suppression by the authorities, and heavy penalties imposed on the players by the courts it still survives.

There is an old sporting "saw," "Once a poker player, always a poker player," and 90 per cent of it is true. While a few have dropped from the ranks, most of them continue to risk raids, arrests, fines, and contumely and continue to play. Which goes to prove that the game cannot be destroyed.

The changes, however, have been many and material, as any one that has followed the game for the last forty years can testify.

The game was originally played without a limit. A man reached into his pocket and bet what he felt like. If the amount wagered against a player exceeded his pile he called for a "show down," to the extent of his roll, and if beaten retired from the game.

Soon the game was almost universally changed to table stakes, which means that a player can only bet what stakes he has in plain sight in front of him on the table.

Up to this time the player in front of the dealer put up an "ante," and any of the others desiring to stay placed twice as much with it or raised, in which case those desiring to play for the pot "sized" up to the raise.

Then the speed mania, inherent in Americans, caused another change.

To make it faster, all "jackpots" was introduced.

On this every player put up an "ante" and the pot could not be opened except with a pair of jacks or better.

In the earlier stages of the game also the hands of value ranked pairs, two pair, trips, flushes, fulls, and sets of fours. Then the speed bug got working again and straights were added.

At the present time in Chicago there are also played big and little dogs and big and little cats.

In other parts of the country they have even also added kilters (from the deuce to the nine without a pair) and blazes (five cards, none lower than the jack).

Gradually "table stakes" passed into oblivion and "limit" poker took its place. This also was done to provoke more general play and accelerate the action, as a player would be tempted to take a chance in a pot where he could only lose a stipulated amount, whereas if there existed a possibility that he might lose his whole pile he would not come in.

Then to make the wheels go around still faster the game began to be played with two decks. The second man from the dealer shuffled the deck for him, the next man cut it, and more time was saved and more pots could be played.

Originally the limit usually played was $5 or $10. This limit was gradually reduced until now it is $2 and $3. This also helped to speed things up, players coming in oftener.

Then jackpots were gradually eliminated and opening with a pair of five spots or better introduced.

This still not being rapid enough, the game got to be played that the pot could be opened with any sort of a hand, and now the rule is that the pot is opened blind, each player in turn being compelled to open a pot before his cards are dealt to him.

As a fitting climax, low hand, or "low ball" poker has been introduced and has found many admirers. This is a variation of the game, where the smallest hand wins. Experts claim this to be the fastest of all for various reasons, the main one being that it affords greater opportunities for "bluffing" or outplaying an opponent.

And so the stretching point seems to have been reached and time alone can tell whether or no some inventive genius will be able to further increase the speed limit.

The difference in the old and the new game is very decided. The former by comparison was restful and gentle; the latter nerve racking and brutal, and can only be compared in intensity to the pursuit of the "mighty dollar" by our present day captains of frenzied finance.

Even the very personnel of the game has altered. Players of the old school like Curt Gunn, George Randall, Frank Shaw, Mose Cossman, Tiernan Wallace et al. (most of whom, by the way, have paid their toll to the ferryman for the voyage across the Styx), were grave, serious, and invariably courteous. A game would proceed for hours without an unnecessary word being spoken.

The modern player is usually nervous, quick, and boisterously and viciously aggressive.

"Old Benny."

Old man Zennett, endearingly designated for more than thirty years by friends and even slight acquaintances as "Old Benny," is the patriarch of the tribe of poker players.

No man would even try to approximately guess his age, but it has been hinted at by those that know him longest that he was a full grown man at the time the first white child was born in Chicago. Also that he received his early education playing poker with the Indians, then abounding around here, for pelts and skins, and, furthermore, that he never was the party skinned.

"Old Benny" has played poker all over the country at various times, but mainly confined his efforts to Chicago and Hot Springs, gravitating between the two places according to the seasons, north in the summer and south in the winter.

One of his peculiarities, amounting almost to an obsession with him, is that he does not like to risk his own money and much prefers to play a "stake." Of course, he has been known to play his own money, but only when there was no other way.

Of course, the original ethics of a "stake" are that if it be lost the player must make good one-half the loss as soon as he conveniently can.

However, Benny never was a man to worry over the morrow. That would take care of itself. Nevertheless, being a corking good player, he would generally find some one to furnish the wherewithal on the basis above mentioned.

Apropos of this a pal of his met him stumbling down the stairs leading up to a poker room in a Berserker rage, gesticulating and cursing most volubly and shockingly.

"Why, what's the matter, old sport?" questioned the new arrival.

"—— —— ——," blurted the old man. "I just had the toughest piece of luck happen that ever befell me."

"You don't say! What was it?" anxiously inquired the friend.

"I sat in that blankety blank double blanked poker game up there and lost over $400 without winning one pot."

"Gee, that is tough!" sympathized his crony. "But buck up; you'll get it back again."

"O, that ain't what's bothering me," wailed the old fellow. "I wouldn't care nothin' about that."

"Well, then, for the love of Mike, what was it?"

"Well, you see, some way I got my own roll and the stake mixed up, and before I found it out I had lost $14 of my own money."

determination both on the diamond and under the table.

As many as possible of the stars who jumped to the Brotherhood league were tempted back by coin, the ranks of the National's teams were filled with young players recruited from the minors, and schedules were made to conflict with the Brotherhood teams as much as possible. The result was a division of receipts which spelled losses for all hands, but the National league backers had the experience and willingness to lose the coin. The Players' league backers had no experience and were deeply peeved to learn that the sport was not the gold mine it was represented to be.

Distrust Wrecks Brotherhood.

The war lasted only part way through the following winter and ended in the death of the brotherhood from self-inflicted internal injuries. In an effort to embarrass the National league Al Johnson, backer of the Cleveland club in the Brotherhood league, bought the Cincinnati National league club. The deal was tied up in the courts, however, and the franchise was awarded to John T. Brush, ex-Indianapolis. In the winter the old league retaliated by secret methods which ended in the Brooklyn and New York backers of the Players' league selling out to the National. Next day there was a frantic rush by all the others to get in out of the cold.

It took nearly all the rest of the winter to clear away the débris, and then it was found impossible to satisfy everybody, so that another war broke out in 1891 between the National league and the old American association.

The Players' league was eliminated entirely by consolidating its teams with those of the National league in Chicago, Pittsburgh, New York, and Brooklyn, by buying out the Cleveland and Buffalo clubs, and by handing the Boston and Philadelphia clubs over to the American association, which also was given permission to locate a team in Chicago. That made the National's circuit include Boston, New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, and Chicago, and the association's, Boston, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Washington, Columbus, Louisville, Chicago, and St. Louis.

They started under a new national agreement, which lasted only a few weeks before an adverse decision regarding two players, claimed by the Philadelphia association club, resulted in the withdrawal of the American association and renewed war. Cincinnati became the chief battle ground. The association planned to place a team there under Al Johnson, who had tried to wreck the National league, but before the season of 1891 opened Johnson sold out his franchise to the National league.

C. A. Comiskey in Fight.

The American association blocked this deal in the courts and tried to run the Cincinnati team itself under the leadership of Mike Kelley. It was so complete a fizzle that it was transferred to Milwaukee, and practically everybody lost money.

The fighters of the association, among whom was Charles A. Comiskey, planned to renew the fight next season, and a number of National league players were signed for 1892. But, as in the case of the Brotherhood, there were traitors in camp and the association leaders were no match for the wily politicians of the National league. In consequence a scheme was hatched in secret which, when consummated, gave the old association its death blow and made the National league once more supreme, but with a white elephant on its hands in the shape of the twelve club circuit.

The ideal car for the woman who drives.

We are indebted to Mrs. Lois Morgan, 4836 Sheridan Road, for her photograph and interesting woman's reasons for preferring the King "Eight."

"My friends often ask me," writes Mrs. Morgan, "if it is really easy to drive a car, and invariably I answer 'Yes, if it is a King 8.' The car is so easily handled and easy running and its response to engine and brake is so instant and sure that I always feel perfectly safe. It doesn't tax my strength either, for my car can creep or speed without changing gears. You will readily realize how much we think of the King 8 when I tell you that we will have one of the new models after the show."

YOUNG FISKE SKATERS WIN CITY PARK HONORS

ALL CONTESTS CLOSE.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Youngsters under the direction of Charles Kann of the Fiske playground yesterday won the shield emblematic of the skating championship of the municipal playgrounds, with a total of 18 points. Representatives of the Commercial and Adams playgrounds were tied for second place with 6 points each, while the McCormick and Beutner playground performers were locked for fourth prize with five markers each.

The relay race, the result of which did not count in the point column, was won by the Commercial playground quartet. The event was over the four-fifths mile route, and the winning team won handily. The event was decided in two heats.

Victor by Five Yards.

The first heat was won by the Commercial team. The Adams playground representatives were second. The second brush went to the Fiske team, with McCormick in second place. The final race went to Commercial after one of the most interesting races seen on a municipal playground pond. It was nip and tuck all the way and William Steinmets, the last skater on the winning team, crossed the finish line five yards in advance of the last skater of the Fiske playground.

The events were held at the Hamlin playground, Sixteenth street and Hamlin avenue, and were seen by at least 2,000 persons, most of whom were mothers or fathers of the contestants or personal friends of the boys who have worked so hard to win the gold, silver, and bronze buttons donated by the playground system of Chicago in its attempt to get the little boys and girls out in the open.

Also in "Tribune" Tourney.

The same kids who took part in yesterday's championship events of the municipal parks are practically the same as those who will compete in the final events of THE TRIBUNE skating tourney to be held in Grant park early next month.

Theodore A. Gross, superintendent of the playgrounds of Chicago, looked after the staging of the events of his parks. The contests were postponed from last year because of lack of ice, and Mr. Gross and the directors who assisted him yesterday should be complimented for the way in which the events were staged. There were hundreds of kids who continually crossed the course, but there was not an accident of consequence reported, although several of the youngsters were knocked down by the older and stronger skaters.

Several contestants did not know what a second shot of the pistol meant. The directors had to stop the skaters and bring them back to the starting point because of their ignorance of the meaning of the recall shot. It certainly was a great day for the playground girls and boys.

Varied Yells for All.

"Go to it, Jimmy," was the remark often heard. "Beat the Fiske playground, Johnny," was another made by a kid when the relay race was being staged. "Go to it, Wesley," was another remark made by a kid whose ankles were not strong enough to hold his weight when Wesley Miller of the Fiske playground won the 220 yard race for boys in the 12 year old class.

One of the best races of the day was in the girls' class for those under 15 years of age. The event was won by Libbie Vanecek of the McCormick playground after a close brush with Anna Bergman of the Agassiz playground. The little girls, some attired in bloomers, were unable to hold their feet on the turns in their eager attempts to win the prizes. They fell, but they got right up and all finished, although the laggers were fully half a lap behind the winner.

Another interesting race was in the 10, 11, and 12 year old class for boys. It was an interesting duel between Wesley Miller and Donald Cameron of the Fiske playground. The little fellows skated stride for stride for the entire distance, and Miller won the gold button by two yards.

Exhibitions by Nelson.

August Nelson of the Sleipner A. C., one of the best fancy skaters in the country, gave an exhibition of figure skating and Arthur Staff, the promising local speed skater, tried to establish a new furlong record, but failed, because of the short course of the track. Staff skated the distance in :23 1-5. The record is :19 1-5, and is held jointly by Bobby McLean and Norval Baptie.

Following are the summaries:

220 yard race, for boys 10, 11, and 12 years of age—Won by Wesley Miller, Fiske; Donald Cameron, Fiske, second; Martin Golstein, Hamlin, third. Time, :28 3-5.

220 yard race, girls under 15 years of age—Won by Libbie Vanecek, McCormick; Anna Bergman, Agassiz, second; Tessie Mullen, Audubon, third. Time, :27 1-5.

1,000 yards, special race—Won by Art Staff, Northwest Skating club; Oscar Hansen, Northwest Skating club, second; Joe Kott, Northwest Skating club, third. Time, 2:06.

440 yards, boys 13, 14, and 15 years of age—Won by James Miller, Fiske; Julian Steinmetz, Commercial, second; Eugene Moreau, Corkery, third. Time, :56.

220 yards, girls over 15 years of age—Won by Virginia Cummings, Adams; Anna Moreau, Corkery, second; Mabel Larson, Christopher, third. Time, :40 2-5.

880 yards, boys under 18 years of age—Won by Lester Flavin, Fiske; Clarence Carlson, Commercial, second; Rudolph Krause, Adams, third. Time, 1:48.

Mile, boys 18 years of age and over—Won by Frank Hager, Beutner; Joe Kott, Christopher, second; Robert Leonard, Wrightwood, third. Time, 3:52.

Relay race, 4-5 mile, first heat—Won by Commercial; Adams, second. Time, 2:57 [Two to qualify.]

Second heat—Won by Fiske, McCormick, second. Time, 2:55.

CADDOCK SHOWS SKILLFUL WARES AT C. A. A. MATCH

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Earl Caddock, latest aspirant for heavyweight championship wrestling honors, appeared on the Chicago Athletic association mat last night and gave additional proof that he is of the right caliber to dispute the title against any of the other topnotchers.

The Iowa grappler, hailed as the logical opponent of Joe Stecher for the national title relinquished by Frank Gotch, took on Paul Martinson, who proved the toughest kind of a trial horse. In spite of Martinson's skill and strength, however, Cadock succeeded in pinning him to the mat in two straight falls, and he turned the trick so cleverly that he left no doubt in the minds of the Cherry Circle wrestling fans that he is one of the best exponents of the game developed in several years.

Strong in Defense.

Caddock not only showed remarkable offensive ability but proved himself a wonder at defensive work. On several occasions the powerful Martinson gained holds to which a less clever wrestler would have succumbed, but Caddock always managed to break them. Caddock won the first fall in 25:15 with a head scissors and wristlock. He took the second fall in 10:15 with a body scissors and wristlock.

Another grappler who made an impression by his fast and scientific work was Alex Kazan, claimant of the welterweight championship. Kazan met Young Amerious, who, while putting up a good defense, proved no match for the Wisconsin boy. Kazan took the match in straight falls, winning the first in 20:49 with a body scissors and wristlock and the second in 12:02 with the same hold.

Ketoney Shows Skill.

Waino Ketoney was the third star to make the show one of the best seen in the city this season. Ketoney, claimed to be the best man in the middleweight division, took on Tom Peters and disposed of him in straight falls. John Freberg found Tony Galup easy prey, while Marty Cutler and Jack Dribbs drew in an exhibition of their old familiar comedy stuff. Jess Willard, who had been billed for an address to the C. A. A. members, wired that he would be unable to reach the city in time for the show and promised to apear at the next affair. Willard gave as his excuse the fact that he and Frank Gotch were busily engaged in signing up for a season with the Floto shows.

CHICAGO HOCKEY PLAYERS TRIM AURORA TEAM, 7-2.

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The Northwest Skating club hockey team of Chicago defeated the Aurora Skate club team before a crowd of 3,000 people on the Fox river this afternoon, 7 to 2. The Aurora team was unable to match the speed and team work of the Chicago aggregation.

The Northwest players were the aggressors during the greater part of the game, but the brilliant work of Barnard, a native of Canada, playing goal for the local team, frequently turned them back.

Capt. Gowan of the Chicago team was the offensive star of the game, scoring four times from his position as rover, and always leading in the play.

SKATERS TO RACE 5 MILES.

The five mile handicap race, in which some of the best skaters in the central west will take part, will feature the annual skating derby of the Norwegian turners to be staged on the Humboldt park lagoon today. In addition to this event there will be events for boys and girls of different ages, and the first contest will be called promptly at 1 o'clock.

SINAI TAKES TRACK MEET.

The track team representing Sinai Center Men's club defeated Armour square last night in the former's gymnasium, 57 2-3 points to 19 1-3. The event attracted a large crowd and Price of the winning team was the individual star with twelve points. One of the best performances was the victory of Persson of Sinai, who won the half mile in 2:20, fast time considering the course. Farley of the winning team covered the mile in 5:23 and Schroer of Armour trotted the quarter mile in 1:01. The Sinai relay team, composed of Price, Persson, Lupton, Stern, and Pattorini, won the relay race.

CROSS AND BARTFIELD WIN.

New York, Jan. 15.—Leach Cross won a ten round decision on points from Walter Mohr tonight at the Claremont A. C. in Brooklyn. Both boys were fighting hard at the final bell. Soldier Bartfield defeated Jack Toland in ten rounds. Bartfield scored three knockdowns in the eighth round.

MATCH DILLON WITH MISKE.

Superior, Wis., Jan. 15.—Local promoters today received signed articles from Jack Dillon, who is matched to meet Billy Miske of St. Paul in a ten round no decision bout here Jan. 28. The articles stipulate 175 pounds at 3 o'clock the afternoon of the fight. The winner will be matched with some top notcher in Superior in February.

Italian Turner, World Star, Soon Will Invade America

BY J. J. ALCOCK.

Gymnasts of the United States will have to look to their laurels this summer. Alberto Braglia, three times Olympic champion, is going to invade America. He intends to break into competition wherever possible, and his record in three Olympic meets is sufficient to cause considerable concern among American turners.

Braglia is a product of Modena, Italy, which town also produced Francesco Verri, the famous six day bike rider, and Pietri Dorando, once one of the leading distance runners of the world. Because Braglia is an only son he escaped entering the Italian army, but conditions in his own country are such that he has decided a change of scenery might be healthful.

Carlo Lantieri, the bicycle promoter, has furnished some interesting information concerning Braglia. In the Olympic meets at Athens, London, and Stockholm the Italian turner swept all before him. He won a cup donated by the city of Praga in Austria. The trophy is worth 5,000 francs, or $1,000, and was to go to the country winning it three times. By his own efforts Braglia won the cup for Italy, and in recognition of his wonderful services he was allowed to keep the trophy as his personal property.

Recently Braglia wrote Lantieri, who was captain of the Italian Olympic team at Stockholm, asking about conditions in this country. Carlo's reply is on its way to Modena, and it is encouraging enough to warrant that Alberto will start for America as soon as possible.

Although now 36 years old, Braglia's performances at the Stockholm Olympic were just as remarkable as his stunts at Athens and at London. He did not compete in the St. Louis Olympic games because funds for the voyage across the ocean could not be raised.

ALBERTO BRAGLIA

In his native country Braglia is engaged in the tobacco business, but Lantieri vouches that the turner does not smoke or drink anything that might cheer, but also inebriate. The gymnast has one bad habit, however. He keeps his pockets loaded with lump sugar, and he consumes a lump about as often as an ordinary smoker would light a cigar or cigaret. Braglia insists the sugar helps him keep in perfect physical condition. Gymnasts who aspire to international fame may try his system if the Italian runs true to his Olympic form in his contests in this country.

College Alumni Make Offers to Land Preps, Says Metzger.

BY SOL METZGER.

Article XI.

That which is most surprising in the intercollegiate athletic problem is the situation at the two extremes, the preparatory schools and the Western conference. The former represents the beginning, the latter the furthest point yet reached in eligibiliy matters.

No further back than last fall Galvin of Wisconsin and Solon of Minnesota, athletes of the first magnitude, were declared ineligible because they had played summer ball. In these cases, as in the recent ones of a similar kind at Michigan, exposure preceded admission and ineligibility. In fact, so big is the summer ball problem in the middle west that the conference is debating whether or not to give up intercollegiate baseball.

Prep Question Comes First.

Before discussing this situation, which is the last to be dealt with, because it is the most advanced handling of the problem and therefore best answers the question of whether the present solution is a solution, it is well to consider the matter in its beginnings—namely: in the preparatory schools.

The field is so large that a few will illustrate the point. These are selected somewhat at random and include those which prepare both the sons of wealthy and poor citizens, boys who have money and boys who must strive equally for education and existence.

Case at Lawrenceville School.

Lawrenceville school enrolls its students from the well to do class. Few of its boys need financial aid and here should be little evidence of proselyting. Yet it is found. Alumni of colleges visited Lawrenceville no later than a year ago. The captain elect of the football team, who intended entering a certain university for technical training, was influenced to enter a rival college before he had completed his preparatory work. The college he entered is an eminent educational institution. In this particular case the boy had fifteen units of credit more than enough to put him in good standing. How to break up such a practice is a problem.

The two New England academies, Andover and Exeter, have contributed more athletic material to Harvard, Princeton and Yale than any pair in the country. They are presided over by Dr. Alfred Stearns and Dr. Lewis Perry, comparatively young men, who have been splendid athletes and who believe in the good of interscholastic and intercollegiate sports.

Metzger an Andover Grad.

Dr. Perry is active in sport. Dr. Stearns coached his baseball team last spring. At these schools you will find the sons of former presidents of the United States side by side with the sons of poor men. There is a fine democracy at each. What is the athletic situation in relation to the colleges?

I attended Andover in the late '90s. I had the satisfaction of refusing a scholarship and the management of an eating club at one of the largest eastern colleges, offered by one of its former athletes. This university does not countenance such a thing now. One of my friends at that time was a splendid athlete. He came and left, intending to enter Yale. He did appear at Yale in the fall of 1900, only to jump to Princeton before matriculating. There were frequent instances of this in the old days. Has it changed?

Substitute Takes Exams.

There was at Andover last spring one of the best, if not the best, schoolboy athlete in this country. He was not entirely ready for college, but was advised to try the entrance examinations at both Harvard and Yale. He was not quite able to pass them.

About this time he received a typewritten letter on the stationery of two New England law partners, signed in type with the initials of one of these men. It said that if, on a certain date, this athlete wired the registrar of a certain southern university renowned for its scholastic attainment, he would obtain information that he had passed the entrance examinations of this institution. The inference was plain. Some one was taking his examinations.

Now, no professor in charge of entrance examinations can remember the faces of the boys who take them. And surely any college registrar would answer the telegraphic request of any boy who had taken them giving him the results. The letter is a wonderful document. No legal proof of these things is attached to it. Can it be beaten for downright naivety? The boy refused the offer.

COLLEGE BALL DRAWS PRAISE BY PROFESSOR

Iowa Faculty Man Calls Plan to Kill Sport Undemocratic Act.

Prof. Arthur G. Smith of the University of Iowa, author of the accompanying article on college baseball, has been a member of the Western Intercollegiate conference for over fifteen years and therefore is thoroughly versed in the problems which are perplexing the faculty body. His opinion is entitled to special attention because of those years of experience.

BY PROF. ARTHUR G. SMITH.
[State University of Iowa.]

In order that a sport may be primarily amateur in spirit it is necessary that the sport be one in which men engage for the pure fun of the game, and there is no more intercollegiate sport in which the spirit of play enters to the same extent as it does in baseball.

Even in professional baseball, with the players following the game as a vocation, there is not a man on the team but would rather be in the game any day than to be sitting upon the bench. That baseball is played for the fun of the game is evidenced by the fact that every vacant lot has its game of baseball in progress any bright day in summer time.

Ideal Sport for Collegians.

Baseball is then an ideal sport for the college man because it appeals to the play instinct so strongly that it may be depended upon to draw the great mass of students to the field. If there is given then the added incentive of a possibility of being able to play upon the college nine, we have not only the fun of the sport but the added incentive of competition which prompts the man to do his very best, and unless a man gives to any activity the very best he has the benefit of its effect upon the character of the participant is largely lost.

Intercollegiate baseball is of great benefit to the college if so conducted as to be open only to representative men in the college, or, in other words, played only under strict scholarship requirements. The man who attends the university must imbibe the community spirit, that is, a good college spirit, if he is to get the best out of university life and not lose a large part of what the university has to offer outside of the classroom.

Instills Community Spirit.

No one thing will do more to give this community spirit, university solidarity, than to attend either as player or spectator the important baseball games of his university, with their intense rivalries.

Baseball is more nearty adapted to the physical condition of the average student body than is any other of the major college sports. It is played under the most favorable physical conditions and the lungs of the players are constantly filled with the purest air available in his daily life and surroundings. The baseball player needs only that good every day physical condition that all should strive to maintain; he plays the game and need give no worry over the possibility in later life of paying the price for physical overstrain in sport. It is not necessary to spend added time in building up either his wind or his strength to guard against the strain of a hard fought game.

Game Aid to Democracy.

To those who believe that the evolution of a national sport, like other widespread movements affecting the daily life of a people, means the growth of something better, more worth while, to such I say, while not every phase of the national idea is for the best, yet in the aggregate the better elements far outweigh the worse. To be a democracy we must have individual freedom. We cultivate individualism in this country, and individualism extends not only to the single man but to individual organizations made up of many men.

We have the university, the city, the state, and the nation, each an individual possessing many of the attributes belonging to the individual man. Again, democracy means competition between the individuals comprising the democracy, that is, we have competition between men, between universities, between cities, and between states, as well as international rivalry.

Competition encourages the man to do his best and the city to point with pride to its civic improvements. It develops genius, builds beautiful bridges, and places better laws upon our statute books. Since competition is perhaps the most dominant note in American life, we should expect naturally that our national sport should be dominated by competition and the desire to win.

If any one doubts the effect of democracy upon competitive sport, let him point out, either today or in the past, any paternal government that possesses or ever had a strong national competitive sport. The Olympic games today are driving the paternal nations to develop athletics for international competition.

Un-American to Kill Sport.

In order then that a sport shall be a national one in a democracy, with its highy developed individualism, it must be strong in competition, quick in action, and definite in result. Intercollegiate baseball has all the qualifications necessary to be an integral part of a national sport in a democracy. It crowds all the quickness of thought, of attack and defense, of individual competition and decisive result into one short hour of play.

From the reasons given above we may maintain that for our universities to eliminate intercollegiate baseball would be both unnational and undemocratic, and surely some way will be found to solve the summer baseball situation without strangling the sport.

"When Her Mother Said "Good Morning, Dear", She Giggled Something Terrible and Her Mother Said, "Esther, What IS the Matter?" And Esther Said – "I Isn't Enny Deer or I'd Have Big Horns 'n a Long Nose! Mamma, You Is SO Funny!!"
And When She Started to Drink Her Milk All of a Sudden She HAD to Giggle for She Thought How Funny It Would Be If All of a Sudden a Little Calf Would Run in and Say – "Dat Isn't Your Milk! It's Mine! Mine Muvver Made It!" – and Would Curl It's Tail Right Around the Glass and Scamper Off With It!
And She Almost Died Giggling When She Saw Cook Trimming the Edges Off a Pie She Was Holding High, Because She Thought How Funny It Would Be If Cook Would Try to Put It Down and Couldn't Because It Had Grown There!
She Made Cook So Nervous, That, far from Growing There, the Pie Went KERSMASH on the Floor !!!! Then Cook Chased Esther, Which Made Her Laugh, for She Thought How Funny It Would Be if Cook Caught Her and then Discovered She Was Nothing But Air!!!!!!
(But Cook Didn't Laugh!)
Neither Did Polly When Esther Simply Had to Sit Down on the Floor and Giggle Till Tears Ran Down Her Fat Little Cheeks at the Thought of the Way the Minister Looked When He Came to Dinner and Polly Said Something She'd Heard Esther's Papa Say When the Grocery Bill Was Too Big!!
But You Would Have Giggled Too if You Had Seen the Look on the Face of the Lady Who Came to Call and Had to Stop Because She Couldn't Go Any Further Because Fido Had Hold of Her Dress!
"But the Lady Didn't Giggle!!!!)
BUTTER
COFFEE
Neither Did the Grocery Boy Giggle When Esther Thought How Funny It Would Be to Trip Him Up, and, Laughing Fit to Kill, Stuck Her Foot Out!
So She Just Giggled All Day Until Night – When Her Papa Came Home Looking Awful Funny Because His Neck Was Stiff and if He Looked Around He Had to Turn His Whole Body. She Giggled At Him Which Worried Him So That – – He Started to CURE Her and Proved That He Knew How and That HIS HAND WASN'T STIFF If HIS NECK WAS!!
(Such Is Life!) ~

You Can Make Money and Have Barrels of Fun

Thanks a Thousand Times

I received the Machine a month ago and I am very pleased with it. It is a beauty in every way. I thank you a thousand times for it. I am proud to own it and I have had so much fun with it that I could not write to you before to tell you that I received it. John Crymes, 494 Ave. C., Bayonne, N. J.

Fifty Friends Saw It

I received your Motion Picture Machine last Monday and that night I showed it. I had about fifty friends. They could not all fit in my theater. I am very proud of my Machine, it is a dandy, and my friends say they wish they could have one too. Alex Mentler, 2666 Lisbon Rd., Cleveland, Ohio.

Been Offered $40.00

I do not suppose you remember me, but I am one of the boys who received a Motion Picture Machine some time ago, and will say it is the finest Motion Picture Machine I ever saw for a premium. It shows a beautiful picture on the screen. Well, many thanks to you and I wish that every boy in the United States could own one. I have been offered $40.00 for it, and could have got more for it. Walter Jones, Yellow Pine, Ala.

20th Century Entertainer

I received my Motion Picture Machine and thank you. I worked it the same day I got it, and it worked fine. I find it a Twentieth Century Entertainer, and I don't think any home is complete without one of your Motion Picture Machines. Henry Thurman, 317 S. Johnson St., New Orleans La.

Gives Shows Regularly

I find my Motion Picture Machine a fine one. I am satisfied with it in every way. No Machine can come up to it. I give shows regularly and everybody is satisfied with its fine work. W. A. Mulford, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Sold 300 Tickets

I am very thankful for that wonderful Machine and I think it is the best I have ever seen. I am going to have an entertainment to-day and therefore I have not much time to write letters. I think I will make about $10.00. I have sold 300 tickets already. Joseph Rauch, 2411 W. Broadway, St. Louis, Mo.

Made $15.00 With It

I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know I received my Motion Picture Machine, and it is a beauty. I never saw a better Machine than this. The first day I got the Machine, I started off and made $15.00 with it. Master J. Hughes, 908 Hamilton, Duquesne, Pa.

Made $3.00 in One Night

With all pleasure I write to tell you that I received my Motion Picture Machine about six months ago, and I made $3.00 in one night, and hope that my friend Jerry Leigh's will be as good as mine. And I lost my list, so please send me another one. Paul G. Taylor, 5 Pratt St., Newnan, Ga.

More Than Expected

I am very well pleased with the Motion Picture Machine which I received in good condition, as it is more than what I expected. I thank you very much for it and it is the first time I ever tried such a thing. Ben W. Jenson, R. R. 2, Des Moines, Iowa.

JASON
Painting by G. Moreau

The Tribune has secured reproductions of the most famously beautiful pictures that, until fear of their destruction by Taube bombs caused them to be hidden, hung in the famous Luxembourg galleries in Paris. On this page is reproduced another of the series which will appear every week in The Sunday Tribune.

By ANNE ELLIS.

"JASON and the Golden Fleece: A Fairy Tale of Olden Greece," thus the fly leaf of a dusty, overillustrated volume of my early recollections. Perhaps my granddaughter will have a volume with fly leaf thus illumined: "Medea, now a modern fable: interpret it if you are able." Thus, perhaps, shall the transitions of two generations interpret mythology. Somewhat in this wise, perhaps, shall run the text of the unexpurgated new primer:

"Though Medea is the heroine of our story, we will have to relate some events that happened before she entered it. Pelias, king in Thessaly, to be quit of his nephew, Jason, sent him to fetch the Golden Fleece. With the spiritual assistance of Athené and the material help of Argos Jason built a wondrous ship, gathered about him the sons of the first ten families, and started for the far east. They had, as do all young bloods a-voyaging, many adventures. They landed on an island called Lemnos, where until their advent there was a state of concord. It was inhabited entirely by women ruled by the good queen Hypsipylé. Here they tarried longer than was wise. Hypsipylé, being fond of Jason, bore him two sons.

"Finally they arrived at Colchis, the city of Æëtes. This king, being a diplomat, demanded that Jason yoke fire breathing bulls, plow a field with them, sow a crop of dragons' teeth, and kill the giants which should spring from such seed. While Æëtes was talking to Jason his beautiful daughter, Medea, thinking he had said enough, entered to interrupt him. Her eyes fell upon Jason and she knew him for her own. Medea was something of a sorceress, so she persuaded Jason to accept her father's charge, promising to help him with her magic. He did as he was bid, and she got him out of his difficulties, even as the heroines of modern times drag the men they mean to marry from the very jaws of death. Then she informed Jason where the fleece was kept and when would be a convenient time for him to steal it. There remained only to propose to him.

"Taking her younger brother for a precaution, as you will see later on, she and Jason eloped. They were pursued by the bride's irate parent, and would have been overtaken, but the thoughtful Medea cut her little brother into pieces and scattered them on the sea. Æëtes, feeling it his duty to gather up the fragments of his son for pious burial, was delayed until the lovers escaped.

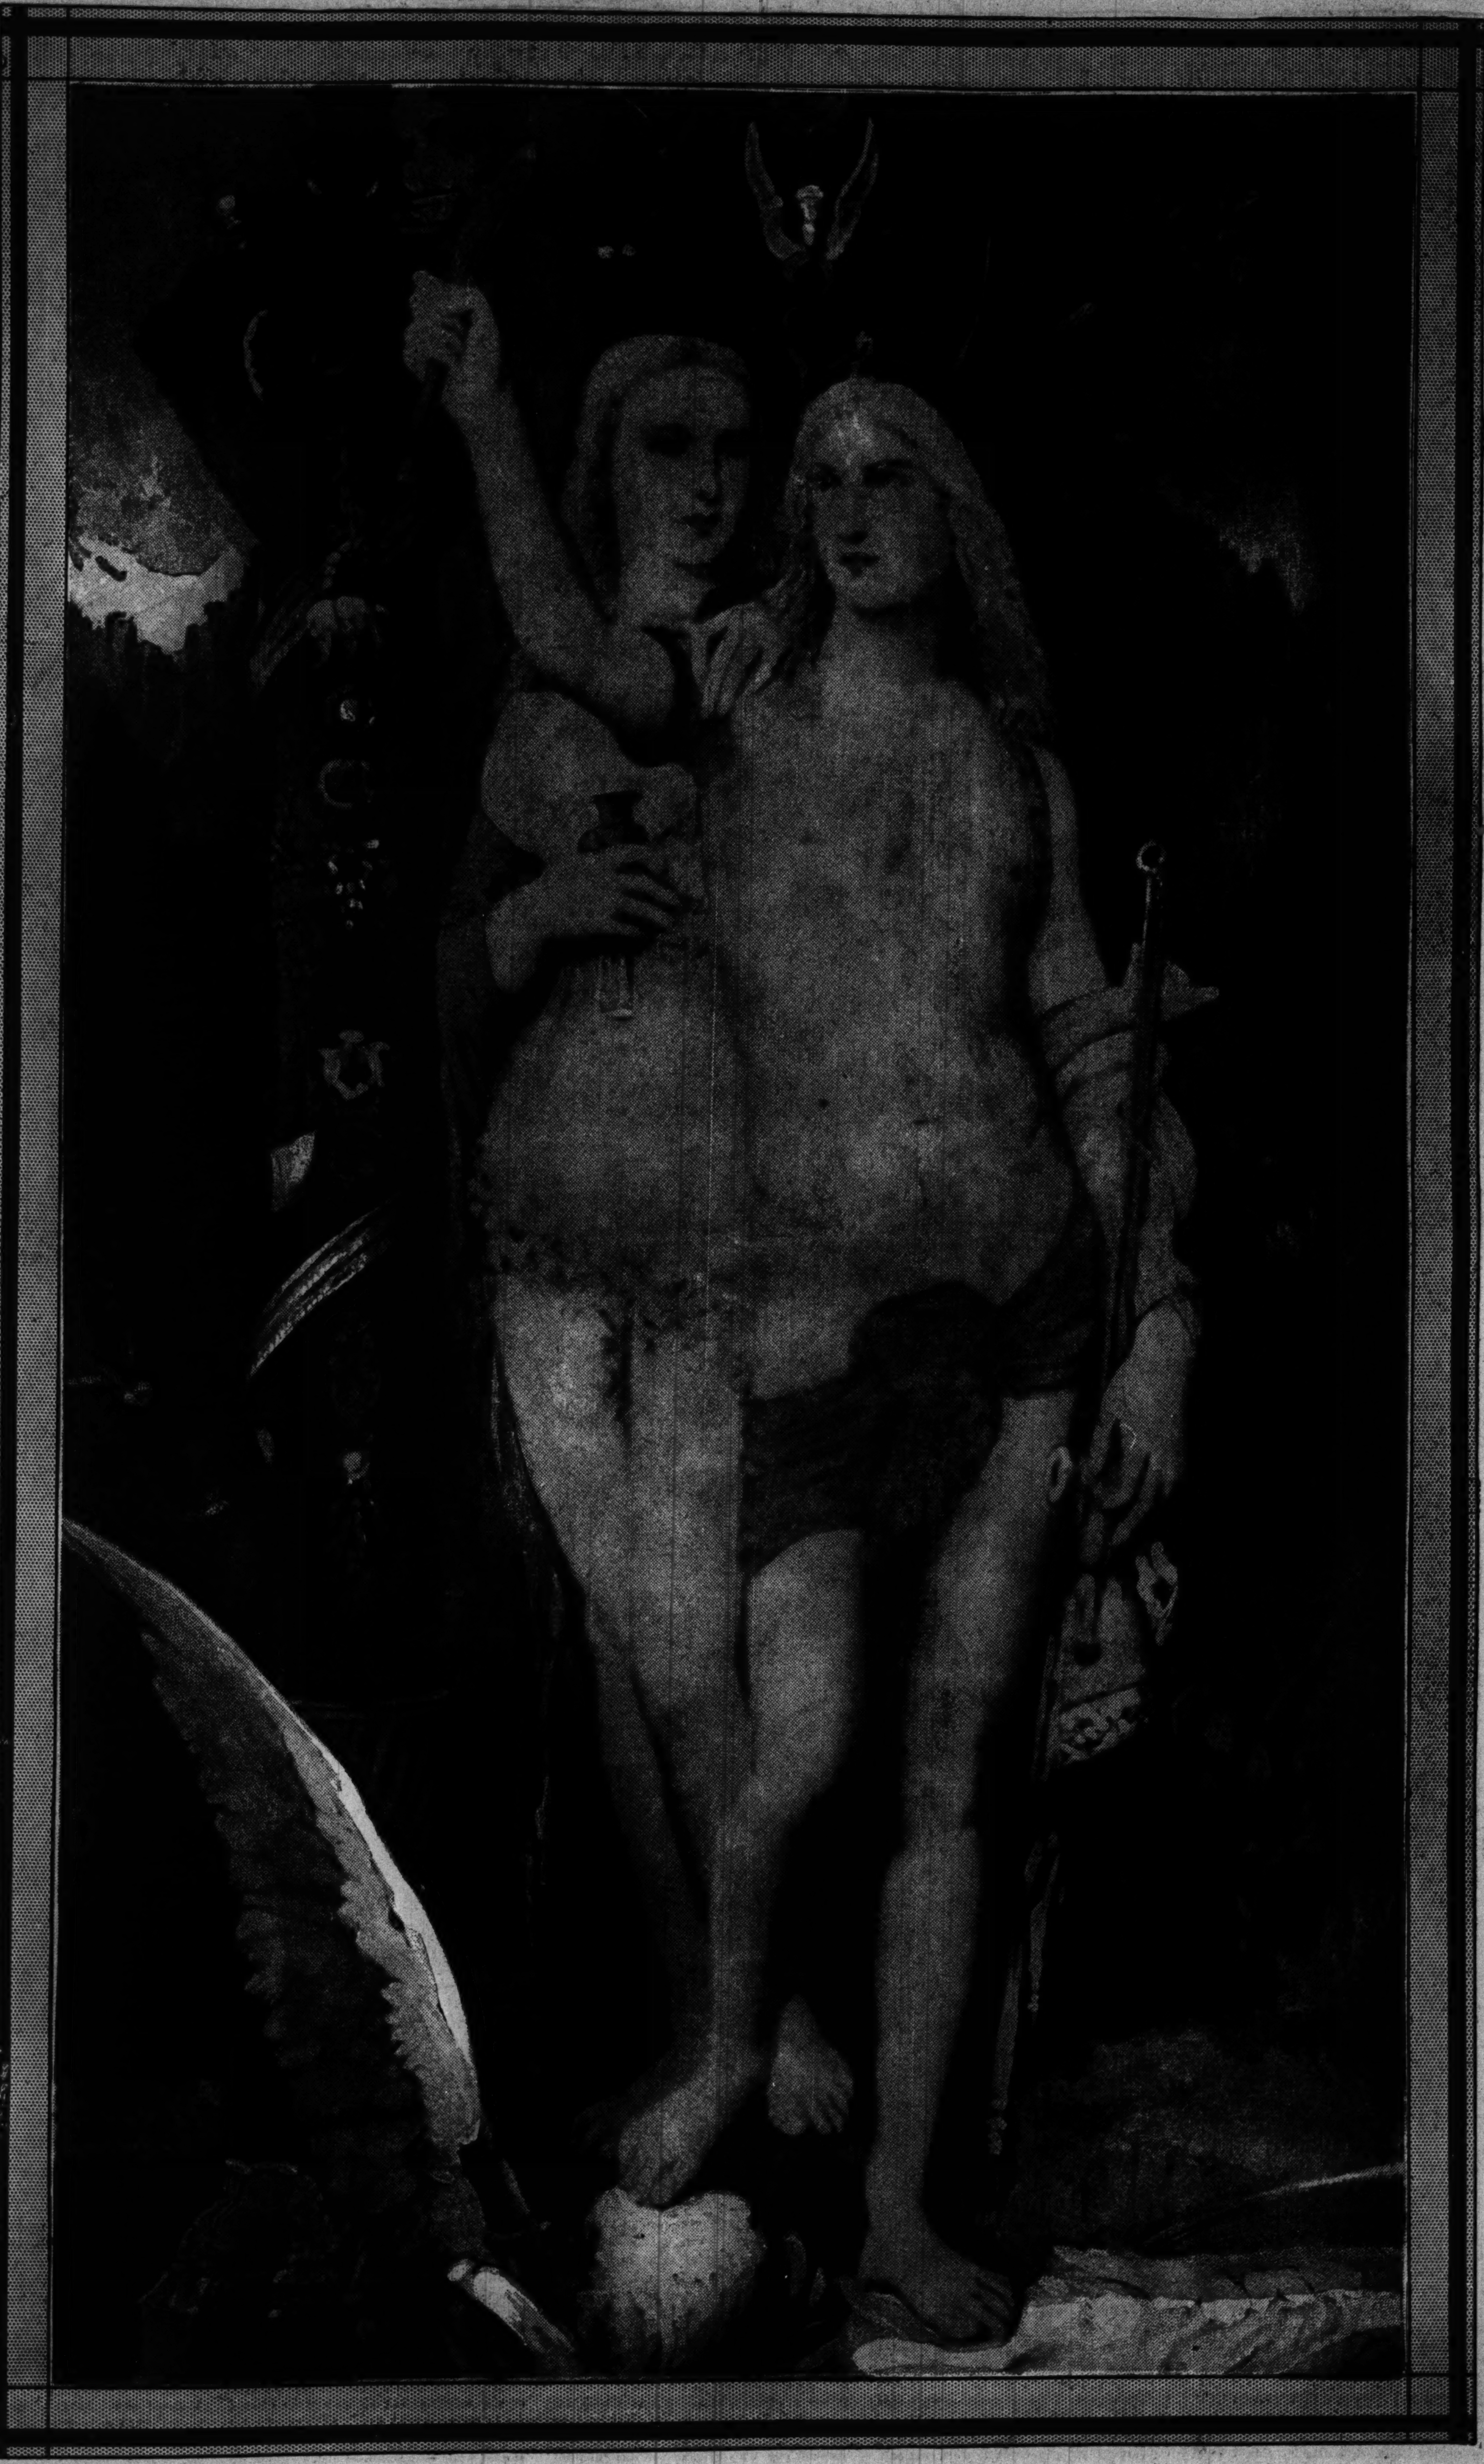
"When they reached the home of Jason Medea resolved to be revenged upon Pelias. She gathered his daughters about her and cut up an old sheep and boiled him with herbs in a kettle, bringing forth from the stew a young lamb. The daughters were delighted with the performance and readily acquiesced when Medea suggested that they cut up their father and boil him with herbs to renew his youth. The daughters set to work immediately on the gory task, but after Pelias was boiled Medea refused her arts. Whereupon they chased her and Jason out of town. In the new city Jason met a lady he liked better than Medea, so he married her and repudiated his wife. Medea was a resourceful woman, so she sent her rival a poisoned robe and crown, which destroyed her on her wedding day. To complete her revenge, she slew the children she had borne Jason and fled to Athens

Gustav Moreau was ever the classicist, the idealist, the reverist, in life as in art. He sold his pictures only to those who appreciated them, and begged the collectors to keep them from the public gaze. He trembled lest they should be misunderstood, these visions and inspirations of his into which he had painted his soul. Despite the number of his pictures, one would almost be compelled to think of his life as contemplative rather than active. Partly because of the depth of feeling he brought to the personal misfortunes which befall every man, and partly because of his natural inclination, he was a recluse. Only at the end of his life did he come forth to serve as a professor in L'Ecole des Beaux Arts. Like a December sun, he appeared suddenly to color the end of his day with glory. His pictures, too, have the same effect on the beholder as an unexpectedly glorious sunset. They seem more an optical illusion than a reality, fanciful, recondite, semi-spiritual as they are.

Moreau studied the art of every land with exceeding diligence. When he painted he found himself full of a gorgeous mêlée of all their beauty, the expression of which became an obsession with him. His originality was overborne by this circumstance, but he evolved from his familiarity with universal art and his own exquisiteness of taste a distinctiveness of style that in the end amounted to originality.

He created four cycles in art—the cycle of man, to celebrate heroic deeds, using as his central figures Jason, Œdipus, the Seas, Herades, Moses; the cycle of women, for beauty: Salome dancing before Herod, the daughters of Cestius, and others; the cycle of the lyre, for poetry; and the cycle of death, in which he has accomplished striking effects with leaden gray and ashen greens.

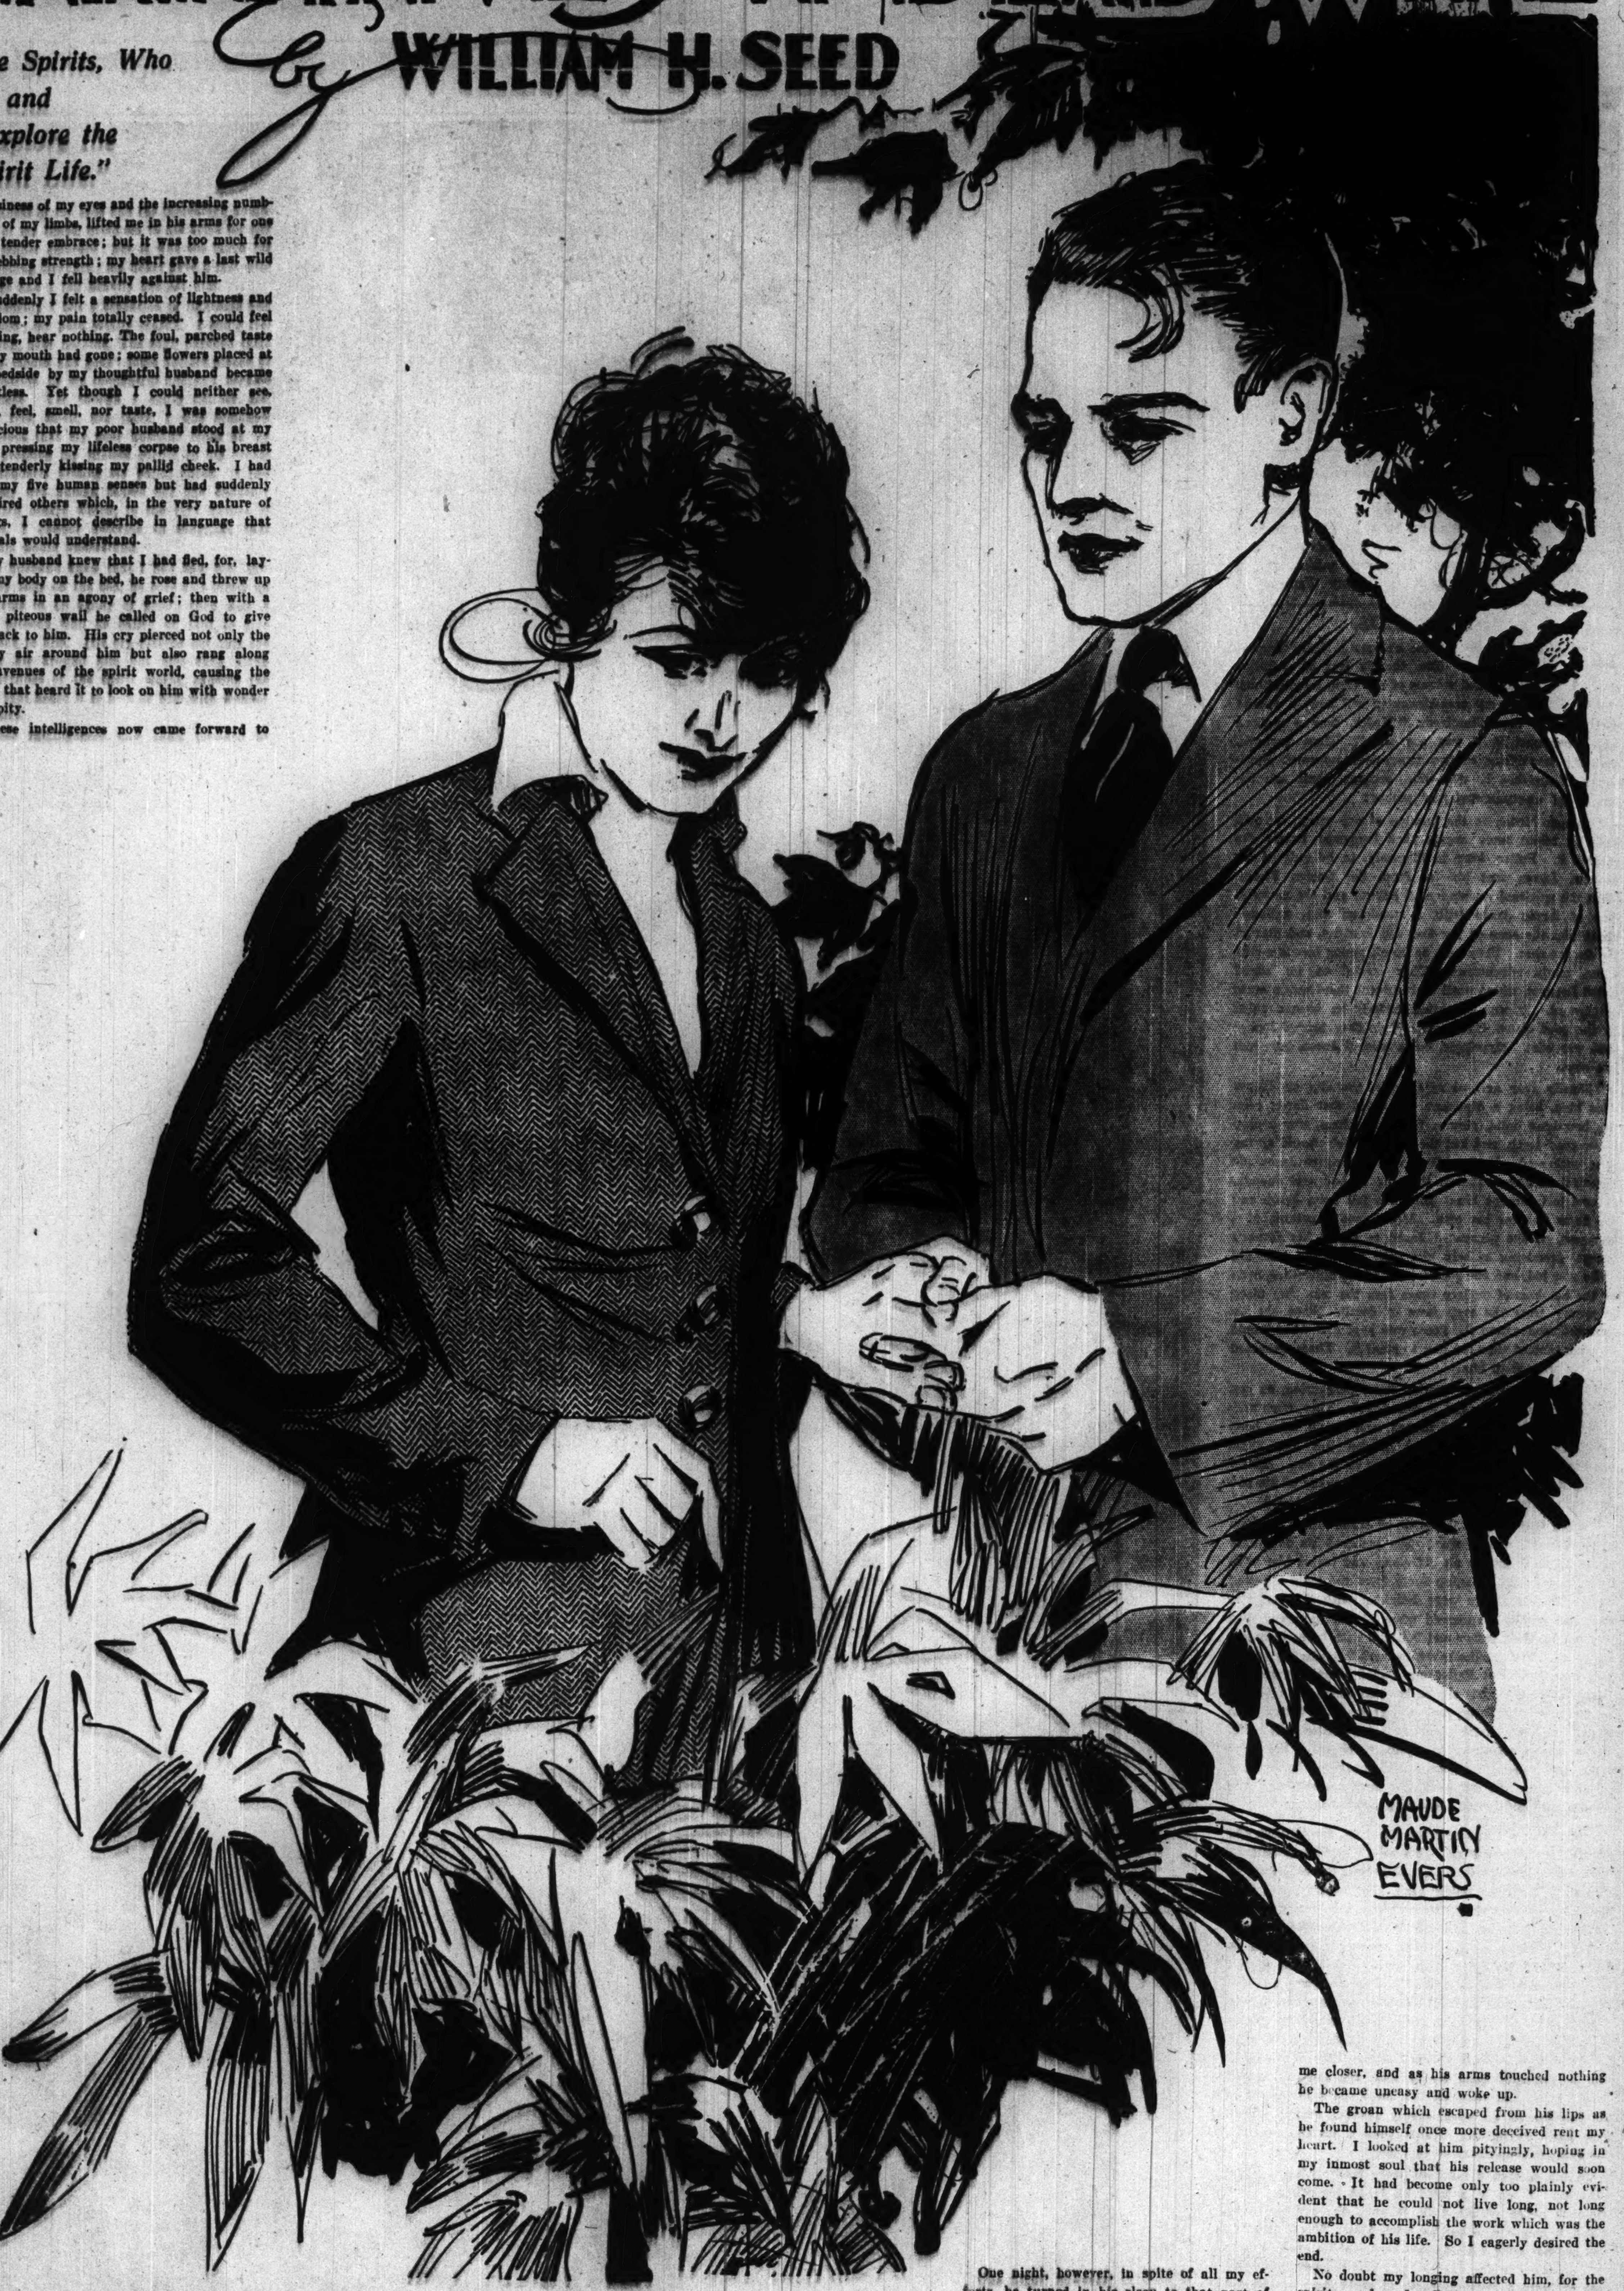
Next week another painting from the Luxembourg galleries will be reproduced.



THE NARRATIVE of A DEAD WIFE

by WILLIAM H. SEED

"... And We Two Free Spirits, Who Are Now Rapidly Coalescing and Becoming One, Set Out to Explore the Mysteries and Delights of Spirit Life."



I HAD been married but a few months when I died. I was reluctant to leave my body, but when that body is no longer habitable, what can a spirit do?

My married life, though short, had been a happy one. My husband, a lonely literary man, would be heartbroken at my death. I loved him with all my heart. My mind went back in fond remembrance to the day I first met him during a holiday in the Adirondacks. He had been introduced to me as Philip Nolan, the distinguished novelist, and a thrill of excitement ran through me as I shook hands with him. Like every other girl in America, and many a one abroad, I had read his romances and imagined what manner of man he must be. Certainly he must be a man who understood women, and if he loved any woman as he made his heroes and heroines love each other it must be a fortunate woman upon whom his choice should fall. So I had often thought.

His appearance made a great impression upon me. Tall and straight, with dark eyes and hair and clear cut features, he was the type of man who would have made his way in the world in whatever sphere his lot had been cast. He had had a youth of poverty and vicissitude, and while success had come to him early, for he was not yet 30, the lines on his forehead showed he had looked upon life with the eyes of a poor man, although hardship had not put out the kindly light in his eyes.

I was but a schoolgirl, and could any one have told me that Philip Nolan would fall in love and want to marry me it would have seemed impossible. I was very much flattered when he talked to me a good deal during a mountain ramble with a party of holidaymakers from our hotel. This experience was repeated in succeeding expeditions of the same kind, until people began to notice it. He had asked me many things about myself and my early life, and I would have liked to put similar questions to him, but I could not find courage to do so. At length I made some remark which indicated my interest, and he plunged into his story. It was a revelation to me, brought up as I had been in the lap of luxury.

"O, I wish I had known you then," I said.

"I wish it, too," he said. The fervor in his tone was not lost upon me.

For some days the consciousness of what all our conversations were leading to had been dawning upon me. You may think me singularly blind not to have seen it much earlier, but I was only 20 and fresh from a convent school, and it seemed to me impossible that so clever a man should want me. At the same time I was becoming almost painfully aware that the end of my holiday was approaching, and that I dreaded it even more than I had usually dreaded my return to school. I had wondered why Mr. Nolan was so interested in me, but did not dare to think he loved me. But the warm emphasis of those four words broke the barrier between us. Our eyes met and we understood. He pressed my hand and I knew my fate was sealed.

We had been so interested talking to each other that we had forgotten the rest of the party, and we found they had got ahead of us for some distance. Without any prearrangement we found ourselves alone together for the first time. We walked still more slowly until the rest of the party was lost to sight. For some time neither of us spoke.

"Yes, I wish you had known me then," he repeated at length.

"But I am glad I know you now," I returned.

Our lips met for the first time.

"And you are going to know me always, and ever better and better," he continued.

"Yes, surely," I replied.

"And we shall be married when?"

The rest of what passed is at once too long and too sacred a story for repetition now. I have told the material part of the story, of how we met and came to understand each other.

Of course we had a splendid wedding. My parents were delighted with the match I had made, and everybody helped to make the affair a memorable one. But to us it would have made no difference had there been opposition and if we had had to be married quietly or even surreptitiously.

What a charming time we had on our brief honeymoon! What happiness we had known during our brief home life! And now it was all over. I was leaving my Philip again, to meet him no more in this world. He sat at my bedside, holding my clammy hand; the tears coursed down his cheeks. Never was he more loving and tender to me than now, as he smoothed my pillow and moistened my parched lips. I knew I was going, and he knew it, too. I was not afraid to die, but my heart was torn at the thought of leaving him alone. He had been very faithful to me, had kept few friends, and had spent all his leisure at home with me. We were in the closest confidence of head and heart. He would talk to me on all the matters connected with his work and would also take an interest in household affairs. Having a model husband, I had tried to be a model wife, conscious though I was of my shortcomings.

But the end was drawing near: my hands and feet grew colder and clammier. Then, in spite of all that could be done to prevent it, I lost sensation in them. This coldness, followed by deadness, crept slowly upwards towards my heart. Knowing my fate, I welcomed it as a release from pain and anxiety, and because I felt I was going to solve a great secret—the secret of life beyond the grave.

My darling Philip, noticing the growing glassiness of my eyes and the increasing numbness of my limbs, lifted me in his arms for one last tender embrace; but it was too much for my ebbing strength; my heart gave a last wild plunge and I fell heavily against him.

Suddenly I felt a sensation of lightness and freedom; my pain totally ceased. I could feel nothing, hear nothing. The foul, parched taste in my mouth had gone; some flowers placed at my bedside by my thoughtful husband became scentless. Yet though I could neither see, hear, feel, smell, nor taste, I was somehow conscious that my poor husband stood at my bed, pressing my lifeless corpse to his breast and tenderly kissing my pallid cheek. I had lost my five human senses but had suddenly acquired others which, in the very nature of things, I cannot describe in language that mortals would understand.

My husband knew that I had fled, for, laying my body on the bed, he rose and threw up his arms in an agony of grief; then with a most piteous wail he called on God to give me back to him. His cry pierced not only the empty air around him but also rang along the avenues of the spirit world, causing the souls that heard it to look on him with wonder and pity.

These intelligences now came forward to welcome me—a new child born into their midst. They wished to entice me away; wanted me to go with them to see strange lands and seas; visit planets and suns; converse with the illustrious dead. But I would not leave the vicinity of my husband, though he was still imprisoned in his casement of flesh and blood and I was free. I flung my spirit arms around him, and, looking into his poor bereft soul, wept bitterly.

He lay down on the bed, frantically clasping the corpse. I threw myself down beside him, and endeavored to comfort him. True, I could not speak to him, nor could he feel my caresses, yet I was able, in ways that only free spirits understand, to cheer and comfort him.

Whenever I saw an ugly or distressing thought making its appearance in his mind, I smoothed it away, or turned it into a pleasant and optimistic channel. I spread my pinions far and wide, and let it be known in the universal ether around me as far as my influence would pierce that bright and cheerful thoughts were needed. I drew them to me as with a magnet and instilled them into his soul.

As the day went by he grew calm. I tried to engraft as much resignation as I could into his stricken tree of life, but he had sustained a severe blow. He was totally incapacitated for his work, so greatly did he feel his loss. He read much and widely, but without any fixed purpose—a very unusual thing for him. I encouraged him to read, and tried to direct his reading into cheerful and hopeful channels. In this, however, I was not successful. He would open some pleasant book, sometimes even read a few pages, then close it with a sigh. He would not be comforted, and after a few months he began to be ill. I strove with all my might, calling on all charitable spirits to help me, to dissipate the deepening shadows which hung o'er his soul. All was in vain. He took to his bed, and notwithstanding all that friends, both living and dead, could do for him, he relapsed into a state of the utmost misery.

Many times when sleeping he would dream of me, thinking that he once more clasped me in his arms. At first I encouraged these dreams; he would smile so sweetly and seem so glad while they lasted. But his disappointment and grief when he awoke were awful to witness, and such scenes made me long to be incarnated again for his sake. So I had to try to prevent him from dreaming of me.

One night, however, in spite of all my efforts, he turned in his sleep to that part of the bed which, when living, I used to occupy. His face once again assumed the raptured expression I had so often seen before. His arms were stretched out to reach me. Believing that he held me, he seemed so happy, a kind spirit suggested that we should try to cause him to pass from earthly life before his dream ceased. Dreading the agony he would endure, I willingly assented.

Placing myself in reality where he thought I was, and throwing my arms round his neck, I kissed him tenderly. His soul responded to my embrace, and in his sleep he kissed the pillow where my physical head used to lie. I drew him to me with all my strength. Of course, I could not have moved his body had I had the strength of thousands, but I gently drew his spirit away from his fleshy matrix. As I did so he endeavored to press me closer, and as his arms touched nothing he became uneasy and woke up.

The groan which escaped from his lips as he found himself once more deceived rent my heart. I looked at him pityingly, hoping in my inmost soul that his release would soon come. It had become only too plainly evident that he could not live long, not long enough to accomplish the work which was the ambition of his life. So I eagerly desired the end.

No doubt my longing affected him, for the spirits we love do affect us, quite irrespective of whether we be living or dead. He looked wildly round, then sat up in bed. I saw that he had lost his reason.

"Mary! Mary!" he cried. His voice had not the same piteous wail. It was the voice of a man under ordinary circumstances calling for his companion.

I was hovering above him, and I called his name in as soft and tender a voice as I could. He must by this time have been near the border, for he heard my spirit voice. Rising up, he stood in the middle of the bed, held his hands upwards, and clutched the air.

"Mary, I am coming!" he shouted, and with a bound he was in my arms. His body fell a huddled heap, and we two free spirits, who are now rapidly coalescing and becoming one, set out to explore the mysteries and enjoy the delights of spirit life.

Right off the Reel by Mae Tinee

MYSTERIOUS MICHAEL'S LITTLE SURPRISE.

To look at Michael you never would have thought of him as mysterious.

He had a fine open countenance, but—

There was something about him his wife couldn't understand.

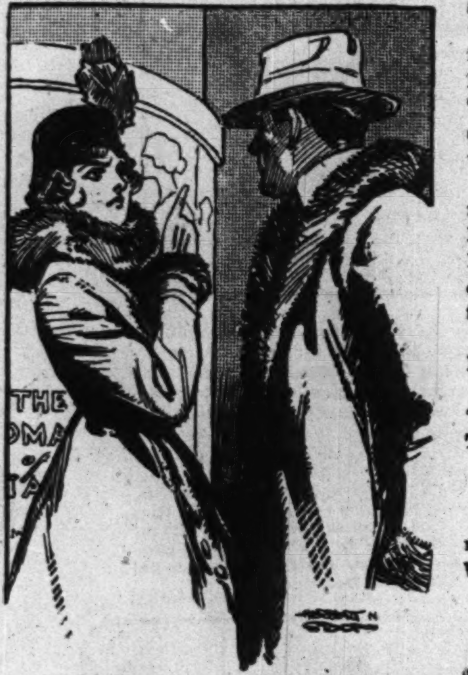
He was always late to his dinner—which Demands an explanation. It is given in the following yarn.

PRETTY little Mrs. Barkley took her nose from the pane where it had been pressed for the last fifteen minutes and looked at the clock. Then she flattened it again in her anxious attempt to see farther down the street.

"O, dear," she wailed. "Where is Michael? And the chops done to a turn—and, and everything! I bet he's killed. I bet——"

Somebody whistling "My Little Girl" turned the corner. Mrs. Barkley's face and attitude both physical and mental went through a quick metamorphosis. With lightning speed she pulled down the curtain, whisked a powder puff from her stocking and dabbed it over her face, whisked it back, snatched up a book, and when Mr. Michael Barkley made his late entrance, it was to behold a haughty little spouse apparently deep in the adventures of "Paralyzed Peggy."



"It's all up with you, Michael, if you dare to fib to me."

"Hello, sweetness!" said Mr. Michael Barkley fondly.

Mrs. Barkley looked up languidly. "O, hello. Is that you? I'd almost given you up. The chops are probably dried to a frizzle." And slipping eel-like from his offered embrace and kiss, she tossed the book on the couch and walked indifferently toward the kitchen, humming a tuneless tune—the object being to impress on the mind of Mr. Michael Barkley how utterly and absolutely his actions affected her—not!

Mr. Barkley, left to himself, glanced guiltily at the clock, while a sheepish grin overspread his fine, open countenance.

"Golly! Late again! No wonder the kid's sore! But I reckon what I've got in my pocket will make her feel better."

Whistling gayly then, he hurried to the bathroom, where he made a quick toilet, and in five minutes entered the dining room, where Mrs. Barkley, having gotten everything on the table, even to the water, sat in an attitude of martyred waiting.

Mr. Barkley paused by her side and laid a hand on the soft hair.

Mrs. Barkley wriggled.

"Don't. I hate to be mussed."

Mr. Barkley cleared his throat. "Now, honey," he said deprecatingly, "there's no use acting like this. I'm a working man and if business keeps me late I've just got to stay—see? One of the other fellows was off this afternoon and they had to have a salesman on the floor, so——"

"I suppose," Mrs. Barkley remarked witheringly, "that the salesmen on the floor never eat any dinner. Fifteen minutes is nothing, Michael, but this is the third night in succession that you have been one hour and a half late. Working! Don't talk to me!"

"All right," Mr. Barkley said, still good naturedly, "but let this talk a little, will you?" and on her folded napkin he dropped a little white box.

Mrs. Barkley squealed, her grievance forgotten. "Michael!" She opened the box and at sight of the ring it contained jumped to her feet and encircled the giver in an all forgiving embrace. "Michael, you are such a dear. And me so cross! Darling, you sit right down there and eat your dinner. Michael, shall I warm things up a little?"

"O, no, I'm all right," Michael assured her, returning the caresses with ardor. And so for that evening things were all right.

The clouds gathered again and were dissolved when other evenings quite close together Mr. Barkley was late and made restitution by the laying down at the shrine of his injured goddess trifles of gold, silver, silk, and lace. For Mrs. Barkley did love pretty things. There came a night, however, when she spurned the offering and faced her husband with a hard little face.

"Michael," she said, "don't lie to me any more. You've been gambling! Not one word, Michael! You've not had a raise in salary, I know. Nobody's died. Therefore, where do you get your money if you don't gamble for it? Now you may tell me, if you can!"

"I—I—have not been gambling," Mr. Barkley stuttered. "My dear, I have not!"

"Then," said his now terrible little wife, "where has all the money been coming from. Tell me, Michael!"

There was an awful silence.

"Are you going to tell me?"

"Jess," blurted Mr. Barkley, "you'd be much happier not to know. Much happier I'm not being dishonest, I swear."

"Will you tell me?"

"No."

"Then," said Mrs. Barkley, "I shall leave you. Good-by." She left the room.

Michael Barkley, big, awkward, perturbed, stood stock still for a moment. A closet door slamming, however, electrified him. He bolted into the bedroom, where his wife, reduced now to tears, was pathetically shoving useless things into a small hand grip.

"Jess!"

"What?" gulped Mrs. Barkley. "N-now's your last chance, Michael. W-w-will you tell me?"

"I can't tell you," Michael said. "B-b-but, I'll take you—you'll probably leave me anyhow—when you know. But put on your things."

Her mystification getting the best of her sorrow, Mrs. Barkley obediently donned her out of door things and they started out, painfully silent and ill at ease. At the door of a motion picture theater Michael stopped. "I'll get you a ticket, honey," he said, "and I'll come back for you in an hour—I have to leave you for an hour."

Mrs. Barkley scowled. "Well, don't be any longer," she said. "It's all up with you, Michael, if you dare to fib to me."

"I won't fib," poor Michael said, and he vanished into the darkness.

As Mrs. Barkley took her seat she was conscious that the house was rocking with laughter. In her present mood, however, a funny picture held no charms for her and she deliberately closed her eyes. A scarcely suppressed shriek of merriment right at her elbow startled her into opening them, and she stared at the screen to have her astonished gaze met by a grimace of—Michael's!

There he was—Michael! Cavorting, grimacing—Michael! Falling down stairs, going headfirst into rain barrels, peering out of freight cars—Michael! And at every new gyration his appreciative audience howled and clapped. Small boys whooped with delight. Little girls giggled. Women shook until tears rolled down their cheeks, and the lines were ironed out of the faces of the tired business men by the wholesome mirth that possessed them. And Michael was doing it. Big, awkward, good hearted Michael, whose lack of initiative she had always secretly deplored.

He was waiting for her as the show let out—standing well in the shadows, apparently dreading to be recognized. With a glad little cry she rushed up to him and caught his arm.

"Michael!" she said. "You blessed old wonder! So that's what you've been doing! Why, why didn't you tell me? Why, I'm so proud of you I could burst! Michael, how did it happen?"

Said Michael shyly: "Well, one day a moving picture fellow bought a car of me. He said something funny and I grinned. He said my grin was worth money and wanted me to quit my job and work for him. I told him that was too uncertain, but I'd give it a tryout in my odd minutes. So I did—and they say I'm the biggest hit of the year. So I—I quit my job last night and signed up a contract for two years at $300 a week. I didn't like to tell you for fear you'd be sore at my making an exhibition of myself. That's all, honey! You're sure you don't mind."

Said Mrs. Barkley proudly: "Michael, the only thing I ever had against you was that you were not a motion picture actor!"

Dorothy Bernard received the highest number of votes last week. Her picture, therefore, will appear in The Frame of Public Favor next Sunday. Of the other players voted upon the following six are the leaders: Lillian Gish, Henry King, Theda Bara, Jackie Saunders, Maclyn Arbuckle, and Charles Bartlett.

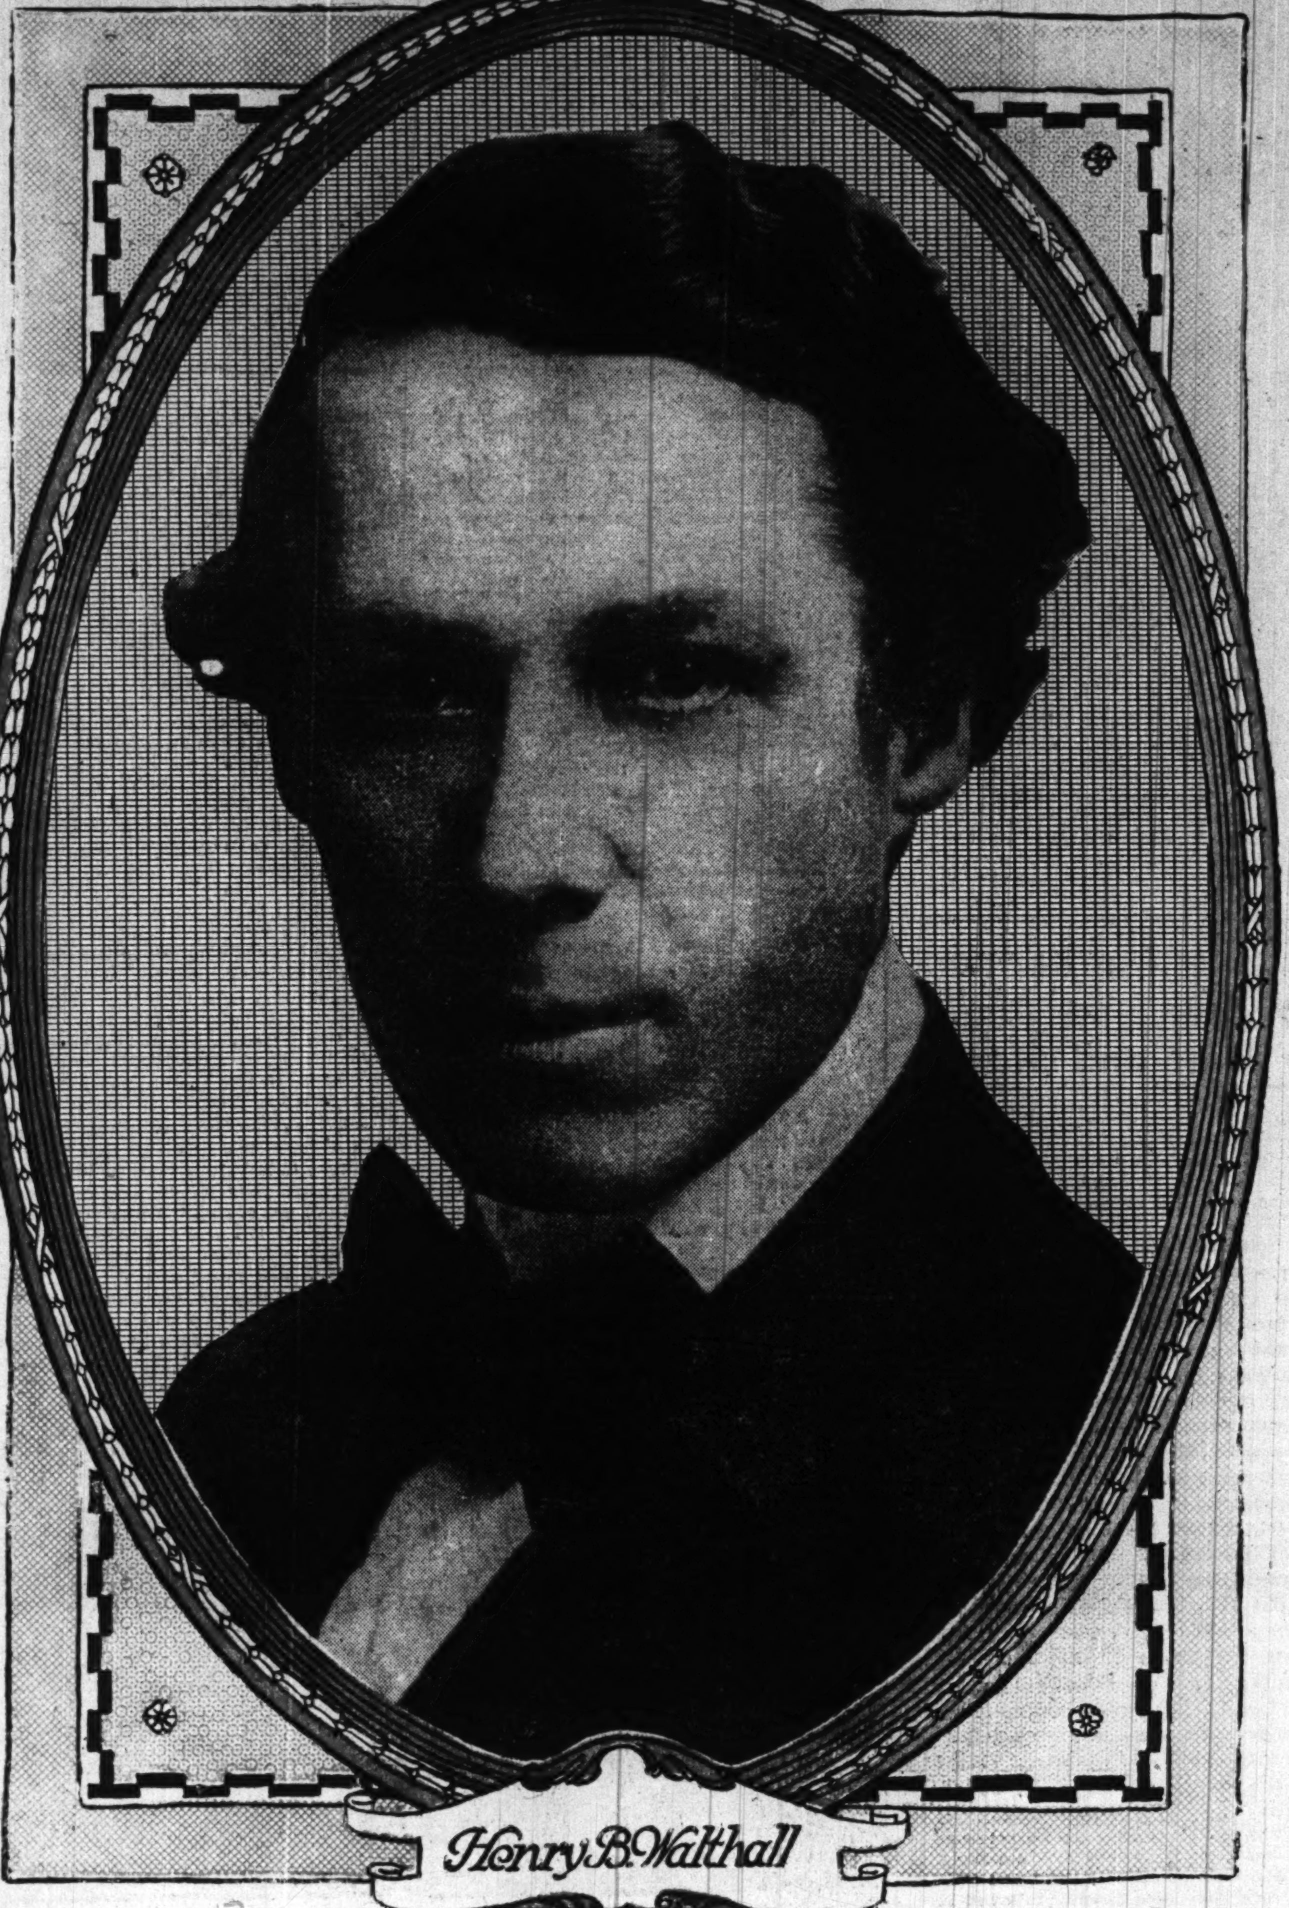
The Frame of Public Favor



Henry B. Walthall

THERE is probably no man appearing on the screen who has more friends than has Henry B. Walthall of the Essanay company. His vivid impersonations have a potency of their own and any picture in which he has a role is pretty sure to be well worth seeing. Mr. Walthall was born in Shelby county, Alabama, in 1880, and is a veteran of the Spanish-American war. For several years he was on the legitimate stage. He began his screen career with the Biograph company. Later he was with Pathe Freres, Mutual Film, and he has been with the Essanay for some months, his duties being confined to the Chicago studio of that corporation. Mr. Walthall is about medium height, has pleasant brown eyes, brown hair which he wears, in the opinion of one person, rather too long. He has a nice, whimsical smile and a manner that is pleasant, though a trifle reticent. Altogether a vurr, vurr engaging person. Married.

ANSWERS TO MOVIE FANS.

A FAITHFUL ADMIRER: Thank you vurr, vurr much. If you are going to talk about imposing on me you will make me feel badly. I am only too glad to do anything I can for you. It's me job. No, the picture of the actor in whom you are interested has not appeared in the Frame. She is with the Triangle Film corporation, 71 West Twenty-third street, New York. I imagine she would send you a photograph if you inclose a quarter with your request. I can't say positively, however. She is about 20. In "The Birth of a Nation" it was possible for Mr. Griffith to obtain some of the United States cavalry for various scenes. It is a wonderful, wonderful picture. Since Francis X. Bushman is married and lives with his wife and has five children, I think it hardly possible that he is engaged to Beverly Bayne. Edna Mayo is not married. Thanks ever so much for your good wishes. I hope my information is satisfactory.

A. B.: If you will send me a stamped and self-addressed envelope I will gladly mail you printed material I have on scenario writing and a list of firms that accept them, and an article on how to become a photoplayer. You are not too forward in asking questions. The Fairbanks twins are 14 years of age. Cute little girls, aren't they?

H. BROWN: The Fox Film company is located at 130 West Forty-sixth street, New York. William Farnum is still with the Fox company. I am glad you are interested in the Right Off the Reel page, and hope you may continue to be.

G. E. B.: I don't blame you for wanting to know everything you can about your favorite pictures. Undoubtedly the cap in the play you mention was a boudoir cap. I have taken great pleasure in registering your vote. Write me again when at any time I can be of service to you.

SILLY GALLILLIES SECOND: Pretty nice to be silly, isn't it? You make me awfully happy telling me that you enjoy the Right Off the Reel page so much. Thank you. At the present time I believe that Pearl White is not married. Mary Pickford has a white character. Her hair is naturally curly. Creighton Hale says he is not married. So sayeth Fay Tincher, so also sayeth J. Warren Kerrigan. I don't mind in the least your being inquisitive. I am here to answer questions. You are vurr, vurr welcome.

H. AND B.: B'ess 'em hearts! Believe me, I am mighty glad you like the page so much and hope you will continue to like it. Write to the Thanhouser twins in care of the Thanhouser company, New Rochelle, N. Y. Yes, they are really and truly twins. I am simply flattered to death to think that I look like one of them. You shouldn't tell me such nice things. I'd love to send you my picture, but the rules of this paper forbid. Don't worry, you're not missing much.

JUST CLAIRE: I'd love to see your dear Just Claire, for I think it must be so attractive. Regarding the questions: Pat O'Malley is still with the Edison company, 2826 Decatur avenue, Bedford Park, N. Y. Harold Lockwood is still with the American company, Santa Barbara, Cal. You are entirely right in thinking that I am a friend of yours. I hope that you will give me any chance of proving my friendship.

JACK: All right, let's settle your arguments. Marie Eline is not the child of James Cruze and Marguerite Snow. They have only one child, little Julia Cruze. Yes, John Bunny is really dead. In "A Fool There Was" Runa Hodges was the child. She was cunning, wasn't she?

DISCOURAGED: The names of the winners in the Selig "Funny" contest were announced in the Sunday issue of Oct. 24.

1666—21. Brooklyn, N. Y. A very charming miss of 21; weight 142; height 5 feet 7; brown hair; brown eyes; clear complexion; Swedish descent; Protestant; good common school education; neat appearing; considered good looking. Never married; will marry a poor man if worthy; no objection to farmer.

The Kansas Pelleas Greets the Vermont Melisande and They Kiss—by Mail. And Sometimes They Meet and Marry.

By Gordon Seagrove.

SOMEWHERE today are 1,000 women's hearts stirring with the wretched pangs of unfulfilled love, 1,000 hearts that have been miraculously cheated of their natural reward, and that now in early youth or middle age thump only weakly when they should pound madly. Somewhere, too, there are a thousand men, modest, no doubt, tongue halted, perhaps, yearning for woman's sympathy, her love, and the conventional back drop of home and fireside, heightened by a plethora of children, and who, thus far denied, have grown desperate.

Now, it is perfectly evident that all, that is needed to bring these groups together to develop a love so lasting, so consuming, so instantaneous that it would beggar description is some artifice which will yoke Sophie Glutz of Lone Pine, Okla., with Rudolph Kelly of Cincinnati in the holy bonds of correspondence; some intermediary who will, out of the richness of his heart, see to it that Jennie Jones, weeping bitterly over her loveless career in Hickville, O., dries her eyes and looks up to find that she is being proposed to by mail by Handsome George, the lonesome barber of Waco, Tex.

Lonely ones, step up and meet Mr. Allan Watson Ward of Valley, Neb., president and what not of the Sincere club, who is the open hearted intermediary. Convention, as Mr. Ward will tell you for nothing at all, is not transcendent, and that where the spark of unfanned love burns, even though it burns in one case on the snowy steppes of Russia and the Everglades of Florida in another, there is yet hope providing you unburden your soul to Mr. Ward, who will then undertake to be master of your fate for a small consideration and will do all in his power to save you from the ignominy and the chill nights of disappointed spinsterhood.

Shafts from Cupid Ward.

With all the acumen brought by years of mating by mail, which he modestly claims he has made his life work, Mr. Ward goes thus adeptly to his work, strumming the heart strings of the hesitant ones in a recent issue of his Sincere magazine:

> Women are the sweetest, purest, and most unselfish part of the human race. They sing the melody of the human race. Any man who has experienced a mother's devotion, a wife's self-sacrificing love, or a sweetheart's affection, knows this is true.
> No matter what your position in life may be, you must be ready to accept the chance when it comes [Mr. Ward will see that you do not suffer for chances], as while you are deliberating the opportunity is likely to pass, never to come again. Therefore, cultivate the spirit of enterprise.
> Get a neat, affectionate, true wife, one who will love you and make your home a paradise; a noble woman who will stand by you in trouble, dispel your gloomy moods by her bright smiles, and stifle your sighs with warm, loving kisses. Do this and you will have nothing more to wish for in the world.

Thus does the generous Ward sink his first printed shaft into the heart of lonely man, and on either side of it are the pictures of countless ladies, ranging in age from 15 to 60, and beneath the pictures modest descriptions starting hesitantly off like this: “Here is a charming, attractive, adorable widow of 50, who would make any man a splendid wife,” and ending up with a statement concerning weight, height, religion, and property.

O burning thought! O adorable dream! To think that so lovely a creature thus displays herself for capture! And with ears turned suddenly keen the lonely one harks while the rapturous Ward sings anon:

> Here is the one grand chance of your life to secure a kind, loving wife, possibly one having considerable means, who might, if she thought you worthy of it, let you use several thousand dollars in business. Here I make an unusually liberal offer. If you will fill out the application blank for membership, I will accept you as a member in the Sincere Corresponding club for eighteen months for only $2 and will send you the name and address of every lady whose description appears in this paper. And I want you to thoroughly understand that your name and address will not appear in this paper.

Note that last line; it is the owner's masterpiece. Of course, the man's address will not appear in “this” paper, which is circulated for men only and contains only women's pictures. But it will be printed in another paper which the artful Ward prints only for women, who may then write in and get the names of the men for a certain specified sum. Mr. Ward, as you see, works it both ways, and, from all accounts, most successfully, guaranteeing not to get you safely married, but to put you in touch with maidens, young or old, whose consuming aim is matrimony.

For $2 in addition to the original two he then sounds a timbril so musical, so tempting, that it is almost impossible not to heed. Rather than see man suffer interminably he will send a 100 word description of any man underneath a photo, to 1,000 ladies, who are in duty bound to write in return. Then, having taken you figuratively aside, he whispers this:

> Brother, this makes the letters come in to a man from the ladies in a manner that is something simply wonderful, and those gentlemen who have already followed my advice have thanked me over and over again from the bottom of their heart for the great amount of good I have done them.

The friendly whisper of intimacy, the gentle hand on the shoulder, the counseling voice was too much for THE TRIBUNE reporter, for it made him feel that life indeed was dark without the light of a woman's smile, and he hurriedly wrote the Sincere club his application for membership therein, inclosing a somewhat exaggerated and fulsome description of himself, and in two days found an answer, inclosing timely suggestions on the gentle art of wife catching, giving the names and addresses of several hundred women, the most alluring of which had their pictures in the paper, the others, merely descriptions.

Helps Find a Wife Quickly.

The letter in part reads as follows, and refers at once to the proposition mentioned above:

> My dear friend: Your letter indicates to me that you are a man of shrewd business ability and one who appreciates to the fullest extent any kindness or favors that a friend might bestow upon you. I am therefore going to make an unusual exertion on my part to help you quickly secure the lady for your wife that you think will make the rest of your life one of joy and happiness forever.
> You are fully interested in seeing how quickly you can secure a charming wife and I want you to let me give you the full benefit of many years' study and experience in this line of work. As I already know you are not a stingy man and you do not feel afraid to spend a few dollars on a matter that is so important as this one, which means the one great joy of a man's whole life, I am going to suggest to you that you let me send your description out to a thousand or more interested ladies who are looking for a good, kind husband like yourself and are anxious to marry just as soon as they can be suited.
> I will therefore send a nice 100 word notice about yourself to more than 1,000 ladies who are looking for husbands and praise you up in a nice manner for only $2.
> A few dollars spent with me on the proposition offered you herein may mean the turning point of your whole life and may be the means of helping you to easily secure a very charming, attractive, as well as a very wealthy wife who would be able to assist you wonderfully in making a success of your business undertakings as well as make the rest of your life one of paradise on earth.

The reporter's heart thrilled and he saw happy visions of a new life—a dog's life, that of the reporter—with a charming wife to meet him at the door and spend his salary. And so he ventured a letter to a prospective mate, one that, although photoless, stood out invitingly from the printed page of Mr. Ward's making.

1523—23. Kentucky, Boyd County. A pretty little blue eyed miss of 23; weight 135; height 5 feet; light brown hair; fair complexion; good, kind disposition; English descent; Baptist; good common school education; fine housekeeper and cook; very neat appearance; never married; has no one dependent upon her. Will marry soon as suited. Will marry poor man, if worthy; no objection to farmer.

1500—42. Massachusetts. A very refined, neat, cultured lady of means; age 42; weight 175; height 5 feet 4; brown hair; blue eyes; fair complexion; jolly, sunny disposition; American; Baptist; a lady of leisure, worth $25,000, and will inherit; excellent housekeeper and cook; accomplished in music and play the violin. Wish to hear from refined, honorable gentleman of suitable age who would appreciate a good wife.

> 1476—36 (this second number always states the age)—Here is one of the most attractive, refined, highly educated, and handsome ladies it has ever been our pleasure to introduce to our members. She is 36 years of age, weight 150, 5 feet 7 inches, brown hair; blue eyes; light complexion; good natured; excellent cook and housekeeper; plays piano and sings; American Protestant. She owns a nice home (this in capitals).

The reporter stroked his brow in amazement that so talented a goddess should be mateless, singing her plea to a wilderness of men. Obviously in writing to a woman so much older than himself he must resort to formula No. 1, which calls for a professed dislike for the empty headed young girl. So this was the letter that was dispatched:

> Mrs. J. D., Minneapolis, Minn.
> Dear Mrs. D.—Maybe 36 is a litle bit old for me. You see I am near 30, and although some women consider this age rather young, I have had all the experience of the average man of 40 or over, simply because responsibility was thrown on my shoulders from the first.
> I am a salesman now, but have done many things, some of them very successfully, and now I am in a fair way of making a success of my salesmanship, as I earn $170 a month, have some property, worth in all about $9,500, and am doing better every day.

4761—43. Man., Can. Refined, well educated gentleman, Canadian bachelor, age 43; weight 150; height 5 feet 10; brown hair; brown eyes; fair complexion; kind, jolly disposition; Protestant; good education. I am a merchant and have a very good income, and am worth over one million. Have no one dependent upon me, and am in a position to give a good, comfortable home to the right lady and will make her happy and contented. Am sincere and will marry as soon as suited. Wish to correspond with a refined, well educated lady, fair complexion, light hair, and blue eyes. Prefer lady to have some means, as I do not want a fortune hunter.

1050—39. Duluth, Minn. A very refined, charming, ambitious widow lady; age 39; weight 128 pounds; height 5 feet 5 inches; light brown hair; blue eyes; very clear complexion; good natured and jolly; French and Scotch descent; religion, Catholic; occupation, dressmaker; good education; excellent housekeeper and cook; neat and dressy; plays the piano and sings; is a widow by death; wish to hear from some good, sober, industrious, home loving gentleman of suitable age who would appreciate a good wife.

1515—22. Allegheny County, Pennsylvania. A refined, handsome, jolly maiden of 22; weight 135; height 5 feet 7; dark brown hair; brown eyes; fair complexion; American; Methodist; college graduate; fine housekeeper and a No. 1 cook. Has fine musical education. Income $600 a year. Never married. Wishes to hear from good, moral man with good common sense. Will marry a poor man if honest, ambitious, and worthy.

1302—23. Delaware, Newcastle County. A refined, attractive widow of 23; weight 110; height 5 feet 3; dark brown hair; blue eyes; fair complexion; American; Protestant; good education; good cook and housekeeper; income $500 a year; will marry soon as suited. Prefer gentleman age 28 to 40 years, dark complexion, and of good moral character. I am a widow by death.

> Though I haven't anybody dependent on me, I have put off marrying all these years because I used to think, in my younger days when I was a kid, that a woman was a hindrance to a man in business. Now I see what a fool I was. I know now that a woman is what a man needs to help him get ahead.
> I mean the right kind of a woman, of course, not one of them silly, empty headed little chickens that you see every day, nor one of the grafting girls between 25 and 30. One of them is as bad as the other.
> From all I've learned, a woman never begins to have much sense until after she's 30 unless she's had some unusual experiences. But give me a woman of 30 or over every time when I want companionship and somebody to help out on problems that are bothering you. I think the ideal marriage is one that helps both the woman and the man. I could tell some chicken this and she wouldn't understand in a thousand years, but you know what I mean I am sure.
> I am a good looking man as men go. That is, I am six feet tall, built proportionately, and am a typical blond. What I want I go after and take. And I don't care who it hurts as long as it isn't a woman. That's why I get ahead. Because I make up my mind to a thing and go ahead and do it. And if I ever met a woman that I thought loved me and that I loved I'd break my neck to win her—mine or somebody's else.
> But in this town I don't see any women I can even get interested in. They're all so silly. Haven't a thought. Can't talk. Can't do anything but dance. That's all right once in a while, but who wants to marry a woman who can't do anything but dance?

Dangles a Tempting Bait.

Now this following business about the possibility of a honeymoon was certainly a low down trick. The reporter hated to do it. But he wanted to see if the women whose names were in the paper would actually fall for the line and answer. And to show further that he is utterly hardened and insensible to any kindliness, it must be admitted that he used the same idea on at least half a dozen ladies:

> It's a very lonesome town, but thank fortune I may not be here very much longer. Expect to leave at the end of a year, in fact, to take up the branch of my firm in Japan. It used to give me a great deal of pleasure, and still does, to dream that maybe this trip to Japan might be turned into a combined promotion and honeymoon.
> First there would be the long trip on the Overland to San Francisco, dinner at the best hotel, with its soft carpeted lobbies, a cocktail or two to get the proper state of mind which all San Franciscans have, a taxicab to the fair grounds; dinner; then to the Pacific Mail boat to be followed by long, wonderful, drowsy days on shipboard, dreamy days in the sun, either reading or being read to, until Honolulu was reached.
> There dinner at the hotel, a ride through the surf at Waikiki, and then down to Wailili Betsy's to see the hula hula danced by the native girls, then back to the ship again, and onward to Kobe in the heart of the cherry blossom season.
> Of course this is a mere day dream on my part, and I don't suppose I shall ever realize this pleasure, but if you have ever wanted the love of somebody or if you have ever taken this trip to Japan, you can imagine what a pleasant dream it was.

This is the answer that came swiftly back:

> Dear friend: You know by this time, no doubt, that it is very trying to write to a stranger, but your letter was very plain and, believe me, some of it was very amusing. I decided if I was to become a friend of yours I was very glad indeed that I was past 30 and no chicken.
> But I really can't vouch whether I have any sense or not, but I will leave that for you to decide. Will say I joined this club out of mere amusement, but of course no one really knows what might come out of it—anyway, strange things happen in this world. I really enjoy some parts of the strangeness.
> So you really think you will go to Japan? That ought to be a fine experience.
>
> I am surprised you cannot meet some one in Chicago that you really like, but we all have our own ideas and are hard to please. I, like you, am particular.

Whereupon the writer begs the reporter to be of good cheer and closes with a restrained “good night.”

The same letter with names changed was sent out to others in the list, with more or less surprising resuts. Two evinced a mild interest, two hinted guardedly that they longed for a honeymoon to Japan themselves, and a third with maidenly modesty discoursed thus:

> Dear, dear friend: I speak to you thus because I recognize in you all the qualities I admire. And I think I am the woman you are looking for. I could make any man a good wife, but you appeal to me more than the others I have heard from. I especially like your looks. As for me, I am kind hearted, never quarrel, and like books and music and above all travel, and if I do say it myself, I could make a man happy, especially on a long, delightful trip such as you plan taking. Let me hear from you again soon. I like the tone of your letter and think we could become fast friends in a very short time.

Yet, somehow, the reporter felt that, being young, he might do better than widows and spinsters of from 36 to 50, and, bearing in mind the glad paen of the matrimonial Ward to just keep writing, he penned a plea to Miss 1,666, whose picture appears above, and who, it will be seen at a glance, has probably stirred the hearts of a thousand of the Sincere club's patients. Here is the letter in part:

> Dear Miss ——: I can't for the life of me see why such a good looking girl as you should want to take a plunge into matrimony, but then I suppose you are lonesome just like I am and want a little home all your own.
> Your picture certainly has attracted me very strongly because a lot of character is shown in your face, and you look like a good, lively little girl that likes a good time as well as the next one. You have laughing eyes, haven't you? And a rather smiling mouth, too. And you certainly must be a modest little protestant to say that you are “considered” good looking. Why don't you be real brave and frank about it and say that you know you're attractive?
> I'll wager you love to dance, too, and go to cabarets, and sometimes—now, don't get mad—I think you like to flirt. You may not know it, but you have flirtatious eyes. They'd only have to look my way once and I'd come rushing right over and we'd have the next fox trot together, and somehow I've got the idea that we could make Mrs. Vernon Castle and her husband watch their step.
> I've discovered also that you are plump. Cheer up: it's to be fashionable this year. Besides, the Turks say that a woman isn't beautiful unless she's plump. That being the case, you should worry.

She Was Already Suited.

Then followed a description and the inference that nothing could be more welcome in the writer's life than a person who tallied with the description of Miss 1,666 of Brooklyn, N. Y. And here is what came back, here are the words that fell from those curved and enticing lips. Read them:

> Your letter was interest reading. But when all ready suited, its hard to write interest back to you. You are mistaking about me, my laughing eyes, thinks of out-door life, and I don't know how to dance, you see my father very strict so thats why I correspond which I am suited. I am a good looking girl, and lots like me here still nicer, so keep on looking and forget me. But please do me a favor and cut out my picture I would like to see how it looked in the paper?
> Yours obliged, Miss —— ——.

Then, with a woman's sympathy surging in her heart after thus having thrown the writer down, she added this: “Don't feel lonesome lots of forgetmenots thinking of you, you don't know.”

Cave Man Not Popular.

Up to this time the same mental status was displayed in letters to the ladies who were seeking matrimony—always it was the bashful bachelor, lonely, but not nervy enough to break his loneliness, who was writing, but finally a new note was struck, a dominant note, a forceful, moving personality was expressed in the next letters sent out—in short, it was the modern cave man who was writing. And here is the letter that was sent broadcast:

> Dear Miss P. I dare say you won't like me. For I am different and cannot help myself. I have fought against my own qualities so long that now I have given up fighting and accept them as being stronger than I am.
> Perhaps, in a sense, you would call me

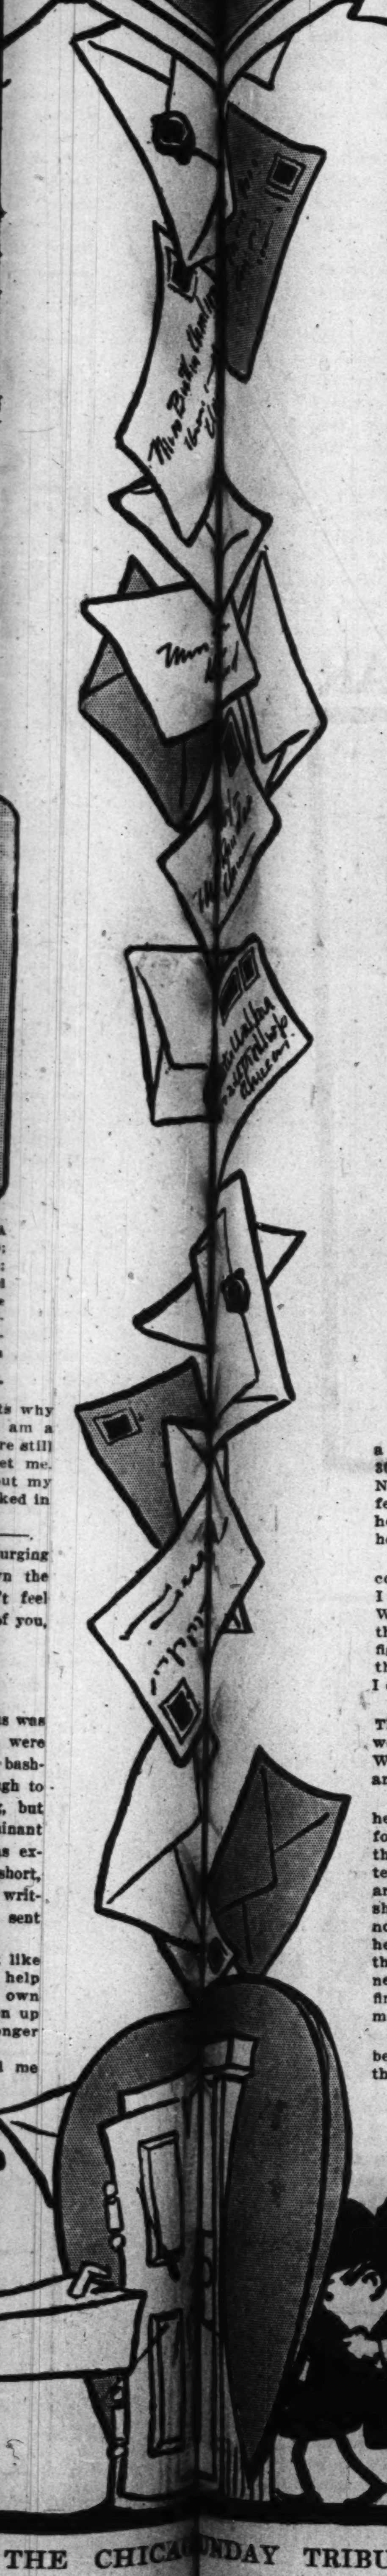
1553—18. Ohio. Here is as sweet a little lady of 18 summers as any good man could hope to meet. She is refined, ambitious, home loving, kind hearted, and true; weight 103; height 5 feet 3; dark brown hair; blue eyes; fair complexion; kind, affectionate disposition; German descent; good common school education, and plenty of good, common sense. She writes: "I am a very happy girl. I have a rather quick temper, but it is very quickly followed by a smile if only a few kind words are spoken." She is a good cook and a very neat housekeeper, also plays the piano and sings. Will inherit about $9,000. Will marry poor man if honorable and a good worker.

1504—38. Dallas County, Texas. A very refined, educated, and attractive southern lady; age 38; weight 180; height, 5 feet 2; brown hair; gray eyes; jolly, sunny disposition; American; Christian; fine housekeeper and cook; plays the piano and sings. Owns a fine farm worth $8,000 or more, and money on interest. Wish to hear from good, honorable gentleman of suitable age who would appreciate a good, home loving wife.

4867—29. Mont. Jolly young American, age 29; weight 155; height 5 feet 9; black hair; brown eyes; dark complexion; very good, kind, and loving disposition; even temperament. Can furnish best of references. Wish to correspond with some nice lady who is willing to marry a poor man. Am honest and a good worker. Am foreman on a large ranch, and have a good yearly income. Am sincere and will make the right one happy and contented. If interested, please write to me. Give full particulars in first letter. Prefer a lady of dark hair and eyes.



4845—30. Ind. Refined, well educated bachelor, age 30; brown hair; blue eyes; weight 162; sterling Christian character; a lover of home and its surroundings; Swiss descent; scientific farmer; graduate from best veterinarian school in the country; bright future; kind, good, and jolly disposition. Desire the acquaintance of a lady of suitable age and temperament, with the object of founding a home. Will inherit. No one dependent upon me. Am sincere and will marry as soon as suited. If interested, please write. All letters treated with courtesy. Give full particulars in first letter.

3698—40. Texas. American, bachelor, age 40; weight 140; height 5 feet 3; black hair; blue eyes; fair complexion; kind, loving disposition; even temperament; no one dependent upon me. Am a farmer and rancher; good income; common education. Prefer to meet lady between 20 and 39 years of age; weight 100 to 140, and height 5 feet, dark hair and eyes, and with a good character. Rancher's daughter preferred. Am sincere and will marry as soon as I find the right one. If interested, please write, giving full particulars in first letter.

4069—44. Mont. A refined American, business man and stock raiser; age 44; weight 150; height 5 feet 8; am a blonde; kind, jolly, and affectionate disposition; even temperament; German descent; good income; no one dependent upon me; good education. Am worth $30,000 and am in a position to give a good home and make the right lady happy and contented. Am a great lover of home and its surroundings and will do all in my power to make the right one happy and contented. Now, girls, if you want a good home and the best of treatment, write at once.

4816—36. Iowa. Widower by death, age 36; dark brown hair; brown eyes; weight 165; height 5 feet 6; enjoy good health; loving disposition; good natured and easy to get along with; American; religion, Congregational; do not use liquor or tobacco; common school education; occupation, carpenter; good steady worker; property worth $1,000. A lover of home and music; play piano, violin, and banjo; have fine piano. Will marry poor lady just as quick as rich lady. It is love and happiness I am looking for, not money. Ladies, if you are sincere and true, write me.

1661—24. Santa Fe County, New Mexico. Here is your chance to win a charming little widow of 24; weight 126; height 5 feet 3; light hair; gray eyes; light complexion; very good disposition; Irish; Protestant; common school education; enjoys good health; good cook and housekeeper. We think she is just the little lady to make some worthy gentleman's home a paradise on earth.

1512—18. Nebraska. A very refined, charming, handsome little miss of 18 summers; weight 110; height 5 feet 1; blonde; brown hair; fair complexion; jolly, kind disposition; German-American; common school education; very neat housekeeper and enjoys good health. Plays the piano and sings. Will inherit. Wishes to hear from good, honorable gentleman who would appreciate a nice little wife.

a cave man. I am big, powerful, and nearly 30. What I see and want I go and take. Nothing can stop me. Who gets under my feet I trample upon. And I do it with no hesitation, no sickly sentiment concerning how they must suffer.

And why should I bother? If I stop to consider them then I lose my own race. I fail to gain the end I set out to gain. When I make up my mind I act, and I take the shortest way to achieve it. It is fight, fight, fight from the moment I start until the hour of my victory, and the fallen ones I do not stop a moment to consider.

I do this because I do not love them. They are nothing to me, mere parts of the world that can live or die for all I care. What concerns me is myself, my success, and the woman who some day will be mine.

Some day I shall see her. I will look into her eyes and I will say, "I shall have her for I think she will love me and I know that I love her." And then over her protests, if she makes any, I shall seize her and crush her in my muscular arms until she cries out for me to stop. I will do this not because I wish to harm or intimidate her but because I love her and will take this way to show her that should she ever need a big, strong man's protection she can find it in the muscle of the arms that a moment before made her cry out.

Once I am assured she loves me, I shall be tender as the tenderest woman. I shall think of her comfort always and she shall command me and I shall obey because I will love her. But let her stray from the path of honor, let her break my heart with an untrue act, and I shall seize her in these same arms and crush, crush, crush her until I hear her weak woman's bones crack underneath her white skin, and then I shall throw her from me, tell her that I am done, and go my way.

Before that she may have my all. It amounts to nearly $200 a month and some property. I shall play and sing to her and we shall be always together except when she wishes otherwise.

Now, do you care to know me?

And in answer came just one letter—from a woman in a small town of Kansas; and all she said was: "You're the kind of a man I like. Let me hear from you again." So it would appear that the extreme cave man is not popular with Mr. Ward's class in matrimony, which in this case was confined to women between 25 and 35—not too old to have lost romantic illusions.

Young Susceptible to Flattery.

And then there was another type that demanded attention, the elfin type, as disclosed by Miss 1,512, whose face smiles at you from the many types above. Miss 1,512 was but 17 or 18, and consequently a light, go easy letter was the order of the hour, and here it is in part:

Dear Little Miss: Here I am, an unknown voice out of the great, big city speaking to you and wondering what you are like.

I wonder if I could guess? From your eyes I would say that you had a quick mind, see the point of things in short order, and have a bit—quite a bit—of temper when aroused. From your mouth I should say that you are of fun loving but kindly disposition. It reminds me of the mouth of a beautiful English countess I saw in the paper the other day. From your nose I should say you were rather sensitive and proud.

And from your furs I should say that it was a very, very chilly day in South Sioux City when you had your picture taken.

The remainder of the letter was the usual stuff—description, earning capacity, and the cry of a lonely soul yearning for companionship. Surely this ought to touch the heart of Miss 1,512—unless it had already been touched—and this is precisely what had happened, for when the answer came it was brief and telling.

I am sorry, but have already been suited, but your letter was enjoyed. Thanking you for your kind attention, I am,

——— ———.

One fact was apparent in the letters to the young women—that they were susceptible to a marked degree to flattery, even of the most obvious sort. Of the letters that were sent out to young girls those containing flattery were the quickest to receive answer, while those that were confined to a mere statement of the writer's loneliness in most cases were not answered for weeks.

Regrets Sending Photograph.

That the women are sometimes deceived by Matchmaker Ward's ingenious wording was brought forth in a letter of a young girl in Kentucky, who had been misled into believing that her picture under no circumstances would be printed in a paper. Here is what she says in regard to this:

So that is what they did with my photo, is it? I never knew until you wrote and told me that you saw it. Isn't it just awful? I have written them and told them to please drop it all, as it was a mistake. Of course it isn't, but if I knew that they were going to publish it in a magazine I never would have sent it.

The young woman in question evidently suffered acutely through this disclosure, as she wrote several letters, all of them regretting that her face and other attractions had been blazoned broadcast, to be seen by a thousand yokels seeking matrimony.

Remembering that one of woman's sweetest qualities, according to Mr. Ward, is loving tenderness and sympathy, another form of letter was sent out, a letter so tragic that it could not but wring the tear of pity even from the casual and stony eye. Listen:

Maybe you think I am a weakling to let sadness get the better of me at my age (I am almost 30), but maybe when you hear what has happened to me all within two years you won't be so severe, if indeed you are interested in the matter at all.

To begin with, I had a good man friend, a fellow I had known since we went to school together in London. We both came here at the age of 15 and were always pals. Two years ago he went into Alaska and I never heard from him again. He died up there from exposure.

Then there was my girl. I mean a little girl that I used to think the world of. You know how it is when you are disappointed in anybody you trust. Well, she pretty nearly knocked me out when she ran away with some good for nothing bartender who didn't even have the decency to marry her. God knows where she is now. I can't find her. It wouldn't be any use now if I could—she'll never be the same.

Maybe you think that didn't hurt, and then on top of it came a steamship disaster last summer and took my two sisters. And ever since I don't know whether I am dead or alive and I don't much care.

And the answers that came back proved that the words from "Sincere Valley" were words of truth, for, without exception, the return letters were kindly and cheering. One of them from Miss 1,588 of New York, who is 34, a brunette, 5 feet 4 inches tall, and weighs 133, was particularly gentle:

In regard to your letter, I sympathize with you. Remember we all have our crosses to bear. And perhaps if you had my past experience from childhood on you probably would have done away with yourself. Worthless people I forget. That girl could not have thought much of you. Perhaps some day she will return, and if you thought a lot of her you surely will forgive her. Man can easily forget his troubles, content and make himself at home in any part of the world where it is hard for women. Perhaps in the future you will have better luck.

From this adventure the reporter turned aside to worship anon at the shrine of the widow—the widow than whom there is no more charming woman in the lexicon of Carolus Alger. And widows there were plenty:

1664—32. Indiana, Marion county—A very refined, charming, and handsome widow lady, age 32; weight 147, height 5 feet 5; brown hair; hazel eyes; fair complexion; very sweet, sunny disposition; Scotch-Irish descent; Methodist; good education; property worth $3,000. Income $84 per month. Will marry poor man if honorable and refined.

1302—28. Delaware, Newcastle county—A refined, attractive widow of 28; weight 110; height 5 feet 3 inches; dark brown hair; blue eyes; fair complexion; American Protestant; good education; good cook and housekeeper; income $500 a year; will marry as soon as suited; prefer gentleman age 28 to 40 years, dark complexion, and of good moral character. I am a widow by death.

1230—37. Akron, O.—A refined, ambitious little Catholic lady, age 37; weight 110 pounds; height 5 feet; auburn hair; blue eyes; fair complexion; good disposition; American; good common school education; good housekeeper and cook; property worth $1,400 and will inherit. No objection to farmer.

To the first, who was a cheery looking soul from her description, a letter was dispatched which had for its basis the premise the theory that the right kind of a wife was the one who could be a good companion, a good fellow, and a good wife all in one and who took life easily, neither flinging madly in the cabarets nor yet growing senile over her fancy work. The response was gratifying—Mr. Ward was fast hurtling me toward matrimony:

Dear Mr. ———: I have read your letter over and over and don't know just what to say because you say you have traveled a great deal and are quite a reader. In that case, I am afraid I would not prove very interesting to you.

And yet I believe that you and I would have a lovely time, for I am the good fellow you are looking for. You say you are looking for a woman who would be a good companion, good fellow, and good wife. I really do believe that I am the very one you are looking for. Sorry I didn't know you last winter, for I spent three weeks near your home. And I am coming back in a few weeks on business.

Hoping to hear from you real soon, I am,

One Is Brief; Another Heeds Not.

Which was the letter of a pleasant, fairly educated woman, contrasting greatly with that received from 1,322. No. 1,322 had auburn hair, as did one or two others, and it was gently suggested in the letter to 1,322 that, inasmuch as she had red hair, she must be a woman of temperament and power, since Cleopatra, Queen Elizabeth, and others who were thus blessed had generally had things their own way. It was also hinted that the writer was drawn to her through some strange power that followed the line of "after 40." And thus replied 1,322:

Dear Sir: Your kind letter received. Glad to Here From You. Would be glad to see your picture. My hair is not red but dark. Some friend sent my name into the paper. Pardon Me for not riting more as I have to make the train to go to see my brother.

Jane ———.

Yours respectfully,

Next came 1,302, whose picture appears above. Truly a gentle, kindly face, that of 1,302, and one bespeaking a certain charming wistfulness that was alluded to in the letter that went her way. It was a nice letter, such as Sincere Valley encourages in its patients, and one that should have received an answer, but this widow, 28 and beautiful, heeded it not.

Weary in heart, the reporter turned again toward another widow whose hair of red gave promise of lasting and satisfying love, and who was listed in the Sincere Valley publication as 1,230, and whose description sounded alluring. Who, he asked himself, would go on guzzling eternally with low browed beer brothers when he might have a lovely little auburn haired wife, kind and generous, and a cook of attainments, at home? So with palpitating heart he wrote—with this result:

Dear friend: Received your letter this morning glad to hear from you. I will be honest with you in my first letter I am a widow with two little girls one soon be 12 years old, one past 10 years old. I am 38 years old, blue eyes, auburn hair and fine figure kind loving dis. but spunk enough to hold my own. Pretty fair looking. I won't say good looking. I will leave that to the party that gets me. I am a good woman and will make a good wife for a good man. I am a widow for 8 years and want a man that can and will support me and my girls proper and be good to us and make us a good home. No others neat to write or waste there time. Please rite and let me know all about yourself then if suited will send you my photo. Please send me yours.

Widows Most Eager.

Truly it was not buncombe that emanated from Sincere Valley in the statement that mates would be found for the meek and lowly, the halt and the blind. Sincere Valley correspondence would do even more. It would furnish you with children, thus making matrimony complete in one short lesson.

And of all the cases advertised it appeared that the widows were most eager to plunge again into matrimony, most receptive to the writer, and most sympathetic and agreeable, but not so frank as the ministers' daughters.

Ah, yes; even ministers' daughters, seeking a union outside of the choir, are numbered among the Sincere club's list, and this young woman, Miss 1,515, whose picture appears above, was disarmingly candid and charmingly so. Forthwith:

I do not wonder in the least that you wonder why such a girl as I am in the club as if poor me could never have a fellow. No, indeed, I am not a paradox, but a real, lively, jolly little girl with a peculiar history who wants to meet the right one.

Don't you think for one moment that because I am a minister's daughter that I am a long faced prude. I could never be an iceburg; never, for I have a loving disposition and just must have some one to love me with all their might. A girl can have the ginger and pep and yet be a good girl.

I just feel so lonesome and long for a gool pal, so let's be pals, dear friend?

Your lonesome friend,

——— ———.

In Metric Trend.

Which was all that was promised in the circulars, and a little bit more. And then came another letter, this time from a young girl in Kentucky, which quite held up the fulsome assertions of the Sincere Valley publications. It was from Miss 1,221, whose description appears as follows:

1221—24. Kentucky, Davies county—A nice little Catholic lady, age 24; weight 128; height 5 feet 5; dark brown hair; hazel eyes; fair complexion; sunny disposition; American; college education; income of nearly $800 a year and will inherit $2,000; splendid housekeeper and cook; plays the piano and sings; never married and has no one dependent upon her. Will marry poor man, if worthy. No objection to farmer.

In part this letter reads:

I well know you possess all the charms of mind and person that can make any lady happy and I must confess that my feelings are deeply enlisted in your favor. I feel very much pleased by the compliments you paid me in your letter.

I am all alone in my room, so I will write what my heart tells me. I have no dislike for entering into the marriage state, but our acquaintance at present is imperfect and we are comparative strangers to each other's tastes and tempers. I need scarcely observe that an intimate knowledge of such matters is absolutely requisite before we can decide whether we are fitted for enjoyment together of a partnership for life. Meanwhile I have no objection to allowing such freedom of acquaintance as shall enable us to arrive at this knowledge.

Note the mellifluous trend of the sentences, the metric and measured flow, such as was equaled by only Ward himself in sounding the siren song to the lonely hearts through his publications.

There were few such letters; most of them were from women, if not poorly educated, then not educated at all; women who either joined the club out of loneliness, with the idea that they might actually meet some one who would suit them in marriage, or cast their names among the eligibles "just to see what would happen."

Men Brief and Serious.

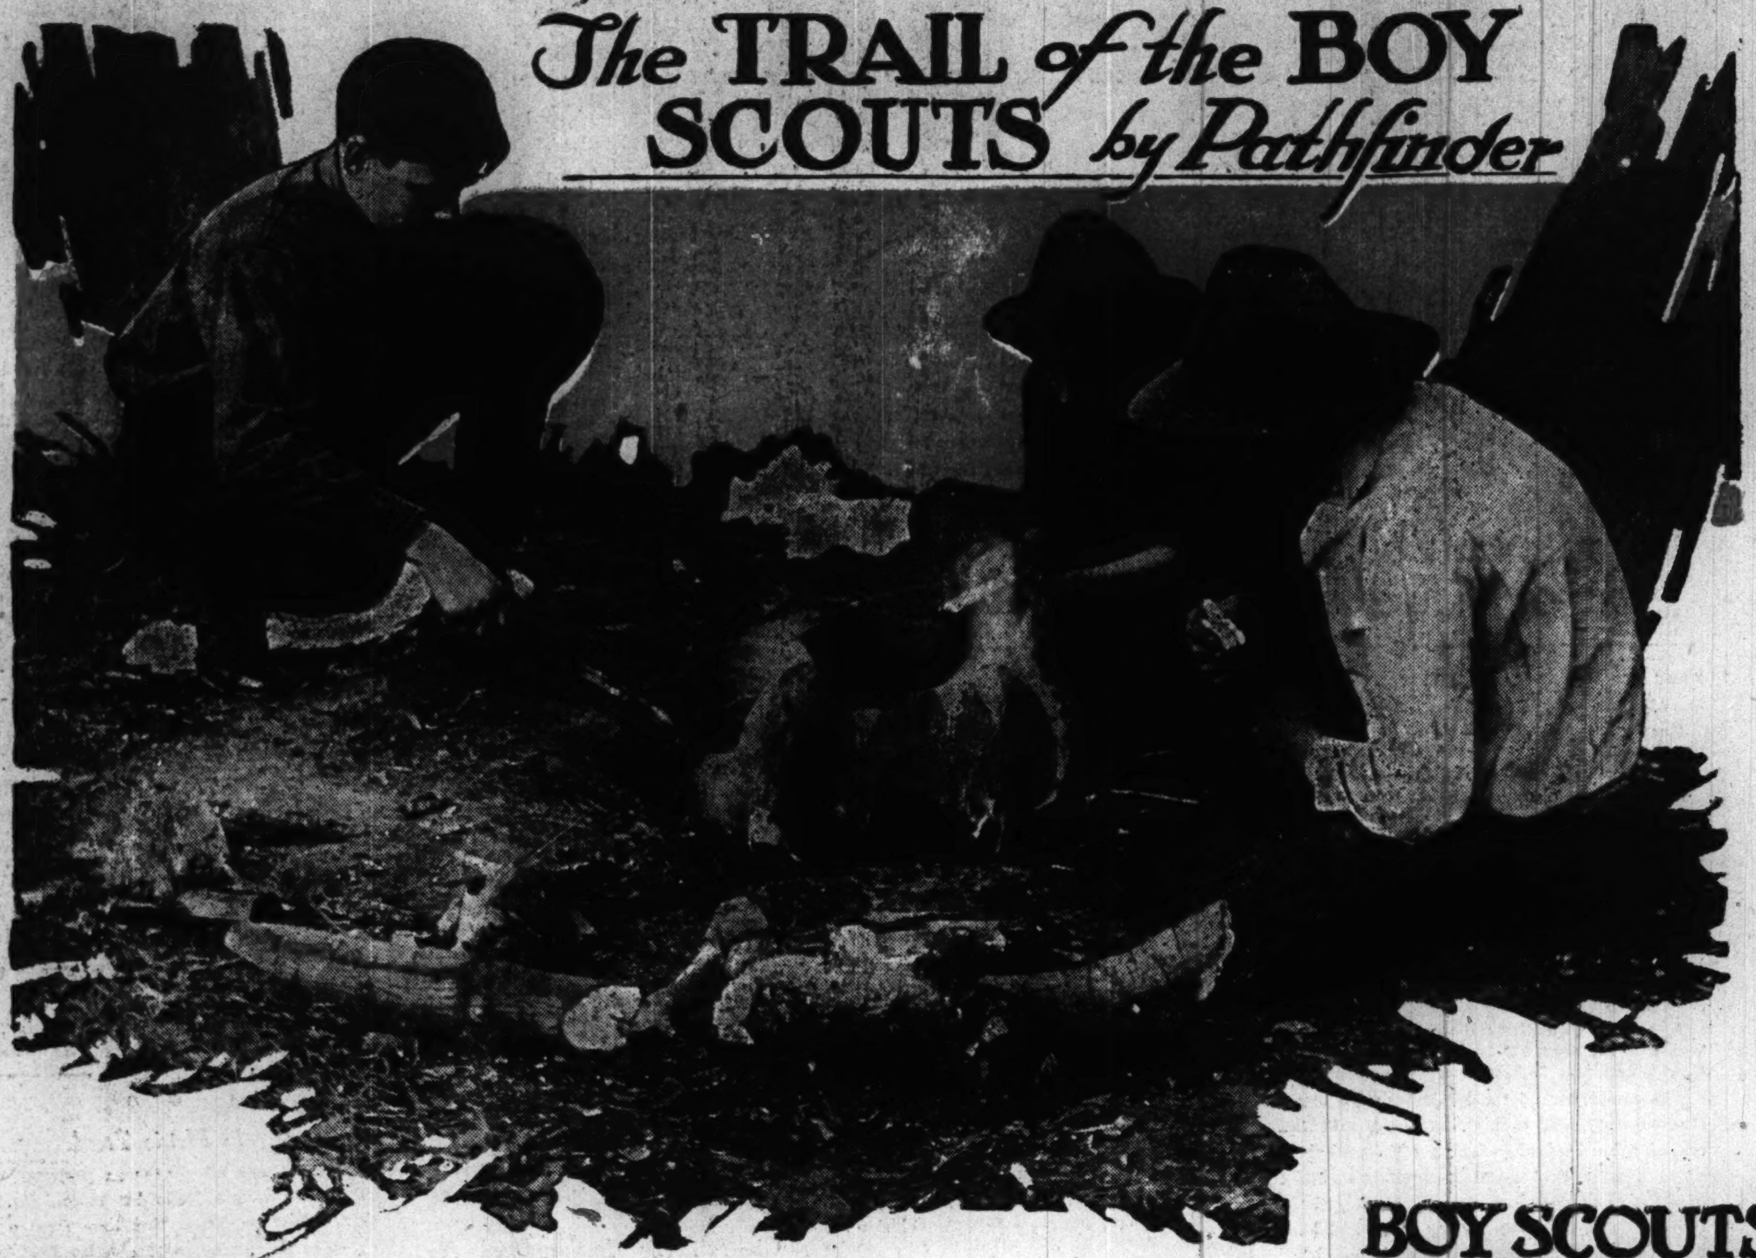
As to the men, types of whom are printed on this page, they were, for the most part, serious. When one lives on a lonely ranch, a chill farm, or in a small town the opportunities for matrimony are few, and when a lure such as emanates from "Sincere Valley" presents itself they eagerly follow it. Their letters without exception (that is the few that chanced to fall into the hands of the writer) were crudely terse and to the point.

There was no mincing words with these yokels. They weighed so much, looked so and so, wanted a woman with certain characteristics, and would support her, by gum, like a lady should be supported. There was no reserve, no fencing, no analysis of the prospective mate's attributes. If they liked her hair and eyes and her figure and harked to her song that she could cook well they were satisfied, and in some cases were for following the first letter with a personal visit, marriage license in one hand and red flannel mittens in the other.

And they are successful. One of Sincere Valley's proudest exhibits is the list of testimonials of men and women who are now in the Nirvana of matrimonial life; the tributes of the Kansas Pelleas and the Vermont Melisande that when the heart is pained with emptiness and gripped with sorrow there is nothing like a little balm from Sincere Valley to help it out. And to be had so cheaply—10 cents for the paper with the pictures (issued quarterly), and only $2.50 for the names! And in closing the reporter wishes to admit something. He has written a hundred letters to ladies who yearned for the homely fireside and a mate. And he has received his answers. And he prints them herewith. And so he is like the fellow who kisses and tells. He is no gentleman. He admits it.

YOUNG AMERICANS

The TRAIL of the BOY SCOUTS by Pathfinder



BOY SCOUT COOKING.

EVERY scout who has been on a long hike knows how good the grub that he cooked by the roadside tasted. It makes me hungry now when I think of the occasion, not many weeks ago, when a bunch of us, weary from a long tramp into the country, stopped near a stream and, hunting up two or three stones, built a fireplace.

After we had the stones in place we shaved a stick and then whittled it for shavings. After the match had been lighted and a little blaze had been started we added some bark and dry twigs, together with a few small sticks, and then placed a griddle over the fire. Before long we had griddle cakes and, believe me, those griddle cakes were appetizing.

When we had finished with the cakes we friend slices of bacon on the griddle, and in the surplus fat we fried slices of bread and also some thinly sliced raw potatoes, which we let turn to a delicious brown.

Some of the scouts built a different sort of fireplace. They placed green logs side by side, closer together at one end than the other, and they built the fire between. On the logs over the fire they rested a frying pan, kettle, etc. Before starting the fire they had ready light, dry wood, split up fine. When the sticks began to blaze they added a few more of larger size and continued until they had a good fire.

In making the griddle cakes we beat one egg and added a tablespoon of sugar and a cup of sweet milk that we secured at a neighboring farmhouse. Then we mixed enough self-rising flour to make a thick cream batter. We greased the griddle with the rind of bacon for each batch of cakes, and we made it a point to keep the griddle hot.

The bacon we sliced quite thin, removing the rind, which makes the slices curl up. Some of the boys chose to put their slices of bacon on the end of a stick and hold them over the hot coals; others removed the griddle and put a clean, flat rock in its place. When the rock was hot they placed the slices of bacon on it to broil, turning so as to brown on both sides. A number of the scouts preferred to roast their potatoes. They washed and dried the potatoes thoroughly and then buried them deep in the bed of coals, covering them with hot coals until they were well done. It took about forty minutes for the potatoes to bake. The scouts then passed a sharpened hardwood sliver through the potatoes from end to end and let the steam escape. They ate the potatoes immediately, knowing that a roast potato soon becomes soggy and bitter.

In making the coffee we allowed a teaspoonful of ground coffee for every cup of water and then added one extra spoonful. First of all we let the water come to a boiling point; then we added the coffee and held it just below the boiling point for five minutes. We caused the coffee to settle with one-fourth of a cup of cold water.

Of course we had along with us several scouts who had obtained merit badges for cooking. They had proved their ability to build a fireplace out of stone or sod or logs, to build a fire in the fireplace and cook thereon camp stew, two vegetables, omelet, and rice pudding. They had demonstrated their ability to mix dough and bake bread in an oven and also to make tea, coffee, and cocoa. Also they could carve properly and serve correctly to people at the table.

To make a camp stew, chop the meat into small chunks about an inch or one and one-half inches square. Then scrape and chop up any vegetables that are easily obtained—potatoes, turnips, carrots, onions, etc.—and put them into the mess kit, adding clean water, or soup, till the mess kit is half full. Mix some flour, salt, and pepper together and rub the meat well into the mixture, then place this in the mess kit or kettle, seeing that there is just sufficient water to cover the food—and no more. The stew should be ready after simmering for about an hour and a quarter.

We did not attempt either the camp stew or biscuits during this particular hike to which I have just referred, but I know how well most scouts like biscuits and like to make them. Among the recipes given in "The Hand Book for Boys" there is an excellent biscuit recipe, as follows:

One and one-half pints of flour.

One and one-half heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder.

One-half heaping teaspoonful of salt.

One heaping tablespoon of cold grease.

One-half pint of cold water.

The amount of water varies according to the quality of flour. Too much water makes the dough sticky and prolongs the baking. Baking powders vary in strength—the directions on the can should be followed in each case.

Mix thoroughly with a big spoon or wooden paddle, first the baking powder with the flour and then the salt. Rub into this the cold grease (which may be lard, cold pork fat, or drippings) until there are no lumps left and no grease adhering to the bottom of the pan. This is a little tedious, but it doesn't pay to shirk it; complete stirring is necessary for success. Then stir in the water and work it with the spoon until the result is rather a stiff dough. Squeeze or mold the dough as little as possible, because the gas that makes the biscuit light is already forming and should not be pressed out. Do not use the fingers in molding—it makes biscuits "sad." Flop the mass of dough to one side of the pan, dust flour on the bottom of the pan, flop the dough back over it, and dust flour on top of the loaf. Now rub some flour over the bread board, flour the hands, and gently lift the loaf on the board. Flour the bottle or bit of peeled sapling which is to be used as a rolling pin and also the edges of the can or can cover to be used as biscuit cutter. Gently roll the loaf to three-quarters of an inch in thickness. Stamp out the biscuits and lay them in the pan. Roll out the culls or leftover pieces of dough and make biscuits of them, too. Bake until the front row turns brown; reverse the pan, and continue until the rear row is similarly done. Ten to fifteen minutes is required in a closed oven and somewhat longer over the camp fire or camp earth or stone oven.

For "twist baked on a stick," work the dough, prepared as for biscuit, into a ribbon two inches wide. Get a club of sweet, green wood (birch, sassafras, poplar, or maple) about two feet long and three inches thick, peel the large end and sharpen the other and stick it into the ground, leaning toward the fire. When the sap simmers wind the dough spirally around the peeled end. Turn occasionally while baking. Several sticks can be baking at once. Bread enough for one man's meal can be quickly baked in this way on a peeled stick as thick as a broomstick, holding it over the fire and turning it from time to time.

And after you have done your cooking in the open, scouts, don't forget to prevent the rekindling of the fire after it is apparently out. Do as we did on this recent hike—pour water over the fire and soak the earth for the space of two or three feet around it.

KEEPING ARMY FOOD HOT.

AFTER a long day in the trenches a hot meal is one of the best tonics. With the system of field kitchens now in use in the European war there is no great difficulty in giving the soldiers a hot meal once every twenty-four hours.

On the Austro-Italian frontier, however, a different method of getting hot food to the soldiers has to be used. There the fighting often takes place several thousand feet above the sea level, and the only roads are narrow mountain passes over which it would be impossible for a field kitchen to travel.

So, on this frontier, hot soup, meat, or other food is carried twice a day on the backs of mules in special cooking cases, holding enough for a ration each for twenty-five men. These are big aluminum pans with a round opening, tightly closed by a screw plug. Each pan is kept in a case lined with cork and cotton waste, which act as nonconductors of heat, keeping the food boiling hot for at least twelve hours.

SCOUT NEWS FROM EVERYWHERE

Every Boy In the Game.

"Incidentally," says the Spokane Spokesman-Review, "scouting gives every boy a chance to be in the game. The trouble with baseball and football is that they do not do that. They are good as far as they go, but they do not go around. Nine or eleven boys take a hand in them; 100 or 1,000 sit and shout. They have no other part in it. Granted that there are many nines and elevens, still there are many more whom the game really robs of a boy's most previous quality—initiative. It pauperizes the boys physically and mentally by making them take their fun at second hand. Play, said Froebel, is the normal occupation of a child through which he grows character, and we know Froebel was right.

English Scouts Prove Patriotism.

English Boy Scouts, since the beginning of the war, have found an ever broadening field for practical participation therein. Almost without exception every Boy Scout who could qualify enlisted on the first call for recruits. Those who could not qualify sought other fields where their training and ability would render the most service. Perhaps the most important of these fields—the manufacture of munitions—has proved an immense success.

When England faced the problem of getting adequate munitions if it did not want to lose the war, Boy Scouts were the first to volunteer as munitions makers. An experimental squad of twenty was drawn from the London troops and "camp" was pitched in the vicinity of one of the big factories.

The squad was divided into four shifts. Scouts under 16 were given a morning or afternoon shift of eight hours. Older scouts got full day or night shifts in the gun room. So far as possible the community life of the scouts was followed. Only the day and night shift boys were exempted from scout duty. They didn't have the time nor the enthusiasm.

Each shift marched to and from the factory in regular scout order. While off duty scouting practice, ambulance work, scout law, lectures, and games were the regular program.

So successful did this experiment prove that the field of munitions making has been opened now to Boy Scouts in all parts of England. The scouts are replying to the call in large numbers, and should the enormous demand for munitions continue there is every indication that the great bulk of the English scouts who can't go to the front will engage in the work of providing ammunition for those who can.

Brooklyn Has Eagle Troop.

Because of the fact that of its personnel four boys have attained the prescribed ultimate in scout craft, Troop No. 21, Boy Scouts of America, with headquarters in Brooklyn, is known as the Eagle troop. An Eagle scout is one who has won a requisite number of merit badges which are awarded by the national council of the organization. The number of Eagle scouts is not great, and few troops in the country have as many as four on their roll.

A Friend In Need.

"I am a crossing watchman at Second street and Girard avenue, and a cripple," writes a Philadelphia man. "I have a signal on a high post, and every evening I have to put a lighted lamp up there and take it down in the morning to refill it. It is hard work and risky for me, for I have only one leg. So there is a little scout who passes every morning at 6 o'clock, serving milk for his uncle. He takes my lamp down for me. He told me it was his duty—every scout was to do a kind act every day of his life. Three cheers for the Boy Scouts!"

GETTING MUSCLE and KEEPING IT

Punching the Bag

EVERY day Joe Rivera, lightweight boxer, punches the bag for six three minute rounds. He pretends that the bobbing pigskin is a living antagonist, and he finds that the exercise tends to develop a punch and quicken the eye. "A fellow should hit the bag every time it comes back at him," says Joe. "Few boxers who have trained any length of time have poor eyes—their eyes develop along with the rest of their body. One should hit the bag just as hard as he can every crack."

AROUND THE CAMP FIRE

HOWARD: The Boy Scout motto is "Be Prepared," which means that the scout is always in a state of readiness in mind and body to do his duty and meet any emergency.

* *

M. R. W.: There is a call for the scout movement because the boys in our modern life, and especially in our cities and villages, do not have the chance, as did the boys of the past, most of whom grew up in the country, to become strong, self-reliant, resourceful, and helpful, and to get acquainted with nature and outdoor life, without special guidance and training.

F. H. S.: There are three qualities to a good knot: (1) Rapidity with which it can be tied, (2) its ability to hold fast when pulled tight, and (3) the readiness with which it can be undone.

The BLACK PEARL · by MRS. WILSON WOODROW

"At Last She Wept, Permitting the Flood of Tears That She Had Held in Check All Day—'Rudolf, Rudolf' Was the Name Upon Her Lips."

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

At Paloma, Hanson, theatrical magnate, meets and falls in love with Pearl Gallito, the Black Pearl, a dancer whom he wants to put on the stage. His attentions arouse jealousy in Bob Flick, her suitor. Hanson vainly makes overtures concerning the theatrical plan to Gallito, Pearl's father. Mrs. Gallito, a talkative soul, carelessly informs Hanson that Gallito is concealing Crop Eared José, a fugitive from justice, in the mountains. Terrified at her error, she begs Hanson not to tell, promising him that if he does not she will arrange for secret meetings between him and Pearl. At one of these Hanson confesses his love. Pearl half yields—all during the absence of Flick. On his return from Colina, Flick tells Pearl that Hanson has a wife living there and that she refuses to divorce Hanson. Pearl, thoroughly smitten now with the theatrical man, refuses to give him up and asserts that she will sign up with him for a tour. Thereupon she begins practicing her dances with Hughie Gallito, whom she calls her brother. Hughie, Flick, and Gallito all hate Hanson by this time. Gallito tells Hanson that his reputation is such that he cannot allow Pearl to sign up with him, and, further, that he proposes to hold her to a contract with Sweeney, her former manager. Hanson, almost on the point of forcing his permission by disclosing that he knows of Gallito's part in hiding José, finally decides not to, planning to use this "club" later. Hanson goes to Pearl, confesses the existence of his first wife, and begs her to elope with him without church sanction. Pearl is almost ready when Hanson makes a fearful "break" in telling her his belief that her nickname, "The Black Pearl," referred to her character, not her dark coloring. This infuriates Pearl and she rides away, vowing that she is through with him. Pearl, returning from her quarrel with Hanson, meets Flick and Gallito, tells them all, and begs to be taken where she will never see Hanson again, although she says she still loves him. Furthermore, she refuses to sign with Sweeney. Gallito decides to humor her and they depart for Colina, choosing that because, Mrs. Hanson being there, Hanson will not dare to come. Hanson, returning to Paloma, learns this, resolves to make another effort to free himself after hearing of Pearl's love declaration, and learns positively that Crop Eared José is in hiding in Colina. He also makes arrangements to communicate with Pearl through her mother.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE train which bore Pearl and her father to Colina had already completed its smooth progress through smiling foothills and had begun a steep and winding ascent among wild gorges and great overhanging rocks before she noticed the change.

It was dark when they reached Colina, but a station wagon awaited them, and in this they drove through the village. Clear of the village, the horses turned and began to mount the hill which led to Gallito's isolated cabin.

"Somebody's waiting for you," said the driver.

"Yes, Saint Harry," answered Gallito. "He's getting supper for us."

The door, however, was not opened for them and it was not until the driver had turned his horses down the hill that they heard a bolt withdrawn. Then Gallito pushed in and Pearl followed, stepping wearily across the threshold.

As they entered a man turned with a quick movement. He was an odd looking creature, brown as a nut, with glinting, changing, glancing eyes which can see what seem to be immeasurable distances to those possessed of ordinary sight. He had a curiously crooked face, one eye was higher than the other and his nose was not in the middle, but set on one side; its sharp, inquisitive point almost at right angles with the bridge.

"Supper ready?" asked Gallito, without other greeting.

"Now," replied the other man. He began lifting the food he had been preparing from the pans, arranging it on various dishes, and slipping them upon the table with a rapidity and noiselessness which suggested sleight of hand.

Gallito gave a brief nod and advanced toward two women, bowing low with Spanish courtesy. A smile, a blending of pleasure and amusement, softened his grim mouth and keen eyes as he shook hands with one whom he introduced to his daughter as Mrs. Nitschkan. About medium height, she was a powerfully built creature, her open flannel shirt disclosing the great muscles of her neck and chest. Rings of short, curly brown hair covered her round head, and small, twinkling blue eyes shone oddly bright in her deeply tanned face, while her frequent smile displayed small, milk white teeth.

The other woman towered above her and even above Gallito. She was a colossal Venus, with a face pink and white as a may blossom.

"Make you acquainted with Mis' Thomas, Miss Gallito," said Mrs. Nitschkan heartily. "Marthy's one of my oldest friends an' one of my newest converts. She's all right if she could let the boys alone, an' not be always tangled up in some flirtation that her friends has got to sit up nights scheming to get her out of. That pink bow an' that crêpe veil shows she ain't got the right idea of her responsibilities as a widow. So I brought her up to my little cabin, just a quarter of a mile through the trees there, hopin' I'd get her mind turned on more sensible things than men. Gosh a'mighty! She's got a chance to shoot bear here."

"I don't think you got any call to introduce me to the Black Pearl that-a-way, Sadie." Mrs. Thomas' eyes filled with ready tears. "It ain't manners. I wouldn't have come with her, Miss Gallito, but I got to see pretty plain that the gentleman," here she blushed and bridled, "that was courting me was awful anxious to get hold of the money and the cabin that my last husband in his grave 'most six months now, left me."

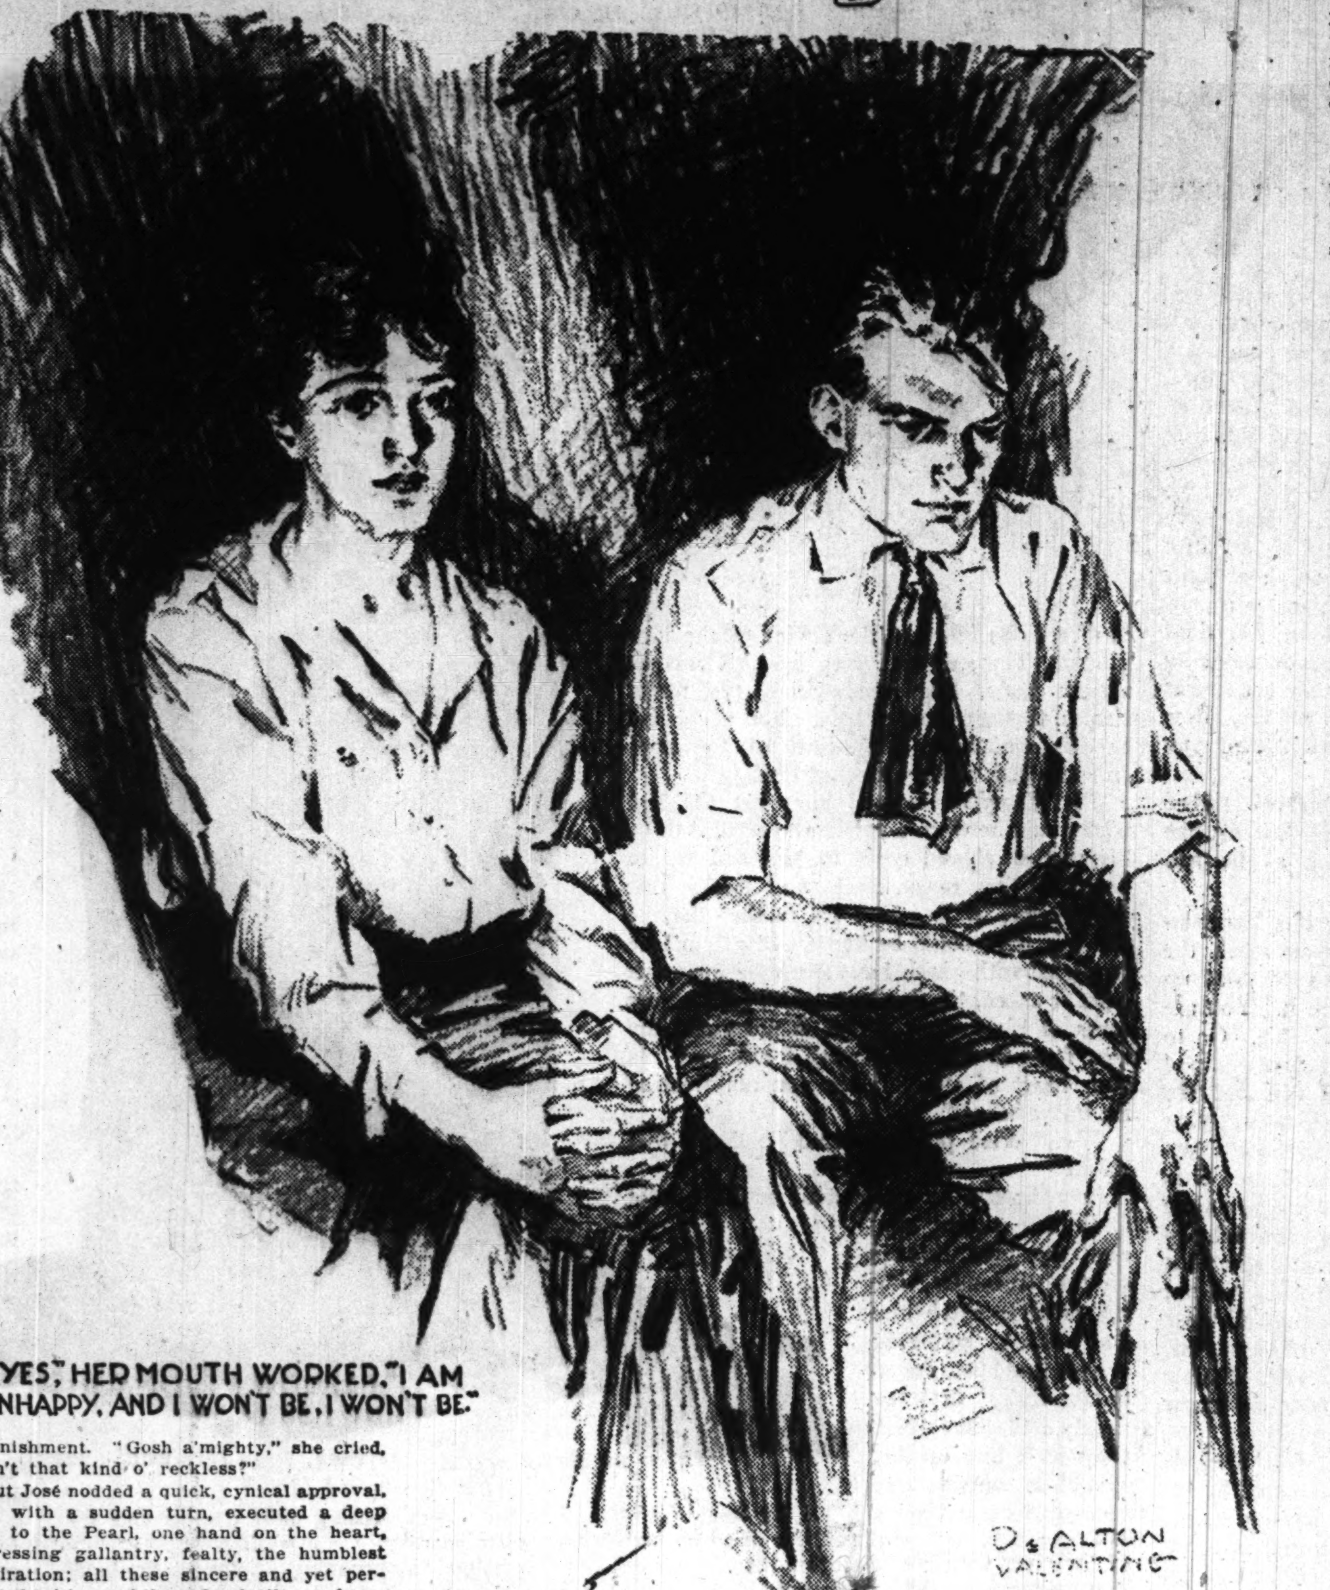
"That's what you get for cavorting around with a spindle shanked, knock kneed, mush brained jackrabbit of a man," muttered Mrs. Nitschkan scornfully.

But this thrust was ignored by Mrs. Thomas. The color had risen on her cheeks and there was a light in her eyes. Shyly, yet gleefully, she drew a letter from her pocket. "I got a letter from him today with an awful cute motto in it. Look!" She showed it proudly to Pearl, José, and Gallito. "It's on cream tinted paper, with a red and blue border, an'," simpering consciously, "it says in black and gold letters, 'A Little Widow Is a Dangerous Thing.'"

Gallito seized the opportunity here to direct Pearl's attention to the bandit, who had been nudging him and whispering to him for the last moment or so.

"Pearl, this is—" he hesitated a moment. "José."

Mrs. Nitschkan looked up at him in quick astonishment. "Gosh a'mighty," she cried, "ain't that kind o' reckless?"



"YES," HER MOUTH WORKED. "I AM UNHAPPY, AND I WON'T BE, I WON'T BE."

But José nodded a quick, cynical approval, and, with a sudden turn, executed a deep bow to the Pearl, one hand on the heart, expressing gallantry, fealty, the humblest admiration; all these sincere and yet permeated with a subtle and volatile mockery.

"Better so, Francisco," he said in a voice which scarcely betrayed an accent, and, indeed, this was not strange considering that he spoke the patois of many people, being a born linguist. His father had been a Frenchman, a Gascon, but his mother was a daughter of Seville. "But you have not said all." He drew himself up with haughty and self-conscious pride, and, with a sweeping gesture of his long fingers, lifted the hair from his ears and stood thus, leering like Pan.

"Crop-eared José!" cried Pearl, falling back a pace or two and looking from her father to the two women in wide-eyed astonishment. "Why, they are still looking for him. Are you not afraid?" She looked from one to the other as if asking the question of all. She was not shocked, nor, to tell the truth, particularly surprised after the first moment of wonder. She had been used to strange company all her life, and ever since her childhood, on her brief visits to her father's cabin, she had been accustomed to his cronies, lean, brown, scarred pirates, and picaroons, full of strange Spanish oaths.

"You will not mention this in letters to your mother," ordered José, glooming at her with fierce eyes. "You know her. Caramba! If she should guess, the world would know it."

"That is true," commended Gallito, motioning her at the same time to the table.

On the outer rim of that circle which knew him but slightly, or merely knew of him, the causes of the charmed life which José bore were a matter of fequent speculation, also continual wonder was expressed that his friends would sometimes take incredible risks in effecting the escape of this rogue after one of his reckless escapades. But José had certain positive qualities, had these gossips but known it, which endeared him to his companions; although among them could never be numbered gratitude, a lively appreciation of benefits received or a tried and true affection.

No, the only virtues which could be accredited to José, and these were sufficient, were an unfailing lightness of heart, the facile and fascinating gift of yarn spinning—for he was a born raconteur, with a varied experience to draw upon—a readiness for high play, at which he lost and won with the same gay and unruffled humor, and an incomparable and heaven bestowed gift of cookery.

Tonight the very sight of the supper set before him softened Gallito's harsh face. Brook trout, freshly caught that afternoon from the rushing mountain stream not far away from the cabin, and smoking hot from the frying pan; an omelette, golden brown and buttercup yellow, of a fluff, a fragrance, with savories hidden beneath its surface, a conserve of fruits, luscious, amber, and subtly biting, the coffee of dreams and a bottle of red wine, smooth as honey.

José immediately began to roll cigarets and smoke them while he ate.

"Well, what's the news?" asked Gallito, as he, at least, began his evening meal with every evidence of appreciation; "good fishing, good hunting, good prospecting, eh, Mrs. Nitschkan?"

The gypsy, for she was one by birth as well as by inclination, nodded and showed her teeth in a satisfied smile. "So good that it looks like we'd be kep' here even longer than I expected when we come." She drew some bits of quartz from her pocket and threw them out on the table before him. "Some specimens I chipped off in my new prospect," she said, her eyes upon him.

"So," he said, examining them with interest, "your luck, Mrs. Nitschkan, as usual. Where—? Excuse me," a dark flush rose on his parchment skin at this breach of mining camp etiquette which he had almost committed.

For a few moments they talked exclusively of the mining interests of the locality.

Supper over, Gallito ensconced his two feminine visitors in easy chairs and took one himself, while José with noiseless deftness, cleared away the remains of food. Pearl had wandered to the window, and, drawing the curtain aside, stood gazing out into the featureless, black expanse of the night.

"Quite a few things has happened since I saw you last, Gallito," said Mrs. Nitschkan conversationally, filling a short and stubby black pipe with loose tobacco from the pocket of her coat. "For one, I got converted."

"Ah!" returned Gallito with his unvarying courtesy, although his raised eyebrows showed some perplexity, "to—to—a religion?"

"'Course." Mrs. Nitschkan leaned forward, her arms upon her knees. "This world's the limit, Gallito, and queer things is going to happen whether you're looking for 'em or not."

"Why didn't you think about getting yourself some new clothes, like any other woman would?" asked José, eyeing her curiously.

"What I got's good enough for me," she returned shortly.

"You should have gave your place a nice cleaning and cooked a little for a change, Sadie," said Mrs. Thomas softly and virtuously.

"Such things look worse'n dying on me," replied the gypsy. "And," turning again to Gallito, "the taste goin' out of my tea and coffee wasn't the worst. It went out of my pipe, too. Gosh a'mighty, Gallito! I'll never forget the night I sat beside my dyin' fire and felt that I didn't even take no interest in winnin' their money from the boys; and then suddenly most like a voice from outside somep'n in me says: 'What's the matter with you, Sadie Nitschkan, is that you're a reapin' the harvest you've sowed, gypsyin' and junketin', fightin' and gamblin' with no thought of the serious side of life?'"

"And what is the serious side of life, Nitschkan?" asked José, sipping delicately his glass of wine as if to taste to the full its ambrosial flavors, like the epicure he was. "I have not yet discovered it."

"You will soon." There was meaning in the gypsy's tone and in the glance she bestowed upon him. "It's doin' good. Now doin' good, for I know you don't know what that means, José, is seein' the right path and makin' other folks walk in it whether they're a mind to or not. Well, I cert'ny gave the sinners of Zenith a run for their money."

She smoked a moment or two in silence, sunk in agreeable remembrance. She had been true to her word. As soon as her conversion and the outlet she had chosen for her superabundant energy were noised abroad, there was an immediate and noticeable change in the entire deportment of the camp. Those long grown careless drew forth their old morals and manners, brushed the moths from them, banished the rust and wore them with undeniable self-consciousness, but without ostentation.

"So you see, Gallito," rousing herself from pleasant contemplation of past triumphs, "it wasn't only a chance to hunt and prospect that brought me. I heard from Bob Flick that José was still here and I see a duty before me."

"She could not keep away from me," José rolled his eyes sentimentally. "You see beneath that rough old jacket of her husband's which she wears there beats a heart."

"I got some'p'n else that can beat and that's a fist." She stretched out her arm and drew it back, gazing with pride at her great, swelling muscles.

"But never me, who will tidy your cabin and cook half your meals for you." He smiled ingratiatingly at Mrs. Thomas, who grew deeply pink under his admiring smile. "Why do you not convert Saint Harry?"

"Harry's all right," she said. "You need convertin', he don't. I got an idea that he's been right through the fiery furnace like them Bible boys in their asbestos coats, he's smelted."

"Harry got my telegram?" asked Gillito, speaking in a low tone, after first glancing toward Pearl, "and you have made a room ready for her?"

"Clean as a convent cell," said José, with his upcurling, mordant smile. "The wind has roared through it all day and swept away every trace of tobacco and my thoughts."

"That is well," replied Gallito with a sardonic twist of the mouth, "and where do you sleep tonight?"

"In Saint Harry's cabin."

"So," Gallito nodded as if content. "That will be best."

"Best for both," agreed José, a flicker of mirth on his face. "My constant companionship is good for Harry. It is not well to think you have shown the devil the door, kicked him down the hill, and forgotten him; and that he has taken his beating, learned his lesson, and gone forever. It is then that the devil is dangerous. It is better, Gallito, believe me, to remain on good terms with him, to humor him, and to pass the time of day. Humility is a great virtue and you should be willing to learn something even of the devil, not set yourself up on a high, cold, sharp mountain peak, where you keep his fingers itching from morning to night to throw you off. I have observed these things through the years of my life, and the middle course is ever the safest. Give to the church, observe the laws as a true and obedient son, in so far as possible, and only so far. Let her get her foot on your neck and she will demand such sacrifices!" He lifted his hands and rolled his eyes upward, "but the devil is more reasonable; treat him civilly, be a good comrade to him, and he will let you alone. But Saint Harry does not understand that. Saint Harry on his ice peak, and the devil straddling around trying to find a foothold so that he can climb up to Harry and seize him with those itching fingers. Ho, ho!" José's laughter rang loud and shrill.

Pearl, hearing it, turned from the window with a disturbed frown and began to walk up and down the far end of the room, and Mrs. Nitschkan frowned ominously. "That's enough of your talk, José," she said peremptorily. "It sounds like blasphemin' to me, talkin' about the devil that light way. Remember one of the reasons I come here. Gallito, you'd better lay out the cards and let's get down to our game. What's the limit?"

José had paused to watch, with a keen appreciation, the grace of Pearl's movements. "Caramba!" he muttered. "How sprang that flower of Spain from such a gnarled old tree as you, Gallito? Dios! But she is salado!"

Gallito frowned a little, which did not in the least disconcert José, and, rising, he moved a small table forward, opened it, and then going to a cupboard in the wall, drew from it a short, squat bottle, four glasses, and a pack of cards. "Your room is just beyond this," he said, turning to Pearl. "José says that you will find everything ready for you. You must be tired. You had better go to bed."

Pearl twitched her shoulders impatiently. "I am not sleepy," she said sullenly. She threw herself in the chair that Gallito had vacated and lay there watching the fire with somber, wild eyes.

José threw another log on the fire and then the two men and two women sat down to their cards. A clock ticked steadily, monotonously, on the mantel piece, but whether an hour or ten minutes passed while she sat there watching the brilliant, soaring flame of the pine logs Pearl could not have told, when suddenly the stillness of the night was broken by the sound of some one whistling along the road. It seemed a long way off at first, but gradually came nearer and nearer, tuneful and clear as the song of a bobolink.

"Saint Harry, by all the saints or devils!" cried José with a burst of his shrill laughter. "Ah, Francisco, the devil is a shrewd fellow; when he can't manage a job himself, he always gets a woman to help him."

His glancing, twinkling eyes sought Pearl, who had barely turned her head as her father rose to open the door for the newcomer, exclaiming with some show of cordiality:

"Ah, Seagreave, come in, come in."

"Thanks," said an agreeable voice. "I got home late and found that José had made preparations to lighten my loneliness. Then I saw the light in your window and thought I would come down. You see I suspected pleasant company."

He advanced into the room and then, seeing Pearl, who had twisted about in her chair and was gazing at him with the first show of interest she had yet exhibited, he paused and looked rather hesitatingly at Gallito.

"We have a guest," said José softly and in Spanish.

"My daughter has returned with me," said Gallito. "Pearl, this is Mr. Seagreave."

"Saint Harry," said José more softly still.

Mr. Seagreave bowed, although one who knew him well might have seen that his astonishment increased rather than abated at the sight of Pearl. As for her, she merely nodded and let her lashes lie the more wearily and indifferently upon her cheek.

"Really, I wouldn't have intruded," said Seagreave in his pleasant English voice. "I had an idea from your telegram, Gallito, that Hughie was coming with you. Sha'n't I go?"

For answer Gallito pushed forward a chair and threw another log upon the fire. "My daughter is tired," he said. "She will soon retire; but when a man has been from home for a fortnight, and in the desert!" he raised his brows expressively, "Pah! He wishes to hear of everything which has happened during his absence and particularly, Mr. Seagreave, do I wish to talk to you about that lower drift. José tells me that you have examined it."

Thus urged, Seagreave sat down. He was tall and slight and fair, so very fair that his age was difficult to guess.

"Don't let me interrupt your game," he said. "It is early yet, and if Miss Gallito isn't too tired, and if she will let me, I will talk to her while you play."

José smiled to himself and picked up the cards. The game went on. Seagreave, receiving no encouragement from Pearl, made no attempt at conversation, until at last, stirred by some impulse of curiosity, she lifted her eyes. It was this question of age she wished to decide. In that first, quick glance of hers she had taken it for granted that he was 20, but in a second stolen look she had noted certain lines about the mouth and eyes which added years to his blonde youthfulness. Then her quick ear caught José's "Saint Harry," and to her, who knew many men, those lines about mouth and eyes did not suggest a past of saintship.

Her narrow eyes met his sombrously. On either side it was a glance of curiosity, of scrutiny. She, as usual, made no effort to begin a conversation, and he, searching for a polite commonplace, said presently:

"Have you ever been in Colina before?"

"Often, but not in the last two years," she answered tonelessly, "not since you've been here, I guess. I hate the mountains."

"I have been here nearly two years," he vouchsafed, "and I feel as if I would never go away. But you live in the desert, don't you?"

"Sometimes, that is, when I'm not out on the road. The desert is the place. You can breathe there, you can live there," there was a passionate vibration in her voice, "but these old, cold mountains make you feel all the time as if they were going to fall on you and crush you."

"Do they make you feel that way?" He pulled his chair nearer to her so that his back was turned to the two men, and José, who saw everything, smiled faintly, mordaciously. "How strange!" It was not a conventional expression, he seemed really to find it strange, unbelievably so.

"And you, how do they make you feel?" she asked wearily, a touch of scorn in her glance.

A light seemed to glow over his face. "Ah, I do not know that I can tell you," he said, and she was conscious of some immediate change in him, which she apprehended but could never have defined. It was as if he had withdrawn mentally to incalculable distances.

Pearl did not notice his evasion; she was not interested in his view of the mountains. What she instinctively resented, even in her dulled state, was his impersonal attitude toward herself. She was not used to it from any man. She did not understand it. She wondered, without any particular interest in the matter, but still following her instinctive and customary mode of thought, if he had not noticed that she was beautiful. Was he so stupid that he did not think her so? But there was no hint in his manner or look in his eyes of an intention on his part of playing the inevitable game, even a remembrance of it seemed as lacking as desire. The game of challenge and elusion on her part, of perpetual and ever more ardent advance on his. He was interested, he knew that, but, as she felt with a surge of surprise, not in the way she had always encountered and had learned to expect.

"Isn't is strange," she realized that he was speaking again, "that I haven't been drawn to the desert, because so many have had to turn to it? I have only seen it from traveling across it, and then it repelled me, perhaps it frightened me." He seemed to consider this.

For the moment Pearl forgot the inevitable game. "Frightened you!" she cried. "It is the mountains that frighten me; but the desert is always different. It——" she struggled for expression, "it is always you."

Something in this seemed to strike him. "Perhaps I have that to learn." Again he meditated a few moments, then looked up with a smile. "You must tell me all that you find in the desert and I will tell you all that I find in the mountains. It will be jolly to talk to a woman again." He spoke with a satisfaction thoroughly genuine.

She glanced at him suspiciously. She was uncertain how to meet this frank acceptance of comradeship, free yet from the intrusion of sex. "Maybe," she acquiesced a little doubtfully. Then she drew her brows together. "I don't want to learn anything about the mountains," she cried, all the heaviness and the dumb revolt of her spirit finding a voice. "And I don't want ever to go back to the desert again; and I don't even want to dance," looking at him in a sort of wild wonder as if this were unbelievable, "not even to dance."

He realized that she was suffering from some grief against which she struggled, and which she refused to accept. "You will not feel so always," he said. "It is because you are unhappy now."

There was consolation in his sincerity, in his sympathy, in his entire belief in what he was saying, and it was with difficulty that she repressed an outburst of her sullen sorrow. "Yes," her mouth worked, "I am unhappy, and I won't be. I won't be.

never was before. It is all in here, like a dead weight, a drag, a cold hand clutching me." She pressed both hands to her heart. Then she drew back as if furious at having so far revealed herself.

"That heals." He leaned forward to speak. "I am telling you the truth! That heals and is forgotten. I know that that is so."

"I know who you are," she said suddenly. "I have been trying to think ever since I heard him," she nodded toward José, bent over his cards, "say 'Saint Harry.' I remember now. I have heard Hughie often speak of you. They say that you are good, that if any one is sick you nurse him, and that if any one is broke you help him. They all come to you."

"Yes, 'Saint Harry'!" he laughed. "O, it's funny, but let them call me any name they please as long as it amuses them. What difference does it make? I am glad Hughie is coming up, I want some music. He puts the mountains into music for me."

"And for me." She smiled and then sighed bitterly, gazing drearily into the fire, now a bed of glowing embers. Then latent and feminine curiosity stirred in her thoughts and voiced itself. "Why are you here?" she said. "Why does a man like you stay here?"

His elbow rested on the arm of his chair, his chin in his hand, his gaze too upon the fading embers. "Don't know," he said in a low voice, "I had to come."

"Where from?" she still followed her instinct of curiosity.

"From the husks"—he turned his head and smiled at her—"from a far country where I had wasted my substance in riotous living."

She frowned a little. She was not used to this type of man, nor had she met any one who used hyperbole in conversation. At first she fancied that he might be chaffing her, but she was too intelligent to harbor that idea, so convincing was his innate sincerity; but nevertheless, she meant to go cautiously.

Again she questioned him: "From what far country?"

Pearl waited a long time, it seemed to her, for him to speak. At last she broke the silence. "And then?" she said.

He roused from his preoccupations and brushed back the wing of hair from his brow. "I realized that I was living, had always lived on husks, and that was what caused the restless fever in my blood, my heart was always restless; and then I began to dream down there in the tropics, really dream at night of these mountains just as you see them here, and in the day time I thought of them and longed for them, as a man whose throat is dry with thirst longs for cool water. Then, presently, I began to have brief, fleeting visions of them by day. And gradually the longing for the hills became so intense that I started out in search of them. I traveled about a good bit, and then drifted here. The place suited me, so I stayed."

She looked at him, puzzled and half fearfully, wondering if he was quite sane. "And will you stay here always?" she asked.

"O, as to that, I can't say. Perhaps. I hope so. Life is full here."

"Full!" she interrupted him. "And life! You call this life?" She laughed in harsh scorn.

"Don't you?" He looked at her with those blue, clear eyes that seemed to see through her, and around her, and beyond her.

"I!" Her glance was full of resentful passion; tightly she closed her lips; but there was something about him which seemed to force her to reveal herself, and, presently, she began again. "I am like a coyote with a broken paw. It goes off by itself and hides until it can limp around. But life, real life, is all out there." She threw out her hands as indicating the world beyond the mountains. "If you call this life, you've never lived."

He ignored this, smiling faintly.

"What is real life to you?" he asked.

So compelling was his manner, for no one could shock Seagreave and no one could force him to condemn, that she almost said, "To love and be loved." But she resisted her impulse to voice this. "Until a little while before I came here, life meant to dance."

"Dancing is your expression," he said. "All of life is love and expression." And now there was a falling note in his voice which her ear was quick to catch. Almost she cried:

"Love! And yet you live here alone!"

"Yes," he went on, "we must have both. They are as necessary to us as breath. Without them——" he stopped, evidently embarrassed, as if suddenly aware that he had been talking more to himself than to her, and that in thus forgetting her he had been more self-revealing than he would have wished.

She shook her head, plainly puzzled. "But you are young," she said, and stole another glance at him, adding a little shyly, "at least not very old, and I feel, I am sure that you, too, have a broken paw, but when that is well you will go back to your own country, to cities again. You couldn't stand it here always."

He looked at her, an enigmatic smile on his lips. "Couldn't I?" he said. Glancing again at her as he rose, he saw that she seemed weary, her lashes lay long on her pale cheek. "O," with a touch of compunction in his tone, "I have, as usual, talked far too much. You are tired and we must go. José," lifting his voice, "as soon as you finish that game."

"The devil is indeed at your elbow," cried José, flinging down his cards, "and prompts all you say. We have just this moment finished a game, and Gallito is the winner."

Gallito smiled with bleak geniality. "Has José been wise?" he asked, rising and replenishing the dying fire.

"Fairly so," Seagreave smiled, "as far as he knows how to be. He has been up to some of his antics, though. They are beginning to say that this hillside is haunted."

While Gallito talked to Seagreave and Mrs. Nitschkan and José argued over certain rules of the game they had been playing, Pearl, without a word to Seagreave, had slipped away.

Alone in her small, bare room, undressing by the light of a single candle, the brief interest and curiosity which Seagreave had aroused in her faded from her mind. For hours she lay sleepless upon her bed, listening to the rushing mountain stream not far from the cabin, its arrowy plunge and dash over the rocks softened by distance to a low, perpetual purr, and hearing the mountain wind sigh through the pines about the cabin; but not always did her great dark eyes stare into the blackness; sometimes she buried her head in the pillow and moaned, and at last she wept, permitting herself the flood of tears that she had held in check all day. "Rudolf, Rudolf," was the name upon her lips.

JOUDAR THE NTER

FROM THE ARABIAN NIGHTS
BY

SYNOPSIS OF WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Joudar, son of a merchant named Omar, is left a fortune which he loses through the trickery of his older brothers. They and his mother become dependent upon him. He becomes a fisherman, and going one day to the Lake of Karoun, has an adventure through which he meets a Mograbin, or native of northern Africa, who says that through Joudar alone can he win four treasures which he desires—a sword which will enable its owner to conquer the world; a kohl pot, from which one can anoint one's eyes and thereafter see the treasures of the earth; a signet ring, the owner of which will be more powerful than the most powerful king, and a celestial planisphere, the owner of which can sit at home and see all countries of the world reflected in the glass. Joudar consents to go in search of these treasures, and the Mograbin, giving his mother a thousand pieces of gold, they set out on a magic mule, fed from magic saddle bags which produce the most delicious food whenever it is needed.

THE door flew open and Joudar saw before him a beautiful young girl who was the daughter of the Mograbin. He was entertained right royally for many days, till at last the two men set out upon mules and came at the middle of the day to a mighty river. On its banks they took from the magic saddle bags a wonderful repast, and as they ate it the Mograbin said, "It is now time, Joudar, to help me."

And Joudar replied, "I am at your service."

First, the Mograbin took out the two small boxes in which he had so tightly sealed the fish he had brought with him from Lake Karoun and said spells over them till the boxes burst open and two great genii, with hands bound and heads hanging, came out, begging mercy. "I will give you your lives if you will open to me the treasure of Shamaradal," said the Mograbin.

"We promise," they cried, "if you will see to it that Joudar the fisherman goes after it."

"He is here," answered the Mograbin, and the genii promised again and vanished. As they went the Mograbin said to Joudar, "I will now say a charm which will cause this broad river to dry up. In the center of its bed you will see a great door big as a city gate. Knock at it twice, then three times rapidly without stopping, and a voice will cry, 'Who are you?' Answer, 'I am Joudar, son of Omar.' The door will open to you and a man will come towards you with a sword, threatening to cut off your head. Bend to him your neck, and though he will strike at you, he will not hurt you. But if you try to resist him he will kill you. So you will go on and on, through many rooms and many doors, guarded with all sorts of dreadful perils. Whatever threatens you, bow your head. You must pass through many rooms, and at the end of each will be the door guarded by some fearful man or beast to threaten you. But remember, they are bodies without souls. Resist them and you die. Bow to them all and you are safe. Are you ready?"

"W-why—y-yes," said Joudar, rather shakily, it must be admitted. He did not like this treasure hunting as much as he had imagined he might.

"Well, then," said the Mograbin, "remember one thing more. When you reach the treasure chamber you will see gold piled up in heaps about, but do not touch it. You are after something much more valuable. Go to the curtain which you will see before you and draw it aside. Behind it you will find the famous diviner, Shamaradal, himself, lying asleep. On his forehead you will see something round and glowing, like a moon. It is the celestial planisphere. The magic sword will be hanging at his side, the powerful signet ring will be upon his finger, and about his neck will be a gold chain with the kohl pot suspended from it. Carefully remove all these treasures. He will not wake. And should he, after you have them all, you are safe. Follow my directions and you will be none the worse and both of us much richer."

As he spoke, the Mograbin went towards the river. Then, standing on its bank, he began to recite a charm in some strange togue, and immediately, to the astonishment and awe of Joudar, the mighty river vanished and its bed became as dry as a road, while in the center of the bed he saw gleaming the great doors through which he must pass.

Bracing up his courage, Joudar descended to the door and knocked as he had been directed. And from then on he moved forward in direct obedience to the advice of the Mograbin. The way was very long. Often he shrank back, frightened, from the awful shapes that threatened him. But never did he offer resistance, and sword fell to water, clubs to dust, as they touched him.

The Mograbin warned him that the last trial would be when a spirit who seemed to be his mother should come to him and try to persuade him to go back, and finally this spirit came, so like unto his mother that he felt this trial would be hardest of all, and he struggled with himself as he refused the spirit what it asked, till finally it cried, in the very tones of his mother, "This is not right, my son, for you to refuse what I ask you. Is your heart of stone? Are you not treating me unlawfully?"

"Yes," cried poor, pestered Joudar, "that I am!"

Immediately the spirit cried out in delight at having caught him, and the other slaves of the treasure, who had tried to catch him and failed, gathered around and beat him so unmercifully that he nearly died, after which they took him up and cast him outside the door of the treasure room, and he found himself, groaning and weak, on the dried-up bed of the river with the Mograbin standing over him asking what had happened.

Joudar explained in deep fear, feeling that the Mograbin might in turn punish him for his failure to hold out against a danger of which he had been warned. But the Mograbin simply said, "You have not treated either me or yourself fairly this day. Come home with me now. Nothing more can be done for an entire year."

He helped the groaning Joudar up the bank and, having repeated a charm so that once more the great river filled its bed, he took Joudar home with him, doctored the wounds the whips had made upon him, and fed him and clothed him like a prince.

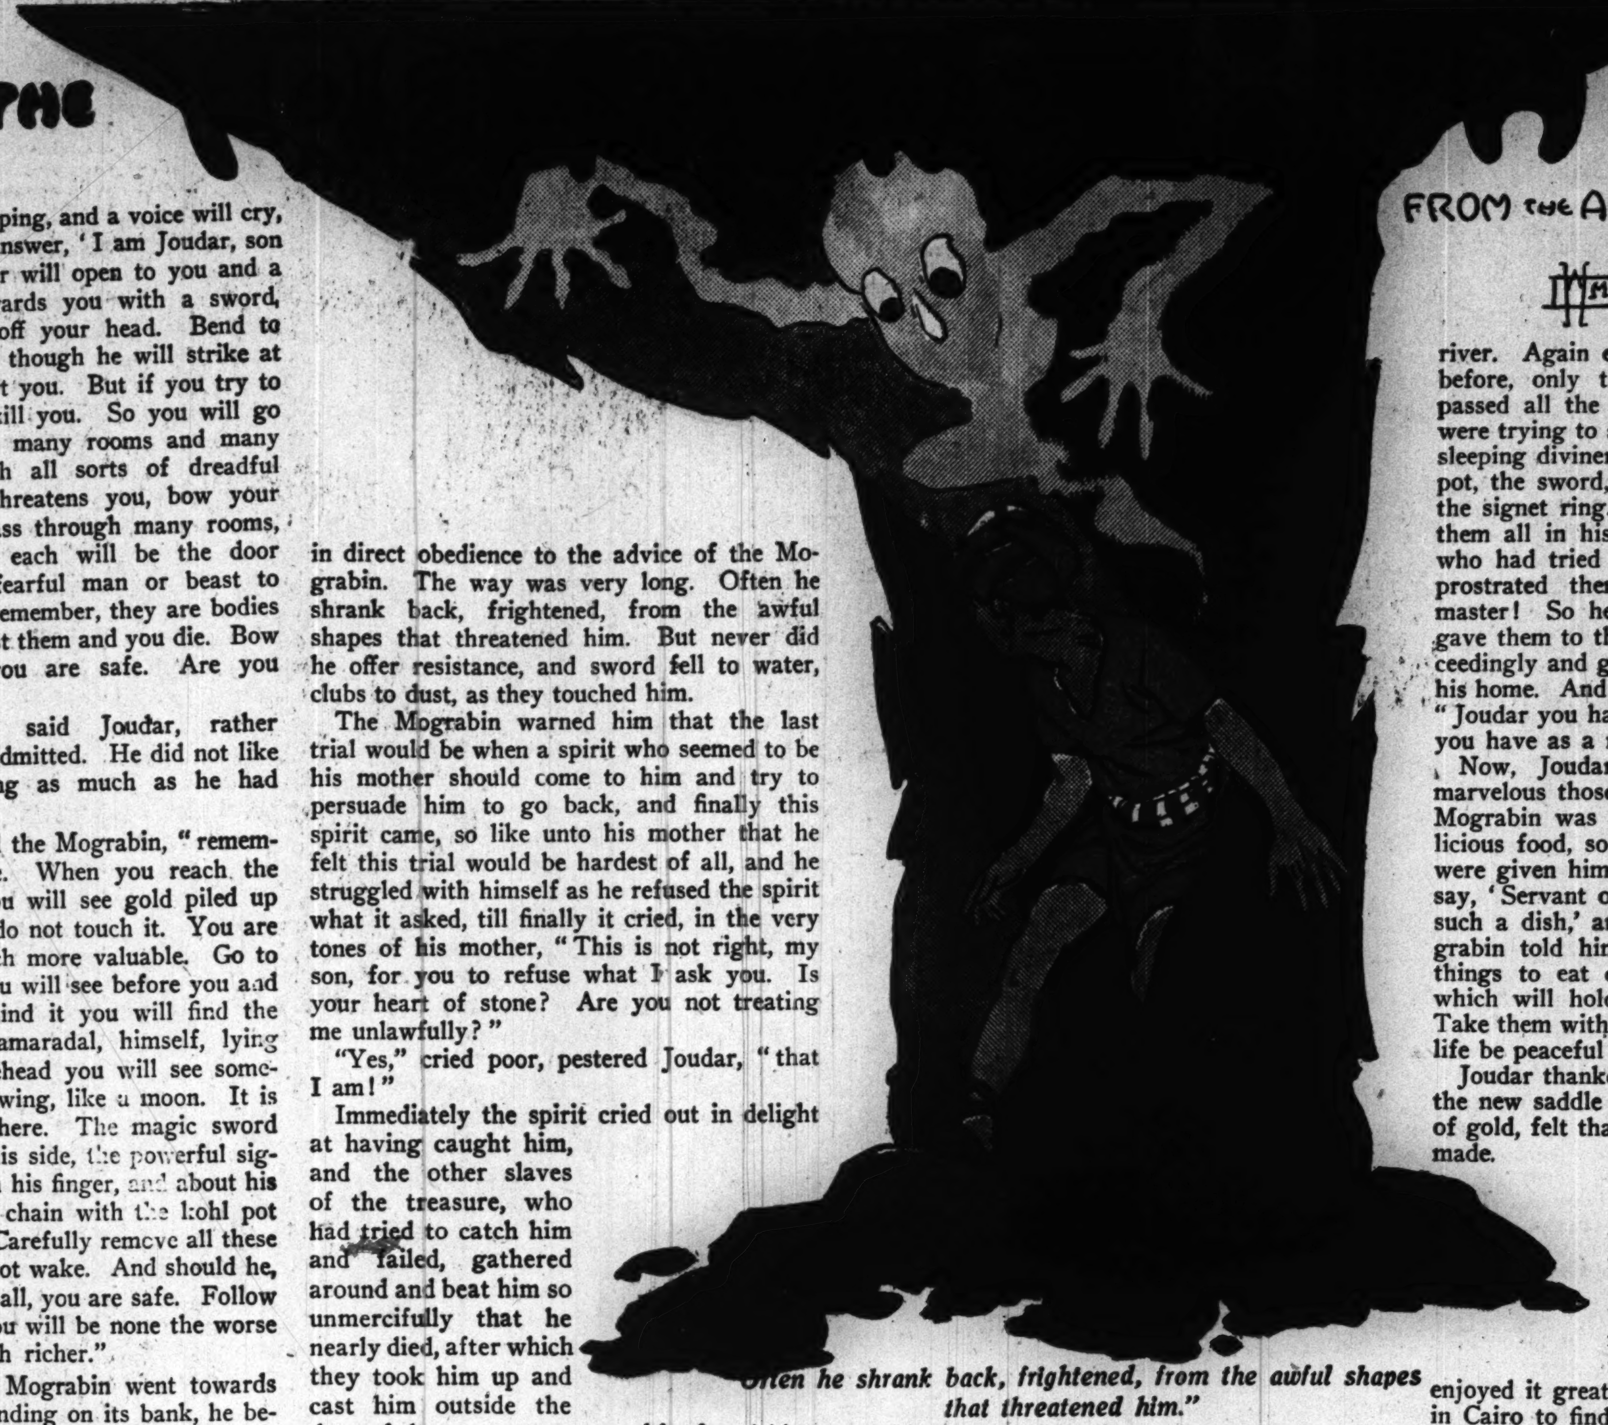
At the end of the year, on the anniversary of that same day, they went once more to the river. Again everything happened as it had before, only this time Joudar successfully passed all the servants of the treasure who were trying to shield it from him, reached the sleeping diviner, and took from him the kohl pot, the sword, the celestial planisphere, and the signet ring. And no sooner did he have them all in his possession than their slaves, who had tried to keep him away, came and prostrated themselves, and hailed him as master! So he took his treasures back and gave them to the Mograbin, who rejoiced exceedingly and gave a great feast that night at his home. And at the end of the feast he said, "Joudar you have served me well. What will you have as a reward?"

Now, Joudar had always thought most marvelous those saddle bags, from which the Mograbin was always able to take such delicious food, so he asked for them, and they were given him. "Put your hand inside and say, 'Servant of the bags, I desire such and such a dish,' and it will be ready," the Mograbin told him, "but these bags give you things to eat only. I will give you more which will hold an endless store of money. Take them with you, and may the rest of your life be peaceful and happy."

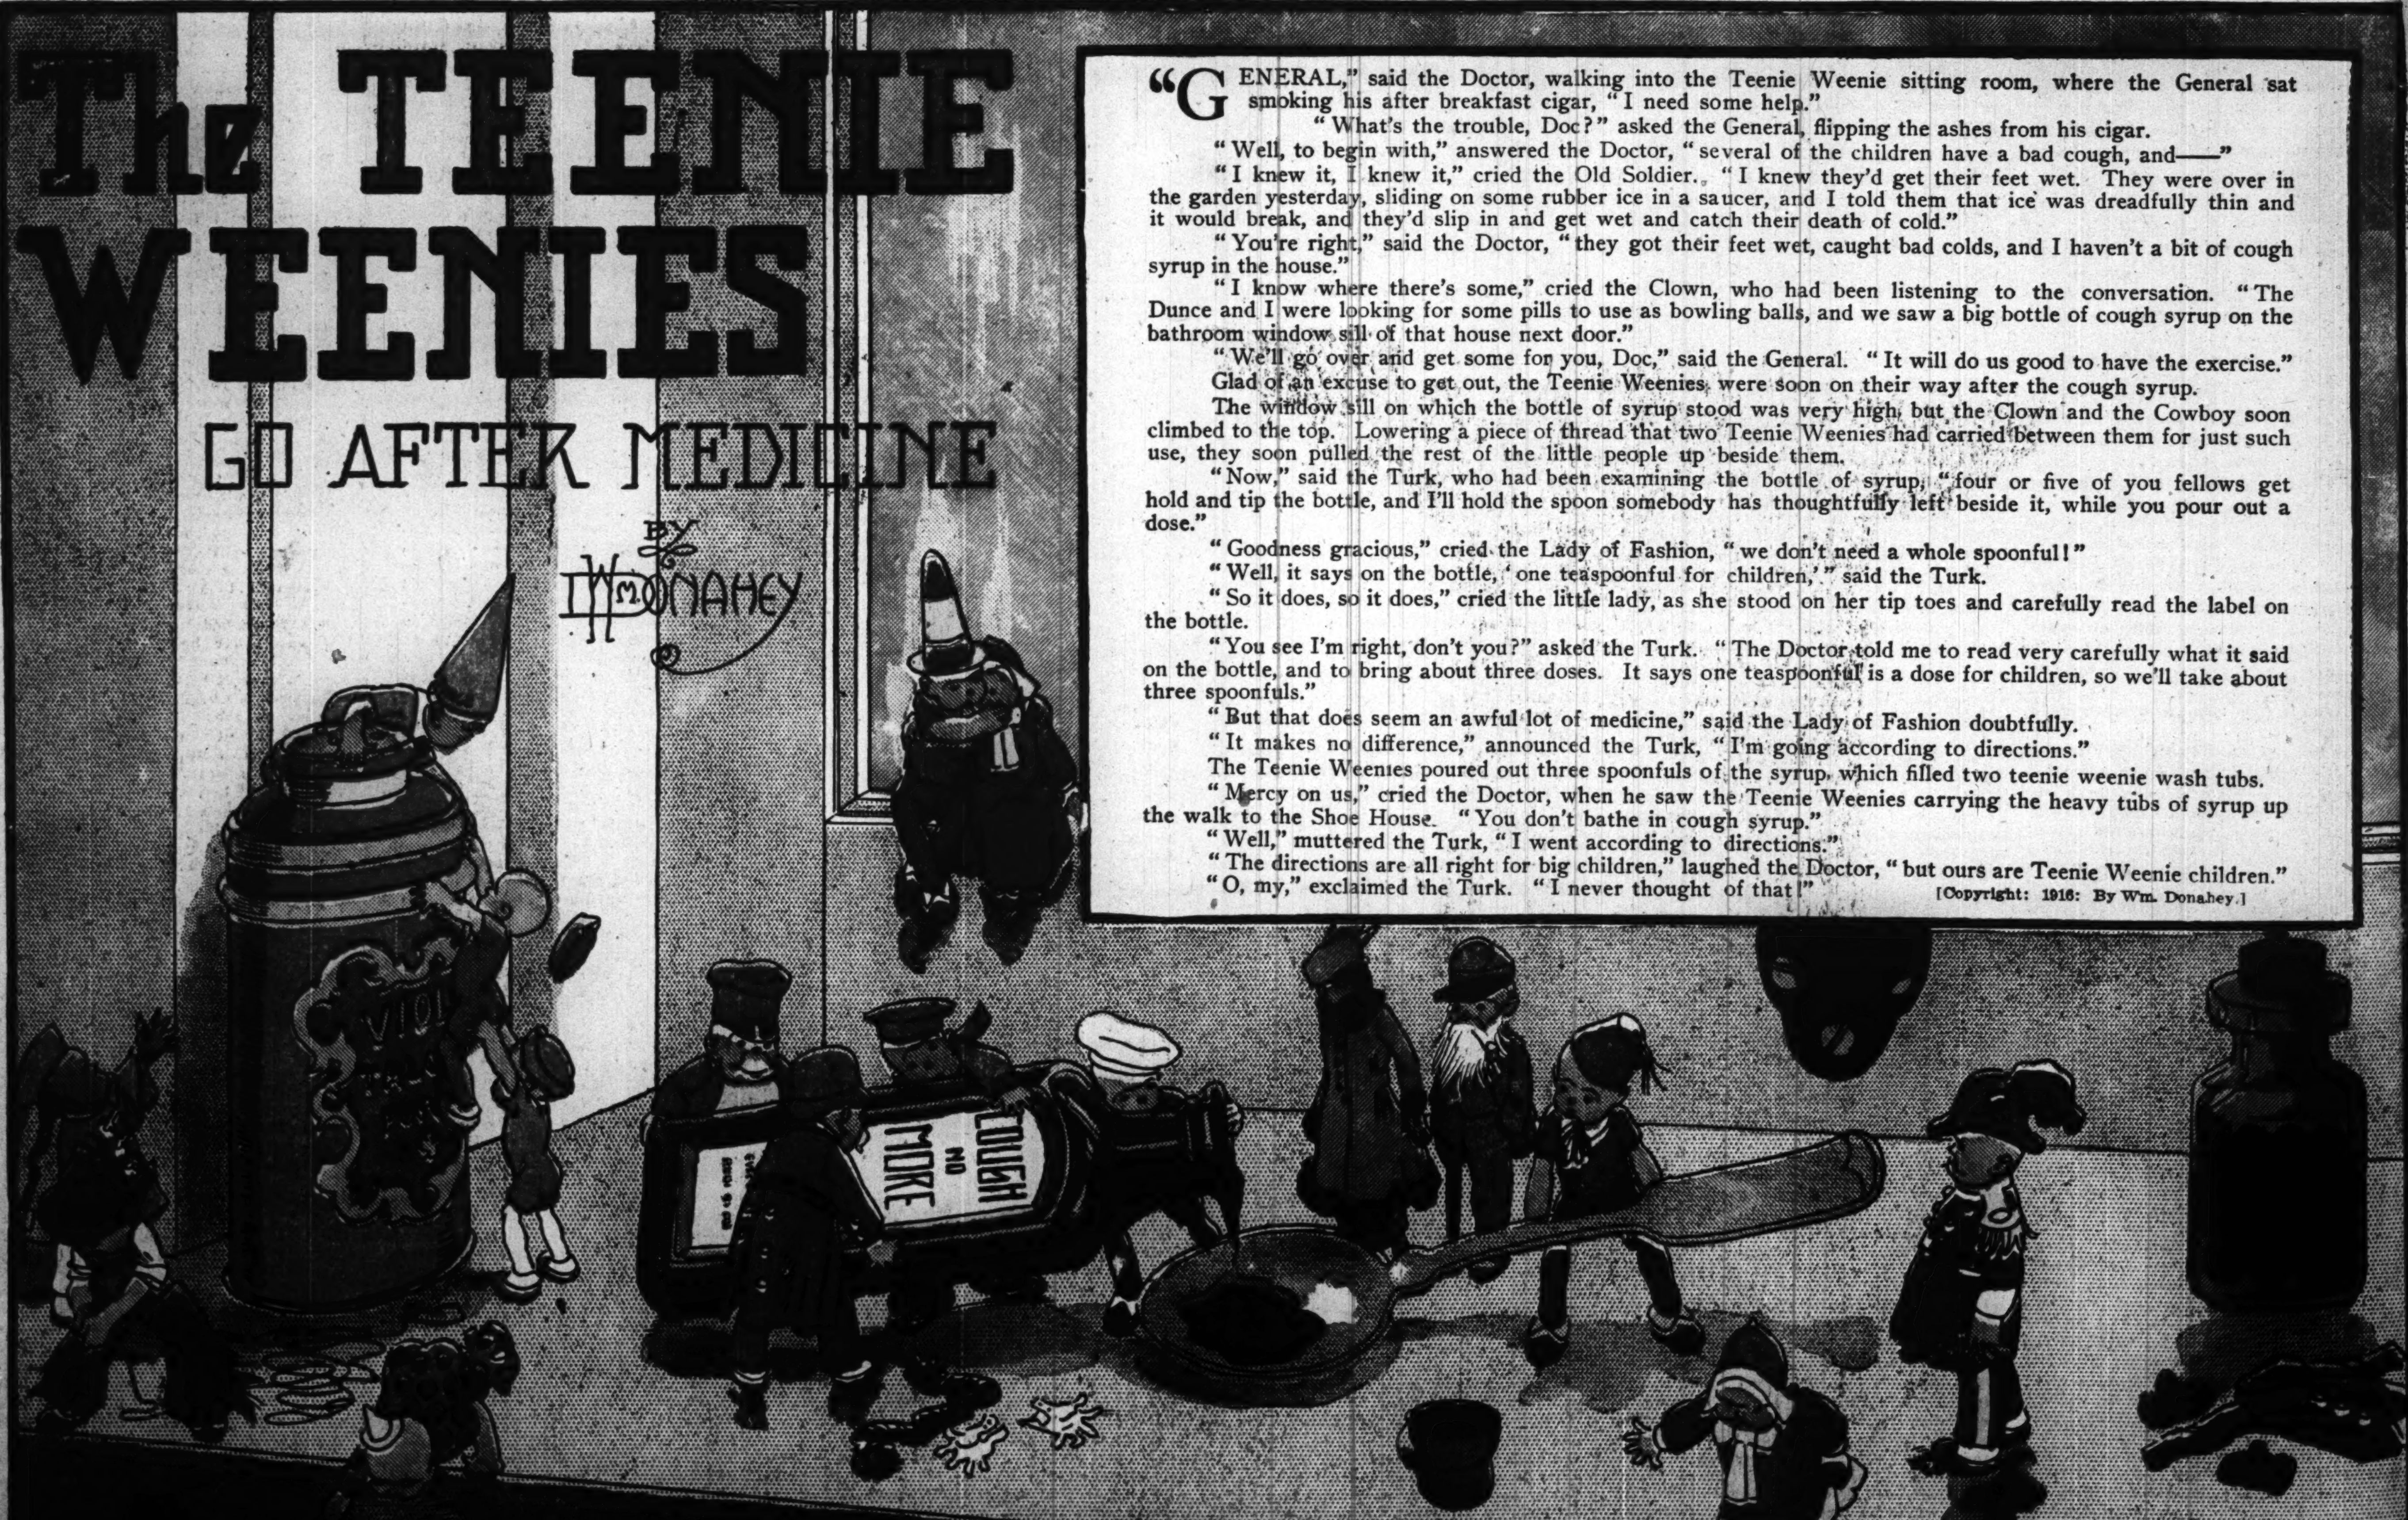
Joudar thanked him. He put his hand into the new saddle bags and, drawing it out full of gold, felt that indeed his fortune had been made.

Next day he bought a fine horse, and with his two sets of saddle bags before him set out upon his homeward way. The trip home was longer than that coming to Fez, for now he had not a magic mule to carry him. But he enjoyed it greatly and reached his own home in Cairo to find his mother in great need of him, as his two rascally brothers had taken from her the gold Joudar had left her and she was in great need. The brothers had vanished. So Joudar and his mother settled down to the enjoyment of his riches in one of the most beautiful houses in the city, and never did either of them want for anything again. Their magic saddle bags supplied them with all luxuries.

(Another Arabian Nights story will appear next Sunday.)



Often he shrank back, frightened, from the awful shapes that threatened him."



The TEENIE WEENIES

GO AFTER MEDICINE

BY
WM. DONAHEY

"GENERAL," said the Doctor, walking into the Teenie Weenie sitting room, where the General sat smoking his after breakfast cigar, "I need some help."

"What's the trouble, Doc?" asked the General, flipping the ashes from his cigar.

"Well, to begin with," answered the Doctor, "several of the children have a bad cough, and——"

"I knew it, I knew it," cried the Old Soldier. "I knew they'd get their feet wet. They were over in the garden yesterday, sliding on some rubber ice in a saucer, and I told them that ice was dreadfully thin and it would break, and they'd slip in and get wet and catch their death of cold."

"You're right," said the Doctor, "they got their feet wet, caught bad colds, and I haven't a bit of cough syrup in the house."

"I know where there's some," cried the Clown, who had been listening to the conversation. "The Dunce and I were looking for some pills to use as bowling balls, and we saw a big bottle of cough syrup on the bathroom window sill of that house next door."

"We'll go over and get some for you, Doc," said the General. "It will do us good to have the exercise."

Glad of an excuse to get out, the Teenie Weenies were soon on their way after the cough syrup.

The window sill on which the bottle of syrup stood was very high, but the Clown and the Cowboy soon climbed to the top. Lowering a piece of thread that two Teenie Weenies had carried between them for just such use, they soon pulled the rest of the little people up beside them.

"Now," said the Turk, who had been examining the bottle of syrup, "four or five of you fellows get hold and tip the bottle, and I'll hold the spoon somebody has thoughtfully left beside it, while you pour out a dose."

"Goodness gracious," cried the Lady of Fashion, "we don't need a whole spoonful!"

"Well, it says on the bottle, 'one teaspoonful for children,'" said the Turk.

"So it does, so it does," cried the little lady, as she stood on her tip toes and carefully read the label on the bottle.

"You see I'm right, don't you?" asked the Turk. "The Doctor told me to read very carefully what it said on the bottle, and to bring about three doses. It says one teaspoonful is a dose for children, so we'll take about three spoonfuls."

"But that does seem an awful lot of medicine," said the Lady of Fashion doubtfully.

"It makes no difference," announced the Turk, "I'm going according to directions."

The Teenie Weenies poured out three spoonfuls of the syrup which filled two teenie weenie wash tubs.

"Mercy on us," cried the Doctor, when he saw the Teenie Weenies carrying the heavy tubs of syrup up the walk to the Shoe House. "You don't bathe in cough syrup."

"Well," muttered the Turk, "I went according to directions."

"The directions are all right for big children," laughed the Doctor, "but ours are Teenie Weenie children."

"O, my," exclaimed the Turk. "I never thought of that!"

BENEATH blue skies where birds are singing blithely, the Riviera still lures those who flee from the stinging winds and bitter cold of northern climes. This season, however, the usual gaiety that marks the arrival of the traveler is lacking, for many who seek to breathe the ambrosial air are those who have sacrificed health or been sorely wounded in the defense of their country.

But while the tragedy of the war naturally curtails the social events of this far-famed winter resort, yet there are some interesting costumes originated for those who may enjoy the peace and beauty of the Riviera. And one must not forget that the creators of dress realize their duty to their country and strive nobly to retain their reputation as dictators in the world of fashion.

Although gorgeous evening gowns are not as much in evidence as in former days—for magnificence has been supplanted by simplicity—yet there is much of interest in the new styles, especially those for out of doors.

In the accompanying illustrations several interesting models are depicted, and these reveal the trend of styles for spring. The afternoon costume at the left is most attractive. It is developed in a beautiful, nattier blue faille, a silk that is much liked not only for such models, but also for the dainty handbags that milady carries. The skirt, extremely bouffant, is prettily puffed at the hips—the puffing being draped in downward style towards the back. But the bouffant effect is not restricted to the upper part only, for it billows gaily towards the hem. There it takes on the guise of zouave trousers, but the bagginess is cleverly restrained and the skirt is finished with a trimly hung hem, which permits of graceful walking.

Another pleasing feature in this skirt is the gracefully draped panel in the front of the gown, where a handsome rose design is exquisitely embroidered on the sides in old rose silk and steel beads.

Exceedingly picturesque is the bodice of this handsome model. The collar is cut on simple lines; while the sleeve reveals the tendency towards added fullness, it is fashioned in an eminently practical way, for it reaches just below the elbow, where it is cleverly cuffed and therefore does not incommode the wearer. The handsome roses at the waistline are made of beaded net and add a charming touch of color which harmonizes well with the sparkling beads on the skirt.

A mantle of blue petrol velours proves a lovely background for this creation, while the small hat is also developed from the richly tinted petrol velours.

As walking is enjoyed by many women who spend happy hours beneath southern skies, exceptionally smart costumes are designed for such wear. While white serge always proves an effective material from which to fashion these suits, yet there are some notable originations that are also approved by the fashionable woman. Leather, originally destined for the aviator's coat, or for automobile use, is accepted for the newest outing clothes. When, however, the skin is unsuited for the fashioning of certain models, beautiful suede surfaced velvets take its place.

A cleverly made walking costume is depicted in the center of the page. This is developed in a lovely white muscovite cloth. Evolved on very simple lines, the charm of this model is found in the delightful dash of color that is introduced in the broad sash girded across the front and fastened at the back of the skirt with gaily tasseled ends. Old gold satin is chosen for the decoration, and its shimmering surface seems to harmonize well with the soft texture of the muscovite cloth. Ivory buttons, fairly large in size, add another distinctive touch to this delightful creation.

The third costume—designed especially for affairs of afternoon—is originated in bronze broadcloth. Finished with a soft silky surface, this material possesses most admirable draping qualities, which add much to the beauty of the costume. A handsome coat of olive velvet is worn with this model, and its color is cleverly repeated in the vest, which is of bronze suede, beautifully embroidered in old gold and vari-colored blues.

The hat which crests this charming creation carries out perfectly the color scheme of this effective afternoon toilette, for it is developed in deep olive and gold embroidery, tipped with plumes in harmonizing shades. The latter trimming is one that is much in vogue at this time. Indeed, feathers are once again a favored trimming and many beautiful ostrich plumes lend dignity to graceful chapeaux.

Another smart hat that emphasizes the tendency towards ornate trimming is shown on the figure which centers the illustration. This model has a leghorn shape for its foundation and is adorned with filmy old gold tulle. Threads of gold that add a certain shimmering effect to this creation are cleverly woven in the tulle that covers its flopping brim.

Another prettily fashioned hat is pictured at the right of the page. Soft white ermine that looks well with the rich fabrics from which the costume is developed is used in the making of the crown, which is elaborated with gold embroidered tulle. At one side several curled quill stems are carefully poised to give the necessary dash to this attractive model.

Bear fur also is chosen for the trimming of some of the smartest hats that are accepted by the fashionable woman who hastens southward. Its use is interestingly suggested in the double brimmed turban at the extreme left of the page. This model of white suede reveals the fact that leather is now one of the most fashionable additions to milady's dress.

From present indications it is quite evident that the small towering hat will hold a leading place. Many of the smartest models are originated in velvet, combined with straw, while wonderful French flowers are favored for their trimming. Of course, for those who sojourn in the land of perpetual sunshine, there are many picturesque hats whose beauty is found in their wide sweeping brims. They are sometimes faced on the under side with sheerest crêpe in colors that contrast well with the straw, and in some models the facing reflects the dominant color of the decorations that enliven the hat.

When one considers hats one immediately thinks of veils. Perhaps it is because once more picturesque modes are in the ascendant that these aids to feminine beauty are again in vogue. At any rate, there are many most delightful styles that will surely please the most fastidious of women. Of course, there is usually a certain way decreed by Dame Fashion in which they must be worn, but realizing that every woman is not gifted with beautiful eyes or exquisitely modeled lips, she leaves it to the individual to interpret her mandates concerning their disposal.

But many women with sparkling eyes and delicately fashioned features have decided to bring their veils just to the mouth, so that while the witchery in their eyes is partly concealed, their smiling lips are unveiled. Of course, brevity in front does not necessarily compel bravity in the rear, for the graceful folds of the veil, although they must not hang down the back, should reach to the shoulders.

MEN AND WOMEN

DISOBEDIENCE of the liquor statute, in the eyes of the law at any rate, seems to be the big crime of the fox trot clubs of recent disclosure.

Long before 1 o'clock, however, the work of destruction has begun. Before theater closing time has arrived even it is no infrequent sight to find bleary eyes and loud, drink thickened voices of both men and women, proclaiming the organizations to be for anything but moral uplift. Nor does it take the practiced eye to detect the indelible stamp of the unfortunate female underworldlings and their predominance at these gatherings.

Fox Trot Clubs.

The inexperienced young miss, daughter of a perfectly nice family, with more personal freedom than is good for her, is the one who suffers the damaging influence. Frequent visits to these "resorts" begin to show their influence on her in a moral looseness in her conversation, in her dress, and in her manner. Drinking and smoking, instead of being vices to be deplored, are embraced as defining real smartness and up-and-comingness.

A little of the old fashioned chaperonage if revived would prove its worth redoubled in these days of fox trot clubs.

The following quotation (author unknown to me) reminded me of New Year resolutions, and I just wondered how many "resolutioners" have succeeded in "keeping their hands behind their backs" to date:

Echo of New Year Resolutions.

"However strong our resolution may be, it costs us something to carry it out now and then. We may determine not to gather any cherries and keep our hands behind our backs—but we can't prevent our mouths from watering."

* *

More folks suffer for saying too much than for saying too little. Here and there you may come across one with whom reticence is a fault. But such sinners are rare, and our patience and capacity for forgiveness are seldom tested by offenders of this sort.

Suffer from Saying Too Much.

The other sort are common enough, however—the men and women who think they are bound to express their views on every topic, pass a judgment on every character, utter their minds on every critical occasion. The result is an exposé of the nakedness of their minds and the unreliability of their judgments.

The exercise of judgment as to what we shall say and how much we shall say is wisdom. Every premature, uninformed expression of opinion on persons and things savors of folly. Those who are slow to judge and slower still to express that judgment are the ones who are credited with being the wise men and women.

I do think that poverty is one of the hardest things to bear. It does warp the soul and wear the body, and the young woman steadily facing poverty is deserving of sympathy. The young married woman who has had her dream of love in a bungalow turn out a treadmill of hard work, with the burden of worry thrown in, really finds herself in a position of crucial difficulty.

She comes pretty near being a prisoner of circumstances. She has to work too hard. She is obliged to "ask for money" from a source of meager supply. She must see her children wish for things and want for things they cannot have and herself shabby. And every now and then get a glimpse of a friend whose good clothes and jewelry make her own lot a harder one.

Rising Above Life's Injustice.

There is only one way to beat the game of life's injustice—one way only—and that is by the mental attitude. Nobody can hurt your feelings, nobody can make you feel inferior, nothing can daunt you if your mental attitude is right. You are a peer of the realm of life if you understand your mental privileges.

The most important thing, of course, is a proper feeling about home. Home is not a house, nor an apartment, nor a bungalow. It is nothing made by hands. It is a magic circle of dear ones, and its charm is wholly dependent upon the feeling each has for the other and that all have for the joy and privilege of being together.

The best things in life have nothing whatever to do with money. As soon as you have learned that you have learned not to rebel at life's injustice.

ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Dear Miss Donnelly: Your paragraph recently appearing in Men and Women on the 'touching wood' superstition interested me. I thought you might be interested in an experience of mine regarding another of the fifty-seven varieties of superstitions to which man is heir.

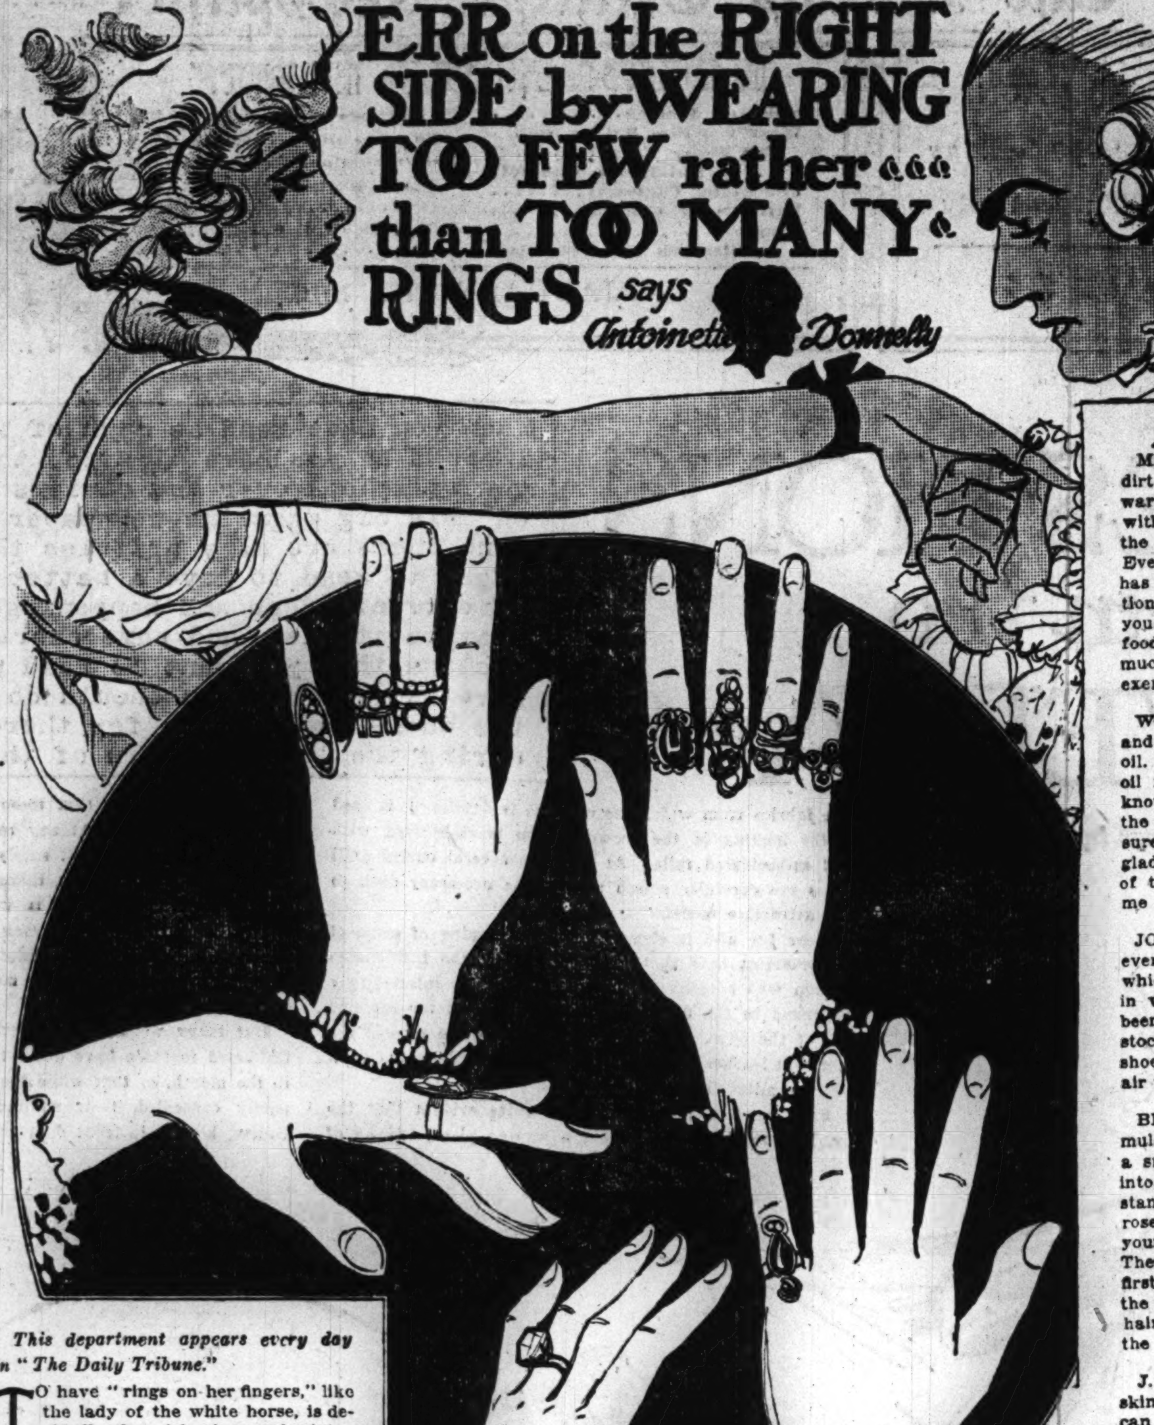
Superstition of Lighting Cigarets.

"I was visiting last month in a Canadian city and met an English army officer recently back from the front. A third man joined us shortly, and I struck a match and lighted first the army officer's cigaret, then the cigaret of the third member of our little party, and with the same match I started to light my own cigaret, when the Englishman knocked it from my lips.

"He apologized, with the explanation that to light a third cigaret or cigar with one match meant death or disaster to one of the three. He explained that this was a thoroughly grounded superstition among soldiers. He added: 'Of course, I am really not superstitious, but I'd rathah not take a chance, you know.'

"He told me, too, that when a soldier in the trench dreams of home it is a sure sign to him that his days are numbered. And, more than that he said he had known a number of cases where there seemed to be grounds for this latter suspicion.

B. P. R."



ERR on the RIGHT SIDE by WEARING TOO FEW rather than TOO MANY RINGS

says Antoinette Donnelly

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

TO have "rings on her fingers," like the lady of the white horse, is decidedly the wish of every feminine woman—and especially the woman with beautiful hands. Bracelets, wrist watches, brooches, and strings of beads come into fashion and die out again, but the cult of the ring is like the proverbial stream that goes on forever.

Rings are delightful ornaments, suffering however, a cruel abuse because they are worn with such a lamentable lack of taste. This fault is so general one can only assume women forget that the art of wearing jewelry correctly requires the same discretion and care that they so willingly bestow on the other items of their attire.

Nothing will do so much to destroy a carefully considered toilet as going to your jewel case in that "now I have quite finished dressing attitude" which is common to women, idly selecting therefrom a half dozen or more rings at random, and in the same thoughtless manner distributing them over the fingers of your hands.

A reckless lack of restraint is the most besetting sin is this hand jewelry question. "To be a fine bird," she says, "I must have more than fine feathers." And on go all the contents of the jewel case! Only an exquisite hand can come out of such an ordeal with flying colors. It must needs be exquisitely white, exquisitely shaped, and exquisitely manicured—long, delicate fingers tapering as a whole and individually—the hand of the sculptor's dream, in fact. About twice in a lifetime of searching one sees such a hand. But for the normal everyday hand, white and well kept as it may be, some less casual choice is necessary.

One of the prettiest arrangements of rings—if you insist on wearing three or four on one hand—is to wear one little finger ring and two on the third finger. A third ring on the third finger, if chosen with taste and there is color harmony in the stones, may be pardonable, but two is better taste. Where three rings are worn on one finger be careful to see that the biggest is nearest the palm and the most delicate on the top—graduate them, in fact—otherwise the effect will be clumsy in the extreme. The little finger ring should be a comparatively light one and a ring that fits perfectly.

Whether to wear or not to wear a ring on the first finger is a vexed question. I think it looks exceedingly awkward and clumsy and there are so few hands of necessary artistic lines to carry it off with any degree of ease. A short, fat hand looks ludicrous with a ring on the first finger. People with short fingers and plump hands must exercise special care as regards their rings, and few should be worn, even if the hands are white.

An engagement ring should naturally be worn quite alone, and as a rule it is more becoming in every way to wear no other ring on that hand. Much the same applies to diamond wedding rings that are in vogue at present, especially if the hands are of good shape. The exquisite effect of this small diamond band is nearly always spoiled if in competition with stone rings of cheaper and coarser style.

Consider both hands together in the wearing of rings and remember that the prettiest effect is produced by keeping one hand considerably more bare than the other. This method is also useful if you have one particularly fine ring, which can be worn alone on one hand and the other saved for those of lesser beauty.

Now we come to the important point of what stones should be used together and the question of color. A white hand can do pretty much what it likes, but it should be remembered that even in this case certain color schemes may be decidedly unpleasant. Rubies, for instance, should never be placed near turquoises, as, both being so strong in color, the effect of each is destroyed. Pearls and diamonds with opals and diamonds are a lovely combination. Rubies and diamonds and pearls make a lovely color scheme; turquoise and pearls are in perfect harmony; emeralds, diamonds, and pearls are a stunning color combination. Emeralds and rubies are ugly worn together if the stones are of any size; sapphires and rubies suffer from being worn in combination. Sapphires are best if next to diamonds and pearls, and ocacsionally make a striking contrast with opals.

Choose your rings, in fact, with as much care as you give to your frocks. Err on the right side, if in doubt, by wearing too few rather than too many.

Antoinette Donnelly's Answers.

MRS. LETTY H.: If you cannot get the dirt from the pores of the hands by using warm water and soap, try rubbing them with almond or olive oil. The oil reaches the pores and quickly removes the soil. Every detail of your method of living has an important bearing on your digestion. Be careful of your diet and keep your bowels in a healthy condition. Fried foods are particularly to be avoided, also much drinking of coffee. Get plenty of exercise in the open air.

WORRIED: Your nails become brittle and break off because they lack natural oil. Try holding them in olive or almond oil for five or ten minutes each day. I know they must be painful, but following the suggestion about using oil will, I am sure, greatly improve them. I shall be glad to send you my instructions for care of the hands and nails if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

JOHANNA: The feet should be washed every night, winter and summer, after which they may be sponged with water in which a few drops of benzoin have been placed. It is best to change the stockings every day. Ventilate your shoes by putting them where the fresh air will strike them.

BLUE EYES: This is an excellent formula for shampoo for blonde hair: Shave a small cake of pure white castile soap into a pint of boiling water and let it stand until thick. Add a few drops of rose water just before it thickens. Wet your hair so that the jelly will adhere. Then rub until a lather forms. To the first water add a raw egg well beaten and the juice of half a lemon. Rinse your hair thoroughly. The lemon juice gives the golden tint so desired in blonde locks.

* *

J. A. L.: A girl with golden hair, fair skin, blue eyes, and delicate coloring can wear black, especially with touches of blue, gold, and cerise; white, a dark shade of brown, nearly all shades of blue, including blue grays and turquoise; both pale and dark green, pearl, dove, and warm shades of gray, mauve, heliotrope, wistaria, and violet, dark red, pale yellow, pale and old rose pink.

RUTH P. J.: To give tone to the cheeks and to correct the lines running from the sides of the nose to the mouth place the fingers of both hands upon your cheeks, with the tips almost at the chin. Push your hands upward and gently press your fingers into the flesh, continuing the motion upward and outward so that at the end of the stroke the finger tips will be at the hair line of the temple. Repeat this movement about fifteen times. Follow this movement with another series of strokes, beginning in the same position. This time make the finger tips from circles about as big as a half dollar upward and around, one line of circles above the other, until the forehead is reached. Repeat fifteen times.

LILLIAN G.: The only permanent way to remove superfluous hair is by the electric needle. There is no depilatory on the market that will remove hair permanently. I would not recommend your using a depilatory on your face, neck, or arms. It would be better to use peroxide and ammonia. The peroxide and ammonia bleaches the hair and after many applications has a tendency to rot it. I shall be glad to send you my formula for removing superfluous hair by the use of peroxide and ammonia if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

JEAN C.: It takes a little time and patience but I am sure it will not be long before you can correct the condition. First scrub your face in hot water and soap, rinse off with warm water, then apply cold water. Then apply witch hazel, or you can use the following simple lotion: Rose water, six ounces; elder flower water, two ounces; simple tincture of benzoin, one-half ounce; tannic acid, ten grains. Apply the lotion night and morning with a piece of absorbent cotton.

* *

B. E. S.: There is no especial weight for a girl of 13. She is still a growing girl and her height and weight will vary with her growth. I should suggest for a girl of your age to comb her hair back loosely around her face, holding it in place with side combs and wearing it in braids or curls down her back.

EMMA L.: A girl 18 years of age 5 feet 2 inches tall should weigh 117 pounds. I am sure nobody in the world would ever know that you are carrying around two pounds more than you should, so don't be so foolish as to worry your brain about that. Spend that extra effort keeping yourself in good health and I am sure you will be thankful to have those two pounds to fall back on by the time the winter is over.

Mark of the Well Bred.

PUNCTUALITY is the hall mark of a well bred person. The constitutionally unpunctual may plead lack of a sense of time, lives too full of care, unpropitious outer conditions over which they have no control, and so forth, but the plain and simple truth is that they lack enough thought for others to avoid keeping these others waiting, and such lack of thought means lack of breeding. The keynote of the well bred is consideration for others, a careful regard for their rights and comfort. This often means a certain amount of self-sacrifice, of giving up, but in the long run it is well worth while, for a thoroughly well bred man or woman, one who unfailingly answers to every test, wins a place in the esteem of the community which is unique and enviable.

MRS. E. H. W.: Do as you see the other guests do. Generally the men and younger women stand until the older women of the party are seated. If the company are all young then little ceremony is observed, except that men never seat themselves until all the women are seated.

ALICE: Don't worry because you don't know how to comport yourself in company. In the matter of table manners do as you see others doing, use your fork, spoons, and knives as your table neighbors do. Shake hands with your host and hostess, but don't shake hands with others unless they start to do it with you. If you feel embarrassment try to hide it under a calm, quiet manner. Don't say anything unless you really have something to say. Let the other person open and lead the conversation until you feel at ease and have forgotten yourself. Timidity is a form of excessive egotism. It is inspired by a fear of the judgment of others. If one is indifferent to or oblivious of the opinion of others shyness is impossible. Therefore, try to eradicate this form of egotism.

L. K.: In response to the greetings, "Merry Christmas!" you can say, "Same to you," or "Many of them to you," or simply, "Merry Christmas to yourself!" A suitable acknowledgment to thanks evoked by an act of courtesy is a matter of inspiration if you want to step outside of such formal phrases as "You are welcome," or "Don't mention it." You might say, "I'm glad to be of service," or "It's a pleasure to do anything for you." But whatever you say try to make it spontaneous and sincere and not perfunctory.

* *

J. L. F.: If it is a large party, such as a dinner or a theater and supper party, wear your full dress suit. If it is a small, informal gathering of intimate friends then you can wear a Tuxedo, or dinner coat, as it is usually called. The fact that it is a birthday party implies a certain informality, but not necessarily that a dinner coat is suitable. Up to date men are relegating the dinner coat to small family affairs and to parties composed only of men.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and heavy. Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

The Tribune Cook Book

by JANE EDDINGTON

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

NOT only are peas and beans in the bag a splendid resource, but when cooked they may easily keep for a week in the winter, are none the worse for freezing, and better in flavor for ordinary keeping, as every one knows who is partial to warmed over baked beans. That improved flavor is significant. It signifies increased digestibility.

One of the most popular writers on the chemistry of cookery, and perhaps the first among the few who have written on the subject, after years of chemical experience, finally turned on cookery in a chapter on the chemical elements in vegetables and quotes the old couplet:

"Pease pudding hot, pease pudding cold,
Pease pudding in the pot, nine days old,"

and says that what happens to the cooked peas when they have stood nine days corresponds to ensilage, that is, the cellulose is softened and the horny stuff turned to sugar.

It is not only peas pudding, or porridge, that he finds improved by keeping, but he says: "I find that ordinary porridge is greatly improved by being made some days before it is required, then stored in a closed jar, brought forth, and heated for use. The change effected is just that which may be expected, a softening of the fibrous material, and a sweetening due to the formation of sugar."

This chemist points out the fact that sugar may be obtained from old rags if a strong enough solvent is used. He discovered that porridges grow sweeter with keeping by tasting in the morning some gruel which he had partly eaten the night before. He at once thought it tasted sweeter, but to convince himself he kept it two days longer, and warmed it up at night under the same conditions of temperature, etc., and found that the sweetness was still more distinct. He later found that one of his friends was accustomed to having his porridge made several days beforehand, warming it up when required.

Another notable example of the effects of a sort of ensilage on foods is the process of making saurkraut. Various forms of ripening illustrate the same thing, or to quote again: "Such ensilage will correspond to that which occurs when we gather Jersey or other superlatively fine pears in autumn as soon as they are full grown. They are then hard, woody, and acid, quite unfit for food, but by simply storing them for a month or two or three they become luciously tender and sweet; the woody fibers are converted into sugar, the acid neutralized, and all this by simply fulfilling the conditions of ensilage, close packing of the fiber, exclusion of the air by the thick rind of the fruit, plus the diffusion of acid among the well packed fiber of the ensilage material."

Seemingly one of the hardest lessons for the modern housewife to learn is that of the value of slow cooking, which is a sort of ripening of itself, and as a part of the same thing the impossibility of being thrifty, or economical, or really well fed, by an entire dependence upon the quickly prepared foods. And, by the way, one may have the most quickly prepared dishes possible by having on hand a good supply of those foods which have been long cooked.

One of the reasons why there has been failure in cooking peas and beans, or we might say there has been success in cooking them so that they are hard and indigestible, has been a sticking to the old fashioned notion that it was economical, or for some other reason necessary, to boil them in ham or other salt meat water. Another has been the failure to realize that hard boiling hardens instead of softens all protein, whether it is in peas, eggs, corned beef, or an old hen.

No salt should be added to beans or peas when they are put to cook. It hardens the protein, as any one can learn by doing the experiment recorded below, thus reducing its digestibility and increasing its irritating qualities, no one knows how much. Even what it gains in flavor on one hand is lost by a certain underflavor which it acquires. It may seem to be finished by the fat in the ham water, but this might be skimmed off the cold liquid and added to the peas just before they are served, since some fat, butter, and sometimes bacon fat improves them and increases their value as fuel food.

The laying in of a supply of staples for the winter, five or ten pounds each of several kinds of peas, of several kinds of beans, of hominy, and other cereals, of prunes, and perhaps of other dried fruits and of various bags of flour, corn, and graham and rye meal, is just the same sort of thriftiness and comfort as having enough sets of underwear or stockings. A grocery catalogue is a good jog to the memory when making out a list. Some of these catalogues nowadays contain little preachments of food values and satisfactory rations for a family, or for folk under different conditions.

The number of economical and attractive meals which can be prepared in the course of a year by the woman who keeps a supply of staples and turns to them resourcefully, instead of running to the butcher about dinner time every day, is surprisingly large.

Three Pea Porridges.

Put three cups of whole green dried peas, without previous soaking, to cook in three separate kettles, with a sliced onion and a sliced carrot in each. Some dried or fresh mint may be put in with the peas which are to be prepared nearest like green fresh peas. With one cup of peas put four cups of cold water, with another put the same, but after the peas have boiled up a little add to this one teaspoon of baking soda; with the third cup add four cups of water, in which a ham or spareribs were boiled. Bring each to a boil and skim cover tightly, and then put over a simmering fire. When the soda is added to the one cup there will be a good deal of frothing, and a deeper kettle must be used than for the others, as this water is likely to boil up and over, even over the simmering burner, if covered as tightly as it should be.

At the end of an hour the peas with the soda will be rather soft, and at the end of two hours all cooked to pieces, in a perfect porridge, the hulls very noticeable, as will be the soda odor, which disappears when the peas are kept. Those in the plain water will not be as soft nor as sweet as those with the soda, while those in the salt water will be a good deal harder and growing saltier and harder as the water evaporates. The starch of the peas will soften with longer cooking, but while this allows the protein part to granulate it will not soften much, simply be in smaller portions. More than this, as the water evaporates the gelatin in the water from the meat will render it likely to stick or burn on, even over the smallest fire. When done put all through a sieve and use the puree in various ways. Peas are generally accounted more digestible than beans, because they are more often sieved—that is, the hard and perfectly indigestible part removed.

Imitation Green Peas.

When the green dried peas are cooked in plain water, if this is carefully done, they will be soft in two hours without any previous soaking, and if generously buttered while hot, then they will be quite as much like green peas as any from a can. The most effective way to do this is to add the butter to each individual portion in a sauce dish.

Dried Pea Loaves.

Green dried peas when cooked with soda, which process has been defended as adding something to them of value, which may be questionable, are much darker and yellower than are green peas cooked in any other way, and have been taken for mashed sweet potato. And, by the way, when cooked in this fashion, aluminum should not be used. In making a loaf of these or any other cooked dried peas it is necessary to sieve them, add the requisite amount of fat, whether butter or other, and then stir the whole in a frying pan rapidly over a hot fire until sufficiently dry. If there is much liquid it should be turned off and saved for soup. It will jelly when cold.

Pea Bouillon.

If peas have been slowly cooked with a little more water than given above, and then strained through flannel after they are sieved, the liquid obtained is more nourishing and energy making than any ordinary meat bouillon, since it contains a great deal of starch and also some soluble protein which is called casein. Casein is essential to cheese, and the Chinese make a cheese out of soy beans because they contain so much of it.

This bullion served with a little whipped cream or with the egg garnishes or vegetables cut in small fancy forms is good for those who must go without meat.

Breakfast Wheat.

Five pounds of wheat at 25 cents has been known to last two people six weeks as a breakfast cereal when they had it every morning. Enough was cooked to last a week, and the same principle which makes cold beans sweeter works in this. On cup of wheat will take up about two cups and a half in the cooking. A man who last year sent communncations to a great number of newspapers to the effect that this was one of the most palatable and healthful foods made from wheat recommended simmering the whole wheat for two days in a double boiler. It is sufficiently cooked if simmered over the fire for an hour in a double boiler, then cooked all night in a fireless cooker. An excellent and ancient pudding may then be made of it by adding twice its measure of milk and one egg to each two cups of milk. Stir over the fire till cooked together, season with nutmeg, and serve cold. This is frumenty.

Corn Meal Mush.

Corn meal mush if cooked all night in a fireless cooker will have formed a jelly and be the sweeter or really partly digested by this long cooking. Fried corn meal mush is always sweeter than the mush first made over the stove because it has usually stood over night and so ripeend.

Mustache in Curlers.

I wore a mustache. I had put it up on curlers and was reading in the library when some one knocked. As my wife was dressing she called to me to answer, and, not thinking about my curlers, I went to the door and received one of my wife's friends. She laughed a good deal during our conversation, as I recalled later, but still my senses needed a blow. Presently my wife came into the room, gave me one look, and almost screamed: "John, your curlers!" I made my apologies as neatly as possible, and then my exit.

BORED.

Drunk on Water.

A bunch of us kids got up a private dancing party, and we wanted it to be a real stylish affair, so we decided to have a punch bowl. Well, a couple of us kids thought it would be great sport to get everybody drunk, so we got two quarts of alcohol to dope the punch with. When we arrived at the dance hall the punch hadn't arrived yet, so we hid the alcohol in our coats. One of the girls saw us hide it, and, while we weren't watching, she stole the bottle and poured the alcohol out and put water in its place, and later on in the evening I poured the contents of the bottle in the punch. Then I drank a lot of punch. I imagined I was drunk, and I got so dizzy I couldn't stand up, and the boys had to take me home. The next morning when I came to school the girls told me the joke, and I felt like falling through the floor.

Poked the Gentleman.

After a strenuous afternoon at the gym I came home pretty late, and perhaps from reaction dozed in the elevator. Suddenly I was awakened by my arm coming in contact with a body and found that while I perhaps had been thinking of the punching bag, my arm had shot out and landed into the abdomen of the gentleman standing in front of me. Embarrassing? Every one in the car tittered; however, I shall try to confine dozing to my home in the future.

MANY are the fields upon which you Capricorn people may enter and find success, whether it be as an artist, decorator, jurist, lawyer, clergyman, journalist, banker, or merchant. You fortunates whose birthdays come between Jan. 16 and 20 have simply unbounded ability. You can see through anything and your reasoning powers are most acute.

Capricorn's gloom has all been dispelled, along with the changeableness that marked some of your brothers and sisters' temperaments. Honesty, earnestness, and positiveness, together with great executive ability, make all things possible to you, if you but try.

Sudden and strange experiences come into your life, but in whatever position you find yourself you move slowly and make few mistakes. The confidence you inspire is almost certain to place you at the head of any undertaking you enter; if not on the throne, then you will be the power behind the throne. No one can reasonably doubt your sincerity, you just seem naturally to inspire confidence. You will never sacrifice principles for the sake of gain, nor will you have in your employ those who show any moral weakness, for in the administration of your affairs you take no chances.

As a lawyer you can't help being a success; your mind seems to turn naturally toward judicial subjects, and as you are a convincing, powerful orator, the combination is irresistible.

In managing a household you can be counted upon to make the most of every penny without being stingy about your purchasing. You'll watch the sales as well as the scales. With such a good business head, it's a cold day when any one gets ahead of you. In the home will appear many evidences of your artistic sense.

Added to all these talents is the ability to write clearly and powerfully. You have the courage of your convictions, and so have no hesitation about stating your ideas emphatically. With all the demands upon your time, you are careful never to let yourself go to pieces physically. You keep your head clear, so it is that you are often called in on boards of arbitration, for it is a well known fact that you will take a comprehensive view of all interests concerned. Truly, you might be called the balance wheel of the universe, for people stand by you even though they may not always agree with your opinions.

With Jan. 21 begins another sign, that of Aquarius, meaning the water bearer. You are cautious, active, and restless, generally truthful, though you lack frankness. You belong to the air, and so in spite of your wonderful gifts you are too easily blown hither and thither by public opinion and your own moods.

With a certain faculty for concealing things, you are often transparent, and the other fellow who looks on at your supposedly clever ruses is often exceedingly amused. And you can paint your side of the question in the rosiest of hues, not that you intentionally misquote, but you like to tell the truth in sections, so to speak. With all your little shortcomings, you are almost universally liked, for every one realizes that you do not mean any harm by your original methods.

You will be most successful as a broker, insurance agent, or along general business lines. The women excel as social leaders and are devotees to art and music.

Your colors are salmon pink, Nile green, and blue; birthstones, sapphire, opal, and turquoise.

You are a loyal, true friend, a loving, devoted wife or husband, and you have the faculty of making your home a little paradise. Congenial companions will be found in Aries, March 22-April 20, and Sagittarius, Nov. 28-Dec. 22, but your conjugal partner will be found in Aquarius, your own sign.

The two most fortunate weeks of the year for you are those beginning May 27 and Oct. 14.

Both Love Her.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl 15 years old. There are two boys I like very much and they like me. They are both good, respectable boys, but I don't know which I like best. They both say that I must take one of them, and not go with the other. I do not want to choose. What am I to do? I don't see why we can't all be friends, but they aren't friends. They were until I went with them both.

"ANXIOUS."

Why don't you "count out"? I see but one other way out of this difficulty; that is to give up both of them. Perhaps if you tried this method it would bring them to the realization of the foolishness of the stand they are taking.

Kissing Problem Again.

"Dear Miss Blake: Is it proper to go out automobile riding with a boy of 16? I am 14, but tell him I am 16 and he believes it. Also, is it proper to kiss good night and while out riding? MISS ANXIOUS."

"What does your mother say? Does she approve and does she know how you are "fibbing" about your age? I know what I would do if you were my daughter—you'd certainly not go. And if you had any doubts about the propriety of kissing your boy friends, you'd soon be told that it was decidedly not the thing to do. Get your standards right, now, little Miss Anxious, and wait until you are grown up before you start doing grown up stunts.

Wants a Wife.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a boy of 19 and wish to make the acquaintance of a young woman of about the same age. I have a mother to be looked after, and any young lady desiring a satisfactory husband will kindly send a letter to Miss Doris Blake for M. C. C."

Surely the love spirit must be in the air! Now, here's M. C. C. wanting a wife. Why not get out and look for yourself? I would never want to take any one's word, not ever Doris Blake's if I were looking for a wife. But if you will do me the honor of sending a stamped, addressed envelope I'll see what I can do.

Wants Etiquette Book.

"Dear Miss Blake: Will you be kind enough to advise me if there is a book of etiquette which contains information pertaining to table manners, etc.

"A. B. C."

If you wish a book of this kind send me a stamped, addressed envelope and I will be glad to furnish you the information.

Blighted by Alcohol.

"Dear Miss Blake: I met a gentleman about a year ago, and after going out with him several times, he left the city on business. He wrote to me all the time that he was gone, and I answered his letters.

"He came home from the holidays and after meeting him again I find that I like him very much. The other evening when he was calling on me my father came home intoxicated, and, not knowing what he was saying, swore at my friend terribly.

"I cried myself sick after my friend had gone, for he left immediately after that. Now I have not heard from him yet, although he promised to call me up, and the day has passed when he was to leave the city again.

"I am 18 and my father will not allow me to have callers. Is there anything I can do, for I am sick at heart?

"BROWN EYES."

No wonder you are sick at heart, for yours is a situation that is truly deplorable. Can't you have a talk with your father when he is in a saner mood and try to get him to see what a wrong he has done you? If he would apologize to the man, that ought to help straighten out matters; otherwise, a little note from you is about all I can suggest at present.

Consult Mother About Gifts.

"Dear Miss Blake: Would you kindly advise me if it is proper for a young lady to have several gentlemen friends call during the week? I am 18 years of age, and am keeping steady company, but have other friends. Received several expensive gifts from my friends. Shall I keep them? MADERA."

If you can manage "steady" company and have several other callers a week, all I can say for you is that you are "quite some diplomat?" If you aren't engaged to "steady," then there is no reason why you shouldn't have other friends. But I do not approve of girls accepting expensive gifts from men, only from The Man. Do as your mother says about keeping those you have just received.

Has Two Chances.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 23 and in love with a youth the same age. He says he loves me. At times I do not think he does love me, for he gets cross at things.

"He drinks quite a bit, but promised to stop if I would became engaged. He is good looking, a fair dresser, and a steady worker. He is a chauffeur on taxicabs.

"Now there is another young man whom I've known for a long time. I know he loves me dearly; I can see it right before me. He is 28, but I do not care as much for him as I do the other, but I am quite sure I could learn to love him though he isn't good looking. He wishes to marry me right away. He does not drink and is good natured in every way.

"Miss Blake, tell me in your own heart what you think of these two men. I do not know which to choose.

"ARABELLA."

There isn't a bit of doubt in my mind as to which one I would choose, if I were you. Never go in for looks if there's drink in the case, no matter about the promises. Turn your attention to No. 2. I am quite sure you will be happier in the end. Let me know how you really do decide.

They're Just 14.

"Dear Miss Blake: We are girls of about 14, but go with a little older set. Do you think it proper to go out with boys of 15 and 16, or do you approve more strongly of meeting them places? B. B."

I don't understand just what you mean by meeting them places; certainly, if you intend seeing them, it would never be proper to meet them on the street corner. I don't think that you should be going with any boys regularly, whether they be 14 or 16, but this is a problem which your mothers should settle, for ideas about this matter vary so with different communities.

How I Won My Mate

"How did you win the love of your mate? By an even disposition? By thoughtful remembrances of wishes expressed? By some special form of entertaining? By discouraging familiarities? By flattery? Interest in the details of his or her dress? By good cooking? By evidences of thrift? By sympathy and confidence? By business ability? By cutting out a rival, and how? By some artifice or subterfuge? By what other measures?

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "How I Won My Mate." Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

The Home Harmonious

Neatness-and-Attractiveness for the Nursery

WHEN sisters, cousins, aunts, uncles, and kind, good friends have succeeded in making the average small family home look like a disrupted toy department mother smiles a helplessly happy sort of a smile and begins to wonder where to put it all. I have lately been witness to such a toy devastation, and listened to mother's soliloquy, which ran something after this fashion:

"Of course the home belongs to the children—that's what the home is for. We don't have much company. It is very inconvenient to entertain on account of the little ones, and we could make a sort of a dining room living room out of our dining room, so perhaps we had better give up our front parlor and turn it into a day nursery. It is the best room in the house and the children will be perfectly happy there."

This measure, while it seems rather extreme, is cheerfully practical. Give the children a nursery where they can get all the joy that is to be had out of juvenile life, even if it is at the expense of occasional "company." Company does not amount to much anyway when compared to the real happiness of the youngsters.

All that, to be sure, is mere detail. The point of the matter is that at this time of year the accumulation of toy gifts emphasizes the necessity of a playroom.

Where there are several children, each child should have a specified place for his or her toys, it may be a chest, or only a drawer in one, or a closet or a box-bench, with a seat that lifts, but when you supply to children a place to keep their toys and insist that the toys be kept in place, you sow the seed not only of order, but of thrift. Add to this the responsibility of life itself, through the possession of some pet or even plant, and a wonderful stride will have been made toward the development of the individual character.

It is marvelous how keen very little children are to realize what life is—that in a measure they hold it in their hands, that its perpetuation or its extinction rests with them. It is safe to say that a certain nobility of heart and mind germinates in the child who is taught to be responsible for the feeding and the care of the bird, or other pet, or the watering of the flowers.

Anything that makes for neatness is the first consideration in planning the nursery, whether it is a day or night room. An excellent method is to have a bench built all the way around it. These built-in benches have lids that lift, forming box-like receptacles. Second to this is a series of wooden boxes with hinged lids, ranged around the wall. These boxes, that may be had for little or nothing, are very attractive if covered with chintz or denim all to match. They should have ball bearing castors screwed to their bases, and be fitted with strong handles. So fixed, they really become a part of the toy outfit on occasion. Many is the sail that will be had in such an improvised boat, many the automobile ride that will be had in it, too, and several of the boxes put together make the most wonderful trains! They often become moving vans by the magic of the child's imagination, or thrones, or airships. So you can see that a series of boxes, uniform in size and fitted to the wall spaces they are to occupy at tidying time, are, or should be, a feature of the room.

The floor should be partly carpeted and partly bare. A good idea is to have a breadth of carpet or strip of rag rug running clear around the outer edges of the floor, laying it about a foot away from the baseboard. On the bare painted or hardwood floor so left uncovered, in the middle of the room, a circle may be outlined. This will be the foundation for innumerable games. All of the ring games taught at kindergarten will be acted out in this circle, and many new ones will doubtless be improvised. A circular rag rug may be laid over the center and moved at pleasure. Rag carpeting is the ideal covering for nurseries, as it washes well.

In decorating the nursery it is customary to place the decorative feature, whether it be a frieze or a series of pictures, on a level with the child's eyes. A nursery frieze is preferable to pictures. Many very attractive pictorial friezes have been designed and reproduced in wall paper for children's rooms. In selecting a nursery frieze, be sure to see that the pictures on the one you choose will continue clear around the room, without repeat of pattern. This is a very important point because the pictorial frieze is meant to take the place of pictures, and the objection to having the same picture on several sides of the room is a perfectly reasonable one. The selection is too often made from a sample strip that may in itself be lovely but is as disappointing to the child as a picture book would be if it had four good pictures in it, and the same four were repeated again and again. The picture frieze, often arranged in sets of panels, should be guaranteed to measure at least thirty-six feet without repeating any part.

Furniture now made for children is as good in every particular as that made for grown people—the difference is merely in the matter of scale. Small pieces are used consistently throughout. They are not toy pieces poorly made, perishable, unsafe, and badly decorated, but are properly constructed, firmly joined, and artistically finished. Many variations are offered. Odd pieces are no longer thrown together in a miscellaneous collection, but the child's room is treated as a unit, and a judicious selection is made of all parts, so that they may be correlated and harmonious, and the child is thus unconsciously taught very early in life the lesson of fitness in furnishing.

Pictured in the illustration is a night nursery, in the suite of a little favorite of fortune. The room itself is small and furnished to scale, with white enameled furniture. The bed and chairs have a covering that is the very latest thing in fittings for children's rooms—something that I saw for the first time at the exhibition recently held in New York under the title of "The Child in Art." It is a covering made simply of quilted white nainsook, appliqued with flowers in colored chambray. The chair covers are slipovers, buttoned down the back, and the bars of the crib are concealed by a hanging of the same quilting, tied around the crib on the inside. It all looks clean and comfortable.

In the interior shown here the flower design used in the applique is also used as a stencil on the wall border, with pots of real flowers forming a continuation of the decoration across the window sill. The company that designed these attractive novelties has gotten out patterns and directions for those who choose to make them at home.

Answers to Queries.

MRS. A. K.: You are fortunate not to have a plate rail, as they are decidedly in disfavor. A simple molding is considered in better taste. In this as in most other things pertaining to home decoration "simplicity" is the fashion.

MISS FLORENCE L. M.: If you want something really unique for a tearoom why not try designing it yourself? Any good furniture store will order for you any furniture that you select in its unfinished state. You simply select the models that you like and tell your dealer to order it for you unfinished from the factory. This is frequently done by those who like to design ornament and finish of some unusual sort.

* *

MRS. C. H. H.: Will you tell me in what city you contemplate staying or would you like to take up a correspondence course? I should think in connection with your husband's profession as an architect that a department of interior decoration would be desirable for you.

* *

MRS. M. D.: For your fire screen make a simple single upright frame of darkened oak. Into this stretch a piece of tan colored linen woven in diapered pattern, and work in the center of this an old fashioned looking basket of fruit or flowers, done in colored silks in cross stitch. Rusty iron can be cleaned with kerosene. Perhaps if you would sponge the leather chair with gasoline it will look better. Allow the curtains in the living room to hang just to the sill.

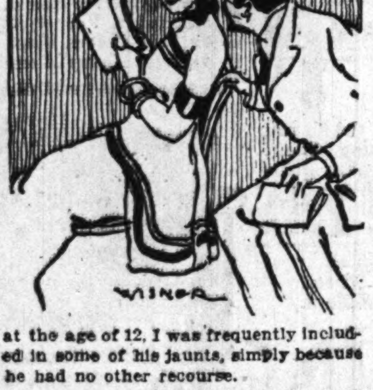
An Algerian Romance.

ADVENTURE and thrills are not as a rule the portion of the average twentieth century American girl, and were it not for a peculiar combination of circumstances in my case, doubtless the usual colorless existence would have been mine; but my father was a globe trotter, a dreamer, and idealist, and having been left motherless at the age of 12, I was frequently included in some of his jaunts, simply because he had no other recourse.



Naturally a highly intellectual man, my father had augmented his native gifts by deep and constant study, and while some called him a smatterer—a sciolist with no definite aim—by others he was regarded as an authority on many subjects, particularly on Egyptology, whose mysteries and antiquities it had been his great pleasure to delve into.

Once, when I was 16 years old, he experienced one of his periodic attacks of "wanderlust" and informed me, to my great joy, that I was to accompany him on a trip to Egypt. It was his intention to go direct to Gibraltar and then sail down the Mediterranean to Alexandria, at the mouth of the Nile; but some stringency in the financial situation having arisen, he decided to stop in Algeria for several months as a teacher of languages, to relieve his financial embarrassment.

He chose Biskra, a most picturesque and quaint little city in the heart of a beautiful oasis, where he had spent some time a few years previous. Algeria, because of the varied nationalities of the inhabitants, offered a prolific field for a linguist. The French, of course, predominated, but other European tongues were well represented.

My father soon acquired an array of pupils, almost every one an individual national type. My fancy was taken by a beautiful Arab girl who came for instruction. Originally a Mohammedan, she had embraced the Christian faith at the solicitation of a band of French missionaries, and it was now her ambition to learn English. To me she was the most glorious creature my eyes had ever beheld, the incarnation of all that was romantic and mysterious in this far off spot, aromatic with spices and palms.

It appeared that another regarded her with admiration more intense than mine, a dapper and dandified little Frenchman, another of father's pupils, with quarters close to ours. Ohma, the beautiful Arab girl, reciprocated his affections, and the courtship proceeding with the rapidity characteristic of the tropics, the wedding day was set.

The morning before the wedding there was quite a commotion in the little city occasioned by the appearance of two gendarmes, accompanied by a third officer in military apparel, inquiring for André Gilbert, the prospective groom. Reaching our abode, my father was about to converse with them when André himself appeared and, seeing the gendarmes and hearing the inquiries, with a wild and apprehensive look he turned and dashed into his room, and soon we heard the shot of a pistol.

All was consternation, and for a while pandemonium reigned; but soon order was restored and the facts were gleaned. "André Gilbert" was Henri da ———, a notorious croupier at Monte Carlo, who had fled with many thousands of francs which belonged in Monaco. Fearing his fate, he had evidently preferred instant death, and shot with accurate aim.

And little Ohma, the bride to be? Her grief knew no bounds, and never will I forget the look of anguish with which she surveyed her prostrate lover. Her one regret, she confided to my father, was that the wedding had not taken place, that she might immolate herself on her husband's grave, showing that, in spite of her conversion, when the elemental emotions were at play her instincts reverted to the native heathenish customs.

We left Biskra soon after this, but neither the wonders and beauties of the Nile nor the glamour of the scenes all about me could efface the shock of the tragedy from my mind, and it is still today a vivid reality to me. L. B.

Fine Healthy Child
Convincing Evidence

Simple Inexpensive Remedy Checks Early Tendency to Constipation.

About the first thing impressed on the young Mother is the necessity for regularity in her baby, which brings up the question of the most desirable laxative for children's use.

Mrs. Jesse Richardson, Philpot, Ky., says she has used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for the past year and that there is no medicine in the world like it. She writes, "My little son, William, Jr., just loved it because it is so pleasant to take, and everybody talks about his being such a fine, healthy boy."

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of simple laxative herbs, free from any opiate or narcotic drug, and is the standard remedy for constipation in thousands of homes throughout the land. Drug Stores everywhere sell it for fifty cents a bottle. Get a bottle of this excellent remedy and have it in the house. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 454 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

Neatness as An Asset.

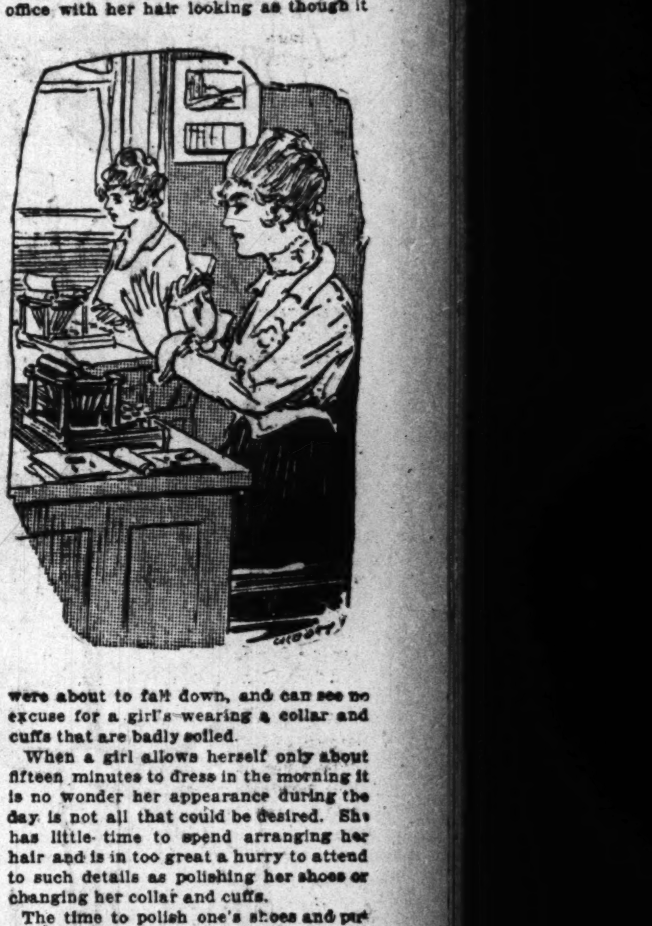
WHEN an employer interviews applicants for a position he is careful always that the person he selects be neat in appearance.

An untidy looking girl rarely gets a chance to prove that she is capable of filling the vacancy. She may be bright and a good worker, but few men are willing to try to find that out because they do not like her appearance.

One naturally expects that a girl who is careful about her appearance and always looks well groomed is neat about her work, and that usually is the case. But there are a few exceptions. I heard of a girl who looked like a model of neatness and whose work was anything but tidy. She would spend five minutes scrubbing an ink spot off her fingers and would hand her employer a report sheet on which there were several blots and think nothing of it. If she made a mistake in copying figures in her report instead of trying to erase the figures neatly she just drew a heavy line through the number and wrote the correct one under it. These reports she made out, were filed in the office and were referred to from time to time by the heads of the firm. She knew this, but it took a sharp reprimand from her employer to make her realize the importance of doing the work neatly.

I heard a man complain once about the untidy condition of his stenographer's desk. He said it was next to impossible to find anything in her desk when she was away. She kept her purse, gloves, and powder box in the same drawer with the stationery, and instead of keeping the different size letter heads in separate places she had them in one pile and one had to search for the particular size desired. The envelopes were in the drawer with her typewriter brushes and oil can, and it often happened that the oil can leaked on the envelopes. Her typewriter was in need of repairing so frequently that the man who came to fix it finally told her employer that if she would spend a little time every day cleaning the machine it would not be out of commission so often.

Nothing gives a business man more satisfaction than to have neat offices and a trim looking office force. He cannot understand why a girl should come to the office with her hair looking as though it were about to fall down, and can see no excuse for a girl's wearing a collar and cuffs that are badly soiled.



When a girl allows herself only about fifteen minutes to dress in the morning it is no wonder her appearance during the day is not all that could be desired. She has little time to spend arranging her hair and is in too great a hurry to attend to such details as polishing her shoes or changing her collar and cuffs.

The time to polish one's shoes and put a fresh collar and cuffs on the dress that is to be worn the next day is at night. The girl who puts these things off until morning usually forgets to do them in her rush to get out on time and earns the reputation of being careless about her personal appearance.

Were You Ever Jealous?

> Jealousy makes more fools out of men and women than puppy love. Did jealousy ever make a fool of you—a fool at whom people actually laughed outright? It probably did. And here for the first time jealousy may do some good. Write your experiences on one side of the paper within 250 words and address it to the Jealous Editor of "The Chicago Sunday Tribune." For every letter published "The Tribune" will pay $1. No manuscripts returned.

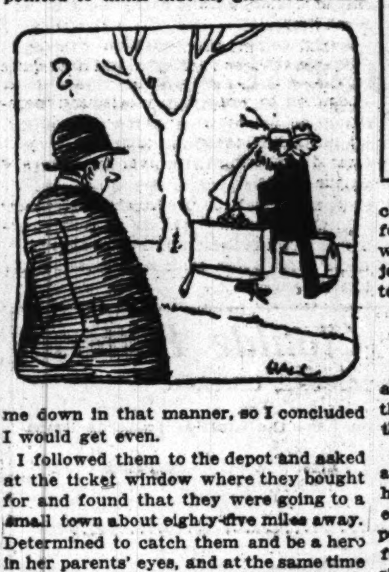
"In Bad" All Around.

One night about 10 o'clock I saw my girl and a handsome, well dressed young man pass on the opposite side of the street talking excitedly. Both were in a great hurry, and both had suit cases. I knew that they were eloping. I was disappointed to think that my girl would turn me down in that manner, so I concluded I would get even.



I followed them to the depot and asked at the ticket window where they bought for and found that they were going to a small town about eighty-five miles away. Determined to catch them and be a hero in her parents' eyes, and at the same time get even with her for running away, I telegraphed the chief of police at the town they were going to and told him to hold them and notify me when they arrived. At 8 o'clock the next morning I received a telegram C. O. D., saying: "Come at once; we have the young couple you want."

When I arrived the girl I intended to marry was crying and the young man was mad. My girl tearfully told me that if I ever spoke to her again she would not answer me, and that the young man she was with was her brother whom I had never seen. They had visited the town to see an aunt and stay for a week.

I lost my girl and the policeman came near running me in, the girl's brother called me down and her parents never forgave me. Besides, I was out two days' work and $10 in money; all caused by jealousy. Afterward I move out of the town to keep from being laughed at.

Exhaled Perfume Odor.

Dear girls, when you marry don't be too anxious to condemn your husbands for things you imagine to be true. Wait for them to explain.

My husband and I lived happily for almost a year. During the Christmas holidays he came home from business one evening and I noticed about him a strange perfume. Neither of us ever used perfume. Immediately I jumped at conclusions.

When I questioned him he seemed indifferent and mysterious and offered no explanation, which enraged me. This went on until I could no longer stand the strain. I went to a lawyer to sue for a divorce.

Then Christmas came and all was explained. My husband had gone to look for a handsome gift for me, which was opposite the counter where a woman was demonstrating perfume. My husband went to the store several times before deciding upon my gift. Each time he received a spray from the scented bottle.

The lawyer was cheated out of a good sum of money and my husband and I are happy once more. M. F.

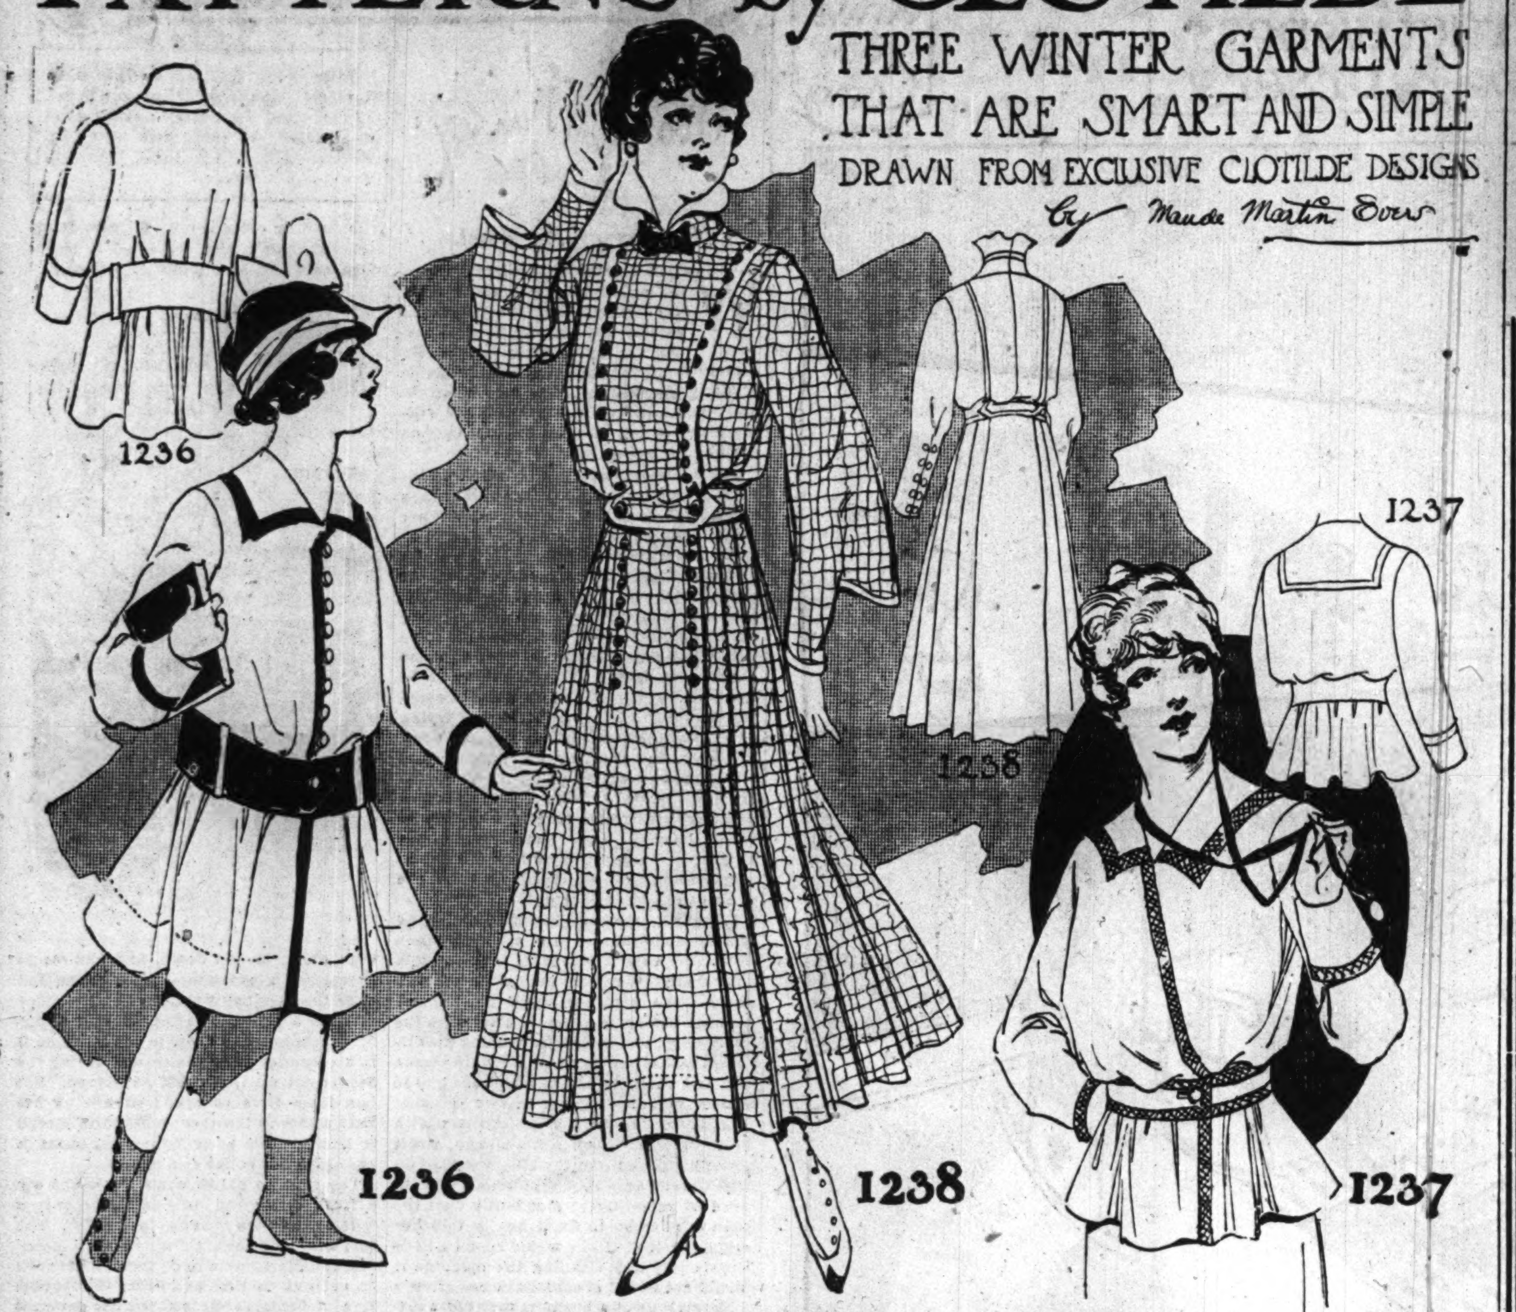
THREE WINTER GARMENTS THAT ARE SMART AND SIMPLE

DRAWN FROM EXCLUSIVE CLOTILDE DESIGNS

by Maude Martin Evers



1236—A little girl's dress, prettily belted, trimmed with buttons and turndown collar and cuffs. This pattern may be had in sizes 8, 10 and 12 years. The belt, cuffs, and collar may be of the same or of contrasting materials.

1238—A handsome one-piece dress with sleeves which are of the newest cut; a high, upstanding collar, which may be turned down. The dress is trimmed only with buttons.

1237—A blouse with a belt is a model which is both practical and stylish this winter. It is extremely simple and easy to make, braiding. It comes in sizes 34 to 42. and may be trimmed with narrow THESE attractive models for winter wear show a decided distinctiveness of cut.

In the little girl's dress which I have designed, at the extreme left, there is evident the charming belted effect so noticeable in many of the season's best models. The moderately wide belt is slipped through casings at the sides and in the back, and this belt may or may not be braid trimmed. Such a frock as this made up in blue serge, with satin or silk belt, collar and cuffs, would be good looking. The buttons could be self-covered, either with the trimming or with the material of the dress itself.

In the center of the illustration is a one piece dress, with high standing collar and new full style sleeves. The skirt is a plaited model and is button trimmed down the front gore. This is the kind of frock that is really a necessity in every woman's wardrobe and one that, if made up of a fairly light weight goods, could be worn far into the spring.

Blouses of every and all kinds are much worn now and will continue to be popular far into the spring. This model with a belt is especially stylish, because of its cut, and is simple and easily made at the same time.

Bright colors are much in evidence now that the new year is well started, and all thoughts are centered on the coming spring, which is not many weeks off. For the blouse model, whether it is made up in winter materials such as silk, velvet, velveteen, or wool, or in the soft, light, washable materials, bright colors are essentially suitable. And every woman who can wear them should do so, now that Dame Fashion has really set her approval upon them after such a long siege of pastel shades.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE and may be obtained through no other service. It is requested that customers allow one week before making complaint for nonreceipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and thereby hasten delivery.

Varied Activities of Women.

Mrs. William Arack of California is said to be the only woman in the United States engaged as an ostrich farmer. She has over 100 birds on her ranch, which net her about $40 apiece each year.

A woman can talk longer than a man, and does so because she uses less force by a large percentage than man does.

Mrs. James Scott and Mrs. Charles Falk, American women, recently succeeded in bagging nine deer in the mountains of Hawaii.

Mrs. Zelia Nuttall of Los Angeles is thought to be the only woman in the world at the head of the active work of an archæological research fund. She is director of the Crocker-Reid fund of the University of California.

On the death of her husband, Mrs. William P. Canine of St. Paul, took up all his pastoral duties and is in entire charge of a large Baptist church in that city. Mrs. Canine preaches three times on Sunday and at all the weekday services.

RUB BACKACHE AWAY WITH "ST. JACOBS OIL"

Rub Lumbago, Pain and Soreness from Your Lame Back—Instant Relief! Doesn't Blister—Get a Small Trial Bottle—Wonderful Liniment

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right on your aching back, and by the time you count fifty the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating liniment needs to be used only once. It takes the pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless, and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica, backache or rheumatism so promptly. It never disappoints! In use for over sixty years.—Advertisement.

GIRLS! BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR WITH 'DANDERINE'

Get a 25 Cent Bottle! Freshen Your Scalp! Stop Falling Hair! Remove Dandruff! Grow Lots of Wavy, Glossy, Beautiful Hair---You Can!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength, and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

Bright Sayings of the Children

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The stories may be sent in either by children or their parents. The only condition is the story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Mary Louise was a great favorite with her father. He had occasion to go out of the city for the first time since Mary could remember, and did not return for five days. We were not surprised when the familiar step was heard to see Mary Louise make one bound for the door, and, putting her arms around his neck, she said: "Oh, daddy, daddy! How I love you! I love you 'cause you're so new." B. E. E.

My niece, 5 years old, in the city for the first time, looked at me with a puzzled expression on her face the first time I took her downtown, and exclaimed, "Why, auntie, they don't any of them know us, do they?" Mrs. L.

My little niece came to visit us. And when she saw our dog, a French poodle, she said, "O mamma, look at the cotton batton dog!" D. L. K.

Recently my little 6 year old neighbor came home with his first report card. His mother looked at the card and said, "Why, Theodore! What awfully poor grades!" He looked downcast and said, "It's all the teacher's fault. I told her you wouldn't be pleased." H. Graham.

Charles was informed one morning that a new baby had arrived. As a neighbor recently had a new baby, they named it Elizabeth, so Charles was fond of that name.

"O, we will call it Elizabeth," he said.

"But it is a baby brother," said his aunt.

"O well, we will call him Elizabeth till he wears pants like I do." Mrs. C. S.

Margaret and her small brother, Herold, were sitting on the floor playing. Suddenly Harold drew a long deep breath, whereupon his sister remarked, "Well, does yu feel worser den yu is?" A. N.

Eliot, while attending a wedding where the bride was much taller than the groom, leaned over and whispered to his mother "Mamma, was papa little like that when we got him?" F. D.

It was raining hard, as my little niece and I were coming out of the picture show the other evening, and she turned to me with the following kind warning: "Aunt Janet, you better button your collar up real tight, or your pretty Christmas locket'll get all rusted." J. S

Mary Elizabeth's mother believes in training children early to help around the house, especially as there are younger twin brothers. Recently her mother had company for dinner and when asked by a neighbor how many were there, Mary replied: "Oh, there must be hundreds, 'cause, O the dishes!" F. M.

June, whose father is a doctor, had been put on a diet consisting largely of soups while recovering from the grip. One day she grew tired of the monotony and exclaimed: "All I hear around here is soup, soup, soup, and 'let me see your tongue.'" G. W.

Little eJulia had been told she must not eat cherries, because they were not ripe enough. When shown the new family of kitties and told not to handle them she said while leaning lovingly over them, "No, mamma, we mustn't, 'cause they are not ripe yet."

To Helen, who knows little of horses, mangers and stables are a conception quite outside her experience. So when she was told the story of the nativity it was carefully explained that a stable is a place where horses sleep and are fed. Later when required to tell the story, she was asked: "And what is a stable?" "'Course I know," she triumphantly responded, "it's a hotel for a horse." D. G. J.

Recently my husband brought a friend of his home to dinner. The guest ate heartily of everything, which fact was noted by our little daughter. Several weeks later this man again came to dine with us, and upon entering the house said to the little girl: "Do you remember me, dear?" The hcild replied: "Yes, you are the man that eated so much." A. B.

The other day my little sister was passing in front of me. Her mother had always taught her to say "Excuse me" when passing in front of some one. She said "Excuse me," but when she came back again she didn't know what to say, so she said, "Excuse me back again."

Miss Jean Jackson,

On the way home from town a man stood on my nephew's foot. When he discovered what he was doing he turned to apologize to the little fellow, and to the apology my nephew replied: "Oh, that's all right, mister; I stand on them all day myself." E. J. W.

Johnny's aunt took him to church for the first time and he saw the congregation kneel. When his mother asked him what they did at church he replied: "Well, they sung awhile, then talked awhile, and then they all got down and hid."

Mrs. George B. Baker,

Yesterday a friend came in and brought with her a fine specimen of dog. He displayed his talent by doing some good tricks. We praised his wonderful doings. After a while little George, who was taking it all in, broke out with this remark: "Maybe he is a human dog, mamma." M. L.

Not feeling well, Helen's mother told her that she had better not have any cabbage with her supper. During the meal father asked Helen if she would not have a little cabbage, to which she replied: "I don't think I'd better, dad; it may hurt my feelings." F. R.

My sons, John and George, are twins, and very small for their age. One day I took John with me to call on a woman who took John on her lap and said: "You are such a very little boy I can hardly believe you are 4 years old." John looked wise and said: "Oh, this is only half of me. Don't you know that I am twins?" Mrs. A. M.

JUMP FROM BED IN MORNING AND DRINK HOT WATER

Open sluices of system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter, says authority.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drank each morning before breakfast, keeps us looking and feeling fit.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Every one, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate are quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, which will cost but little, but is sufficient to make any one a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.—Advertisement.

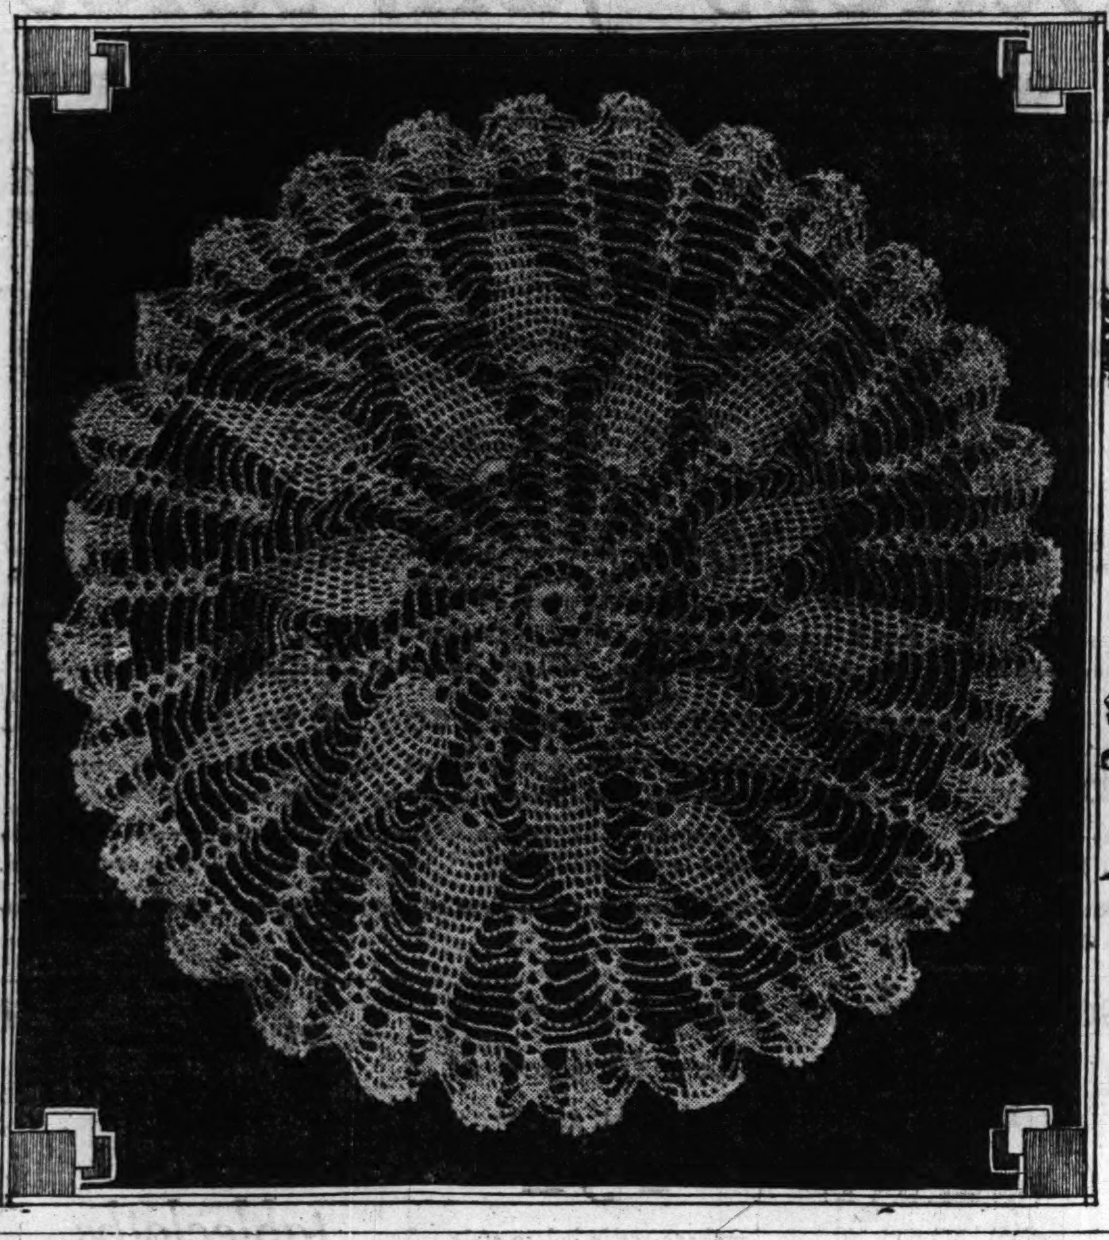
PINEAPPLE DOILY FOR PERCOLATOR TRAY.



Use number 70 D. M. C. First make a chain of ten stitches and fasten together. Then throw thread over and fill in thirty stitches. Crochet two stitches and make fourteen holes. Again put two stitches in each hole with two between. Then make the same for six rows except you widen one more stitch on each round. Now begin the pineapple by putting twelve stitches and thirteen second. Then narrow one stitch every round until pineapple is finished. To make the edge catch four stitches together and four stitches between for first row, then widen one between for five rows and lastly make the picot edge.

Before and After Marriage.

All Prophecies False.

Before marriage my husband and I attended the same preparatory school and university. We were in the same classes and saw each other daily for seven years.

My family and friends were unanimous in telling me "it was simply disgraceful to treat such a perfectly lovely young man so inconsiderately and that some day I would suffer for my perverseness."

No one seemed to realize that all my tantalizing ways were merely the outcome of my instinct for self-protection. I did not know it myself. I had sense enough, however, to know that the young women who showed the men how easily they were to be won were usually neglected. Then my marriage was in the dim distance, and an all enduring, unselfish young man was constantly in present nearness, so I laughed and went on my wicked way.

As the day drew near it found me with many misgivings and fears, but also with the determination to accept my punishment. Understand, it had been firmly impressed upon me that man only endures while pursuing. Verily, he had endured and now I was to reap what I had sown.

Twenty-two years ago today we were married. All prophecies have proved false. He is the same unselfish, generous man I knew in girlhood Possession has never seemed to dim his appreciation nor has he apparently been disillusioned as to my charms.

If I am deceived "he is some little actor." I. E. N.

One Thing He Wouldn't Do.

Before our marriage we were discussing several things. My intended husband said, "There is one thing I won't do, and that is to carry up coal."

"Well," I replied, "all right; you furnish the coal."

After our marriage there was nothing more said until one chilly day he came home and found the fire out.

"What is the matter," he said, "haven't you any coal?"

"Yes," I answered, "but not upstairs."

He opened his mouth to speak, then looked at me for a moment, and he took the coal pail and went after some.

Mrs. H. L. H.

He Backed Out.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

When my stalwart six foot husband promised to "love, cherish, and protect," how I thrilled! Alas for shattered illusions! One morning I was preparing breakfast on our oil stove. Hubby was washing his hands at the kitchen sink near by. Suddenly the oil tank exploded and the stove was a mass of flames. Did he rush to my rescue? He did not. He backed to the nearest door, waving the towel frantically in the air, and shouting: "Throw the darned thing out!" No, I couldn't recommend hubby for a Carnegie medal. Mrs. T. S.

Before we were married Jack was always urging me to get a really sensible sport costume—heavy shoes, middy blouse, skirt just a little below the knees, etc. Being a little heavy for such garments, I kept putting him off with various excuses.

After we had been married some time we fell in with some most enthusiastic campers, and I decided I was sure enough of him then, so I dared risk appearing unattractive, so I got a costume that was the last word in common sense and comfort, though hardly a thing of beauty.

My husband praised it most highly, but I noticed that the first time I wore it camping he left me to my own devices and devoted himself to a young person who was arrayed in a fluffy white creation I'd have thought good enough for an afternoon tea.

I was considerably jarred. A. S.

A CHILD DOESN'T LAUGH AND PLAY IF CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! Is tongue coated, breath feverish and stomach sour?

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING·HAND

by MARION HARLAND

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"I HAVE always thought that one must have large means in order to help others, but the Cornerites prove this to be quite unnecessary and put me to shame, for I see have many of the things longed for in homes more needy than my own. So now I will not scorn to give my mite.

"Mrs. H. S. M."

There was never a greater mistake than that which holds that wealth and generosity must go together. None gives more liberally in proportion than the really poor, and few are so badly off but that they can spare a little something which will be of help and comfort to another. This is the Helping Hand spirit.

Made Young Mother Happy.

"I have been a long time in thanking you, but I hope it is better late than never. You were good enough to print my appeal for a layette a year ago and I cannot begin to tell you of the overwhelming generosity that was shown me. Things certainly were against us at that time and but for the Cornerites my little girl would have been scantily clothed indeed. She is a great big, beautiful girl of 8 months now, and still wearing her Corner outfit. And her name is Jeanette Marion. It is impossible to express my unbounded gratitude, and I realize as never before the great, glorious work performed by the Helping Hand. God bless the Corner! Mrs. J. F. R."

I feel highly honored that my name should have been put on record, so to speak, in connection with the liberality of the Corner to the dear baby. The works of our constituency rise up to call them blessed and I am more than happy to receive this testimony to the comfort and joy brought by their efforts. More power and happiness to the baby and her mother!

Chickens Get the Waste.

"I am interested in what you say about the garbage pail and would like to give my own experience. When I first began housekeeping I made many mistakes, and the range was a good place to hide them from the gossiping neighbors. We could not afford many mistakes, so I learned economy. Later we came to the dignity of a furnace, with a greater capacity for garbage; a larger income, a larger family. There are just two of us now, a garden and chickens. What about the garbage pail? I have none. An old pan or kettle gets the potato pairings, bacon rinds, bones, carrots, scraps of any kind that need cooking; these are boiled tender and a mash made for the chickens. Another pan, a colander, catches all the scraps that do not need cooking and are sent to the same hungry tenants. According to the big chicken ranchers hereabouts we are making 50 per cent instead of the usual 20 to 22 per cent during the molting season, as well as the high per cent the rest of the year."

This communication is unsigned, but it is none the less suggestive and helpful. I have no doubt that the garbage pail or the stove is frequently employed as a means to conceal mistakes and accidents and the woman is fortunate who has a chicken farm which serves the same purpose and saves her money at the same time. The hint is worth bearing in mind by other dwellers on farm or ranch.

Wants Tatting Patterns.

"I would be pleased to receive simple patterns of tatting with directions for making. I had a little girl born with a spinal trouble—the spinal canal failed to close. This caused her death. Should any one know of another such case and whether a child born later was perfect it would ease my mind to hear of it.

"G. F. G."

Such an affliction for a child is sadly frequent, I regret to say, but I do not think I have ever heard of its occurring twice in the same family. I do not believe the correspondent need have any anxiety on the subject. I hope the tatting directions asked for may be forthcoming.

Asks for Reading Matter.

"My home for another year will be in one of the lonesome places of this state, a mile or more from the nearest neighbor. Winter is here with its dreary days, and they are doubly dreary to me, for I lived in town for a number of years until the last two or three years, when I have lived on a farm in a thickly settled vicinity. My greatest pleasure after my work is done is to read a book or look over a magazine. The few books I have I have read several times, and I haven't money to buy new ones. I would like very much to exchange 'The Manxman' and 'A Chevalier of Dixie' for 'The Iron Woman,' 'The Silver Hoard,' 'The Shepherd of the Hills,' 'Martin Eden,' or any other interesting book by a well known author.

"F. B."

Is there not some one who would like to make such an exchange of reading matter, or who has, perhaps, a stray book or so which she would like to send to F. B.? Life in the lonely country is rather forlorn for one who has never been accustomed to it, and it is easy to understand how much good reading matter would do towards beguiling the solitude. I hope to get applications for the address of this correspondent, inclosing a stamp for reply.

Infant for Adoption.

"Will you let me hear personally from the woman who wishes to adopt an infant and writes to the Corner about it?

"Mother"

We have so many of such applications that it is impossible to know to which one reference is made without having the signature appended to the letter asking for a child. The woman who signs herself "Mother" will have her name put on file in the hope that some one may write after seeing this letter and put me in touch with a woman who wishes a child for adoption.

Magazines for the Postage.

"I have some magazines I would be glad to send to any one who cares enough for them to pay the postage. I cannot send them just now, as I am busy copying the recipes from them into my cook book, and it takes some little time to do this. I will surely send them as soon as I can get the recipes done. I do not like to cut the recipes out and thus render the papers useless to others. B. D."

I am glad B. D. is thoughtful enough to copy the recipes instead of clip them. I know of few things more exasperating than to receive a magazine and find the most interesting part of a story cut out by some one who wished a direction printed on the other side.

Dialogues or Recitations.

"Has any one some dialogues or recitations to send me? I would be so glad to get them. I am a little boy 10 years old, and in return for the pieces I ask for I can send pine needles if any one will pay postage on them. G. M."

Can some one comply with this modest request, either as a gift or in exchange for the pine needles?

Remedy for Ants.

"Will you please send me your remedy for ants? I have tried several of those recommended, but the ants remain numerous in my house. I had lime thrown on the ground under the house, and the house is new and everything perfectly clean and sanitary. But never before did I know ants to get into dresser drawers where there were only absolutely clean clothes. All summer I would often find dozens of ants there. Of course the cold weather will destroy them now, but I would like the remedy of which G. M. M. speaks for next summer. Mrs. E. R. S."

I regret to say that I have not the address of Mrs. G. M. M., but I should think remedies enough have appeared on this page to sweep the country free of the pests. My own prophylactic is borax mixed with red pepper. This may be mixed with wet soap and smeared on the under side of shelves. Cloves scattered about the shelves will sometimes drive ants away, since they seem to dislike strong, spicy odors. Have you followed all of these persistently? Once the ants are in the house they cannot be scattered in a day, and a long siege is sometimes required before the premises are rid of them. Begin in time next spring.

Supplies of Magazines.

"I have a number of old magazines and can get a good many more from neighbors, who only burn them up. [Think of burning such good friends!] But I am afraid I can't pay postage on many. If they could only go by parcel post I would be glad, but I tried last year and they won't send them that way. Does any one want them enough to pay postage? If it wouldn't make this letter too long I would tell the Cornerites how to make a fireless cooker from a refrigerator of the kind where the icebox is on top, and not harm it for summer use. I live where it is hot in the summer but lovely in winter. Gas is so expensive I felt I must cut the cost, and so I invented my fireless, which really does everything except fry.

"Mrs. W. A. F."

Perhaps there is some one who would like the magazines well enough to pay postage on them. I will gladly give room on the page to the directions for making such a fireless cooker as described.

Answered Many Urgent Calls.

"Will you say through the Corner that the quilt scraps I had to dispose of have all been given away? I exhausted all I had and then had so many urgent calls for them I put on my hat and coat and went out among my friends and obtained enough to send a generous parcel to all from whom I had letters. I had altogether eighteen letters and postcards and sent a letter and package to each one. I am keeping their addresses and if I have more pieces at any time will send them. I wish to write to Mrs. J. I have a number of articles I could spare to help her in her mountain home and I know how she is situated, for I spent a time in the mountains, in a log cabin, which, by the way, is only picturesque in novels. I had just the most meager furnishings, lack of dishes and cooking utensils, and was absolutely starved for books, papers, and pictures. In the long days and weeks of rain even the blue haze were hidden in the distance and all seemed crowding down to crush the light and life from th home. God bless Mrs. J. and others like her who are willing to dare and do for their own. I didn't mean to write such a long letter, but I often think that some one to whom the same circumstances have been known is better able to understand the needs, the privations, and also the privileges of walking in the way of peace and contentment along the road of unselfishness and service. M. H. C."

I am glad to give space to this letter, for it shows clearly the spirit I would like to see repeated again and again in the Corner. The spirit is there, and this has been clearly proved many times, but once in a while it does no harm to put it into words. The addresses asked by M. H. C. have been sent to her and those are fortunate friends who will benefit by her ministrations and letters. For the personal part of her letter I thank her.

Suggestions for a Candy Pull.

"I would be glad to pay postage on the music F. M. O. offers through the Corner. I would also be pleased to receive some suggestions for a candy pull. S. M. O."

Unfortunately, the music had been given elsewhere before this letter arrived. Has some one else music to give to this Cornerite? I will supply her address. For a candy pull of the old fashioned type a large kitchen is desirable, unless the pulling can be done in a room adjoining that in which the candy is cooked. To make this, a quart of good molasses—not sirup—should be put over the fire with half a cup of vinegar and a cup of sugar and boiled until a little of it hardens when dropped into cold water. At this point a teaspoon of baking soda, dissolved in a little hot water, and a lump of butter the size of an egg must be stirred into the sirup and all poured into buttered platters to cool. As soon as it can be handled with buttered finger tips, a little at a time may be pulled. There should be several workers, that the candy may not harden too much before it is made. When pulled long enough—and the work requires deftness and speed to be well done—the candy becomes white and glistening. But if it hardens quickly it does not reach the desired color or consistency. If further particulars are demanded I shall be happy to furnish them. The candy pulls of my youth where jolly affairs where girls and boys or young men and young women pulled candy until it was in shining ropes, and if they were dexterous braided the strands together into fanciful effects. The supper at a candy pull was a simple affair, for the amount of tasting and sampling of the candy that the candy required made heavy refreshments unnecessary.

Does Woman Ever Propose?

On the Ice.

It happened that one night we were skating, I with two girl friends and he alone. We swept around the edge of the ice in a fine circle and bumped into the young man with much vigor. I was in the center of the trio and threw my arms out to save myself just as the young man did the same thing. We were at once clasped in a close embrace and in the effort to gain our equilibrium I gasped: "You support me and I'll support you." We were not at that time so very well acquainted, but he answered with a laugh: "I'll do that," and within six months thereafter we were married. A. K.

He's It Now.

A young girl friend of mine was helping one of the tag day charities, when a young man she knew well came along and stopped to be tagged. "If I tag you, you'll be it," she told him. It seemed that was just what he wanted to be. They're engaged now and he accuses her of proposing. F. M.

Sent Him Ring.

A man ten years older than his sweetheart had a false leg Never having the courage to propose, he decided to go back to England. Doris knew of the real love Mr. A. had for her. So on his leaving day she gave him a pack of love letters, just one to be read each morning.

Did you ever know a woman who proposed? "The Sunday Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. Your name will not be published. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

The last note was tied with a 10 cent diamond ring, with a request that if the ring seemed false to send back a true one. Ten days elapsed, the true ring, wedding ring, and Mr. A. arrived at the door, to go to the church at Riverside.

Mother's Beautiful Work.

A mother who loved to do fancy work embroidered a pillow top which had forget-me-nots on it, also the words "Let us be sweethearts forever." The pillow was placed on the sofa in the best room. Not long afterwards the daughter had a beau. Of course they were sitting on the sofa, and the girl, in her anxiety to keep up a conversation, held up the pillow so the young man might see the mother's beautiful work. Just as soon as he read the words he replied, "All right, it suits me." And in a short time they were sweethearts together in their own little home.

As a Christmas Gift.

A party of young people were spending Christmas eve together and exchanging gifts. As each in turn was to be remembered they were requested to turn their backs until the gifts were collected. One young woman remarked as she turned her back that everything in sight would be hers. When she turned facing, a young man was standing in front of her so close she could see nothing but him. He was holding out both hands, looking steadily at her. She was speechless with surprise. He finally said to her: "This is the big chance of my life, please take me," and she shrinkingly held out her hand.

Kisses for Husband.

A girl of my acquaintance had been keeping company with a young man for about six months. One evening when they returned from a party he tried to kiss her good-night. She objected, saying: "I'm sorry, but my kisses are for the man I marry," and laughingly aded: "If you want them bad enough for that, all right." To her surprise, yet much to her joy, he took her in his arms and said that he had been waiting for something to encourage him, and now they are happily married. A. C.

LIMBS BECAME ONE SORE ERUPTION

Broke Out in Small Pimples. Itching So Severe Could Not Sleep. Burned Badly. In 10 Days

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I had a sort of an itching on my limbs and at first they broke out in small pimples. The skin was inflamed and sore, and also red, and towards the last the pimples became one sore eruption. The itching was so severe that I could not sleep and I could not scratch my limbs because they burned so badly. The trouble lasted six weeks and I could not do my work as it should have been done.

"I saw a Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and I sent for a free sample and applied it according to directions, and it gave me relief so I bought more, and in ten days I was healed." (Signed) Mi Gager, Westphalia, Kansas, July 7, 191

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

JANUARY

Sunset

LIFE, always facing west, thinks it fronts the east. As it passes the meridian it continues so to think, but, consciously or unconsciously, it comes to the placidity of a west view, with the sunset as the day's climax.

In hut happiness a day is important as it ends well. Any miserable day may begin well. Youth sings at the beginning. Post-meridian life is cautious. It knows the unreality of a sunrise promise. Sunset is the test of things, the accounting. All ages are young at sunrise, but experience is content at sunset when youth is only tired.

Experience rejoices to approach a January sundown, which is a sheer thing flaming through a brown and white world. A day of good luck brings a period of content at a west window when the sun has gone down to leave lingering for a moment the colors of its setting unclouded.

Content asks only for a background of work even half well done and idleness at least half deserved. It asks a book which has been dropped to the knees as the daylight faded. It needs probably a suggestion of creature comforts, a pleasantly odorous whiff or two from a competent kitchen where fleshpots boil; a suggestion that presently lights are to be lighted and pleasant folk are to be talked at; and with a suggestion, thus, that there is a moment of sanctuary as Venus, arising out of the fading colors, occupies, with Jupiter, the evening sky before the stars can blaze into the night.

ASTRONOMY
by CLIFFORD RAYMOND

POSITION OF VENUS AND JUPITER AT 5 O'CLOCK THIS AFTERNOON

VENUS AND JUPITER.

A SPECTACLE now is presented in the early evening sky. Just after sundown, while the colors of the sunset still endure, Venus becomes visible in the west and, more nearly overhead, Jupiter shows.

In the late afternoon or early evening, about 5 o'clock, the two planets have the heavens to themselves. The stars have not yet made headway against the dim light remaining from the fading day. The sun just disappeared, and his planets seem to constitute the universe. The solar system then is unchallenged by the greater systems.

Thus at this time of the year the early evening brings to folk a sense of intimacy. The great suns are not insistent in projecting the idea of their distances, their light years, their power, and huge bulk and wonders. It is almost a domestic scene, revealing the mechanism of our own system.

It is nothing for the solar system to be dominant by day. Our star then extinguishes the light of greater stars and nothing in all the sun filled sky is visible. So completely is this illusion established that one never conceives that the sky of day is just as filled by a million suns as is the sky by night.

[illegible] intimat[illegible]

overhead, Arcturus is shining in the west, Antaries in the southwest, and Fomalhaut is arising in the east.

They do not exist because our intimate star, the sun, stands blazingly between them and our sight. Also until our star goes below the horizon its own planets, which have been crossing the heavens, cannot appear.

At the first touch of dusk these days Jupiter and Venus come forth. It is late enough for their brilliance. It is too early for that of the great suns which have been hidden by our little sun.

With the sun just disappeared from sight, a consciousness of the brown earth and a sight of the two planets, great and majestic, in the sky, the human gets a sense of the form and composition of the solar system.

Jupiter requires 11 years 10 months and 17 days for revolution about the sun; Venus revolves in 224.7 days. Jupiter is the greatest of planets; Venus is smaller than the earth, its diameter being nearly 7,700 miles. The mean distance of Venus from the sun is 67,200,000 miles. When nearest the earth it is within 25,000,000 miles. When on the other side of the sun it is 160,000,000 miles distant. Being nearer the sun, it receiv[illegible] most twice as much heat and [illegible] has [illegible]

A Pal of the Earth and Sky!

Two years ago The Chicago Sunday Tribune conceived the idea of a department to be called The Tribune Weekly Almanack. It was to be a modernized satire of the old style Almanack. It was to touch upon, lightly, important happenings on dates in contemporaneous, middle and ancient times and to be accompanied by a short editorial appertaining to the seasons, moods of mankind, quirks of life, etc.

Clifford Raymond's knowledge of men and matter and his quaint ability to express what he knows, suggested him to conduct the department. The Almanack was a success—and in a comparatively short time had many followers.

The department of Astronomy was next launched. Mr. Raymond likewise was chosen to conduct this feature.

In both he has shown an intimacy and sweep seldom equaled in the presentation of facts and fancies about that mysterious thing called nature. At first these departments were anonymous. Later, on account of their popularity and in spite of Mr. Raymond's vigorously and repeatedly expressed unwillingness, his name was signed.

CLIFFORD RAYMOND

A Tribute from a Fellow Writer

The Almanack and Astronomy departments have gone far toward making The Sunday Tribune the great weekly magazine it has become. Up to now The Tribune has been content to let the features speak for themselves. But a tribute to Mr. Raymond written by Carl Sandburg an editorial contributor to William Marion Reedy's Mirror, published in St. Louis, The Tribune takes great pleasure in reproducing. The Mirror is one of the leading literary magazines of the Middle West. The article appeared in its latest issue. It follows:

"A few Sundays ago The Chicago Tribune began printing the name of Clifford Raymond with its weekly almanac. To a certain group of people who follow this almanac faithfully, who have been reading it several years with the zeal of regular churchgoers, it brought a thrill of quiet surprise.

"The particular specialty which has all along engaged readers of The Sunday Tribune almanac is the thrill of quiet surprise. There is so much bunk about 'nature.' So many John Burroughses and Ernest Seton Thompsons pour out catalogue and category of specific and accurate fact to harass lovers of the outdoor world.

"Here for a contrast is a lover of nature, a year round chum of seasons, weather and the face of the earth, who, from week to week, writes a short love letter telling the beautiful, cheap, universal, little things that please his soul.

"Some way or other should be found to 'discover' him. That is our first thought. He ought to be published. His name ought to be on the advertising sheets of some book house proclaiming: 'Look you, ladies and gentlemen, here is another Fiona MacLeod, only greater than Fiona MacLeod, and this writer has been discovered by the high gods of literature and now he is captured in a book and you should buy the book and be in fashion and read him.'

"His identity was not disclosed until it was certain he had an audience, a church of readers, as one man I propose to call his group. A political reporter, an editorial writer whose distinctive field is politics, wets, drys, mugwumps and regulars, known crooks and suspects, reformers and gray wolves, there was sharp personal surprise at seeing his name fixed to the bottom of the Sunday almanac disquisition.

"Then the surprise faded. We saw it was the most natural thing in the world that this writer, subjected to the wear and tear of human soul that goes with political newspaper writing, should write with a subdued glory of 'Hut Happiness,' 'Brown Days,' moods of tree bark, and whimsies of frost and sun in universal back yards.

"If I were a candidate for a degree of doctor of literature in a modern university—which God forbid—I believe I would seek data on this postulate, That the only valid 'nature writing' is done by the man who goes to it as a side line, who is driven to it for soul refuge, who handles deep enjoyments rather than detailed categories of facts."

How I Have Kept Young.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on how to keep young. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Antoinette Donnelly, "The Sunday Tribune."

This department appears every other day in "The Daily Tribune."

Tip from Father.

I have kept the girlish slimness of legs and arms thus: I never sit down to dress my feet. I balance on one foot, bend and pick up a stocking, straighten up, and put it on; bend again, pick up a shoe, and put it on—all without putting that foot to the floor. Then the same with the other. My father told me this when I was a small girl. Then for my arms I walk at least thirty-two times the length of three rooms with my arms held just as high above my head as I can reach with finger tips together. Do these exercises daily and bathe—bathe lots—and the face will keep young and the eyes bright. I know.

Q. B. T.

It's the Mind.

Keeping young is wonderful in its simplicity. I am 40, and the corners of my mouth are always up. I weigh 127 pounds, and have weighed that for over twenty years. The same youthful lines and curves in my figure, the same glorious hair, with its soft texture and its live and pretty color as when I was a girl; the same splendid teeth, clean and white and whole, and not a line in my face. In fact, I am in no way changed except for the better.

It's the mind. I keep that young and clean, and I use that which I have to good advantage—common sense. I started young in life to earn my living, and it's been a struggle, but each struggle has taught its lesson, and I am all the better for it. My ambition was to keep young, so I thought it, lived it. I said there is nothing in years but days, so live each day apart, and I did. Every morning God gives me twenty-four brand new hours, to do with as I see fit. How shall I spend them? The first thing to do is to start right. Get out in the open and take a long, deep breath through your nose and think good. Do your daily task willingly, and do a little good for some one else every day. It doesn't cost a cent and it's a wonderful help to you. It does as much towards keeping you young as any one thing can do.

Don't eat red meats; in fact, eat sparingly. I learned that through having had to economize. People are so foolish who eat so many different kinds of foods at one meal. It's so unnecessary. It's a positive crime to pay $1.25 for a ten course dinner. No one should eat more than 30 cents worth at one meal, no matter what their income.

Don't form habits of any kind. Rise above petty things, and always keep your mind so filled with youth, love, good, that it hasn't room for another thing. No matter what you see or hear, don't speak of sickness. You can't keep the corners of your mouth up that way. Fresh air keeps clean mentally and physically. Massage the scalp and the body daily. It's wonderful the power we have in our ten fingers. Live moderately and go to mental house cleaning at least once a week.

I am learning the truth daily, and it has enabled me to see things as they are, not as they seem. And through the truth I have found everlasting youth.

Drinks More Water.

Four years ago I read an article that had a decided effect upon my appearance. In it the author stated that the principal reason so many women looked older than their husbands was the difference in the use of water. She said plainly that busy housekeepers neglected the care of their person and from simple negligence failed to drink the amount of water needed by their systems.

It set me thinking seriously, for, while it might not be true of a great many women, it fitted my case exactly. I got up from reading that article and drank almost a pint of water, and I drank more water in that one day than I had been in the habit of taking in three days. I began to take better care of my face and hands, and in a short time the improvement was noticeable. Encouraged by this, I took more interest in my hair, and made a long dreaded and long delayed trip to the dentist which took a few years off my age.

I believe that one article on using more water has made me eight years younger, for it was four years ago that I read it and I know I look four years younger now than I am.

Eats Apples All the Time.

I keep myself clean inside as well as outside by assisting nature in her work of eliminating the poison from the system. I cannot say too much in favor of the apple as nature's best medicine.

I live in the open air and sunshine, with my flowers, and eat apples in the orchard. I chewed from the first apples until we gathered them, and I am still chewing them from our cellar.

No life like the outdoor life for health and happiness and to keep young.

What Invasion of Mexico by U. S. Would Mean.

Restoration of order in Mexico, says Capt. Henry J. Reilly, would be simpler than was the case in the Philippines; loss of life would be greater than it would be if we had a force commensurate with our position as a first class power; warns against political interference with generals in the field and against maudlin babble about the injustice of such invasion.

By Capt. Henry J. Reilly.

It is now nearly five years since the first mobilization took place on the Mexican border and the possibilities of an invasion were discussed. The present crisis has again brought to the front the possibility of our having to clean up Mexico from the Rio Grande to the Guatemalan frontier.

The first question in a case of invasion is what kind of territory has to be operated over, as the number of troops needed and the method of using them will be largely determined by this factor. The greater part of Mexico consists of the great central plateau at an elevation of from 4,000 to 8,000 feet. The country from the edge of this plateau to the gulf of Mexico on the eastern side and the Pacific ocean on the western side consist of typical heavily wooded tropical terrain.

The isthmus of Tehuantepec and all of Yucatan is also heavily wooded and tropical. In the tropical parts of Mexico the climate and lack of roads would make campaigning of the character of that carried on during the Philippine insurrection. The great plateau consists of open rolling country with groups of mountains scattered through it. While in some places these mountains are wooded, the greater part of them have little or no foliage. Mesquite bush and cacti of every type are found everywhere.

There are few fences and many of these are made of loose rock which can be easily knocked down. One of the most serious obstructions from the point of view of the movement of troops are the many deep ditches often used to mark property lines.

Water Supply Low.

On the whole, the plateau country can be easily traversed by mobile troops in any direction. The chief difficulty on the plateau is the lack of water. Scattered over the country there are water holes called tanques. These generally consist of a small lake made by damming up some stream which only runs during the rainy season. Most of them would furnish ample water for from three to five thousand head of stock for a number of days.

Mexico was provided with an excellent system of railways running north and south and also connecting the principal points east and west. However, in the last years these railways have been so badly damaged as to be at the present time in need of considerable reconstruction. However, with the exception of those running from the coasts up on to the great plateau, the greater part of these lines present no great difficulties of construction.

Mexico has been invaded a number of times in the past. Cortez in 1819 landed first at Tabasco and then went to the present site of Vera Crus, from which place he marched up the mountains to the great plateau and then on to Mexico City, which he took.

In our war, begun in 1847, we invaded Mexico from three different directions. Col. Doniphan came down from near where El Paso is now to Chihuahua and later made connections with Gen. Taylor at Monterey. Today railway lines follow the general route of his advance.

Gen. Taylor, starting at Corpus Christi, now in Texas, moved by the route Matamoras, Camargo, Seralvo, Monterey, Saltillo to Agua-Nueva. Today railways follow these same general lines. Gen. Scott landed at and captured Vera Cruz, from which he marched by way of Cerro Gordo and Puebla to Mexico City, which he captured. This is also the route of a railway today. The railway now continues from Chihuahua, where Col. Doniphan stopped, through Aguas Calientes to Mexico City. Another railway continues from Agua-Nueva, where Gen. Taylor stopped, through San Luis Potosi to Mexico City.

Railways Great Aid.

During the war the navy took part in the siege of Vera Cruz, blockaded both coasts of Mexico and captured Tampico and other coast towns. Today there is a railway from Tampico to Monterey, and one from Tampico to San Luis Potosi, and thence to Aguas Calientes. There is also a railway from Tepic through Guadalajara to Mexico City, and one from Mexico City to Oaxaca, in the extreme southern end of the great plateau.

Principal Railroad Lines in Mexico.
Col. Doniphan's Route from El Paso Through Chihuahua to Monterey.
Gen. Taylor's Route from Corpus Christi, Through Matamoras, Camargo, Seraloo, Monterey and Saltillo to Agua Nueva.
Gen. Scott's Route from Vera Cruz, Through Cerro Gordo and Pueblo to Mexico City.

Another important railway is the one running across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec from Puerto, Mexico, on the gulf side, to Salina Cruz on the Pacific side. Thus, at the present time the railway lines not only follow the lines of our invasions during the last Mexican war and connect the interior of the country with the ports controlled by our navy during the same war, but also afford ready means of reaching all the principal parts of the country.

In November, 1861, France, England, and Spain signed a convention in London, as the result of which a joint expedition made up of forces of the three countries occupied Vera Cruz. Later the British and Spanish dropped out, but the French, who had already been permitted to occupy Cordova and Orizaba on one of the roads from Vera Cruz to the great plateau, continued the invasion by force, and after capturing Puebla occupied Mexico City.

The last movement approaching an invasion was our capture and occupancy of Vera Cruz in 1914.

Comparison of Armies.

The next question which presents itself is what resistance would be met with in case of an invasion. The Mexican regular army is made up of men voluntarily enlisted for periods of three, four, and five years and of conscripts taken entirely from the poorest class of society.

The peace strength of the army is supposed to be thirty battalions of infantry, eighteen regiments of cavalry, one regiment of horse artillery, two regiments of field artillery, one regiment of mountain artillery, two battalions of garrison artillery, and one battalion of engineers. In time of war each four company infantry battalion is expanded into a regiment of two battalions, the artillery regiments are expanded from four to six batteries, and the cavalry regiments from four to six squadrons of 150 men each. In addition to the regulars there are about 2,000 rurales.

While on paper these are merely a gendarmerie, they are in reality a very efficient cavalry. The war strength of the army is supposed to be 84,000 men. The probabilities are that at the present time it is not over 50,000. The infantry is supposed to be armed with the Mauser rifle and the cavalry with the Mauser carbine, but many Remingtons and other rifles are used.

The artillery has a quick firing gun of the Canet-Schneider type. This gun if properly handled is as good a field piece as our own. In addition to the so-called federal troops there is a considerable number of armed men who have been following the various leaders.

Difficult to Estimate Numbers.

It is quite difficult to make a reasonably correct estimate as to the actual numbers of federal and rebel or other irregular troops in Mexico at the present time. All sides lose constantly by desertion and by having small parties dispersed or captured by an enemy. When any movement is made against an enemy the numbers to be employed are always exaggerated. After an action the defeated party always minimizes the number of men they have had engaged.

The rank of the commanding officers gives no hint, as every officer has a much higher rank than the number of men under him entitles him to. Troops are constantly being moved from one place to another, so that any attempt to list them by keeping track of the different garrisons is almost impossible.

In most of the larger towns there is a corps called the defensa social. These corps seldom exceed 80 to 100 men and need not be counted in considering numbers available for field service, as they are intended only for the actual defense of the town in which they live.

In many of the cities the police have been armed with rifles and would be used in the defense of these cities. Every time a local chieftain has a success, especially if there is plenty of loot connected with it, the number of men with his force increases. After a reverse, or when the amount of loot forthcoming is small, his force decreases.

Armies Hard to Control.

While any particular district in Mexico may at any one time contain several thousand irregular soldiers, any attempt to get them together to carry out some definite military object seldom results in more than half of them being obtained.

This probably would be equally true in case of an invasion, as while everywhere in Mexico many of the individuals under arms are actuated to a certain extent by patriotism, most of them are more interested in obtaining loot and revenge for personal injuries suffered in the past.

The probabilities are that the total number of the irregular bands and of the armed police and the Defensa Social does not exceed 70,000 to 75,000 armed men. This added to the 50,000 of the regular army makes a total of 100,000 to 125,000 armed men with some military experience.

In action many individual soldiers of both the Mexican regular army and the various rebel bands do brave things. In none of these forces, however, is there any real discipline nor any real determination. Also the officers are lacking in military knowledge and in that desire and determination to find an enemy really to attack him and to shove the attack through regardless of everything, all essential if any success is to be had on the battlefield.

The result is that in most actions when a firing line has reached a point where the fire is really commencing to amount to something it stops. It generally remains at this point firing at the other side until one or the other has enough of it and retires.

Wherever one force does shove forward with a little determination the other almost always immediately retires unless under cover in the houses of a village or town. They are fond of actually fighting within the towns, as the adobe walls of the buildings give excellent protection from rifle bullets and shrapnel fragments.

Mexicans Ignorant of Arms.

Their artillery, as a rule, is so ignorant of the proper method of handling its guns that most of the shrapnel fired fails to do any material damage to the enemy. Taking some of the principal engagements of our last war with Mexico for purposes of comparison, we find that at Palo Alto 2,288 Americans beat 6,000 Mexicans; at Monterey 6,650 Americans beat 10,000 Mexicans; at Buena Vista 4,757 Americans beat 14,000 Mexicans; at Cerro Gordo 8,500 Americans beat 12,000 Mexicans; at Molino del Ray 3,100 Americans beat 14,000 Mexicans.

In many of these cases the Mexicans were on the defensive. The majority of the lower class of Mexicans who have good positions and most of what little middle class there is are not taking any part in the disturbances which obtain throughout the greater part of Mexico.

These people only want to be left alone and would welcome the restoration of order by anybody. Due to the false reports of American ferocity which have been spread probably many of them would run away on the approach of American troops. However, they would soon come back again in the same way as did the Filipinos under similar circumstances.

The upper class, which is small, is intensely hostile to us, but is not large enough to do any considerable damage. Also the history of the previous American invasion and of the French intervention show that this class rapidly makes friends with the invader.

Warns of Snipers.

There would be considerable trouble in many of the towns due to civilians, who would not come out and fight openly with the regular or rebel forces, but who would shoot at our men from behind windows and off of housetops, particularly at night. To do this and then hide the rifle and appear in the streets as a civilian friendly would undoubtedly be the course followed by many.

This method of warfare has never and can never accomplish anything of military value. It can only be characterized as cowardly murder, as it takes life without any compensating advantages. Unless sternly suppressed from the beginning, it would undoubtedly cause us more casualties than the regular fighing, as the fire of Mexican troops in battle is not particularly dangerous when the amount of ammunition consumed is considered.

If we were prepared for war with a first class power, the complete and rapid cleaning up of all Mexico would be a matter of but a short time and accompanied by very few casualties. This, for the reason that the forces which we could put in the field by comparison with anything the Mexicans could bring against them, would be so overwhelming as soon to bring all resistance to an end.

Under such circumstances, we could at one and the same time invade Mexico along all the lines of railway crossing our border and all running from her principal seaports inland. As we advanced we could rebuild the railways and occupy all the principal points with sufficient troops to quickly make an end to all armed resistance and all brigandage. However, we have nothing like this force.

Condition of U. S. Army.

We have available of the regular army of the United States about 35,000 infantry, cavalry, and field artillery, and about 10,000 coast artillery, some of which probably would be used as infantry. We also have twelve divisions of national guard troops which cannot be taken out of the continental limits of the United States unless they wish to go. Assuming that 75,000 of them would agree to cross the border, we would have an available force of 120,000 troops.

The navy probably could furnish sufficient landing parties to seize most of the principal ports and probably to seize and hold the Tehuantepec railway. These forces probably would be sufficient to fight all the main actions and to defeat and to disperse such larger bodies of troops as the Mexicans could bring against us. They would not be sufficient, however, so thoroughly to occupy the country as to make a complete end to all disorder. This would necessitate additional troops, which probably would have to be found by raising 50,000 to 100,000 volunteers.

However, the question, on the whole, would be much simpler than was the restoration of order in the Philippines. The Philippines consist of a number of islands thousands of miles from the United States, while Mexico consists of a single piece of territory only separated from our country by a relatively small river in some places and by an imaginary line in others.

There was only one small railway in the Philippines. The Mexican railway system, which is quite complete, is joined to our own. All parts of the Philippines are tropical and made up of country difficult to move across. The greater part of Mexico is a high plateau with a temperate climate, and is made up of country easily crossed.

Officers Now Speak Spanish.

When we went to the Philippines few of our officers or noncommissioned officers spoke any Spanish, nor had they had any experience in guerrilla fighting. Many of them now speak Spanish, and most of them have had considerable experience in this type of warfare.

Having a relatively small force, more life would have to be lost than would be the case if we had a force commensurate with our position as a first class power, and such as will be necessary if we ever have to fight a first class force. Also the attitude of the people and the government at home would tremendously affect the number of casualties, just as was the case during the Philippine campaign.

If a large party at home should continually talk about the injustice of invading Mexico they would encourage the Mexicans to greater resistance, just as the Filipinos were encouraged again and again to continue in the field, where otherwise they would have surrendered. The overcoming of this greater resistance would cost more American lives, just as it did in the Philippines.

If a civil governor should be appointed and an attempt made to establish civil government, largely in the hands of the natives, before complete order has been brought about, every native bandit, every native politician, would take advantage of the situation to maintain in the field an armed force which would always be most active when he did not get what he wished from the civil governor.

This would mean that the troops would again and again have to clean up provinces just as they had to in the Philippines. Each time would cost more American lives, just as it did in the Philippines.

Sentimentalists Dangerous.

If, when our troops took stern measures to suppress the useless killing brought about by civilians firing from housetops and out of their windows, the sentimentalists in this country should howl as they did in the case of the Philippines, the people who indulge in those practices would be encouraged to continue them, and our government, if weak, would issue orders which would prevent the troops promptly ending them.

This would mean more American lives unnecessarily expended. In our former war with Mexico, when Gen. Taylor was victoriously advancing, he was hindered and stopped by the administration because it feared him as a presidential possibility. When Scott became prominent he was practically tried by his inferiors for the same reasons.

A general who is hampered in his operations in the field for political reasons cannot avoid loss of life which otherwise might have been spared if he is to accomplish the mission assigned him. The country properly prepared for war could settle the Mexican question easily and with little loss of life.

Even with such few troops as we have we could settle the question without any great difficulty and without any great loss of life, if the administration and the people at home would put the problem entirely in the hands of the military authorities, leave it there until peace and order had been established everywhere in Mexico, and until that time came loyally and fully support the men and officers who would be risking their lives to bring about justice, law, and order in a country which has never known them.

Assembly Ball Week's Chief Social Function.

By Mme. X.

THE second assembly ball on Friday evening was the week's chief society function. The assemblies are always the smartest, most significant social manifestation of the season. Three hundred invitations are sent out, which, counting two-thirds of those invited as married, means that about 500 people are invited.

There is no fixed number or limit to the assembly list. The selection of those to be asked who are not already on that list is left to a secret committee of three, appointed by the chairman of the board of governors. This board consists of Watson Blair, William McCormick Blair, Richard T. Crane, Stanley Field, Howard Gillette, Morris Johnston, Charles G. King, Eames MacVeagh, Harold McCormick, Arthur Meeker, William Odell, Honore Palmer, George Porter, Clive Runnells, John Stevenson, and Bertram Winston. Arthur Meeker is chairman of the board, Charles G. King is treasurer, and John Stevenson is secretrary.

The organization is simple and effective. The dues, which used to be $20, were reduced a year or so ago during a period of financial stress to $15 a year.

The governors always ask eight or ten representative women to receive the guests. Armed with beautiful bouquets, the gift of the board of governors, these women stand in a row just inside the entrance to the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel, and each guest is supposed to pay his or her respects to this receiving group before doing anything else.

As every woman always wears her best bib and tucker to the assemblies—and the phrase includes tiaras and jeweled dog collars—the general effect is gay, chic, and distinguished. Debutantes are supposed to be ineligible to these dances, though a few exceptions have been made to this rule.

The supper used to be made a great function and was served at half past 12 in the main dining room of the hotel. But as many people went to the assemblies from long, many course dinners and found these suppers too heavy and too near the preceding meal, the custom has been changed. Now little tables are set in the large corridor off the balcony of the ballroom, where from 12 o'clock on supper is served more or less a la carte, that is, the guests have a choice of dishes presented to them and so can sit a long or a short time, as they choose, over the supper. Every one votes it a great improvement on the old way of doing things.

The hours are from 10 o'clock on to 2 or 3, though usually there are not many people there before 11 o'clock and by 2 all but the most incorrigible dancers have gone home.

Those who go out through the main hotel lobby on their homeward way usually meet a cohort of scrub women armed with pails and scrubbing brushes, who come on duty at 1:30 o'clock to wash away the stains of the day's trampling crowds. It is a curious contrast; the sturdy looking, neatly dressed workwomen and the bejeweled and befurbelowed society women, muffled in furs and satins and frequently looking weary and wan.

Workers for War Relief.

Chicago is on the same latitude as Rome and Constantinople.. It lies 600 miles nearer the equator than either London or Berlin. It is 600 feet above the sea level. Its winters are colder and its summers are—sometimes—hotter than the same seasons in any of the above mentioned cities. It is peculiarly liable to sudden changes of temperature.

Have any of these conditions, or all of them, something to do with the exhilarating quality of the place? It is a quality that is manifested by a capacity for enthusiasm, which is Chicago's most striking characteristic. No matter how much they have on hand to do the typical Chicagoans are generally ready to undertake any new project if it be properly presented.

So the same women who have already successfully carried through enterprises and entertainments to raise money for home or foreign charities, and who might feel like resting on their laurels, are again undertaking similar affairs. Mrs. Bryan Lathrop, Mrs. C. M. Ely, Mrs. Watson Blair, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, Mrs. Russell Tyson and a host of others are planning further enterprises, operatic concerts for the Italian Red Cross, terpsichorean entertainments for the French war sufferers, rummage sales for the Children's Memorial hospital.

All of these women and many more are working enthusiastically for the shop at 60 East Washington street to raise contributions for the American committee of the French wounded emergency fund.

Little Hazy on the Words.

But all Chicago enthusiasm is not directed philanthropically. The fancy dinner dance at the Saddle and Cycle club a week ago was a gay affair. The club was decorated in nautical fashion to suggest the Ford peace ship. At one end a dove of peace floated above an American flag whose stars and stripes were outlined in electric lights.

When these flashed up the orchestra played "America," the company stood, and, after singing lustily the first three or four lines of the national hymn, hummed or wordlessly chanted the rest. In these days of rapidly renascent patriotism it behooves us all to learn the words of some of our national airs.

The Casino entertainment committee, under the energetic leadership of Allen Haines, is planning a burlesque fashion show for the evening of Jan. 24. Costumes are being designed and constructed by the following members: The Mesdames Samuel T. Chase, Roy McWilliams, John Carpenter, Allen Haines, Rosecrans Baldwin, and William Prescott Hunt, and the Misses Caroline and Katherine Dudley, Elizabeth Fuller, Margaret Billings, Marie J. Rosset, and Mildred Blair.

The identity of the wearers of these specially designed costumes, the mannequins, is veiled in mystery. If some of the stalwart youths, the favorite dance partners and skaters, are recognized in the parade it will be due to the perspicacity of the spectator. The disguise will be as complete as can be.

A stage is to be erected at one end of the room with curtains through which the models will advance to the sound of slow music. Roy McWilliams will be master of ceremonies, who will display the models with explanatory remarks, while the role of "la vraie artiste" who has designed and created these "vers libres de costumes" will be played by one R. H. L.

The announcements of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Cramer to James McClure and of her brother, Ambrose Cramer Jr., to Miss Grace Meeker recall to Chicagoans, whose memories go back a couple of decades their mother, the first Mrs. Ambrose Cramer, whose death removed from Chicago society one of its most witty and delightful women.

She was the youngest daughter of one of Chicago's most distinguished jurists, the late Judge Mark Skinner. As her family traditions were puritanical, and, among other restrictions, forbade dancing, Miss Susie Skinner, as she was called before her marriage, exerted herself to excel in conversation, and, having a natural talent in that direction, she soon achieved a well deserved reputation as a brilliant conversationalist.

Even now her witticisms are remembered and repeated. One of them was a quick comment from her when a certain church member was criticized for going from church to a nearby bar.

"Quite natural," said she, quickly, "thirst after righteousness."

Musicians to Give Program.

The first of a series of afternoon musicals gotten up under the auspices of the Musicians' Concert Management of New York will take place on this coming Tuesday. Mme. Povla Frisch, the Norwegian dramatic soprano, and the French pianist, Jean Verd, will present the program.

The Musicians' Concert Management is an organization founded for the sole purpose of giving artists of distinction who are not widely known in America a chance to be heard. The problem of getting a hearing for young or unknown artists is a serious and expensive one, as the average impresario or manager charges so much for his services that it frequently costs more than the proceeds of two or three concerts. This enterprise is well financed, for it will take three or four years for the project to prove its worth—and will only deduct a small amount from the proceeds of the concerts to pay current expenses.

Among the patronesses are Mesdames Ogden Armour, Emmons Blaine, Watson Blair, John Borden, John Carpenter, Stanley Field, C. M. Ely, Cyrus H. McCormick, Potter Palmer, Robert McGann, and Arthur Meeker.

Mrs. Medill McCormick receives the subscriptions to the course of three musicals.

Poets to Feast.

Poetry, that unique and distinguished periodical, is to celebrate the beginning of its fourth year by a supper party at the Cliff Dwellers next Sunday evening. On this occasion guarantors, contributors, and editors can meet together and discuss art, the magazine, and kindred topics. Poets of Illinois and other states will read new poems. It will be a real feast of reason and flow of soul.

Under the inspiration and guidance of Miss Harriet Monroe, Poetry has grown to be a renowned vehicle of poetic expression. Tagore, the Hindu poet, was first discovered to the western world through the pages of this magazine. Miss Monroe was among the first to recognize Nicholas Vachell Lindsay, the most remarkable literary genius Illinois has ever produced. She had the courage to include Ezra Pound's writings in Poetry at a time when the world was unaware of cubists, futurists, and impressionists in art and literature.

In short, Poetry is one of the institutions which add to the glory of Chicago, along with the symphony orchestra, the Art institute, and the university. That Chicago can produce two such purely literary magazines as Poetry and the Dial shows that we are not entirely sold to sense. Long may Poetry flourish, and here's wishing it many happy returns of its anniversary.

C. A. Pringle, who was one of the seventeen American engineers killed recently in Mexico, was a first cousin to Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson of Chicago. He belonged to the well known Pringle family of Charleston, S. C. He was a son of Edward Pringle, whose sister married Donald G. Mitchell, who wrote under the name of Ik Marvel. Edward Pringle's family moved to San Francisco, where Charles Alston Pringle has several brothers and sisters now living. He was unmarried and had made quite a fortune as a mining engineer.

Mrs. Thomas G. English is social chairman of the Catholic Woman's league annual charity ball, which will be held at the Congress hotel on Jan. 28. Mrs. Thomas Bulger, Miss Salina Higgins, and Miss Grace Mulroy are among the young women interested in the ball.

By Inez Travers.

THE outstanding event in the club world in the next week or so seems to be the Catholic Woman's league charity ball, which will be held in the gold room of the Congress hotel on Jan. 28. The ball is to be enlivened by special features which the members of the league are keeping as a surprise, and promises to be a gala occasion. The ball, of course, is for the benefit of the league's many charities, and it is hoped there will be a larger attendance than at any of the former annual balls, because the league has taken on several new obligations this year.

It now conducts four day nurseries and settlement houses, a protectorate for friendless girls, and a working girls' clubhouse, called St. Elizabeth's Business Woman's club. The latter was recently opened at 1198 North Dearborn street by the women conducting St. Elizabeth's day nursery. Its object is to give working girls who have no homes the comforts of a home at the least possible expense, to provide entertainment for them, and afford them proper protection at the same time.

The league day nurseries are located at St. Mary's settlement and day nursery, [illegible] West Forty-fourth street; St. Anne's day nursery, 719 South Loomis street; St. Elizabeth's day nursery, 906 North Franklin street; St. Juliana's day nursery and social center, 858 Cambridge avenue. At any one of these nurseries mothers obliged to work may leave their children all day, with the knowledge that they will have the best of care and food. A nominal charge of 10 cents a day is exacted from the mothers who can afford to pay the charge, in order not to pauperize them.

A dispensary to guard the children against sickness, kindergarten and sewing classes, circulating libraries, social clubs for the mothers and older children, entertainments in winter and outings in the summer are all factors in making these settlement houses of unlimited influence for good. Last year 4,375 children were cared for in the nurseries.

The league protectorate, located at 7 West Madison street, is well known. Last year it cared for 9,506 cases. It is affiliated with the societies abroad doing the same sort of work and the Travelers' Aid in America. The demands made upon the protectorate cover every phase of the unfortunate side of life. Homeless and friendless girls of Chicago or strangers from other cities are provided with shelter, have situations procured for them, their low wages are often supplemented, clothing and lunches given them, railroad fare home supplied—in a word, a helping hand extended to all who need guidance.

Much of the actual work of the organization is done by the members themselves. Every woman in the league is a voluntary social worker.

While the league is Catholic in spirit and principles, its charities are extended regardless of sect or creed, and many of its membership are not Catholics.

The officers are: President, Mrs. Samuel K. Wilson; vice president, Mrs. James [illegible]; second vice president, Miss Harriet E. Gillis; third vice president, Mrs. Christopher Murphy; recording secretary, Miss Delia Bermingham; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Charles Newton; financial secretary, Mrs. John W. Trainor; treasurer, Mrs. Cornelius McAuliff.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS.

Tomorrow the Tuesday Art and Travel club will hold its annual mid-winter luncheon, at 12:30 p. m., in the Hotel Sherman. Mrs. Harry F. Tate is chairman of the committee. The president, Mrs. Edward J. BISHOP THEODORE S. HENDERSON

Bishop Theodore S. Henderson of the Chattanooga, Tenn., area of the Methodist Episcopal church, will be the principal speaker on Tuesday at Chicago day in the Methodist forward movement. The forward movement is nation-wide and each important center is given a day in which its interests are presented. The aim is to secure 250,000 additions to the church and 1,000 who will devote themselves to Christian service as a life occupation. The day meeting, lasting from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., will be in Grace church, Locust and North La Salle streets, and the evening meeting will be in Orchestra hall, Michigan avenue, between Jackson boulevard and Adams street. Bishop W. F. McDowell of the Chicago area and several other leaders of the church will speak.

United Charities' Work Shown in Chicago Churches

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

CHICAGO churches are actively coöperating with the United Charities in awakening interest in the help of the poor. The coöperation consists in the display for a week in a single church of charts and designs exhibiting the work of the United Charities. G. Hartman Bright is in charge of the exhibit, which was designed by Bernard C. Roloff. One of the exhibits is the food supply a dollar will buy when purchased after instruction by a visiting housekeeper, and what it will buy in the hands of an uninstructed person.

The articles of food are displayed, not merely described. Boys' overcoats made out of old jackets, children's stockings made out of large but torn stockings, dresses made over by the instructed and the uninstructed, are all shown. An automatic flashlight displays questions which are commonly asked about the United Charities' work, and after a moment's darkness the answer is flashed back.

The first exhibit was held Jan. 3-8, in the Fourth Presbyterian church; from Jan. 8 to 13 in St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church. The exhibit is now at the Lake View Presbyterian church. Other churches and dates are: Rogers Park Methodist Episcopal, Jan. 17-24; Ravenswood Congregational, Jan. 24-31; Logan Square Evangelical, Jan. 31-Feb. 7; Palmer Park English Evangelical, Feb. 7-14; Irving Park Baptist, Feb. 4-21; Austin Methodist Episcopal, Feb. 21-28. Other churches will show the exhibit during March and April.

The establishment of Bible chairs in denominational colleges and religious work in connection with state universities will be among the subjects considered in the meetings of the council of the church boards of education and the association of American colleges, which will meet this week at the Hotel Sherman. The Presbyterians estimate it will require a fund of $1,000,000 to place a Bible professor in all of the Presbyterian denominational colleges. A campaign to promote the interests of the Christian colleges of several coöperating denominations, which was planned at the annual meeting last year, will be further considered at this meeting and it is expected it will be ready for launching some time during the year. Among the speakers at the association of colleges will be Commissioner P. P. Claxton and Dr. S. C. Capen of Washington, D. C., and Dr. Pritchett of the Carnegie foundation, New York. Presidents of more than 200 colleges and other educational leaders will be present.

Charles Stelze of New York will speak this evening at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall on "The Call of the New Day." Mr. Stelzle was for eight years a machinist in New York. He later became a Presbyterian minister. He was the organizer and for ten yeare superintendent of the department of church and labor in the Presbyterian Home Missionary society and superintendent of the Labor temple in New York. He has attended every convention of the American Federation of Labor for years. Last winter he was director of Mayor Mitchel's committee on unemployment. John B. Lord, president of the Ayer & Lord Tie company and a trustee of the Sunday Evening club, will be the Scripture reader. An organ recital will be given by Edgar A. Nelson. Among the anthems by the choir of 100 will be a number by the women's chorus.

The New England Congregational church, North Dearborn street and Delaware place, of which the Rev. John Gardner is pastor, has received a bequest of $6,000 from the estate of Anna Marion Bradley. Five thousand dollars is to be devoted to the beginning of the creation of an endowment for the church and $1,000 will be devoted to the poor.

The Rev. Allison Ray Heaps, pastor of the New England Congregational church of Aurora, Ill., has received an automobile and the Rev. D. T. Denman, pastor of the First Baptist church, Oak Park, received a graphophone from their respective congregations.

A mission for Catholics will open today at St. Mary's church, South Wabash avenue and Ninth street, at the 7 o'clock mass. This week the services will be for women and next week for men. The Rev. David W. Kennedy, C. S. P., and the Rev. Peter J. Moran, C. S. P., of New York, will conduct the mission. A mission to non-Catholics will follow the mission to Catholics.

The Rev. J. E. Crowther of the board of foreign missions, New York, will speak at the Methodist ministers' meeting at the First church, Clark and Washington streets, at 10:30 o'clock. Dr. Crowther has just returned from a visit to Africa. He will speak today at 10:30 in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston, on invitation of the pastor, Dr. T. P. Frost.

Prof. Errett Gates of the University of Chicago will speak at the Disciples' ministers' meeting at the Cty club at 10:30 on "Distinctive Elements in Modern Christianity."

Prof. R. R. Lloyd will speak at the Congregationalist ministers' meeting in the Masonic temple at 10:30. His subject will be "Paul's Conversion and its Relation to His Teachings and Work."

The Presbyterian ministers will have a special meeting tomorrow, to which the laymen of the churches are invited. They will meet from 10:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. in the Central Park church, Warren and North Sacramento avenues. One of the speakers will be Charles Stelzle of New York.

The speaker at the Baptist ministers' meeting, in the Masonic temple at 10:30 o'clock, will be the Rev. Edward Ellis Carr, editor of the Christian Socialist, who will speak on "The Economic Basis of Spirituality."

The Washington boulevard Methodist Episcopal church, Washington boulevard and Austin avenue, Oak Park, will celebrate its fifth anniversary next Sunday. The Rev. A. S. Moore is pastor of the church. The preachers for anniversary day will be the Rev. L. F. W. Lesemann and the Rev. John Thompson. The church has just completed improvements which include a new Sunday school room, a new heating plant, and the enlargement of the auditorium.

The Bryn Mawr Community church has purchased a site for a chapel and hall at Jeffery avenue and Seventieth street, and expects to build next fall. The pastor is the Rev. A. M. Gardner, who was the director of the missionary exposition held in the Coliseum in 1912, called "The World in Chicago."

Home Mission day will be observed today in the Congregational churches and Education day will be observed in the churches of the Disciples of Christ. The secretaries and members of the home mission board will occupy about forty of the Congregational churches, as the board will be in session in Chicago beginning tomorrow. Other churches are taking advantage of the meetings this week of the church borads of education in securing speakers. The Rev. Thomas Nicholson of New York will speak this morning at the Fowler Methodist Episcopal church, Millard-avenue and West Twenty-third street.

The Notebook of an Ex-Society Editor

BY EDITH BROWN KIRKWOOD

Is Society an Institution or a Merry Game?

ALL this discussion over the gathering of box guest lists and the importance of such news is interesting, particularly to those of us who have had experience in society reporting. It was one of the things tucked away in this note book, which was to be brought out some day.

It has been something of a question in my mind whether society is just a merry game and should be treated as such or whether it is an institution with influences to be considered and responsibilities be met. If it is just a merry game it is not worth the attention paid to it by people in general or the importance the prints attach to it. It is of no more value than a child's game of tag. If it is an institution with something of an ideal and an idea beyond the mere pleasure of the moment, then it is worth public notice and public respect and should respond to the public's notice and respect in kind. Whether or not it is a game or an institution depends much upon the people who compose it.

Personally, just as a reader of a newspaper, I cannot imagine any one's having enough time to wade through a list of box guests, or, as an individual, of caring who sits with whom. But "who sits with whom" is the fabric of which society is made. And society knows it. That is why we have boxes. Otherwise every one would sit in the seats where they can see and hear much better and are less subject to drafts.

When Names Have Value.

If society is as important as the public is led to believe; if it has influence sufficient to make or mar an opera season; if it has the power to send a great art into oblivion by its lack of attention or raise it to immortality by its patronage; if the names of a half dozen women willing to sponsor a great movement can carry it to success, then there is a relative value in names and the manner in which they are grouped is news beyond the mere evening's party.

The greatest danger in the public's attaching such importance to any group is to the group itself. Importance is a cloak few can wear gracefully and graciously. A garment of rich folds, soft enough to wrap all those who need protection, it is apt to become a kind of inflated slicker—protection enough to the one who wears it, but cold and hard and slippery on the outside.

Perhaps it may be a bit annoying to have to stop to tell a young woman the names of box guests. It takes but a moment, and I do not understand the annoyance if it is not discussed openly in the box with the guests, but that, as has been seen, is the public attitude of many. The reporter would be less concerned if she felt it was their private attitude also. I think I referred on another ocasion to the many Mmes. Jekyll and Hyde where news was concerned.

Good Business and Good News.

The first year of opera in Chicago the newspapers responded to an apeal to use as much society as possible, because "it would help the season." This appeal came from society and managers alike. It was good business and good news, for music and society are the grand opera partnership. Both must be labeled "good" to make the season pay. Music was willing to do its part. Was society? Publicity to music meant the establishing of a career for which it had worked. Publicity to society meant the establishing of a regular opera season for which it had yearned.

When two years ago THE TRIBUNE used a "running story" instead of nightly box lists, although others of the papers carried the lists, constant queries came to my desk as society editor at that time asking the reason why.

"Don't you know that you are losing prestige," said one north side woman of important companies, "by not printing the lists? And sales, too," she went on. "So many of my friends are buying the other papers just for that news, for they like to mark their parties and send them away to friends."

Yes, honestly. Every word is true. You wouldn't expect it outside of Posey county, would you? The difference is that in Posey county they would admit the need of and the desire for the publicity.

She Didn't Mean It.

About the same time I had an interesting experience with a well known woman who begged me not "to mention my name. It really annoys me so to see my name in print that it nauseates me."

Did she mean it? No. Some of them do, but most of them do not. I took her at her word, omitted her name always, and finally after a year one of her intimate friends called me up to ask for her reinstatement.

"But," I explained, "she said it annoyed and nauseated her to see her name in print."

"Well, she didn't mean it and you know she didn't. She came to me with tears in her eyes and said: 'You wouldn't know I'd been to the opera this year.'"

Now if the publicity is of that importance the news incident to it is worth giving with graciousness and frankness.

One of my helpers once came to me at a big entertainment and said: "I can't get the names of that box group over there. The hostess has refused."

The hostess I recognized as the wife of one of the city's best known men. I turned to another assistant and said: "Go to that box, call the hostess by name and ask for her guests. You will get the party. They like to be recognized. It flatters any one to be known in the crowd."

She went. Did she get the group? Of course. The hostess was much pleased and smilingly queried: "So you knew me? How nice."

Just a little trick of the trade. I told you I would take you behind the society scenes.

Needs and Wants Publicity.

Society needs publicity—just as any class or institution wishing to be known today needs the public's attention. Moreover, it wants it, but few within society have the right attitude toward the publishing of society news or the use to which the public prints may be put. As they consider society news personal advertising, so they regard the prints as advertising mediums only. Such a thing as its being a business, subject to business rules, is not dreamed of.

Mrs. Harold McCormick when here was one of the few women with a well enough defined business sense to treat society news getting as a profession, not a personal affront or an appeal to the individual vanity. News she did not wish to give to the public was withheld graciously. News that was ready for the public was given without foolish bickering or subterfuge. There was neither loss of time nor patience in dealing with her and the daily prayer of the reporter is that more of such as she may come along.

Mrs. W. J. Chalmers is another woman of varied interests who meets the reporter frankly—as one business man meets another with whom he has matters to discuss. But they are rare.

Advance Showing of New Bon Ton Corsets for Spring of 1916

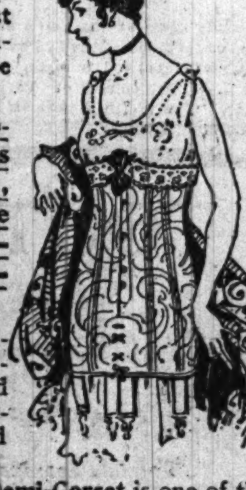
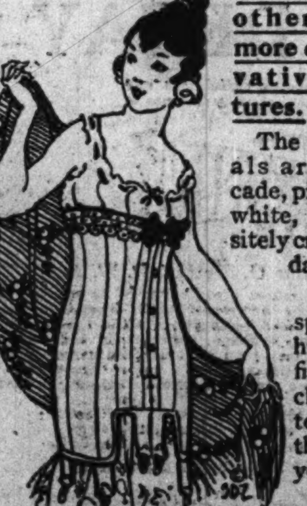
Pictured here are two of the most distinctive of the advanced fashions. A conspicuous feature of the newest designs is the "Freluquet" bust line and the French waist, which impart much beauty and grace to the figure.

The range of styles is most comprehensive, some reflecting all extremes of fashion, others the more conservative features.



The materials are brocade, pink and white, exquisitely crisp and dainty.



The Demi-Corset is one of the spring models that will rank high in favor for the petite figure. Chic in its simplicity; choice of flesh and white materials. Special fitters will see that you get correct model for your figure.

Royal Worcester and Bon Ton Corsets at $1 to $5. Fourth Floor.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY by MME. Z.

White House Likes Its Plunge Into the Social Pool

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special Correspondence.]—Washington—social Washington, that is—is pleasantly occupied these days in watching the White House plunge into the social pool after an absence of nearly two years. And so far as the onlookers can judge the White House is thoroughly enjoying itself. As a frivolous young collegian put it, "Almost any minute they are likely to carol gayly, 'Come on in, the water's fine!' just like real human beings."

Certainly they seem to be enjoying it, for since the initial pan-American reception on Friday of last week the president and his bride have been going madly. There was their dinner to the cabinet on Tuesday, the new first lady's first "state" dinner party, and on Friday the vice president and Mrs. Marshall's dinner in their honor, and during the coming week the Lansings' dinner for them, and two diplomatic dinners at the White House, which is rather crowding the state functions.

The cabinet dinner was Mrs. Marshall's first festivity since her recent operation. She did not come to the pan-American reception, and for a while people were asking one another who the woman was who came down the grand stairway on the vice president's arm that night—for the vice president was in his proper place just behind the president in the procession, and he certainly had a woman with him. They passed so quickly that few people had time to recognize Mrs. Redfield, whose husband was out of town and who consequently, since Mrs. Marshall was not able to be present, was promoted to second place in the procession, though she took her own place in the receiving line later.

Receiving Line Test of Endurance.

Mr. Marshall explained to every one that Mrs. Marshall was really perfectly well, but she would have to get her strength back before facing the ordeal of a state reception.

Really, these state receptions are a tax on the physical endurance of the receiving line. It was estimated that 4,000 invitations were out for that reception, and the entire 4,000, "and then some," appear to have turned out. Presumably the fact that many of the cards are made out to "Mr. and Mrs." or to "the Misses" accounts for the "and then some." The hour named was 9:30, half an hour later than has been usual, and at midnight there were still several hundred massed in the east room, where the line was forming.

Mrs. Marshall really is, however, practically well, as the vice president said—witness the fact that she has slipped into her place as the first of the cabinet hostesses to entertain the president and his bride after it had been announced that she would not be able to do so and that that honor would fall to the Lansings. The Marshalls were expected to wait and come in at the end of the cabinet round of dinners, but they didn't.

Outside of the vice president and Mrs. Marshall and ten cabinet members and their wives there were only about a dozen people invited to the dinner to the cabinet. One of Mrs. Wilson's brothers made his White House debut on that occasion, and Gov. and Mrs. Fielder of New Jersey came down for the event. Mrs. Marshall Field was one of that ultra-exclusive party; so were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Crane.

Cabinet Women Miss Ball.

There was considerable disappointment that none of the White House contingent showed up at the charity ball Monday night. In fact, I do not recall seeing a single one of the cabinet women there, which is really rather remarkable. Most of them seem to have had dinners on that night, either as guests or hostesses, but dinners do not collide seriously with a charity ball. One assumes that the Children's hospital—charity balls may be given for divers and sundry philanthropies, but in Washington "the" charity ball is always given for the Children's hospital—is not one of Mrs. Wilson's pet charities.

It is understood that the President and Mrs. Wilson have promised to attend the southern relief ball next week, but why wouldn't they with Virginia vociferously claiming them both as its children and as among the brightest jewels in its crown as "mother of presidents"?

Everybody is still discussing the pan-American reception, and practically everybody is agreeing that it is quite the prettiest party of the present administration and admitting that it compares favorably with those of previous régimes. There seems to be a difference of opinion as to whether the president or his bride was the more nervous, but, whichever it was, the nervousness wore off soon, and Mrs. Wilson was greeting all comers with a graciousness that seemed to win every one.

New Faces in the Line.

Certainly she looked lovely and most bridelike in her white and silver brocade and her single orchid! That one orchid was characteristic of the decorations. There were flowers in each of the state rooms, but not a great many—no lavishness, no overloading—in fact, decidedly fewer than has been usual at White House functions.

Mrs. Wilson, by the way, was a long way from being the only debutante on the receiving line. Mrs. Lansing, who stood next to her, and Mrs. McAdoo, who was third, were equally making their first appearance as cabinet women on the White House receiving line. So, too, was Mrs. Gregory. So "the line" had been pretty much made over since the last big reception at the White House, and veterans were much of the opinion that it was the prettiest line the White House had had for years.

Getting past the line, one realized that when 4,000 are invited in this democratic country some of the 4,000,000 are likely to get mixed up with the cream of the 400. There were women in high necked dresses and men in low necked collars. The diplomat in gold lace and the embassy chatelaine in splendid brocade and diamonds rubbed elbows with somebody's country cousin in shirtwaist and Sunday best frock coat.

Kicking Trains About.

There was an attractive little girl, she looked about 16, whose long curls came from beneath a regular old fashioned coal scuttle bonnet, made of flowered silk to match her high waisted frock. She was obviously a South American visitor, and she was distinctly attractive, though nobody seemed to know her outside of her own party. If she was at the Charity ball Monday night she realized the sweetness of "the sincerest flattery," for some one else without her exotic charm or her youth to carry it off, tried to imitate the getup, with lamentable results.

Then there was an elderly woman, in a low cut gown and fairly ablaze with diamonds—apparently real judging from their old fashioned settings—whose efforts to kick a recalcitrant train into place revealed in place of decorus evening footwear, a pair of stout white canvas low shoes that would have looked more in place on a tennis court.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

The Dearborn Seminary Alumnae association will hold its annual luncheon at the Hotel La Salle tomorrow, when Miss Harriet Walton will sing a group of songs written by Miss Elizabeth Lobdell, both young women being members of the association.

Mrs. Slason Thompson will open her home, "Seven Cedars," at Lake Forest for a series of five musicals to be given Mondays, beginning tomorrow. Miss Priscilla Carver is to give the programs.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Robbins will give a dinner-dance on Jan. 21 in the Saddle and Cycle club. The affair will be in honor of Miss Edith Harrison and Miss Helen Farwell.

Mrs. Bryan Lathrop and Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman are directing a Sunday evening musical to be given next Sunday in the auditorium for the benefit of the Italian Red Cross. Count Bolognesi, Italian consul in Chicago, is promoting the event.

MISS IRENE AMELE MASON
DAGUERRE PHOTO

Miss Irene Amelé Mason will give a reading at the meeting of the West Side Coeducational club on Tuesday afternoon. She is a young Chicago amateur reader.

Miss Mary MacDowell will address the Earle School and Community club in the auditorium of the school, Sixty-first street and Hermitage avenue, on Friday evening. Her subject will be "Human Welfare, a City's Duty."

PERSONALS.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pope, 1040 Lake Shore drive, have gone to Palm Beach, Fla., where they plan to pass the rest of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Rawson and their children, 1500 North State parkway, have gone to California. Mr. Rawson will return in a few weeks, but Mrs. Rawson and the children will stay in the west the remainder of the winter.

Mrs. Arthur Ryerson and her daughter, Miss Suzette Ryerson, have come west from Cooperstown, N. Y., to pass the remainder of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Ackermann Meeker of Hamilton, Ont., will arrive here tomorrow for a visit with Mr. Meeker's mother, Mrs. George Meeker, and Mrs. Meeker's aunt, Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster. They are to remain for a week.

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham will leave for California on Tuesday. She has been the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Grenville Mott of Highland Park, for some time.

Mrs. Robert Wheeler and her two children of 424 Oakdale avenue and her sister, Mrs. William Waller Jr., and her children, of 45 Banks street, have gone to visit their father, Mahlon D. Thacher, in Pueblo, Colo.

Mrs. Julius Rosenwald, 4901 Ellis avenue, will give the first of a series of musicals on Monday, Jan. 24.

Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, 1326 Astor street, who has been one of the many victims of the grip for several weeks, is now able to be out again.

Mrs. Russell Tyson, 20 East Goethe street, went east a few days ago for a short trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody are being congratulated upon the birth of a son. Mrs. Peabody formerly was Miss Anita Healy.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury will depart for Palm Beach, Fla., either the latter part of this month or the first week in February. Preceding their stay there they expect to be in Havana for a time.

Mrs. Edward L. Hasler of Lake Forest, accompanied by her young daughter, arrived in Quebec on Tuesday and will remain there for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Mason and Miss Blanche Mason of Highland Park have gone to California. Mr. Mason will return in four weeks, but Mrs. and Miss Mason will remain until spring.

Miss Marion Mason is visiting her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Mason, in New York. She will return to Highland Park on Jan. 15.

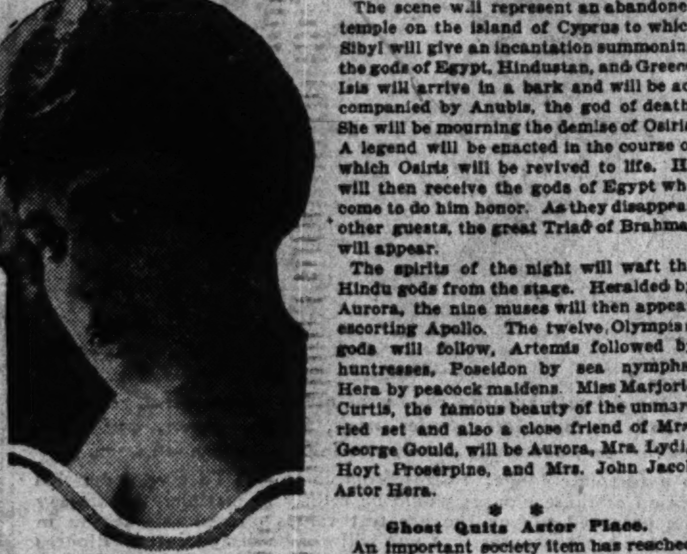
NEW YORK SOCIETY by MME. X

Miss Maud Kahn Makes Debut in Lavish Setting.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence]—If something did not always come along to contradict flatly what one has laid down as a categorical assertion a week previously, there would never be any chance for withdrawal, contradiction, argument, and there would therefore be no progress for New York society columns. After I have said at the top of my voice that debutante affairs are getting simpler, along comes one that has everything "faded" up to and including the Newport fête of the Vanderbilts two seasons ago, so far as expense and elaborateness go.



MISS MAUD E. KAHN

Miss Maud E. Kahn came out last week with such a party as not many debutantes can boast to their credit. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kahn, entertained for her at Sherry's, but the people who provided the entertainment were no such unprofessionals as mere parents. Such well known people as Caruso, Yvette Guilbert, and Pavlowa took this matter in charge.

The two floors of Sherry's were used for the affair, including the small ballroom and tapestry room on the first floor. Supper was served in them. In the large ballroom on the second floor and in the adjoining suites the entertainment and the dancing took place. A platform ran in a semicircle round the edge of the ballroom. It was draped in red velvet and set with two rows of chairs. On the floor level there also were chairs, and these, too, were arranged as in an amphitheater. Pavlowa opened the program at 11:30 o'clock. A thousand guests witnessed the performance.

Dancing Follows Program.

Six attendants in colonial costume, with powdered wigs, held a silken rope so that it outlined a half sphere. Inside of this Pavlowa danced. Mr. Caruso and Mme. Guilbert appeared on a dais erected at the west end of the ballroom. They sang to the accompaniment of a piano. After the program the floor was cleared for dancing and the conservatory was opened. Here pink begonias blossomed, and little yellow canary birds were made to violate the hours for canary bird labor and work at night.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. August Belmont, Mayor and Mrs. Mitchel, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clews, Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch, Mr. and Mrs. de Soriano, Mr. and Mrs. Orme Wilson Jr., Mrs. Norman Whitehouse, and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lydig.

Backing up my ill timed remark that good taste demanded simplicity in entertainments for debutantes, Mrs. William B. Leeds on this same evening entertained for her young niece, Miss Constance Moore. She took 200 guests to the theater. She leased the little bandbox opera house for the occasion and had a bill given of four one act plays selected by herself. After the performance she took her 200 guests to the Colony club for supper and dancing. They had all been entertained previously at dinners.

To Eclipse Venetian Fete.

The season for the rich and elaborate entertainments is on. One is to be given on Feb. 11 that promises to eclipse the famous Venetian fête given by the same people two years ago. It is under the auspices of the Beaux Arts Architects and is called the Ball of the Gods.

The scene will represent an abandoned temple on the island of Cyprus to which Sibyl will give an incantation summoning the gods of Egypt, Hindustan, and Greece. Isis will arrive in a bark and will be accompanied by Anubis, the god of death. She will be mourning the demise of Osiris. A legend will be enacted in the course of which Osiris will be revived to life. He will then receive the gods of Egypt who come to do him honor. As they disappear other guests, the great Triad of Brahma will appear.

The spirits of the night will waft the Hindu gods from the stage. Heralded by Aurora, the nine muses will then appear escorting Apollo. The twelve Olympian gods will follow, Artemis followed by huntresses, Poseidon by sea nymphs. Hera by peacock maidens. Miss Marjorie Curtis, the famous beauty of the unmarried set and also a close friend of Mrs. George Gould, will be Aurora, Mrs. Lydig Hoyt Proserpine, and Mrs. John Jacob Astor Hera.

Ghost Quits Astor Place.

An important society item has reached me via London. The ghost of Ann Boleyn has vanished from Hever castle. This is the seat of the new American born English baron—William Astor. It has long been the custom of the ghost to cross the old bridge across the river at midnight during Christmas week. This year she did not appear, and the explanation given is that she is displeased. Baron Astor, although he has become English, cannot forswear a native born predilection for things new and in good repair. He therefor had the dilapidated old bridge torn down and replaced by one exactly like it except for its newness. To the minutest detail the bridges are the same, but the ghost, who has a sensitive nature, was outraged by the change and declines to use the new bridge.

The castle is in Kent, and, like all the country round about, is full of historical memories. It is moated, towered, and battlemented, but in good repair. That is to say, Mr. Astor made it so. He may have disturbed untold ghosts and offended them, for he put in an Italian garden and an artificial lake of forty-five acres and surrounded by landscape, beautifully tufted and landscaped. He dug an artesian well, established a reservoir, and put in an electric power house. The practice of using candle light is forever abandoned in Hever castle, calamitous as this may be to any ghost! One of his piggeries alone cost $1,500. The floor of the dairy is inlaid with Italian mosaics and a richly carved fountain plays in the center. Guest houses are built outside the castle and cunningly connected with it.

Several hundred thousand dollars have been spent in putting in these repairs, and yet the neighborhood, as well as the ghosts, half resent them. You may say what you please about preserving the atmosphere of a place, you can't well accomplish this by putting in anything so foreign to the spirit of early England as an electric light and a bathtub.

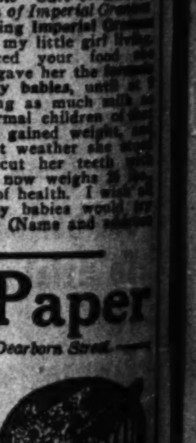
Baby's Food
3rd Floor, Infants' Section; Drugs, 4th Fl.

All that most babies need to be sturdy is a common-sense diet and a little intelligent care in adapting that diet to baby's special requirements. Sickly babies will thrive on the life-giving nourishment of Imperial Granum, the unsweetened baby food.



Four Sizes:
22c 63c 93c 2.[illegible]

Ask for a copy of the "Care of Babies" and for a sample can of Imperial Granum.

"When I began using Imperial Granum I had little hope of my little girl living. When I commenced your food she weighed 4¼ lbs. I gave her the formula for weak and sickly babies, until at [illegible] mos. she was taking as much milk as the formula for normal children of that age calls for. She gained weight, and although it was hot weather she stood the summer, and cut her teeth with little trouble. She now weighs [illegible] lbs. and is the picture of health. I wish all mothers with sickly babies would try Imperial Granum." (Name and address on application.)

A Visit to "Puss Puss", a Play with a Kitten Chorus.

By Percy Hammond.

INFREQUENTLY I wish that I were a bellringer or a sandwich man instead of a dramatic critic, and that, traversing the city's thoroughfares, I might effectively counsel attendance upon this entertainment or that. Such a yearning envelops me when I think of "A Pair of Silk Stockings" at the Princess, of which it may be said that it is smart, witty, mischievous, interesting, well written, and well acted. Perhaps in your saner moments you have thought of the theater as a gaudy mausoleum, in which mildewed lines, situations, and characters engage in ghastly antics, evoking melancholia. If you desire a relief from this mood of depression, go to see "A Pair of Silk Stockings." I know that you have a cleanly habit of mind and a sense of humor; that you are not averse to wit, nor to a mannerly counterfeit of the ways of the world; that you can be indulgent to minor flaws and that you have the inclination and the leisure to attend the theater. This being the case, "A Pair of Silk Stockings" is your proper destination. Therein you may enjoy the luxury of intelligent laughter, which is said to be an innocent and unusual benefice. Did not another topic demand record from this stylus today I should not defer a lengthier harangue on behalf of "A Pair of Silk Stockings" and its actors at the Princess.

FOR several years the management of the Columbia theater has importuned the editors of THE TRIBUNE to assign one of their bright young men to write up the "burlesque" proceedings which take place at that house twice every day in the week. It was contended, in support of the request, that the exhibitions in the Columbia were spirited, cleanly, and widely attended, and that they deserved consideration as news as well as an important art form. The indifference of journalism to their many admirable qualities irked the producers of "burlesque," and I am told that they were about to quit, the discouraged victims of contempt, prejudice, and neglect, when yesterday afternoon I walked in upon them to tint their lives with the rosy hue of dramatic criticism.

Such a welcome! You have heard the watch dog's honest bark, baying a deep throated prologue to hospitality within? Well, my reception at the Columbia was something like that. "Four bits," oof-oofed the genial mastiff in the box office, giving me a ticket, which after considerable discussion got me a seat in the last row adjacent to a smoldering cremo the gamut of whose fragrances would have baffled the most resourceful odophone. The colored young lady who guided me thither was courteous but not liberal, for she said she had no program for me, and she declined to try to dig one up. So, indeed, was the iron lunged young huckster who kept shouting "Eating Apples! Eating Apples!" in my ear. The playbills at the Columbia, it seems, are only for the hungry and the punctual.

The class was numerous, for the theater was full of prosperous looking men, eight women, and a little girl. I go thus into detail, as a travelogist among the byways, apprehending that my readers will appreciate a deviation from my usual Olympian theses on such works of art as "Experience" and "Within the Loop." The play was "Puss, Puss," with a Kitten Chorus, and it was presented by the Puss Puss Amusement company, Incorporated, with Mr. Jean Bedini (himself), author and producer, as the featured performer. Much to my discomfiture—for I had come to sneer—the entertainment really was spirited and cleanly, as musical shows go, and I remained to enjoy a lot of songs, dances, evolutions, and some clever travesty, much brighter than that usually found in more dignified musical comedy. Certainly it was coarse at times. Most musical shows are a bit rotten, like the vicar's egg, as the lady says in "A Pair of Silk Stockings." But the little girl was asleep, and I do not think that the coarseness harmed the others.

Mr. Bedini, who is an accomplished juggler and the Ziegfeld of burlesque, was on the stage as I was escorted to my seat, giving a flattering impersonation of Mr. Francis X. Bushman; and with him was Mr. Harry Jackson, who represented Mr. Barney Bernard as Potash. "Would you fight for your country?" Mr. Bedini asked Mr. Jackson. "No," was Mr. Jackson's reply; "I live in the city." A little while later there was another joke. "What made you hit Johnson?" inquired one comedian of another. "He called me a rhinoceros three years ago," was the answer. "Why did you wait three years?" the inquirer persisted. "Well," said the funny man, "I never seen a rhinoceros until yesterday." This sort of thing occurred every minute or two, and, honestly, as you see, it was much wittier than the average libretto. By this time I had purchased a couple of [illegible] from the energetic grocer's boy and he had given me a program. Upon the back of it I recorded an impression—that being my errand to the Columbia. There was very little laughter by the men of the audience. They smoked steadily and stolidly and I wondered why they were there.

Toward the end of the play I found out. I wonder if I can tell, delicately and without offense, what pleased them. It was in the burlesque of "On Trial," and Mr. Charley Mac, an unctuous clown and acrobat, was impersonating a little girl with a bosom on her like a bookshelf. This bosom was composed of two toy balloons—but no, it can't be done. The Rabelaisian adventures of a soul among the masterpieces of burlesque are not to be handled about in a home paper. Let us proceed to more prudent sectors of dramatic criticism.

The young women of the kitten chorus were fairly fair—above the standard of comeliness and decorum set by the impresarios of musical comedy for this vicinity. They play, and they play hard, fourteen times a week, and why they stay in burlesque during the prevailing famine in coryphees I do not know. Most of them were thin and had [illegible] legs and knees, but they were fully clothed in many handsome costumes. One of the numbers consisted of a girl for each of the national holidays, dressed imaginatively and in good taste. It may be it may not have been funny to see a girl with a thick English accent impersonating the Fourth of July and a Jewish girl representing Christmas; but the only holiday that won applause was Labor day, with a paper cap and a dinner pail. The honest hearts and calloused hands of those present were cold to all our country's festal days save that which celebrates our eager toil and industry.

These burlesque shows, they tell me, always boast three prima donnas, as does "Puss Puss" with the kitten chorus, youthful, personable, agile, and tuneful, though a bit nasal. They have, it seems, progressed since the days when smut was the magnet, and now they are merely musical comedies of a minor kind, and they are trying their best to be good. I am informed by an authority on burlesque that there are two versions to each play—one in which the lid is off, for performance in centers of liberality, and the other a cautious exhibition for use in the more careful neighborhoods. In either case (though I except "Puss Puss"), they cater to a distinct public, a male public, which likes to revert, now and then, to species.

Stage Notes.

Miss Elizabeth Marbury is at the business helm of a new musical comedy entitled "See America First," for which a number of performers are now practicing. The libretto is by Cole Porter, a young rhymster who in his day was the "Billy" Gamble of Yale; and the collaborator is Lawson Riggs, also a clever fellow.

Miss Blanche Ring will, at the end of the five weeks for which "Young America" is booked in the Grand Opera house, appear there in a comedy, "Jane O'Day from Broadway," by Willard Mack, author of "Kick In." The play was once entitled "Buttermilk and Broadway."

◆

"The Woman Hunter" is the name of a play which is, so far, just a Boston success. That is what "The End of the Bridge" was—it ran a week in this desert. But then, that is what "Common Clay" also was—it is this season the delight of the ticket brokers in New York.

Chamber Music: Its Debt to Negligee and Content.

By Eric De Lamarter.

FANCY father's laying down an after dinner cigar to take up a fiddle bow, drawing into a string quartet circle, spending the evening in buzzing bravely through "Beethoven's Opus 59" or "the Mozart C major," that heavenly delight of the amateur, and father a broker, a maker of chewing gum, or a bookkeeper!

This have I seen once, in Chicago.

This brief preamble explains why some of us are loath seriously to claim for any city in this country the title of "music center," Boston, possibly, being the only logical aspirant. For the appearance of Heinrich Noren's sonata for violin and piano, played here for the first time last Sunday by Hugo Kortschak and Isaac van Grove, is the fruit of such soil and cultivation. So is the duo by Gliere, for violin and cello, which the Flonzaleys presented.

Now, chamber music, frankly, is to be played, but not to be listened to, in its strictest dogma. It is art in its shirt sleeves. It belongs in the category with carpet slippers, a grate fire, pipes, and wilted collars. One or two friends, maybe. Gliere's duo for violin and cello is a family affair, genealogically speaking; the frau converses with her haus-vater. It came out of ease and intimacy, generations before. It is of a huge Russian literature gradually making its way among us, who have mightly little like it. Noren's sonata is another family affair.

Now we come to the gist of the matter. In Germany, in France (start not; it is so!), in Russia, chamber music has behind it generations of such tradition. How do you spend your evening? Singing old English glees, resuscitating the Vivaldi concerti, delving into new harmonic mysteries from Paris? Which is in better repair—your piano or your card table? Three strings or four on that cello in the corner? Do you gather about the harmonium of an evening to sweat over Bach's "Meine Seufzer, meine Thraenen" solo cantata? These practices are the basis of real musical culture, and chamber music is its finest flower.

This explains why the Kneisel quartet has waited more than a decade to win its expenses here, why the Flonzaleys were roused out of their wonted calm by the sight of a real audience last Monday afternoon. It explains why the Chicago Wood Wind choir—an ensemble of artists—wonders whether or not it should prepare programs. It explains why the Musical Art society boxed up its library two seasons ago.

"A music center?" Yes, Chicago is, in the same way that South Water street is an exhaustless vegetable garden.

See what such culture has done for Heinrich Noren. He indites and succeeds in having printed a sonata for violin and piano—a flaming, dizzying creation taking toll of every technical possession both of violinist and pianist. It plucks from Vienna such dissonances as it approves; it absorbs from the northern tone poets' philosophies certain principles of motif and of heretic cantilene; it binds all together with the constricting chord-progressions from which up to date German music seems desperately struggling to escape.

Noren's creative genius, which is undeniable, does not fuse into a unity these ingredients; it drives them, with profanity and speed, into a sort of overlogic; it bursts formal bounds to define its own. It is too long, too studied, too nervous to achieve immediate popularity even among the good folk who, having a new score of the sort, rush home to "read it through"—horrible torture to the first audience!

Noren, you see, grew up in an atmosphere of violin and piano sonatas. He knew them all. Into that atmosphere entered also the subtle spirit of harmonic unrest which has been coincident with all the other "unrests" of this generation—socialism, feminism, impressionism, the tango, and the apoplectic variants of ragtime, Schonberg, the vanishing sex theme of facile literature, cafeterias, and imitation Russian dancers. Noren's violin and piano sonata, like the conceptions of any creative genius of the day, took its key from this

A feature of the lecture will be the traveler's reproductions of the masterpieces of Dutch art in the Rijks museum at Amsterdam.

NEWS of the THEATERS

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Heisen, who have outlasted all their numerous competitors hereabout, are to go into "Nothing to Wear but Clothes," due Feb. 7 at the Auditorium. Their employment therein will be by no means confined to dancing together. The failure, earlier in the season, of Mons. Maurice and Miss Walton as stars of musical comedy is not regarded as discouraging by Mr. and Mrs. Heisen in view of the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Castle did not fail in that field. So Mr. Heisen will be cast in the chief "juvenile" part, will sing songs, will speak lines, and will have Mrs. Heisen as his vis-a-vis only for some of their dances, while Mrs. Heisen, in turn, will be "opposite" somebody else in most of her scenes, and will, like him, sing and act. Both are ambitious with regard for the stage as distinct from the cabaret.

One of the Messrs. Aborn is to produce a play called "Any House."

T. Roy Barnes is again into something. This time, "Katrinka." He is the comedian who, season before last, made a Chicago hit in "The Red Canary," and has ever since been seeking to make a like success in a play lasting for more than a week.

Miss Grace La Rue, who was in the first of the "Follies" series in 1907, and has since been an occasional visitor in vaudeville, is trying to find a public for an entertainment modeled upon that given by Yvette Guilbert—a sort of costume song-recital.

Prophetic note: "Acting is the moving picture of nature."—William Winter at the Green Room club in London, June, 1888.

Mme. Strindberg, one of the widows of the Swedish author, is about to produce and act in some of her husband's plays in New York under the auspices of the Stage society, an organized dramatic derrick of that city.

There will be a $1 matinée of "The Song of Songs" Thursday.

Miss Eva Leonard-Boyne, the leading woman in "A Pair of Silk Stockings," began her career six years ago with Brandon Thomas in "Charley's Aunt." Her father, the celebrated English actor, Leonard Boyne, objected to her going on the stage and secured her the position with "Charley's Aunt," which was touring the provinces, in order to discourage her. After her tour with "Charley's Aunt" Miss Boyne appeared in important roles in "An Englishman's Home" and "The Blindness of Virtue." Both companies played in England only. In 1912 Miss Boyne made her first appearance in this country in Granville Barker's production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and a year later in "Fanny's First Play" as Darling Dora.

Chamber Music Described as "Art in Its Shirtsleeves."

unrest, and the result is heretic, a "type" of the present mode of thought.

The Gliere duo for violin and cello is its antithesis. Its genesis is fascinating speculation. To them who know the ways of amateur "quartettists," however, it is no secret. The second fiddle failed on account of illness one evening; the viola went to Odessa on business. Said first fiddle to cello: "Go to, I'll indite something for us, and there will be more to eat and smoke anyway!" So it was done.

The duo is a reversion to type, to the most intimate type. But not suddenly. That first trick the fiddle turned for himself and the cello amused him. He harked back to it. It was odd. It had a germ of thought in it. He elaborated it. Its movements multiplied to five. "Double stops" helped the ear when two thin melodies became insufficient. When Gliere had finished this duo, or its prototype, it was really not a glorified duet of two voices, but a "stunt"—a study to determine how much like a sequence of triads it could be made to sound. The third player in this ensemble of two may be a disembodied spirit, but his musical presence is definite and aggressive.

You see how these things grow out of the "family circle." The symphony orchestra is patrician; the opera functions socially and with much glamour only. Chamber music alone, of musical art, is the expression of the composer's and the interpreter's self. He learns it in ease and content; it greets him from every epoch; it stirs his imagination and his ambition. It puts into his hands a fine art, practicable with modest means, and possible of frequent enjoyment. Because it has been the joy of all composers excepting the opera genius, it is the greatly broadening educational influence. In a sense, it is the measure of a musical civilization.

Concert Calendar.

DAVID AND CLARA MANNES, noted exponents of the violin and piano sonata literature, will present John Alden Carpenter's sonata at their recital this afternoon; on the same program is Brahms' F minor sonata. And, as if this alone did not dignify the day's concert giving, the Zoellner quartet adds to the chamber music festivities. Below is the schedule of the week's events, including the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra's visit:

TODAY—David and Clara Mannes, Illinois theater, 3:30 p. m. Zoellner quartet, Fine Arts theater, 3 p. m. Ballmann's orchestra, North Side Turner hall, this afternoon. Orchestral concert, Alexandre Zukowsky, conductor; Rose Blumenthal-Mendelssohn, soprano, soloist; Hebrew institute, this afternoon. Columbia School orchestra, Ludwig Becker, conductor, Central Music hall, 3 p. m. Benefit concert for Jewish Blind institute, Zion temple, 8:15 p. m. Haydn Choral society, Hamilton park, 3:30 p. m. Peoples Gas Choral society, Lane Technical High school, 3:30 p. m. "Opera evening," Art Institute; topic, "Mme. Butterfly"; 8 p. m. Sinai orchestra, Arthur Dunham, conductor, Sinai temple, 8:15 p. m.

MONDAY—Harold Henry, pianist, Illinois theater, 2:30 p. m.

TUESDAY—Chicago Symphony orchestra, Leon Mandel hall, University of Chicago, afternoon. Mme. Povla Frisch, Danish soprano, Fine Arts theater, 3:30 p. m.

THURSDAY—Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, Dr. Ernst Kunwald, conductor; Myrna Sharlow, soprano soloist; Orchestral hall, 8:15 p. m.

FRIDAY—Chicago Symphony orchestra, Dr. Frederick A. Stock, conductor; Walter Ferner, cello soloist; 2:15 p. m., Orchestra hall.

SATURDAY—Repetition of symphony program, 8:15 p. m.

Another Bachelor Romance Presented on New York Stage.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—If we were looking for a sure way to make money in the theater, which we probably would be had we the gift of attracting large sums without the discouraging necessity of giving security of promise or return, we should specialize in themes.

Who, for instance, has ever lost money with a play written around the Cinderella theme? A few perhaps. We do not remember them, but there doubtless have been enough to make good the exception clause for all such ventures made and provided.

But ordinarily the heroine who starts with a smudgy face as her fortune, and a mouse-like ambition to nibble her way through the hero's house jacket into his heart, and ends by inheriting a fortune and one of nature's grease-painted noblemen, is about as sure of success and royalties as a heroine can be.

And if Cinderella should fail us, we should immediately look up her best of friends, the middle aged bachelor caught in a mesh of romance. Here is another practically safe investment. It wins, we should say, on an average of nine times out of a possible ten, and no gambler could reasonably expect more.

Given a gentle, absent minded, sweet natured, soft voiced boob, if you know what we mean; one of those persuasively pathetic fellows who forgets to comb his tousled locks and doesn't even think of the weather, and every feminine heart in the audience goes out to him.

Mothers want to mother him, which, we assume, knowing something of mothers, means that they want to wash his ears and straighten his foolish tie. Daughters want to keep house for him, or think they do, and coddle his artistic temperament until he becomes famous, when they may exhibit him socially as a bit of their own handiwork. And spinsters yearn to talk things over with him and compare notes.

"Bunny," which is one of the new plays of the season, is that kind of a play—the bachelor's romance kind—though at this writing we are not so sure it is not the one in ten that fails of success. Austin Strong, who wrote it, has tried to effect a rather tricky compromise with this bachelor, and the heroine is not, it seemed to us, just the type necessary to make the romance seem worth while. As a result both the reviews and the attitude of the first week's audience at the Hudson, where it is playing, have been rather noncommittal.

Bunny is a bookworm. All attractive stage bachelors are. For years he has kept a little shop that never had a customer, spent his daylight hours writing a novel and his moonlit nights mooning over the loss of a sweetheart. He had always loved this child, from the days, to repeat the text, when she, as a child, went wading, and he helped her to adjust her funny little unmentionables to keep them out of the water.

He had secretly impoverished himself that she might be educated and become a particularly bewitching debutante. And he had always thought that when she was "finished" and he had sold his book they would be married.

Foolish Bunny. She never thought of that. For months and years she did not even come to see him. And when she did it was to show him one of the gowns of her trousseau, for that morning she was to become the bride of the town rake, and Bunny knew nothing about it.

The news stirred the literary rabbit into action. First he tried to kidnap the bride-to-be. This failing, because she had her own ideas of honor, he tried to shoot the rake she was to marry, but all he hit was a picture on the wall, a cuckoo clock, and a vase. And then, just as he was about to pack his other coat and two collars in a huge suitcase and start for somewhere, to, we suspect, "get away from it all," his crotchety uncle came to tell him his book had been sold and that he was rich.

But what were riches to Bunny now? What was fame? What was anything? Nothing. Until the bride came rushing back from the very edge of the altar to tell him she would not, could not, marry the rake, and was prepared to elope with him. Whereupon the two of them, she in her bridal gown and he with his other coat and two collars, started forth on a wedding journey in a four-wheeler for which he has not a cent to pay.

A pretty enough foundation for a bachelor's romance, as you may see. But two things are against it. First, Bunny is a comparatively young man, with the habits of a senile old party whose memory has failed him. Secondly, the romance, entering late in the action, and being represented when it does enter by a frigid little beauty who seems unequal to inspiring the dogged devotion of the hero, fails to register. No one cares particularly whether he wins or not. The love story, or so much as there is of one, having developed off stage, is not at all convincing. So "Bunny," as a play, still hangs in the balance.

It is very prettily staged and well acted. Lewis Stone, California's favorite leading man, plays Bunny, and Gypsy O'Brien, a pretty Irish lass, represents the romance. Henry Stevenson and Hilda Spong are in the cast and Eva Le Gallienne, daughter of the poet, scores a real hit as a cockney maid of all work.

There have been so many pathetic incidents and experiences woven into the later life of Sarah Bernhardt that probably one or two more are not important. But as we write this, we are just back from a first view of her newest picture, "Jeanne Dore," and the recollection of what we have seen is depressing.

Not that it is a poor picture as such things go. It is not. But why should the greatest actress of our time, and her most glorious memory, be handed down to posterity through the medium of a commonplace melodrama of the screen in which a 71 year old actress is more intent upon foiling the camera, both as to her age and the fact that she is trying to walk with the aid of an artificial limb, than she is upon the part she is playing?

Why should Sarah Bernhardt, with all the money she has made in her life, be forced to hobble about on a wooden leg to make more, that she may die in something resembling comfort and have enough to leave to those for whom she feels responsible?

It is not enough to say that her own extravagances have brought her to this pass and thus dismiss the subject. It is none the less pathetic, whatever the causes. And it seems so unfair to her that she should not be able to leave the children of the people who have worshiped her, a better and more dignified and truer record of her art than any the picture drama seems likely to show.

For those who will seek a view of "Jeanne Dore" out of curiosity as to how the actress moves about on her artificial limb they may as well be told how they will be none the wiser when the six reels have been shown them. Not once during the entire action of the play does she try to walk alone, or get beyond the indicated intention. With her first step the picture is sharply cut to the succeeding scene. And only once does she take a step with the assistance of others.

All her scenes are played while she is standing beside a chair or table, or desk, or while she is seated. She appears much stouter than she was on her last vaudeville tour of America, and about all there is of the remembered Bernhardt in her acting is that sweetly pathetic smile that seems to spread and glorify the scene to which it is given, and the eloquence of her gestures of hope or despair, of deep, maternal devotion, or supreme sacrifice.

Jeanne Dore, the heroine, is the wife of a gambler who kills himself after he has impoverished his family and broken his word to his loyal wife. With such funds as she can raise she buys a small bookshop and begins the rearing of her son. Grown to manhood, this lad, having inherited his father's instability of character, acquires a mistress, and seeks to borrow money for her from his uncle. Uncle refusing the loan, the boy, in a burst of anger, kills him.

And poor Jeanne Dore is then forced to go through the harrowing experience of standing by her son through his arrest, trial, conviction, and execution.

THE CHICAGO REVIEWERS WROTE ENTHUSIASTICALLY OF WINTHROP AMES' THREE ACT COMEDY

A PAIR OF SILK STOCKINGS

Quite the best thing that I have seen in many seasons. I shall go again and again.
Percy Hammond, Tribune.

It is not the kind of a play which you can speak of the audience "screaming with joy"—it is better than that. A more competent company than the one presented to us last night could not be found.
Richard Henry Little, Herald.

This acting is of the kind I am ever in search of, but which, in the theatre's dull routine, is encountered on those blessed nights set aside for surprise. O. L. Hall, Journal.

One thing certain: It is worth seeing.
Charles Collins, Post.

The company is smartly right for the smartest comedy of the season.
Ashton Stevens, Examiner.

The author frankly admits that it is nothing more than an evening's entertainment. It is all of that. The Optimist, American.

Crowds battled with the shivery rain and crowded the Princess and the play made a terrific hit. Amy Leslie, News.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

Latest News from Movie Land

by MAE TINEE

HOTLY DENOUNCE AND DEFEND

A LIVELY war is on in Los Angeles between a certain clergyman and the "movie people." Clergymen hotly denounced the profession so far as actors and directors are concerned as being immoral. The accusations have been hotly taken up and now the fight is on in full force. Miss Myrtle Stedman was spoken of by the minister as being one exception to what he considered the general rule. He said he felt honored when she sang solos in his church on several occasions.

You certainly are missing something when you don't see the Selig-Tribune News pictures. If they weren't good I'd tell you so. They are good and I am telling you so.

The new year opened sadly for Sarah Truax, for on Jan. 1 her mother passed away. Mrs. Truax was 70 years of age and went from Seattle to Los Angeles to join her daughter. She was taken ill shortly after her arrival.

A number of people are crying to see Henry Walthall in light comedy.

Margaret Turnbull, novelist, is working on a story for Fanny Ward. Miss Ward will be supported by a full cast, several members of which will be Sessue Hayakawa, his wife, Tsuru Aoki, and Jack Dean.

In "The Beckoning Flame," a Triangle-Kay Bee feature, an entire menagerie of a big circus was utilized. Five camels, four elephants, and ten zebras were among the animals used.

Your days are flying swiftly by and if you are still a pilgrim stranger to the "sequel" contest now the time to be to wake up and get acquainted. Ten thousand dollars is being offered for a sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky." I have the sequel conditions right here in the office and will be delighted to mail them to you upon receipt of a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Jack Lait of "Help Wanted" fame is busy on a new photoplay series for Balboa.

A new ventilating system has been installed in the Lasky plant at Hollywood, Cal. This changes the air in the entire three story structure every three minutes. Breeve deep!

Since a paragraph appeared stating that Betty Nansen was Swedish frantic letters of reproach and correction have been flowing in from people who declare that she is Danish. The letters do depose that she is married to a Mr. Peter Nansen, a publisher of Denmark, and that her father was a Dane of some importance.

The Horkheimer brothers, whose cash manipulates the affairs of the Balboa Feature Film company at Long Beach, Cal., spent $5,000 in dispensing Christmas cheer in the shape of the newest, thinnest, octagonalist monogrammed gold watches which they presented to heads of the departments and employés who had been with the company two years. Mr. H. M. Horkheimer arrived in Long Beach on Christmas eve with his golden burdens, having almost swamped a New York jeweler with the order.

Report hath it that Miss Ethel Barrymore has been engaged by the Metro Pictures corporation to make at least four pictures a year at a rate of 40,000 a picture. If we were Miss Barrymore we would insist on making forty pictures a year at the very least.

FEATURE FILMS OF THE WEEK

"A Rose of the Alley"—Metro drama, featuring Mary Miles Minter, who first became known to fame through "The Littlest Rebel." This has to do with New York's underworld. Press notices say it is "shot through with a golden thread of romance."

"A Life Chase"—Three reel Biograph drama, featuring Louise Vale and Jack Drumier. An adaptation of the drama by Adolphe Belot. A woman loves her husband's murderer. (This is no thing for a woman to do.)

"By Love Redeemed"—Three part Vitagraph drama, featuring Carry McGaffrey, Belle Bruce, Jewell Hunt, and Anders Randolf.

"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines"—Five Part Essanay picturization of a fantastic comedy by Clyde Fitch. Pretty Ann Murdock and Richard Travers are featured. (Not pretty Richard Travers.)

"Her Great Hour"—Equitable feature in which Molly McIntyre is featured.

"The Bait"—Five reel Horsely Mutual drama, featuring Margaret Gibson and William Clifford. Worth seeing.

"The Catspaw"—Five reel Edison drama, featuring Marc Mac Dermott and Miriam Nesbit. Mr. Mac Dermott plays a double rôle—and does it well, as is his habit.

"The City of Failing Light"—Four act Lubin drama, featuring Herbert Fortier.

"The Gamble"—Two part American drama, featuring Harold Lockwood and May Allison. It has to do with wheat.

"The Ragamuffin"—Five reel Lasky drama, featuring Blanche Sweet.

"The Thoroughbred"—Five reel American Mutual production, in which Charlotte Burton and William Russell are featured.

"The Woman in Politics"—Five reel Thanhouser, featuring Mignon Anderson and George Marlo. Verges decidedly on the melodramatic.

"Why Love Is Blind"—Three reel Selig drama. Let Jack Pickford show you.

"Wolves of Society"—Five part Mutual masterpiece. Sociological in its aspects.

Stationary Photoplays.

Colonial—"The Birth of a Nation."

La Salle—"The Salamander."

Strand—"The Ragamuffin," five part Lasky drama, featuring Blanche Sweet.

Studebaker—"Honor's Altar," with Bessie Barriscale in the lead; "The Flying Torpedo," featuring John Emerson and also a Keystone comedy with Sam Bernard in the lead.

Ziegfeld—"Marvelous Maciste," six reels of melodrama written around Maciste, the giant who appeared in "Cabiria." Sarah Bernhardt in "Jeanne Doré." This is her last appearance in pictures. "Musty Suffer," with Bickel and Watson.

ART by ANNE ELLIS

THE FRENCH EXHIBIT.

AMONG life's disappointments is to be mentioned the French exhibition at the Art institute. There is no reason, in the light of past experience, why one should expect artistic wonders from an international exposition, especially in war time. But the anticipatory thought of the French exhibit is the visioning of fair, clean colors, of originality, of modernism, vigor, courage—the very things, in fact, that the exhibit lacks.

Not that there are not some outstanding few pictures that merit "esprit," "éclat," and all the other delightful French adjectives. For the most part the exhibition is interesting chronologically. How interesting will be easier to tell in this column when the catalogue is out. It is natural that there is some delay about this matter, since Chicago has the privilege of having the exhibition directly from San Francisco before it makes the tour of the other seven museums in its visiting list.

Beginning Jan. 21, there will be an interesting exhibition of oriental art which is being assembled by the Antiquarian society of the Art institute. Many of the objects to be exhibited then are owned by Chicago people.

Much interest is being evinced in the exhibition of works of artists of Chicago and vicinity, which will open Feb. 8, on account of the new arrangements about awards. The exhibition is entirely in charge of a jury which is elevated by the balloting of all the artists of Chicago. This year the jury has been increased in number from the usual seven to twenty-one. This jury will pass upon all works submitted for exhibition, superintend the installation, and award the prizes.

The Chicago Society of Artists, which includes in its membership the most prominent artists in Chicago, has suggested the large jury. In increasing the number of the jury the members are following the example of the New York Academy of Design, which has for its annual exhibition a jury of thirty.

The jury selected by the Chicago artists this year consists of the following: Painters, Adam Emory Albright, Frederic C. Bartlett, Charles E. Boutwood, Charles Francis Browne, Karl A. Buehr, Edgar S. Cameron, Alson Clark, Ralph Clarkson, Ethel Coe, Frank V. Dudley, Lucie Hartrath, Wilson Irvine, Alfred Juergens, Arvid Nyholm, Pauline Palmer, Lawton Parker, F. C. Peyraud, Leon Roecker, Wellington Reynolds, John F. Stacey, and Frank Werner; sculptors, Leonard Crunelle, George E. Ganiere, Lorado Taft, Nellie Walker, and Emil Zettler.

THREE BEST SELLERS IN THE MUSIC WORLD.

The three best sellers in Edison records for the last week were::

"The Blue Jay and the Thrush" and "Asleep in the Deep."

"Little Grey Mother" and "On the Bark of an Old Cherry Tree."

"Good-Bye" and "Ma Curly Headed Babby."

The best sellers in Columbia records were:

"Out of a City of Six Million People, Why Did You Pick on Me?"

"You'd Never Know That Old Home Town of Mine."

Symphony in B minor (unfinished), first movement, and symphony in B minor (unfinished), second movement.

The following were the three best sellers in Victor records:

"Tambourin."

"Siegmund's Love Song" and "Heaven and Ocean."

"Ireland" and "My Own Home Town in Ireland."

The three best selling sheet music numbers were:

"Hello, Frisco."

"The College Inn Rag."

"My Radium Girl."

The following were the three best sellers in player piano rolls:

"Irish love song."

"Some Sort of Somebody."

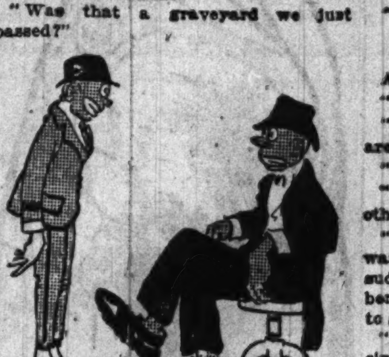
"Waltz Entrancing."

THIS GETS A LAUGH FROM SOME IN VAUDEVILLE

PALACE.

Burks and Bowen:

"Was that a graveyard we just passed?"



"No, them was milestones."

"Wait a minute and I'll give you a synopsis of the song."

"Yes, make it a tall one."

"I said synopsis, not schnapps."

McVICKER'S.

Alexander and Scott:

"No, sir, I ain't no chicken thief."

"Your next door neighbor says that you are a chicken thief."

"No, sir; he is mistaken."

"Didn't you enter his hen house the other night and take six of his chickens?"

"No, sir, I didn't. It was like this: I was building a dog house, when all of a sudden I found out I was short of lumber. So I went over into his hen house to get a piece."

"But what had that to do with stealing six of his chickens?"

"I tell you I didn't steal six of his chickens. If they happened to be roosting on the piece of lumber I wanted, was that my fault?"

MAJESTIC.

Giant Rug Sale
BUYING POWER

ALL THIS WEEK

HERE is another sale that will make every householder in the City of Chicago look up and take notice—and then look down and take notice.

FOR the whole of this coming week we are going to concentrate the entire Selling Power of this great Spiegel organization on RUGS.

WE have made prices here in some cases cheaper than many furniture stores have to pay. Our enormous Buying Power is giving you Rug opportunities that you never had before.

NOW, after these prices have made you look up, take a moment's time and look down. People never see their own Rugs as others see them.

SO look down at your Rugs, and then look down at the columns of this ad again and see for how little you can get the new Rugs that you so badly need.

AND, remember, a credit account is open to you. A dollar or two in cash and a little each month is all you have to pay for any of them.

Luxurious Axminsters

$1.25 to $27.45

YOUR guests see the holes in the living-room rug long before you do. But they will have to wait a good many years to see any holes in one of these Axminsters.

THEY come in all sizes and in the most beautiful patterns that you ever saw. Prices all reduced. For example, the 9x12 size Axminster, $1.50 cash, $1.50 monthly.......... $17.90

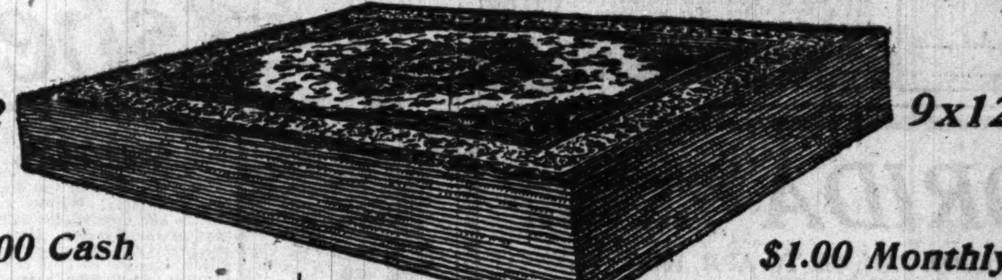
Beautiful Brussels

$1.45 to $23.95

IF you need a new dining-room rug as badly as most people, you had better come in tomorrow or the next day and see these beautiful Brussels.

WE have a varied assortment of patterns and sizes, cheaper than you could buy them anywhere. The 9 x 12 size Brussels, $1.00 cash, $1.00 monthly...... $9.80

Wilton Velvet Special, $14.90



$1.00 Cash

$1.00 Monthly

WHERE in the world have you ever seen a 9x12 Wilton Velvet advertised at this price before? We have them made up specially for our Chicago customers, so you needn't worry about quality, for the Spiegel guarantee takes care of that. The patterns are dyed right in the wool, too. All next week we sell them for.......... $14.90

OUR large stock of Wilton Velvets includes the following sizes:
6 x 9 feet. 9 x 12 feet.
4.6x 7.6 feet. 8.3x10.6 feet.
36 x 63 inches. 7.6x 9 feet.
27 x 54 inches.

YOU owe it to yourself to get one of these Wilton Velvets, for we have gone right through the stock and marked prices as low as possible. Enormous assortment of patterns, including Oriental, Floral, Medallion and Allover effects. Small monthly payments. Prices $1.65 to $29.45

Royal Wiltons

$3.95 to $42.50

IF YOU want to see something really beautiful, come in and look over these Royal Wiltons which only arrived from the mills last week. They are genuine Wiltons and will be placed on sale for the first time Monday at very lowest prices. Monthly payments very low.

Seamless Wiltons

33.75 to 54.65

"SEAMLESS Wilton" is Rug language for "wear forever." For nothing under the sun, outside of a piece of iron, will wear better. We have a beautiful selection of patterns for you to choose from, and the prices and terms have been made as low as possible.

THE JANITOR'S GOOD TO HIS FOLKS.

Slip me an ear while I sing you the son of a
Gun in the cellar, the janitor bloke,
He who can give you more pain in the run of a
Season than vaudyville's deadliest joke.
Down in his catacombs, taking it easy, O!
His to decide if he soldiers or stokes,
True, you may freeze
While he sits at his ease—
But isn't he good to his folks?
He is!
You bet he is good to his folks!

Oft in the night—and it needn't be stilly, sir—
You will awaken with ice in your ears,
Cold is your craw and your liver is chilly, sir,
But in his lair the janitor cheers.
Do you suspect that he does it a-purpose, O!
Do you suppose it is one of his jokes?
Letting you freeze
As a sort of a wheeze?
Sure!—But he's good to his folks,
He is!
A regular bear with his folks!

You can just gamble your ultimate shekel, sir,
He and his brood aren't freezing at night;
His calsomine doesn't peel off and freckle, sir;
His gasometers don't fail to read right;
His light connections are never burned out for him,
His garbage goes, and his laund(a)ry soaks—
What? It ain't fair?
Gosh, what do you care
So long as he's good to his folks?
My! My!
And say! Ain't he good to his folks!

So that's why I sing you that lovely old son of a
Gun in the cellar, the janitor guy,
He who allots you more pain in the run of a
Year than most anything under the sky;
But if your flat is as cold as a halibut,
If in your service he dallies and pokes,
Recover your cheer
By repeating this here:
Perhaps he is good to his folks.
Ah, yes!
A janitor's good to his folks!

at the Hot Springs of Arkansas. When you come here for your rheumatism, gout, Bright's disease or stomach trouble you're not putting yourself into the hands of private, commercial exploiters of a health resort. You are under the wing of Uncle Sam—you're bathing in the radio-active waters that he recommends for you and that he depends upon for curing his own army and navy men. He even regulates the prices of the baths and the conduct of the bath-houses. He looks after your health—we of Hot Springs, Ark., look after your comfort and your recreations. And we are wise enough business men to know and act on the truth of the fact that the prosperity of Hot Springs, Ark., depends upon our reasonableness in treating our visitors.

That's why those who come and are cured the first visit come back the next year for pleasure.

Come—whether it be for health or play or rest—we offer you all.

For complete information covering the baths and your ailment if you're ailing, or our facilities for your enjoyment if you're seeking a winter playground, write us—filling out coupon.

Special—Low Round Trip Rate now in effect on Iron Mountain R.R. Get their new book on Hot Springs, Ark., and the radio-active waters. Ask at local ticket office or write Iron Mountain R. R., St. Louis.

Fish in Florida this Winter

Fishing is good in every part of Florida.
In the rivers of the State fresh water trout, bass, a variety of pan fish, and many similar fish abound.
Florida's thousand of fresh water lakes afford an abundance of black bass, trout, bream, etc., etc.
In the waters of the Gulf, along the Florida keys and on the coast of the Atlantic Ocean, there are sea bass, Spanish mackerel, snapper, and drum fish; tarpon test the skill of fishermen.
Fishing in Florida is best in winter. Make the State a visit this season and fish to your heart's content. Modern hotels, fine golf courses, tennis, surf bathing, good hunting, splendid roads and a hospitable people will make your stay pleasant,

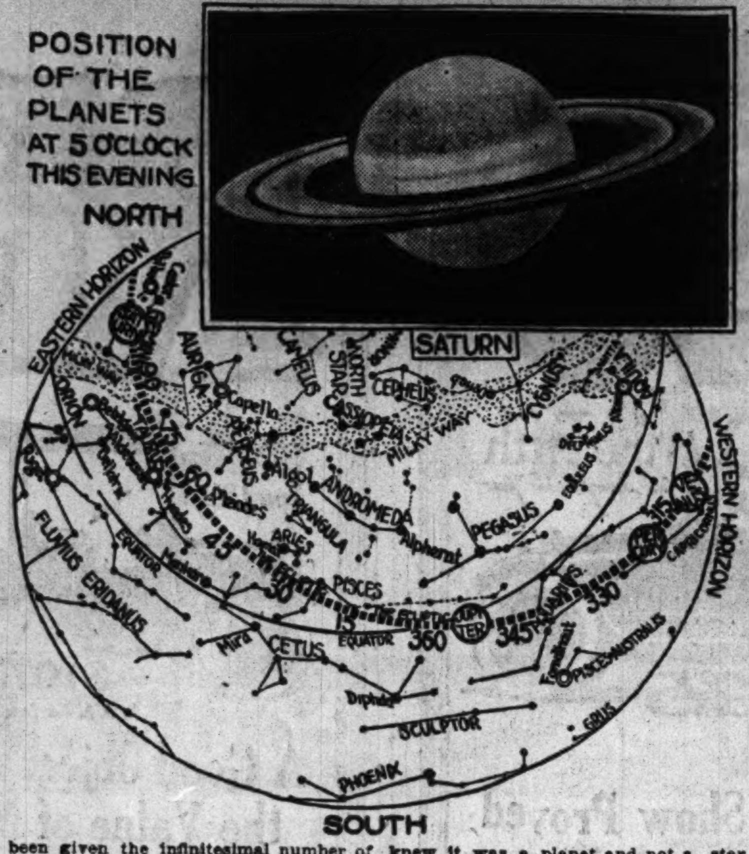
ASTRONOMY

by CLIFFORD RAYMOND



SATURN.

In the early evening now four planets are visible—Venus, Mercury, Jupiter, and Saturn. About 5 o'clock Venus and Mercury are in the west, Jupiter has passed the meridian, and Saturn is arising in the east. Mars comes up too late to join the group, but is in the sky with Jupiter and Saturn.

While Jupiter and Venus cannot be mistaken for stars, being too obviously of different composition and appearance, Saturn and Mercury can be. But it will be remembered that a planet's light, which is a reflection, is steady, and a star's light, being its own, twinkles, and that ought to aid in resolving any doubts.

Saturn has the most complex organization in the sun's family. And with its complexity it has the greatest beauty, unfortunately hidden to the unaided eye. With its rings and satellites it is a system of wonders.

When Jupiter is seen through even a small telescope, showing for the first time to the observer its larger moons, there is a sense of astonishment as if a curtain had been drawn and a world revealed. But when Saturn is disclosed through an instrument sufficiently powerful to draw back its curtain the sense is one of shock.

The rings of Saturn are regarded by astronomers as one of the three great spectacles of the heavens, the other two being the nebula in Orion and the star cluster in Hercules.

For several centuries it had been known that there were two rings, and in 1850 a third was discovered, the crêpe ring, a dusky, semi-transparent ring, the appearance of which warrants the description given it in the name.

These rings are composed of particles which yield to the laws of planets. They are exaggerations, and beautiful exaggerations, of what is known to surround the sun itself, the multitude of minor planets. If the sun's planets were multiplied indefinitely they would form the rings which Saturn presents.

This phenomenon has been reserved, so far as research can be demonstrated, for the planet Saturn, and to it alone has been given the infinitesimal number of particles yielding to its influence and guided by it, thus forming the rings which astound the observer first seeing them through a telescope.

When it is considered that Saturn not only has its unrivaled rings but also has numerous satellites revolving about it, it can be understood that it is the most complex system intimately connected with and intimately [illegible]rved from the earth.

The ancients knew Saturn as the ne plus ultra of the solar system. They knew it was a planet and not a star. They thought it was the farthest removed from the sun. Discovery has placed the frontiers of the solar system farther out in space, although the orbit of Saturn is enormous. It requires twenty-nine and a half years to complete its circuit of the heavens.

Jupiter is the greatest of the planets; Saturn the next. Its equatorial diameter is about 75,000 miles, and it makes its revolution in about ten hours and fourteen minutes, with more than double the rapidity of the earth, but with not quite the rapidity of Jupiter.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

by FANNY BUTCHER

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store:

WAR.

"I Accuse" (Doran).

FICTION.

"Felix O'Day" (Scribner), by F. Hopkinson Smith.

"Mr. Marx's Secret" (Little-Brown), by E. Phillips Oppenheim.

"Clipped Wings" (Harper), by Rupert Hughes.

"These Twain" (Doran), by Arnold Bennett.

"The Story of Julia Page" (Doubleday-Page), by Kathleen Norris.

"The Gray Dawn" (Doubleday-Page), by Stewart Edward White.

NONFICTION.

"The Life of John Hay" (Houghton-Mifflin), by William R. Thayer.

WHO, INDEED?

JULIAN STREET has labeled his latest book "The Most Interesting American" (Century). He says that the man who has a right to wear tha title "contains within himself qualities and attainments which actually are not combined in the entire population of any city in the United States. A city which would have in the sum of all its people a man like the most interesting American must have among its dwellers a physical culture expert, a historian, a biographer, an essayist, a natural scientist, an explorer and discoverer, a critic, a former cowboy, a big game hunter, ten or a dozen LL.D.'s, an editor, a former member of the state legislature, a practical reformer, a veteran colonel of cavalry, a former assistant secretary of the navy, a former governor, a Nobel peace prize winner, a former vice president, and a former president." And who is this "most interesting American"? One guess.

From Tokio came this news about the likes and dislikes of the Japanese reading public: "Publications dealing with popular science have enjoyed the keenest demand; next come those relating to popular history and geography, and the linguistic literature and dictionaries, especially the German-Japanese dictionary by Prof. Tobari, have experienced a warm welcome. That the German-Japanese dictionary has increased in favor may be due to the European war. So-called small series editions and detective stories have seen their day and now are not found even on the auction list. Novels and romances are quite popular. As for the works of Rabindranath Tagore, the keen demand for them ceased with the confirmation of the rumor that he would give up his intended visit to this country."

Don't you chuckle every time you think of Stephen Leacock's "Nonsense Novels" (John Lane)? It's in the process of being brailled now and soon it will be in all of the libraries for the blind.

James Whitcomb Riley can no longer be called the only man of letters in the United States who has had a day named for him. On the sixty-seventh birthday of James Lane Allen, which was Dec. 21, 1915, Lexington, Ky., celebrated the first James Lane Allen day, which is to be hereafter an annual festivity. Mr. Allen couldn't be there, for he's New Yorking now, but he sent eight duplicate copies of a letter, addressed to the children of Kentucky. The letters are on parchment in his own handwriting and are to be framed and hung in the schools.

Stanislaw Przybyszewski, author of "Homo Sapiens," is the latest novelist to be accused of exercising an immoral influence upon the community. At the request of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice his publisher, Alfred A. Knopf, was recently summoned into court to answer the charge that "Homo Sapiens" is "obscene, filthy, and indecent." Mr. Knopf's counsel offered as evidence book reviews from magazines and newspapers, in none of which was there any reference to anything immoral or objectionable. The assistant district attorney wanted them barred as evidence because, he averred, book reviews as a rule do not deal accurately with books and that their value as to the morality of a book is negligible! And then the case was adjourned so that Magistrate Simms could read the book.

Rupert Hughes, whose "Clipped Wings" (Harpers) is now available, has, you may or may not care to know, closed his Westchester county home temporarily and is now in New York for the winter.

After he had read "Young Hilda at the Wars" (Stokes) by Arthur Gleason, Dr. Marquis, president of Coe college, Iowa, offered to educate a Belgian boy if Mrs. Gleason, who was Hilda in the book, would find one for him. She is going back to Belgium right away to get him, and incidentally to continue there her own and her husband's work.

Hamilton Osborne is for a day and a half out of each week an author of stories like "The Boomerang" (McBride). The rest of the time he is a lawyer. He tries to keep his vocation and his avocation from getting tangled up, he says, but once he got reckless and wrote an article about making wills. It contained minute and simple directions for the making of a will which if followed made the services of a lawyer unnecessary. The story was published in a weekly magazine. The day after its publication an old client of Mr. Osborne's stepped into his office to tell him that he had been intending for a year to have him draw up his will, but that when he read the article he attended to it himself. "Never again," appends Mr. Osborne to the tale.

By the vote of its readers, Truth (London), has compiled some statistics about the greatest British dramatist, the greatest poet other than dramatist, et al. There was absolute unanimity about who the greatest dramatist was. Shakspeare, of course. The other ballots were:

Greatest poet other than dramatist—Milton.
Greatest philosopher—Bacon.
Greatest historian—Gibbon.
Greatest novelist—Dickens.
Greatest essayist—Macaulay.
Greatest composer—Sullivan.
Greatest painter—Turner.
Greatest sculptor—Flaxman.

Not long ago a man named Smith, whose means of livlihood consisted in marrying women and making way with them in such a manner as to make it appear that they had died in their baths—you remember, don't you?—was duly hanged. "Curiously enough, in spit of the bigness of the Smith family he was only the fifth of that name to be hanged," writes a correspondent from London. "Yet the name is old enough, for a man named Smith lived in the days of Ptolmy III, B. C. 227." He quotes from a book called "The Smith Family," by Compton Reade. And he continues: "The ranks of these descendants of privitive iron workers include scarcely a poet or an idealist, while in matters practical they stand preëminent."

"Joffre Chaps and Some Others" (John Lane) is the title of Pierre Mille's tales of the French soldiers as he sees them as trenchmates.

SIEGEL COOPER & COMPANY says

SIEGEL COOPER says you'll have to be content with telegraphic news today. We turned our Buyers loose in the markets with a half million dollars cash and orders not to buy anything for you unless they could get it underpriced. Now the merchandise is pouring in and the bargain prices they have secured for you are miracles.

But please remember this, that from tomorrow on we are going to undersell the whole of State Street in practically all of the lines of merchandise that a big store carries. Here are a few town wreckers from our 42 centimeter guns:

10,000 Prs. of Gloves, 88c

Men's, Women's and Children's
$1.25, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 Gloves

Honestly, you'll think we've stolen them. When our Buyer brought them in we expected to see the police following.

You'll understand better what we've got when we tell you that in the women's gloves there are everything here from 12, 16 and 20 Button French Kid Gloves and 1 and 2 clasp Dress and Street Gloves with heavy embroidery to Washable Gloves and White Kid Gloves with heavy black embroidery, elbow length Milanaise Silk Gloves and Skating Gloves with long strap wrist, as well as everything else you can think of. And they're all fresh and new. The Gloves you are wearing now in the styles you have chosen.

And in the men's there is everything from a full dress glove to a working glove, as well as Kids, Cape, Mocha, Buckskin, Auto Gauntlets, and so on.

And maybe it'll help a little more when we tell you that in every lot there are from ten to forty dozen of a kind. And the whole ten thousand pairs are selling at 88c

1.98—5,000 Waists—2.98

Another downright robbery. But we did it for you, madame, and we did it well while we were about it. If you could only see what we've got for you, some of those pillared aisles would be so empty tomorrow you could hear the echo of a floor walker's sigh. Judge the values for yourself. We are going to sell the whole 5,000 at two prices.

At 1.98

Chiffon and Lace Blouses, Crepe de Chine and Lace Blouses, Allover Lace Blouses, Tailored Crepe de Chine Blouses, Embroidered Georgette Crepes, Filet Pattern Lace Blouses, Fur Trimmed Chiffon Blouses, Fur Trimmed Lace Blouses, Satin and Chiffon Blouses, Tailored Silk Blouses. Also 150 Belted Silk Sport Blouses.

At 2.98

Radium Lace and Chiffon Blouses, Georgette Crepe and Crepe de Chines, Radium Silks and Crepe de Chines, Fur Trimmed Chiffon Blouses, Tailored Crepe Blouses, Satin Stripe Blouses, Fancy Trimmed Lace Blouses, Allover Radium Lace Blouses, Combination Velvet and Chiffon Blouses.

Silk & Dress Goods Sensation, 77c

Muslin Wear Dollar Sale

You women who have been paying double prices just because your "favorite store" knew that you liked pretty things to wear, come and see the Dollar Sale WE have prepared for you.

Come and see the Night Dresses in the sheerest of nainsooks and muslins and crepes, trimmed with fine embroidery and laces and in innumerable styles, all at $1

Come and see the Envelope Chemises in their sheer materials, with their pretty trimmings of laces and insertions and the thorough fitting that is as attractive as the styles themselves, all at $1

Come and see the fancy Bodices of washable satins and crepe de chines, and trimmed with wide bands of Normandy lace insertion, both front and back. All at $1

There are two ends to this old Loop, you know.

There are 89 different Silk and Dress Goods items to go into this sale and into this space, and it can't be done. There is so much of it that it would take half a page to tell the story and half the store to sell it.

In Silks there is everything here from Satin Striped Tub Shirting, double width Crepe Failles, 36-inch Printed Habutai, 40-inch Black and Colored Silk Marquisette, double width Crepe de Chines, 40-inch Canton Crepes, in black and colors, and 40-inch Satin Stripe Marquisettes and 40-inch Black Broche Crepe de Chine and 40-inch Velvet Finish Taffeta. They are worth from 1.25 a yard to 2.00 a yard, all for 77c

In Dress Goods everything from 54-inch all wool Broadcloths, 48-inch Novelty Check Suitings, 54-inch two-tone Bedfords, 54-inch Black and Gray Mixtures, 54-inch All Wool Voiles, and 42-inch Ottoman Cloth to 54-inch All Wool Poplins, 54-inch Whipcord Suitings, 42-inch Bedford Cords, and 48-inch Storm Serges, in black and colors, besides about everything else you can think of. $1 to $2 values, all at 77c

Also Dress Skirts Made to Measure, 77c

"They'll make a Skirt for you for 77c?" Yes, that's what we mean. Select any material from our dress goods at 50c a yard or over and we'll make a Dress Skirt for you in any of five models and charge you for the making just 77c

A $25,000 Fur Purchase

Do you see how we are fighting for space with news like this pouring in? We've taken over the January Stock Clearances of Chicago's two greatest manufacturing furriers. You know them, Kolb & Teich of the Republic Bldg., and the Elliot Fur Co. at 32 S. Wabash Avenue. And we are going to sell these furs at a third and a half and even greater reductions. And coming from such high class Furriers, you know these Furs will last.

Tomorrow we'll sell $25 to $40 Pony Coats for $15 and 19.75; $50 to $65 ones for 24.75; $65 Marmot Coats for 33.75; $125 to $275 Hudson Seal Coats for 69.50 to $139.50.

And Now Comes the Rub

Here are twenty other sales and no place to put them.

Here all the yard goods from Arthur Friedenheit & Co., whose stock we purchased at less than 40c on the dollar, and whose made-up Neckwear we have already started selling. There are wonderful lots of Chiffon Cloth and Net Skirtings in this lot worth from 1.50 to 3.00 that we are selling for 95c a yard. There is 20-inch Accordion Plaited Chiffon Cloth that we are actually selling for 37c a yard, although a great deal of it is worth a dollar. And so on with scores of equally wonderful values.

There is the Women's Coat Sale, in which we are offering eight hundred winter coats in all the newest things at three prices of 15.00, 12.75, and 7.90, although the values run up as high as $30. Yes, and higher, too.

And the Women's Suit Sale—not back numbers—but up to the minute 16.50 to 19.50 Broadcloth Suits, Gabardine Suits, Mixture Suits, and so on, all at 9.75.

And the Women's Dress Sale, in which we offer two big lots of Dresses, one at 9.75, another at 4.95.

Then there is the big Electric Lamp Sale. We have just secured the exclusive rights for a wonderful new Portable Electric Lamp with adjustable shade that can be attached anywhere. We are introducing it at 1.69.

And the Rug Sale, in which we are offering 21.50 Axminster Rugs and Seamless Velvet Rugs in 9 x 12 foot size for 16.75.

And still the story of the merchandise for tomorrow's selling is not half told.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

By L. M. Steffens.

CONTRARY to views expressed by tire experts throughout the United States, there is no dearth of white pigment necessary to build white motor car tires. A statement was issued to this effect by the B. F. Goodrich company of Akron, O. The Goodrich company says it has enough of the pigment on hand to build any number of tires and volunteered to show other manufacturers where they may purchase the pigment at market prices.

Costing more than $25,000, the Studebaker gold chassis stands as one of the most sensational attractions at the New York automobile show and got a large share of attention from visitors. Men who have attended every automobile show since the first one was held say they were never treated to as big a surprise as this Studebaker chassis, finished from stem to stern in gold. It is the most expensive chassis ever built, and yet it is standard in every detail of its construction, with the exception of its brilliant gold finish. More than 350 ounces of gold were used, and nearly 3,000 parts are finished in gold. Only one firm in the country had the facilities to undertake the job, and even this concern, Yale & Towne of Stamford, Conn., had to arrange for special fifteen foot vats and other equipment. In addition to being the most expensive chassis ever on view at any motor show this Studebaker gold chassis is costlier by far than any complete car in the history of automobile shows.

The automobile industry is enhanced by the addition of the Farmack Motor Car corporation, which is building cars in Chicago, its factory being located at Seventy-sixth and Wallace streets. This company has been in existence but a short time, and has made strides in the short space of time to the point of having material and machinery on hand in large quantities that has enabled it to prepare about ninety chassis ready for the motors and have the bodies all painted and trimmed ready to put on these chassis. This company is headed by A. J. Farmer as president and general manager, who was formerly general manager of the Northway plant at Detroit. The sales department is in the hands of Hoover Holton, who was formerly associated with the American Motors company of Indianapolis and the Detroiter company at Detroit.

American mechanical genius in its most brilliant and enterprising development—in the automobile industry—will be framed in the mystic beauties of the dreamy orient when the world's greatest motor car exhibition opens in the Coliseum, Chicago, on Saturday, Jan. 22. The sixteenth annual National Automobile show by all portents will be the most prosperous and best attended industrial display—outside a world's fair—in this country's history. Oddly enough, this ultra modern and progressive assemblage of motored marvels will have for its scenic setting a Japanese garden, artificial, yet as entrancing as the richest estates in the mikado's realm.

The National Automobile show, which will extend from Jan. 22 to Jan. 29, inclusive, will be a $3,000,000 shop window of the colossal industry. Actually the value of its exhibits, from huge touring cars to accessory models of the most intricate nature, as yet defies accurate estimate.

So vast was the commercial success of the recent New York automobile show that wonderful things are counted upon for its "big brother," the Chicago show, which draws its patronage not merely from sections of the country but from the entire continent westward to the Pacific. A buying brigade of about 4,000 dealers will gather in Chicago for the prosperity event, and about 10,000 more visitors, welcomed as of the genus customer. The exhibitors' entourage of officials, engineers, salesmen, and high grade mechanics will number about 3,500 more.

About 94,000 square feet will be covered by exhibits in the four structures embraced in the National Automobile show group—the Coliseum, Coliseum Annex, First Regiment armory, and Greer building. A new type of effectual shelter corridor will connect the Coliseum and armory. This year there will be three main entrances instead of two, for, in addition to the Coliseum and armory portals, there will be doorways and a box office at the Greer building. The latter entrance will be used more particularly by the exhibitors and their attachés.

The list of complete car builders with displays at the Chicago show now numbers eighty-five in the oil motor column. Seven makers of electric cars will exhibit. Forty-eight new exhibitors of accessories were allotted space this year, and the total number of accessory exhibits now exceeds 300. In the progress of national automobile shows from year to year it is interesting to note that the displays in the First Regiment armory are now so thoroughly in the public's eye that the building no longer partakes of an "annex" relationship to the Wabash avenue structures.

The general effect of the decorative scheme selected by Manager Samuel A. Miles is that of a park in Tokyo, replete with monumental gates, quaint towers, pagodas, and lovely examples of Nipponese art. The color scheme will offer a dazzling combination of blues, pinks, yellows, and whites, and it will be "cherry blossom time" with a profusion of artificial flowers. The walls of the buildings will be framed by cherry trees and 90,000 square feet of canvas will be used in securing a splendid blue sky effect, according to J. J. Fest.

Notable among the important features which characterize the latest Cole eighth, the model 860, which was first announced at the New York automobile show, are the counterbalanced crankshaft and aluminium pistons. The first inkling that the Cole company intended to better its already efficient eight cylinder motor by incorporating these two additional improvements was given last October when the chief engineer of the Cole Motor Car company, Charles S. Crawford, announced in his address on the eight cylinder engine before the Indiana section of the Society of Automobile Engineers that these two features already had been given a most thorough test by his staff of experts.

The system of standardization under which the Cole company operates necessitates the early and thorough testing of every innovation introduced in motor construction, for it is the absolute guarantee of the company that every unit which goes to make up the standardized car is the tested best in its field. The Cole company was among the first to adopt the streamline body design and the new type of radiator. Decided improvements have been worked into both the body and radiator design in the car for the coming year.

After nearly doubling the figures that have for three years represented the motor nonstop record the Maxwell touring car which has created a complete set of long distance marks has been stopped at Los Angeles. The Maxwell's motor nonstop record is 22,[illegible] miles. This replaces a former record of 12,404.9 miles. The end of the run was witnessed by thousands. Mayor Sebastian of Los Angeles switched off the ignition. For the first time in nearly forty-four days the Maxwell motor missed its life giving spark and stopped. Officially the run was declared ended. Practically it will continue for many more days, as the car was immediately restarted and left for a tour through southern California and Arizona.

The Hardman Tire and Rubber company of Belleville, N. J., announces opening a branch store at 2728 Michigan avenue, Chicago, for the sale of the "Sure Grip" nonskid casings. This branch will be the central distributing point for the middle west. The management of the middle west territory for the Hardman tire will be under the direction of J. W. Culver, who formerly had charge of the distribution of this tire in the southwest. Mr. Culver also was district manager for the Boston Woven Hose and Rubber company for several years. H. P. Lindley, formerly manager of the Bart S. Adams Tire company of St. Louis, will be assistant manager in the sale of these tires. The Hardman people report that business is good and the tires are giving excellent satisfaction.

"That the automobile industry is growing from strong roots gripped in the soil of stable prosperity will be demonstrated by the coming national show in the Coliseum," said Manager Miles. "In past years scoffers who said the industry was a bonanza growth have been successively put to rout. This year their voices are stilled, for it is about as futile to decry the American automobile industry as to predict that a changing fashion will affect the nation's wheat crop. As prosperity's chariot, the automobile is a symbol and a real indication of the country's financial health. 'Bigger and better than ever' is not an outworn term, for Chicago, as always, will surpass herself during the sixteenth annual National Automobile show."

"Comfort is the one point which stands out prominently in the manufacture of an electric car," according to an official of the Baker, Rauch & Lang company. "Inspect the various electrics and note how much thought and consideration has been given by the designers and builders to the comfort of the users. Everywhere that point predominates. Cars are built so that one can enter with the least bit of exertion. After entering the vehicle one is impressed with the clever seating arrangement and the ease in driving, conducive of comfort to the driver and ease of mind and peace to the occupants."

What is the normal speed, piston travel in feet per minute, of a heavy duty motor to obtain the most economical results? Is the power of a gasoline motor usually rated on the speed of piston travel, or revolutions of crankshaft? What is the maximum speed of piston travel possible, yet not injure the motor when used in continued service, such as a truck or tractor work?

The normal speed that a piston travels in feet per minute is between 800 and 1,000 feet. The standard rating is based on a piston speed of 1,000 feet per minute. This depends entirely on the design and construction of a motor and the work it is doing. The piston speed is lower for engines of this type than those of pleasure cars.

Kindly explain the meaning of the word magnetic as applied to the Owen magnetic car?

The clutch and gearset in the Owen Magnetic car are replaced by an electric generator and an electric motor in such a way that the magnetic drag between their armatures causes the crankshaft to turn the propeller shaft. By varying the resistance and connections between the two, any speed relations may be obtained.

I am contemplating an automobile trip from Buffalo to New York City. Although the weather is not favorable for touring, I understand that the road through Utica is a feasible way. Please advise me the towns I will pass through via Utica.

R. C. H., Buffalo.

Go east from Buffalo and take the north route to Batavia, via Williamsville, Clarence, Pembroke, and East Pembroke, then continue northeast through Byron, Bergen, Churchville, and Rochester. From Rochester the route goes southeast through Fairport, Macedon Center, Palmyra, Newark, Lyons, Clyde, Savannah, Port Byron, Weedsport, Elbridge, Camillus, Syracuse, Chittenango, Oneida Castle, Vernon, Utica, Ilion, Herkimer, Palatine Bridge, Fonda, Amsterdam, Schenectady, and Albany. The Hudson river is followed south from Albany through Rensselaer, East Greenbush, Schodack Center, Valatie, Kinderhook, Stockport, Hudson, Livingston, Blue Stores, Clermont, Nevis, Red Hook, Rhinebeck, Staatsburg, Hyde Park, Poughkeepsie, Wappingers Falls, Fishkill, Peekskill, Buchanan, Harmon, Ossining, Scarboro, Tarrytown, Irvington, Dobbs Ferry, Hastings, Yonkers, and New York. This automobile route is over state highways practically all the way from Buffalo to New York. The trip is a scenic drive, especially south from Albany to New York, where the east side of the Hudson river is followed south.

Will you kindly print the results of the Cole car that was tested for a slow speed contest at Boston in December?

W. K. H.

A Cole eight, with the shifting lever removed and the transmission locked in high gear, was run through one of the most congested districts of Boston. The spark plugs and throttle levers were sealed in such a position that the car could not exceed a speed of five miles per hour. The suction and supply lines in the Steward vacuum tank were removed and the tank filled to capacity, two quarts, with standard motor gasoline. The car was started from the salesroom of the Cole company and covered six and one-eighth miles through the crowded traffic in one hour and forty minutes. When every drop of the two quarts of gasoline had been used it was found that the car averaged twelve and one-fourth miles to the gallon at an average speed of 3.675 miles per hour.

Flesh Pots

IT is the essential of hut happiness that life be translated by a comfortable gloss. Sheer, fleshless ecstasies are not looked for. Content has little of rapture in it. It is largely and candidly animal—best when it is perceptive and appreciative, but nevertheless a thing of the senses.

Restless ambition would rage at the narrowed confines of the hut and its surroundings, at the horizon of brown woods and yellowed helianthus stalks bare even of seeds for the sparrows. It would find nothing of importance in the flash of a cardinal against the snow, much less in the early spring song of the chickadee.

In hut happiness there is a true enlargement of the real facts of life which are the facts of the senses. Ambition, as it has to do with other than a desire to feed the senses reasonably, sufficiently, or inordinately, is a desire to leave a record of having lived, which is an indictment of and a sentence pronounced against life itself. It argues insufficiency of the fact itself and a hope of some justification to be found after all chance of finding it has gone.

Rather than a conception of life important only as it imposes itself on generations to follow its extinction let there be a frank and honest delight in the honest senses, with a cabbage boiling in a pot and an appetite for it; hams and bacon in the smoke house; fat poultry and mealy roots; an odor of baking and a thought of comfort, shelter, and competence.

These are the real things life struggles for or enjoys without struggle, and for their accentuation there need be asked only a skirling wind, a whirling snow storm, and, for the imagination, a book long thought of and just come by.

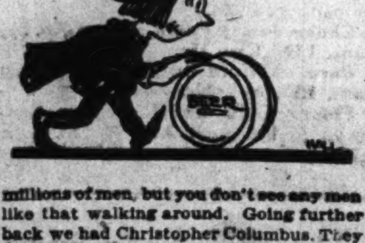
MAJESTIC.

Sam Bernard: We will now consider the country as a whole and the politicians at large. That's the reason the country's in a hole—the politicians are at large.

Times are changing. In 1776 we had only 3,000,000 men and among them we found fellows like Washington, the Adamses and Jefferson. Today we got millions of men, but you don't see any men like that walking around. Going further back we had Christopher Columbus. They gave him three schooners and he discovered America. What would he have done if he'd had a keg?



That brings us to the Indians. The Indians were a hardy race and good people until congress took a hand and began to educate them. They were fine people, strong men, and they didn't drink. Just think what a fine race they were when it took congress 130 years to make bums out of them.

They owned their own land—that is, until we came and squatted on it. The squatter used to go out with a gun in one hand and a bottle of whisky in the other and hold a council with an Indian chief.

"Good morning, chief," he'd say "we want Pennsylvania."

What could the poor Indian do? If he didn't give up Pennsylvania he'd be shot; if he did he'd only be half shot. So he did what anybody would do.

How those Indians must laugh now to think that Rockefeller did the same thing to us that we did to the Indians. Only he oiled us out.

Then the Indians had to pay for living on their own land. They paid with a bottle of whisky and the landlord went away paid and full.

Wilson only went wrong once this term. O, I don't mean what you mean! He appointed Bryan Secretary of Mistakes. Still, it might have been worse. He might have stayed in longer.

McVICKER'S.

Buck Weaver and Jim Scott:

"At home my brother never yawns, no matter how sleepy he is."

"Why not?"

"He's afraid to open his mouth in his wife's presence."

"I have found the key to success."

"But have you located the keyhole?"

"While riding on a State street trolley this afternoon the car shook so badly that I covered five laps in ten minutes."

"Fast work, my boy, fast work!"

"They tell me your brother is in the hospital?"

"Yes. He bet Maloney he could lean farther out of a window—and he won."

"What's that piece of cord tied round your finger for?"

"My wife put it there to remind me to post a letter."

"And did you post it?"

"No; she forgot to give it to me."

"Do you ever play cards for money?"

"Yes, but I never get it."

"Won't it seem strange when women rule this country?"

"Not to me. I've been ruled by a woman for ten years."

"How's your mother-in-law?"

"She's improving, but very slowly."

"Well, I'm glad to hear that."

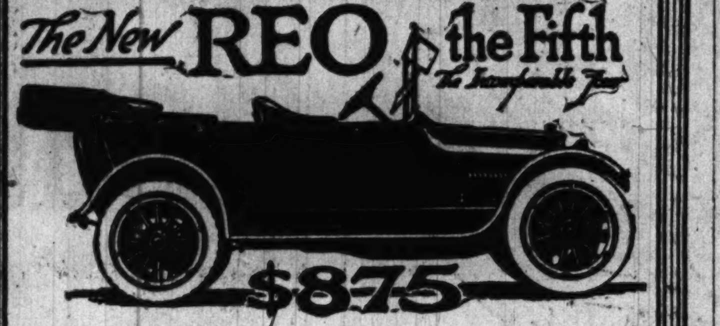
"Did you ever talk 'back' to your wife?"

"Once. I told her her back wasn't covered enough."

"A friend in need is a friend indeed."

"Yes, but give me a friend who isn't in need."

REO



The New York Show Proved Reos Are Still The Leaders

WE DON'T MIND ADMITTING, now that it is all over, that we waited with considerable curiosity to see what the New York Automobile show would disclose in the way of a rival or a copy of the new Reo Six whose graceful lines, splendid proportions and sensational price created such a furore in motoring circles when announced in Septemter.

WE HAD HEARD MANY RUMORS—as had you—of new sixes to be unveiled at the Gotham exhibit and whisperings had it that several makers would try to eclipse the Reo Six in beauty of design, even if they could not duplicate the Reo quality in the chassis.

WELL, WHAT DID WE SEE? What did you see?—if you were there. And if not, what have you heard from the New York Show.

ASK ANYONE WHO WAS THERE and he will say, in these exact words, or others that mean the same thing "Oh, there was nothing strikingly new. One or two novelties, a few Speed Demons as usual—and the Reos with the usual crowds of buyers around them."

IN OUR NEW YORK ADS we directed people to the Reo booth by simply saying "go where the crowd is."

THERE WERE SEVERAL COPIES of the new Reo Six. In fact the most outstanding feature of the show was the impress this beautiful, graceful "Sheer-line" Reo Six body had made on the trade—on body design. On every hand you saw evidences of hurried revision of body design all with the very evident intent to emulate the lines of this Reo.

BUT A COPY IS AT BEST—A COPY. It cannot equal the original without proving it was filched from it—and it cannot surpass it if the original really was a distinct type—a new standard in design as all concede this Reo Six to be.

SO THE REO SIX IS still the "fashion plate for the season of 1916." It was so heralded by dealers everywhere when its magnificent lines were first shown. And there was nothing at the New York show—there will be nothing at the Chicago show—to alter that verdict or to deprive the Reo Six of that distinction.

AND REO THE FIFTH—that wonderful car that is known the world over as "the incomparable Four"—the car that, for now six seasons has been the acknowledged leader in its power and price class—Reo the Fifth not only retained but added to its prestige at New York.

WE REO FOLK HONESTLY BELIEVE that Reo the Fifth is, all things considered, the most highly developed, the most nearly perfected car and the best value in the world. We firmly believe that.

JUST CONSIDER WHAT YOU RECEIVE in this car for $875. Consider the certainty of service that is guaranteed by those years of demonstration by nearly one hundred thousand cars of this model. Reo quality developed to the highest degree and backed by the Reo guarantee—always worth par.

AND BUYERS AGREE WITH US—that is evidenced by the ever increasing demand for Reo the Fifth. Seems as if we never can make enough of them to supply all who want them.

HERE IT IS JANUARY—middle of January—and though the factory has worked as never before, it has been impossible to get one car ahead of the daily demand. We had hoped to store at least 3,000 cars against the Spring rush. Not a car—not one! There's an order waiting for every Reo as it comes from the factory.

SO WE WARN YOU again and yet again—don't delay. Don't put off ordering your Reo until it is too late. We have our specifications by weeks. Can tell you precisely when we can deliver yours. But your order must take its turn—in fairness to other Reo buyers. So the sooner it is in our hands, the sooner can we deliver you a Reo.

TO-DAY won't be a minute too soon.

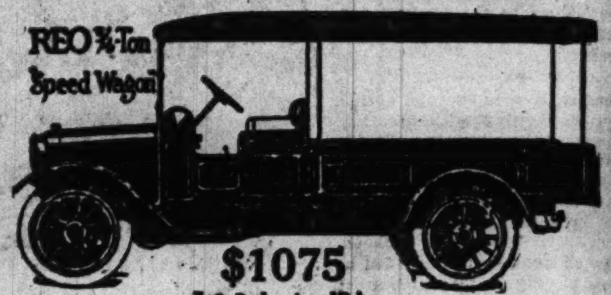
REO



A Good Object Lesson on the Value of Motor Trucks

THE RECENT HOLIDAY RUSH was a splendid object lesson on the value, the superiority and the absolute necessity of Motor trucks in modern merchandising.

DOUBTLESS YOU NOTICED IT. No one with his commercial eyes open could help doing so. And the work done, the business gained by users of the modern delivery method has given the greatest possible impetus to the Reo motor truck business.

IT WAS THE HEAVIEST business ever known if we are to credit the statisticians and it is a serious question whether it could have been handled at all by the old slow method.

CERTAIN IT IS that many a package that was delivered on the hour promised, would under the old system, have arrived the day after Christmas—or later.

THE VERY FACT that leading houses advertised that "fleets of Reo Trucks" would deliver all goods bought is the best evidence of the merchandising value astute business heads put on motor trucks.

AND IT WAS NOTICEABLE that the biggest and the choicest trade went to those houses who could promise the quickest and surest service.

YOU SAW THE BIG REO 2-TON trucks everywhere. But seemed as if no attention was paid to their rated (two-ton) capacity. Wherever you saw a Reo truck it was loaded high. If the cargo happened to be toys or other light, bulky goods—so much easier for the Reo—for if the goods to be delivered happened to be solid metal the drivers loaded just as high apparently.

THAT REO FACTOR OF SAFETY "50 per cent oversize in all vital parts" was always there to ensure against just such overloading and to guarantee reliability of performance under all conditions of load and road.

AND THOSE RAPID MOVING REO "Speed Wagons"—as the new 1500 pound (¾-Ton) Reo trucks are called. You saw them everywhere, too. And if you thought of it at all, you must have marvelled at the tremendous territory they covered and the tremendous amount of goods each delivered in the day.

OF COURSE THEIR DAY was as often 24 hours as ten. But that's one of the greatest advantages, one of the great economies of motor trucks. They never tire. You never feel you are abusing them—for in fact you are not. There's at least an hundred thousand miles in every one of them—use it as you need it. Just change drivers that's all.

AND PERHAPS THE BEST THING about a Reo—any Reo—is that it is not super-sensitive to drivers. "The simplest cars in the world to drive" perform as well in the hands of one as of another. So when the day man comes back he finds the car just as he left it tho it has been on the go all night.

IF YOU ARE STILL HESITATING about discarding the old for the new; the uncertain, unreliable and expensive horses for absolutely reliable and incomparably cheaper Reo Motor Trucks; just ask some Chicago business men who had experience with Reos during the recent big test—and you'll delay no longer.

AS TO WHICH REO YOU NEED—or how many; or if you need a combination of the 2-Ton "Heavy Duty" and the ¾-Ton Reo Speed Wagons to meet your particular needs and to perform your service—we will be glad to advise with you.

PERHAPS WE CAN SHOW YOU cases identica with yours where Reos are operating with the utmost satisfaction.

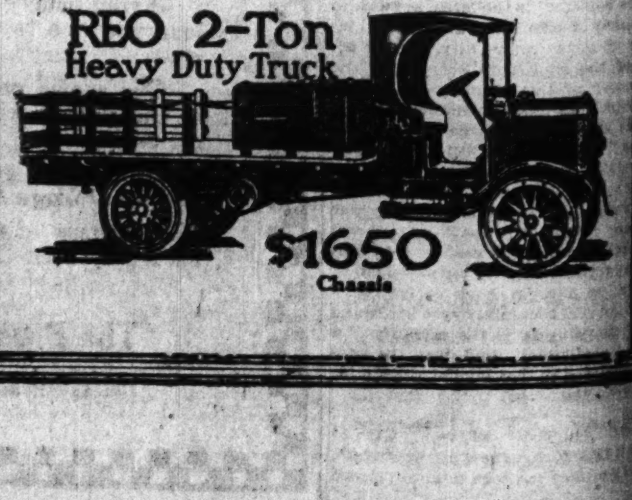
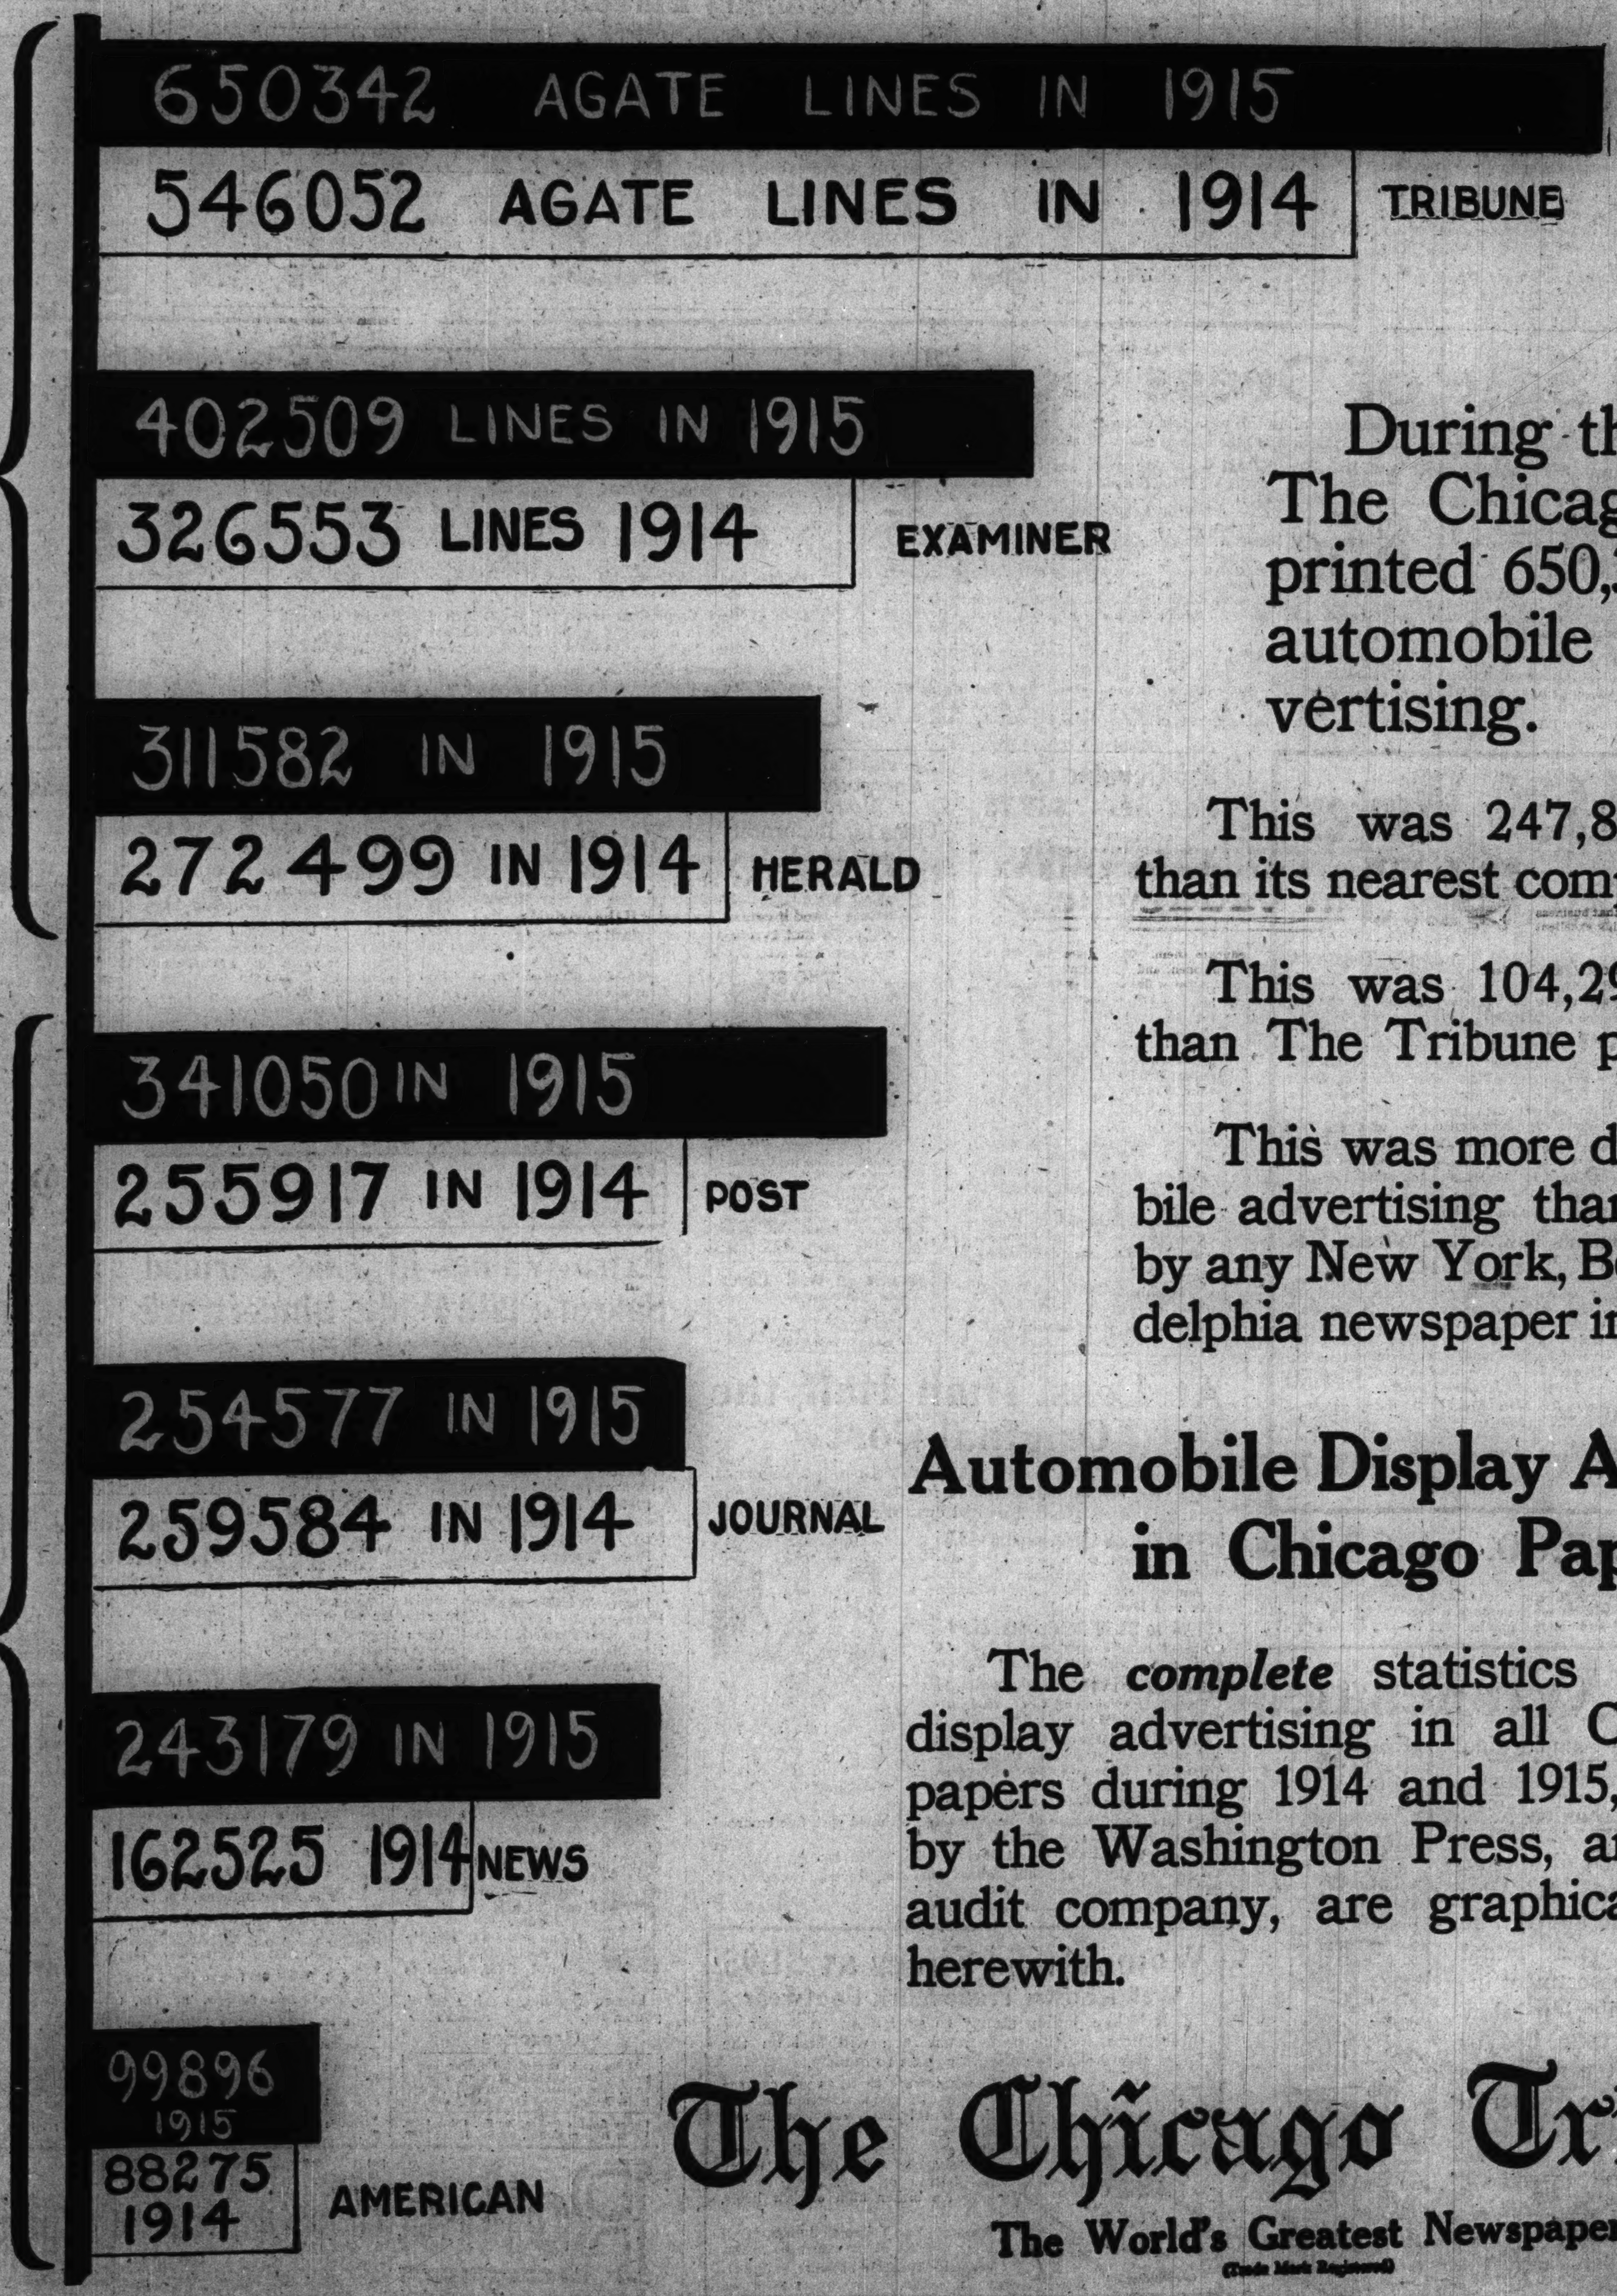
Of course all the Reo Touring and Roadster models will be exhibited at the Coliseum Show—main floor preferred position. But no trucks can be shown there. So we've arranged to have a motor truck show at our spacious salesrooms 1218 Michigan Ave., during show week—you're cordially invited.



Proof that Auto Advertising in The Tribune Pays



During the year 1915 The Chicago Tribune printed 650,342 lines of automobile display advertising.

This was 247,833 lines more than its nearest competitor printed.

This was 104,290 lines more than The Tribune printed in 1914.

This was more display automobile advertising than was printed by any New York, Boston or Philadelphia newspaper in the year 1915.

SALESMAN—A1 SPECIALTY SALESMAN. LISTEN TO THIS:

$200 to $300 per week. Here are some new men's earnings who are just starting: One man [name and address furnished and who will be in office first of week] made $75 first day; another $155 first five days; another, $25 first half day; others making from $25 to $50 per day, day in and day out. You can meet them or write them. Not a man has fallen down out of twelve recently added to our sales force. The above not only shows how much but how quickly you can make money here. The longer you work the better you get. Work five to five and one-half days a week in towns of 1,000 to 20,000, one town a day. From twelve to thirty live leads in every town. No call backs. Proposition worth $100, sells for $30, pays full commission of $12.50 immediately, gives the merchant a year to pay. No charge back of commission on slow accounts. Exclusive and permanent territory still open in nearly every section of the United States. Selling talk readily grasped and you can start with man now producing as stated above if you desire. Only the highest type of clean cut, industrious, and ambitious specialty men considered or interviewed. Must be closers who can stand prosperity. This is a clean, high grade, legitimate proposition; no stocks or schemes. Gets better every year and good year round. Business thoroughly established. PALM BEACH COUNTY, FLORIDA.

READ THIS AND YOU WILL GROW AVOCADOS.

Lake Worth, Fla., Jan. 5th, 1916.
Bryant & Greenwood,
Chicago, Illinois.
Gentlemen:—

I received your letter several weeks ago regarding my little avocado grove, just west of Lake Worth, but have been so busy in the store that have not had time to answer.

My grove has been planted a little over 22 months. The trees are of the Trapp variety. They were from twelve to eighteen inches high when planted.

Herewith picture of the smallest tree in the orchard, which bore nine pears. I sold these nine pears for $9.00 here in Lake Worth.

Some of my trees matured as high as twenty-four pears.

Yours truly,
[Signed] A. B. CANADY.

I will sell you Avocado Trees—plant them—care for them until they produce—you pay small monthly payments—you may purchase any number of trees from Ten up and when payments are completed a deed to the Grove is turned over to you. No Interest. No Taxes.

Why not own a place in Palm Beach County and raise vegetables and fruit in winter when the North is frozen up and have a double income besides the comforts of being in that delightful climate?

Why pay hotel bills when for $25.00 a month you can rent a furnished bungalow with electric light, water, and up-to-date bathroom, fine ocean bathing, good fishing, schools, and social advantages?

Why not treat yourself to a trip and enjoy the sunshine and flowers of Florida—get away from la grippe—and get rid of that rheumatism?

Let me arrange your trip—the service is free. Write for booklet about Lake Worth and information on Avocado Pears.

There Is Money in Avocado Pears in Palm Beach County.

MONEY GROWS

IF RIGHTLY PLANTED.

You can start a Fruit Grove in Florida today which will increase in value while you pay for it in small monthly payments.

NO NEED TO GIVE UP YOUR PRESENT BUSINESS OR POSITION. No need to move to Florida until you are ready. When you do come you can move to an improved producing grove. WE FURNISH THE LAND, THE TREES, AND ALL LABOR. You can invest in land NOW and develop it any time you wish—or you can start immediate improvements, either personally or through our company. WE RAISE OUR OWN GUARANTEED TREES in our own nurseries, which insures every purchaser of the best fruits trees that can be grown. This also insures a successful grove.

RIGHT NOW IS THE TIME TO INVEST IN OUR NEW LITHIA TRACT SUBURBAN TO TAMPA, the metropolis of South Florida—situated in the recognized center of Florida's Citrus Fruit belt. No better land can be found anywhere for fruit, truck, poultry, live stock, natal hay and other forage crops.

THIS IS THE THIRD GREAT HILLSBORO COUNTY TRACT that has been opened to homeseekers and investors by our old established, responsible, thoroughly experienced organization.

FREE—ABSOLUTELY FREE—To Start Your Grove—100 grapefruit and orange trees to each and every purchaser who reserves 10 acres or more NOW.

GET THE FACTS NOW. Get this new, wonderful opportunity clearly before you while prices on this newly opened tract are still low and terms easy. Today $1 per acre per month buys the land, which can bring you independence and a future.

Call or write today for our free book on Florida and full information.

Idaho.

WANT MONEY?

Let me tell you how to get it. Idaho land is full of it, and the land isn't very high priced, either. Climatic and living conditions are excellent—electricity used for cooking, lighting, and heating on many farms—educational advantages unexcelled.

There are many tracts of land—irrigated and non-irrigated—suitable for all kinds of farming, for sale cheap and on reasonable terms. Seed raising highly profitable. I will give complete information to you free for the asking.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

Ten Acres

POULTRY MEN, FRUIT GROWERS, TRUCK AND SPECIALTY FARMERS are being located on about 900 acres which we have laid out in ten acre tracts. The arrangement is for co-operation in producing and marketing. The tracts front on roads leading to nearby local markets and shipping points, from which, by lake or rail, products are placed overnight on the Chicago, Milwaukee, Grand Rapids, and Detroit markets. The location is in the heart of Michigan's Fruit and Clover Belt.

ANY ONE OF A NUMBER of crops can be made to quickly return the cost of the land, which is good and fertile and lies level at a good altitude. There is no waste land and every foot will yield its share of the crops. It is a famous potato, fruit, and vegetable country. Potatoes, pickles, strawberries, beans, bush fruits, poultry, or other products, will soon return one's investment.

PLANT AN ORCHARD of apples, peaches, apricots, pears, cherries, or plums and while it is developing use the ground between the trees for vegetables and bush fruits. With proper care, when the orchard comes into bearing it can be made to earn you $200 and more per acre each year.

TO OWN TEN ACRES here, with the independence it means to a man who fears the loss of his job or his health, is only a matter of $250. And you can pay a little at a time; $10 down and $5 monthly. We will select a ten acre piece and give you privilege to exchange it when you go to inspect the land next season. We own 30,000 acres of land which are for sale in units of 40 acres and up and will subdivide certain lands to suit purchasers.

CALL OR WRITE immediately for literature describing the district and any further information. On our excursions we will furnish automobiles and guides free, and allow excursion railroad fare from Chicago off the price of the land. After the contract is partly paid out you will be insured against death for the balance. 5% off for cash deals. Full Warranty Deed and Abstract on completion of purchase.

FOR SALE—OWNER OF SUCCESSFUL, HIGHLY PRODUCTIVE
1,000 ACRE ORCHARD AND FARM,
WILL SELL

20-Acre Farms for Only $300

ON TERMS OF
$5.00 CASH AND $5.00 MONTHLY,
WITHOUT INTEREST OR TAXES.

I am having splendid success with my 1,000 acre orchard and farm in Southeast Missouri. Have 100 acres in peaches, 136 in apples, 6 in grapes, 8 in strawberries, 4 in blackberries and raspberries, and 150 in vegetables, grains, and grasses. The balance will be planted to grapes and fruit trees next spring. The peaches have been running over $100 per acre, berries and grapes, $300; tomatoes, $100 [$10 per ton at the canning factory], etc. Apples just coming into bearing.

I have a large amount of land surrounding my 1,000 acre orchard and farm, much more than I will ever be able to get under cultivation myself, and will sell 10 and 20 acre tracts at $300, on terms of $5.00 cash and $5.00 monthly, without interest or taxes.

FARMS FREE TO LIMITED NUMBER.

For a limited number of persons I have an arrangement whereby they can obtain a farm tract free.

My location is in Southeast Missouri, midway between the Ozarks and the lowlands, elevation above sea level about 550 feet.

Before offering any of my land for sale, I went to the authorities of the seven nearby states having the so-called "Blue Sky" laws and asked them to pass on the printed matter I had prepared and to send their expert land men to inspect my orchard, farm, and land offered. After doing this, and also investigating my financial responsibility and past business record, they quickly granted permission to sell my land in their states.

A few acres here, properly looked after, will bring you a splendid income, besides providing the best of everything for your own use. $100 to $200 clear profit per acre can be made. Fruits, berries, vegetables, grains, and grasses will produce these results. A single cow can be made to pay $12 clear profit every month. $100 will build you a cozy, comfortable home in our mild climate that will seem like a little palace compared with the ordinary, crowded, brick bound city flat.

With a few chickens, pigs, and a cow, fruits, berries, vegetables, and a little meadow to start with, your health, wealth, and happiness come into your own hands. You are boss of all, with room to grow, and no one is big enough to come in and give you orders. We have good schools, churches, rural free delivery, and mutual rural telephone lines and good towns.

FREE RAILWAY FARE

to purchasers; 90 days' time to visit land and make your selection; money back after one year if dissatisfied; payments stop in case of death; money loaned for improvements; perfect title; immediate possession.

I have made about 50 kodak views in and around the big orchard and farm and on the land I am offering, and have had them reproduced in a 16-page pamphlet, in which also I have placed all the information to be obtained regarding the topography, soil, climate, water, rainfall, healthfulness, productivity, products, and about everything you want to know; also 60 letters from men in Chicago and nearby towns who have gone down to look and who have bought. I'll gladly send you a copy if you will write.

INVESTMENT

We are looking for a man of ability and who can invest $100,000 for the controlling interest in a good manufacturing proposition which is already established in a good live town near Chicago.

This is not a proposition for promoters or curiosity seekers—so if you haven't got the money do not waste your time, as no information will be given until your financial standing is investigated.

This is a rare investment, and is for the man with the money, also the ability to handle a big money making proposition.

Address J J 138, Tribune.

INVESTMENT—IF YOU ARE 40 OR UNDER and have a clean, successful record, this is an exceptional opportunity for you to buy either a 50% or a 100% interest in an established Illinois corporation (capital stock $50,000) which has just perfected and patented a wonderful mechanical specialty superior to anything of its kind now on the market. This company has worked long and hard at a great expense, creating and perfecting this article. All experimental work is completed and fully paid for. The company is free from debt; products now ready for manufacturing. Can be made for $2, retails at $6.75; no factory necessary at once. In meantime product can be made for us either in Chicago or New York. If you can't immediately raise $15,000 in cash, don't waste time answering. Address J L 261, Tribune.

INVESTMENT WANTED—MAN WHO HAS had high pressure selling experience, able to invest $1,000 immediately; must be able to hire and handle force live wire salesmen. "MONEY MAKING—A WAY OPEN TO YOU" is the title of a booklet we believe will be of interest to you and it will be sent on request. That you may not be deceived into sending for a booklet in which you will not be interested we would tell you something of it. It contains the story of the formation of a corporation for the purpose of raising oranges and grapefruit and other citrus fruits, and gives the names of some of Florida's best known fruit men who have recognized in this company a real money making opportunity and have taken stock in it. It tells the story not of a dream project, or something that is to be, but something started, under way and being rapidly carried to completion, and a real opportunity is presented to join with successful men in a successful enterprise. We would be pleased to send you a copy. Just a post card will bring it by return mail, without obligation on your part. Grapefruit Growers' Association, Valrico, Fla.

The Revision in Motor Car Values

Caused by the Introduction of the PACKARD "TWIN SIX" affected used cars as well. So our allowances are most conservative, and our selling prices for used cars correspondingly low.

Shall we send you our weekly bulletin of models and prices?

A REBUILT CADILLAC

It's a Safe Used Car to Buy

SPECIAL VALUES NOW.

A rebuilt Cadillac is superior to any new car at the same price. They are the truest values on the street. By rebuilt we mean that the cars have been taken entirely apart, each part examined, and, if necessary, replaced by a new part made at the Cadillac factory, the entire car repainted and refinished like new, all equipment put in first class condition—the whole car, in fact, carefully reconstructed until it is good as new in every detail.

We offer Cadillacs exclusively, as we do not accept other makes in trade. Consequently we are as interested in the performance of these rebuilt cars as we are in new Cadillacs. In actual service value these cars are worth a great deal more than we ask for them, and we usually have a variety of body styles to select from. See them before you buy.

URGES MICHIGAN REGULATE ALL OF ITS PRIVATE BANKS.

Commissioner Shows Twenty-five Have Failed Since 1908, While Only One State Concern Closed.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 15.—If recommendations made today in the annual report of State Banking Commissioner F. W. Merrick, submitted to Gov. Ferris, are followed by the next legislature private banks in Michigan will be subjected to the same strict regulation now exercised over state banks or be totally eliminated.

The commissioner pointed out that since 1908 twenty-five private banks in the state have failed, whereas in the same period only one state bank has been compelled to close its doors.

The report indicated a healthy gain in the business of state banks during the year, which was interpreted by the commissioner as reflecting the prevailing prosperity in all parts of Mihcigan.

FLORIDA GRIP 'QUARANTINE' LIBEL BY JEALOUS RIVALS?

Jacksonville Health Officer Says Reported Embargo Against Other States Is Absurd.

Down among the resorts of the east and west coasts of Florida they are becoming agitated over rumors circulated in the north that Florida was contemplating a quarantine against other states because of the influenza epidemic.

"There is not a word of truth in it," says State Health Officer Joseph Y. Porter of Jacksonville, Fla. "The idea that we ever thought of quarantining against influenza or grip is absurd. Many undoubtedly come to this state with the malady, but soon recover from it."

Florida citizens attribute the quarantine report to jealous resort boomers in other parts of the country, especially in view of the activity of the "Florida First" commission.

Freed in Dope Case.

James Waldo was dismissed by Commissioner Mason yesterday. He was charged with violating the Harrison anti-narcotic law. His wife, Mabel Waldo, waived examination and was held to the federal grand jury.

TERRORS MINGLE WITH DELIGHTS IN ALASKAN SEAS

Submerged Washington Monuments Rip Ships; Coast Survey Exploring for Rocks.

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER.

[Copyright: 1916: By Frank G. Carpenter.]

KETCHIKAN.—I rose at 4 o'clock in the morning to go out with one of the wire drag crews that are exploring the main channels of southern Alaska for pinnacle rocks.

Our boat was the steamer Equator, the little craft upon which Robert Louis Stevenson made his tour through the South Sea islands, and we had a second vessel, a tug called the Roosevelt, to carry the other end of the wire.

It takes two boats to operate the wire drag. They move along on each side of the channel and carry with them, far down under the water, so far that the deepest ship that sails the course could not be caught by it, a taut strand of telephone wire.

This wire sweeps the channel. It is so balanced by weights and buoys that it moves through the water as the boats go onward until it catches some rock that reaches above the depth for which it is gauged. The depth we used was about fifty feet, and our boats steamed slowly along without striking a pinnacle.

Graveyard of the Pacific.

These waters are sometimes called the graveyard of the Pacific. They are among the most dangerous parts of the ocean. Within the last sixty years 300 vessels have gone down upon their rocks, and cargoes and lives are lost every season.

I have before me a list of fifty vessels, ranging in value up to $300,000, which have been sunk since we took possession of the territory, and there are many others that have suffered great damage but have still gone on their way.

The California, which was lost in 1913, carried down with it thirty-one men and a cargo of $300,000.

The Tahoma, a revenue cutter, lost in 1914, was worth a quarter of a million dollars, and within recent years the losses in property alone are estimated at more than $8,000,000. The loss in lives has been more than 500 all told.

The extent of the Alaska coast, with its windings, surpasses that of the United States proper. It is greater than that of all our states on the Pacific from Puget sound to the boundary of Mexico added to that of our states on the Atlantic, including the gulf.

All told, it is more than 26,000 miles long, or longer than the distance around the world at the equator, and in proportion to its length it has perhaps more dangers than any other coast line on earth.

Nevertheless, not one-half of it has yet been sounded by the coast survey vessels, and more than half of the general coast line is not marked by lights or by any aids to navigation.

Few Lights on Yukon.

As to the rivers, there is not a light or mark on the great winding Yukon except at its mouth, and it is the same of its many navigable tributaries. It was only last year that the department of commerce opened up the navigable channel of the Kuskokwim.

That river is the second in size of the rivers of Alaska. It is nine miles wide at the mouth, and is now navigable for 600 miles inland.

The coast surveyors have spent the last five open seasons in charting its waters, and the great Kuskokwim valley has now been opened by them to navigation. In surveying the delta within an area of 100 square miles something like 14,000 soundings were taken.

The lighthouse service of Alaska leaves a great deal to be desired. The first buoy was floated in 1884 and the first light erected ten years later. There are now on the whole Alaskan coast line only 329 aids to navigation, and these include about 140 lights, of which twenty-eight were established in 1915.

There are few lighthouses, and only three on the main travel route from Icy strait to Nome, a distance as far as from New York to London.

Wilson Awake to Dangers.

At present the government is awake to the dangers of Alaskan navigation. It was only last year that President Wilson called attention to the necessity of exploring the waters and erecting lighthouses, and Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce has a number of new movements to that effect under way.

He is constructing a first class coast light on Cape St. Elias. This lighthouse is being erected on the south end of the Island of Kayak, one of the most important points on the Gulf of Alaska.

It is where the boats, after leaving the Inside Passage, pass on their way into Prince William sound and to Seward, the terminus of our new railroad.

The lighthouse is to cost $115,000. It will rise ninety feet above the level and will be equipped with a lamp of 180,000 candlepower, which can be seen more than fifteen miles away. The light is a double flash which bursts forth every twenty seconds.

U. S. Building New Vessels.

The government is building several new vessels for the improvement of the Alaskan waters. One of these is to be for the lighthouse service, and it will be ready for work in May, 1916. It is being constructed at Long Beach, Cal. It is to be called the Cedar.

The boat will be a double bottomed, schooner rigged vessel 200 feet long, thirty-six feet wide, and with a displacement of 1,750 tons. It will draw thirteen feet of water and have a speed of twelve knots an hour.

It will be constructed of steel throughout. It will be lighted by electricity, and will have a radio outfit of the most modern type.

Secretary Redfield is having a new coast survey vessel built on the Great lakes especially for the Alaskan waters. The boat will be taken down the lakes, out into the Atlantic ocean, and by way of the Panama canal to Alaska.

It will be called the Surveyor, and will take the place of some of the old tubs, known as the coast survey vessels, now in the service.

Peary Ship to Protect Fishing.

Another government ship which will be in Alaska next season will be devoted to the protection of the fishing rather than of navigation. This is the Roosevelt, the vessel made famous by Peary in his north polar explorations.

So far, the coast survey has charted only about half of the waters of Alaska. The area to be surveyed is bigger than the state of Texas, and the amount already sounded is only a little larger than the state of Missouri.

I had no idea of the work required to explore and mark the waters of the ocean until I came to Ketchikan. This is the headquarters of the coast survey service for Alaska, and there are several ships now engaged in work in the waters near here.

I went out on the McArthur, which has been making surveys in the Tongass narrows and in and about Prince of Wales island. The McArthur is one of the older ships in the service. It was built in 1876 to survey the bar off San Francisco bay and has been in the coast survey work ever since.

Its commander is Capt. C. T. Quillian, a native of Georgia, who has been connected with the coast survey since 1902. It was beside him that I watched them charting the ocean.

Details of Survey Work.

In the coast survey work it is necessary to ascertain the exact depth and character of every foot of the channel over which the ships are to sail. This is done by dropping heavy pieces of lead, to which piano wire is attached, down to the bottom.

The wire runs around a reel or drum on board ship, and it is so fine that it moves out like a thread as the lead sinks quickly to the bed of the sea. The drum has machinery connected with the engine, and the lead can be drawn up and the exact depth automatically registered.

The work goes so fast that from ten to twenty soundings are taken in an hour, the lead rising and falling like clockwork. The boat has to stop for two minutes when each sounding is taken.

I took out my watch and timed the lead as it rose and fell. It took only one minute and a half to go from the boat to the bed of the sea and back. When it returned it brought with it gravel and shells, showing the character of the bottom of the ocean, 500 feet below.

The lead is smeared with grease in order that it may catch the gravel.

Both Terror and Delight.

In the Panhandle the islands are half submerged mountains, and the ships sail in and out above the needle-tipped peaks of a great mountain chain. These mountains have spires and cathedrals of rock, and in places there are rocky obelisks that rise to the height of the Washington monument or higher.

When such a shaft comes out on an island it is covered with green and is a delight to the eye of the tourist. When it rises from the bed of the ocean and its peak is still concealed below the surface it is the terror of the navigator.

It is then one of the deadly swords of old Father Neptune, ready and waiting to cut the heart out of any ship that comes in its path.

These rocks are often of such a small area that they escape the soundings of the coast survey. They can be detected only by the wire drag, which, sweeping along at a given depth, is sure to strike against them if they rise above the height at which it is gauged.

The first wire-drag vessel used in American waters began its work about ten years ago on our Atlantic coast, and the government surveyors have been working there ever since.

In this time they have discovered more than 3,000 rocks with less water over them than shown by the charts, and about 1,000 of those are dangerous to navigation. All were in waters that had been previously charted by the coast survey.

How Wire Drag Works.

It is interesting to see how the wire drag works. The chief boat has a windlass operated by the engine. About the windless is the telephone wire which is to be let down and stretched across between the boats far below the depths at which ships sail.

This wire is several miles in length and it is run out according to the width of the channel which is to be tested. The wire used here is stretched across a channel up to two miles in width.

The horizontal dragging wire is supported by vertical wires which fall from large buoys, and it is held at the proper depths by sinkers and floats.

The buoys are really galvanized iron buckets of perhaps ten gallons' capacity. The buckets are sealed, and, being full of air, they float while supporting the weight of the wire beneath.

It takes boats of about forty horse power to move this submerged wire through the sea, the average speed of the drag being about a mile and a half per hour. Notwithstanding this, as many as fifteen shoal spots and rocks are sometimes found in one day.

Fit Only for Scrap Heap.

When the drag strikes a rock the place is marked and another surveying party develops the area about it. A buoy or float of some kind is then anchored there to show the danger and a new record is made on the chart.

Up to the present between one-third and one-half of the main channels of southeastern Alaska have been explored by the wire drag. The work will be prosecuted steadily and as fast as the appropriations by congress will warrant.

Most of the vessels in the coast survey service in Alaska are fit only for the scrap heap. Secretary Redfield has rightly called them "unseaworthy old tubs." They are without wireless equipment, deficient in modern appliances, and some are so poor that they can be safely used only in protected waters.

The McArthur, to which I have referred, is over forty years old. It has been nicknamed the "Chinese Shoe" on account of its shape. It is only twenty feet wide and 120 feet long, and its speed is about seven miles an hour. It has to use a steam launch for its surveying work, but it is so frail that it cannot hoist it on board.

The Gedney and the Endeavor are in the same class with the McArthur. They have no electricity and no condensing and refrigerating plants. The accommodations for the men and officers are bad.

The Endeavor was used in the civil war as a Confederate gunboat. The Gedney was constructed in 1875 on the Atlantic coast, and it came around South America to Alaska thirty-five years ago. It is 140 feet long and twenty-six feet wide. It is now charting the waters about the Prince of Wales island.

ARTCRAFT CLUB LAUNCHED BY COMMERCIAL ARTISTS.

Men Who Make Designs for Newspaper and Magazine Advertisers to Have Quarters of Their Own.

The commercial artist, the man who makes the designs for the newspaper and magazine advertisers, is to have a club of his own. The new organization is not to be a rival of the Palette and Chisel club. Its objects are entirely different. The bare figure of an automobile or of a cream separator is to be given more attention than the bare figure of a beautiful woman.

Membership is to include the interior decorator, the jewelry designer, the designer of wall paper, the metal designer, the manufacturer of art productions, the engraver, the art printer, the lithographer, the bookbinder, proprietors and managers and dealers and salesmen of art products.

The organization, to be known as the Artcraft club, also expects to be heard from in all public discussions of building art, the construction of model tenements, as well as to originate campaigns in favor of civic art.

A contract is ready to be signed with the owners of a building at 646 South Clark street for quarters. A. de Severinus, who for nine years was in charge of the interior decorating work for Stanford White; C. G. Christensen, Walter Farrington Moses, F. J. Meserow, Arthur Henke, August Petrtyl, and Louis Huehne are among the chief promoters.

WIFE CHARGES MISCONDUCT WHILE SHE WAS ABROAD.

Albert S. Scott, Former Public Service Company Official, Sued for Separate Maintenance.

That Albert S. Scott, former secretary and treasurer of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, induced his wife, Mrs. Mabel M. Scott of Oak Park, to visit her parents in England and then traveled with another woman as her husband is charged in a bill filed for separate maintenance.

Mrs. Scott avers she left Chicago Dec. 14 and while in England during March learned Scott was on terms of intimacy with an unnamed woman.

That it was Scott's intention to abandon her is also alleged.

In asking support Mrs. Scott says her husband is or was the owner of fifty shares of stock in the Mid-West Utilities company valued at $1,000 per share and also held stock in the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. He is now connected with a manufacturing concern.

DAUGHTER SAVES PARENT.

Finds Aged Father and Brother Overcome by Gas—She Raises Windows.

Ferdinand Bosselt Sr., 70 years old, and his son, who is 45, yesterday were saved from possible death from gas by their daughter and sister, Mrs. Rose Baumstark. They live at 2448 Irving Park boulevard. Mrs. Baumstark, who lives at 4523 North Crawford avenue, called at the house to visit her father and found him unconscious. Her brother also was overcome. One burner of the gas range was open. She opened the windows and called the police.

Charged Colored Soldiers Attack, Behead Dying Germans

Mr. Roeder has just returned from an extensive visit to Germany, made on behalf of the New York World and "The Chicago Tribune." His articles are truthful expositions of conditions as he found them.

BY GUSTAV C. ROEDER.

The foreign office in Germany has just completed the preparation of a memorial on the employment of colored troops in the European arena of war by England and France.

This document, which is considered by the German war department as of greatest importance, deals with official reports, investigations, and statements made under oath before military court martial, in regard to conduct of colored troops in the field and atrocities committed by them upon German soldiers, mostly wounded and dying.

When the time comes for peace negotiations to be entered into this document undoubtedly will form an important factor. A copy of this remarkable memorial, with affidavits and reports, was procured by the staff correspondent of the World at the foreign office in Berlin.

Savage Customs Used in War.

The memorial itself which precedes the list of reports and affidavits says in part:

"In the present war England and France have not relied solely upon the strength of their own people but are employing large numbers of colored troops from Africa and Asia in the European arena of war against Germany's popular army. Gurkhas, Sikhs, Pathians, Sepoys, Turcos, Goums, Moroccans, and Senegalese fill the English and French lines from the North sea to the Swiss frontier.

"These people, who grew up in countries where war is still conducted in its most savage forms, have brought to Europe the customs of their countries; and under the eyes of the highest commanders of England and France they have committed atrocities which set at defiance not only the recognized usages of warfare but of all civilization and humanity.

Many Statements Sworn To.

"The documents contained in the appendix are only a selection from the comprehensive material at hand, illustrating the barbarous behavior of the mercenary colored troops of England and France. They contain exclusively the sworn testimony of approved witnesses and also extracts from diaries and letters of citizens of hostile countries.

"From the documents it is evident that the colored allies employed by England and France upon the European arena of war have the barbarous practice of carrying with them as war trophies the severed heads and fingers of German soldiers and wearing as ornaments about their necks ears which they have cut off.

"On the battlefields they creep up steathily and treacherously upon the German wounded, gouge their eyes out, mutilate their faces with knives, and cut their throats. Indian troops commit these atrocities with a sharp dagger which is fastened in the sheath of their sidearms. Turcos, even when wounded themselves, creep around on the battlefield and like wild beasts murder the defenseless wounded.

French Officers Are Blamed.

"It is incomprehensible that commanders of French troops, who are aware of this savagery and cruelty of the Senegalese, should allow German wounded prisoners to be escorted by these people and in this way give the Senegalese an opportunity to murder German soldiers.

But every civilized man must feel the deepest indignation that the French military authorities have not scrupled to set these savages to guard innocent women who had the misfortune to be staying in France at the outbreak of the war, and to expose them to their passions.

"The laws of nations do not, indeed, expressly prohibit the employment of colored tribes in wars between civilized nations. The presupposition for such employment, however, is that the colored troops thus employed in war be kept under a discipline which excludes the possibility of the violation of the customs of warfare among civilized peoples.

"The documents in the appendix prove that the colored troops employed by England and France in this war against Germany are very far from meeting this requirement.

"Just as Lord Chatham once protested in the English house of lords during the American war of independence, and Prince Bismarck in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-'71, against the employment, contrary to international law, of uncivilized peoples in war against white troops, so the German government sees itself compelled in the present war to enter a solemn protest against England and France bringing into the field against Germany troops whose savagery and cruelty are a disgrace to the methods of warfare of the twentieth century.

"The government bases its protest upon the spirit of the international agreements of the last few decades, which expressly makes it a duty of civilized peoples 'to lessen the inherent evils of warfare' and 'to serve the interests of humanity and the ever progressing demands of civilization.'

"In the interest of humanity and civilization, therefore, the German government demands most emphatically that colored troops be no longer used upon the European arena of war."

Affidavits by Merchant.

The first affidavit is entitled "Examination of the Merchant Victor Schmier of Bruges by the Admiralty Court." The affidavit reads:

"Bruges, 1915.

"Personally appeared before the undersigned judge, Victor Schmier, merchant, of Bruges, and, reminded of the significance of an oath, declares:

"'On Oct. 4, 1914, I was suddenly arrested in Bruges without cause by the Belgian gendarmie and carried to Calais, where I was again liberated Oct. 20. I started home afoot and arrived Oct. 22 in the vicinity of Nieuport, behind the Belgian-French front, where I was told that it was impossible to go on further. I, therefore, stayed from Oct. 22 to Nov. 21 on the Belgian coast between Nieuport and La Panne, but mostly at East Dunkirk.

Carried 23 German Ears.

"'One day there I met in a valley among the dunes black North Africans, wearing white turbans. They called themselves Coumiers. I spoke to them and asked them whether they had shot many Germans. They replied in the affirmative, and one drew out from the pocket of his baggy trousers a string of putrid fragments of flesh. He raised it proudly aloft and counted the single pieces, to the number of twenty-three. He told me that these were all the right ears of German whom he had shot; and he meant to carry them home as trophies of victory.

"'A second man took from his trousers a head of red hair and a stubble of beard; it had been severed from the neck diagonally. He said it was the head of a German soldier he had shot. The eyes were half open and full of sand.

"'I saw with my own eyes only these two cases of outrage by Moroccan troops; but it is quite evident that the French officers did not check these infamous deeds of the blacks.'

"Read, approved, signed.

"VICTOR SCHMIER.

"The witness confirmed these statements under oath.

HERTZ."

Carried Fingers in Knapsack.

Here follows an extract from the court martial examinations of Ernest Baldeweg, a reservist in infantry regiment No. 35, which reads:

"On the night of Sept. 6, 1914, about 1 o'clock, my comrades captured six or seven Turcos. We found in the pockets of one of them about six fingers with rings on them. Another carried in his knapsack a human head that had been cut off.

"The witness was sworn.

"Read aloud, approved, signed.

"ERNST BALDEWEG,
"DR. PAULS,
"GLADROW."

There is also on record an extract from the diary of a French soldier of reserve infantry regiment No. 285, who fell to the northwest of Lievin.

The translation reads:

"Tuesday 10 [November]. I spend almost the whole day by cleaning myself. Once a Hindu comes along on horseback; he keeps in his feedbag the ears of boches sales [Germans]. He takes pleasure in showing them to us Frenchmen.

ENGLAND'S NEW HOME SECRETARY PROFESSING JEW

First Instance in History of Nation; Has Extraordinary Powers Over Individuals.

BY EX-ATTACHE.

[Copyright: 1916: By the Brentwood Co.]

England, for the first time in all its history has a professing Jew in the role of the principal secretary of state to the crown. True, Benjamin Disraeli attained the dignity of premier, and died as the Earl of Beaconsfield. But he was a member of the Church of England, like his father before him, whereas Herbert Louis Samuel, who has just succeeded Sir John Simon as secretary of state for the home department, has remained a strict adherent to the faith of his forefathers.

Nor is he the only member of his creed in the cabinet, for in the shuffle following the retirement of Sir John Simon, owing to his objections to the compulsory military service law for single men, Herbert Samuel's, first cousin, Edwin Montagu, has been advanced from the secretaryship of the treasury to the chancellorship of the duchy of Lancaster.

Recently Visited United States.

Herbert Samuel will be recalled by many in the United States as having paid a prolonged visit to this country a little over two years ago, while holding the office of postmaster general. His family was founded by his grandfather, Louis Samuel, who kept a small watchmaker's shop in Liverpool. He had two sons, Moses and Edwin. Moses, marrying Ellen Cohen, whose father was on the London stock exchange, eventually established a banking house in Bond street, London, associating his brother Edwin in the business. In 1894, on being created a baronet, Moses Samuel obtained a license from the crown to change his name to Samuel Montagu, and in 1907 was raised to the house of lords as Lord Swaythling. The Right Hon. Edwin Montagu, the new chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, is his second son. The late Lord Swaythling's brother Edwin declined to change his patronymic. He left two sons, the older of whom is Sir Stuart Samuel, member of parliament, and who received a baronetcy in 1912. Sir Stuart's younger brother is Herbert Louis Samuel, the new secretary of state for the home department. He is married to his cousin, a daughter of the late Ellis Abraham Franklin.

Has Successful Career.

Herbert Samuel, who was born at Liverpool in 1870 and who as a Balliol man graduated with first class honors from Oxford, spent four years as parliamentary undersecretary of state from 1905 until 1909, under Lord Gladstone, and thus is acquainted with the workings of the office. It was during that period that he made his mark by the skill with which he piloted the so-called children's act through the house of commons and afterward showed that he knew quite as much about beer as about babies by the clever manner in which he handled the liquor licensing measure in 1908. He was rewarded in the following year with a seat in the cabinet as chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster and twelve months later became postmaster general. As such it fell to his lot to take over in behalf of the state the telephone systems of the United Kingdom.

Has Vast Powers.

The secretary of the home department is more than any other member of the cabinet the channel of communication between the monarch and his subjects. All royal proclamations are countersigned by the home secretary. It is through the home secretary that the king exercises his prerogative of mercy in the pardoning of prisoners or commuting their sentence. As home secretary, Herbert Samuel now finds himself at the head of the police, not only of the metropolis but also of the provinces, and responsible for the efficiency of the so-called criminal investigation department. He has charge of all prisons, reformatories, and lunatic asylums, as well as of the efficient inspection by the government of factories, mines, explosives, railroads, etc., with a view to the enforcement of the legislation for the protection of the citizens and of the working classes.

Sees Justice Enforced.

If there is any miscarriage of magisterial justice in London or in the provinces he is empowered and required to set it right. In fact, there is no end to the demands upon his attention and care. For he is, in the words of the law, responsible to the crown and to the nation "for the maintenance of the king's peace, for the enforcement of the laws of the land, and for the application of all the rules, written and unwritten, for the welfare of the community."

In times of peace the home secretary is intrusted with the grant of letters of naturalization, which are issued in Great Britain only after a good deal of investigation of the antecedents of the applicant. He also is charged with the enforcement of the laws dealing with undesirable aliens. To him belongs the duty of preventing the admission into the United Kingdom of every alien who cannot show an entirely clean bill of health as a citizen of a neutral country.

Can Call on Unwritten Law.

Until the restoration of peace no foreigner can hope to visit, reside, or even land on British soil without his authority, and, what is more, no English subject can leave the country without his warrant and consent. In ordinary times his authority is of the most far reaching and extensive nature, since he is intrusted with the execution, not only of the written, but also of the unwritten law.

Thus the new secretary of state for the home department [who on the official table of precedence ranks after all peers of the realm, but above the lord chief justice, who happens, like himself to be a professing Jew, virtually possesses not only the right of life and death in the United Kingdom, but also may be said to hold the liberty of his fellow citizens in the hollow of his hand. But few people, even in England, are aware that the home secretary can confine a citizen to any asylum for the criminal insane without any trial or judicial commitment, and solely by means of his own warrant.

A prisoner thus incarcerated is held in the asylum until freed by another warrant of the home secretary, and cannot be released by any other process of law, not even by the habeas corpus act. Inmates of criminal insane asylums thus detained are known as "the secretary of state's lunatics."

The blunt nosed shells are called deck piercing shells. The former explode after penetrating the armor, while the latter explode on impact. Two 12 inch torpedo shells are shown (the sixth and ninth from the left); these shells weigh 1,000 pounds. The large shell in the center is a 16 inch cast iron shell made to fit the largest gun at present in service (the 18 inch guns have not been installed) and is in use at Sandy Hook. The shell weighs 2,500 pounds and requires 666 pounds of smokeless powder to propel it. The round cap is going out of use by the United States since it has been found that the pointed cap offers less resistance to the air when in flight. (Photograph from the Boston News company.)
